by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Italian, French, Spanish Confections.

It was not from either Italy or France that we got the best confectioners in the earlier days of English cookery. Spain, notably Toledo, furnished England with the most celebrated pastry cooks, or pasteleros, as they are called, though we have since looked most to France for these artists. Under the patronage of "Bloody Mary" and of Queen Henrietta Maria Spanish methods flourished apace in the court cuisine. We read that when Mary entertained the Princess Elizabeth at Richmond in the summer of 1557 a sumptuous banquet was served, in which there was introduced as an ornament a pomegranate tree in confectionery work bearing the arms of Spain, showing Mary's Spanish leanings in a rather ostentatious fashion. These Spanish and Portuguese confectioners were very skilful. In the comedy of "The Sun's Darling," by Ford and Decker—first acted 1623-24—the Spaniard, who is one of the dramatic persons, declares himself "a confectionador, which in your tongue is a comfit maker, of Toledo." He says, "I can teach sugar to slip down your throat in a million ways," and he professes himself skilful in "conserves, candies, marmalades, alukadoes, pomadoes, marablane, bergamoto, aranzues muris, limons, berengenas of Toledo, onlones, potatoes of Malaga and ten million more."—London Graphic.

SIXTY PER CENT. ENTIRE MILEAGE

Of Grand Trunk Pacific Completed or Under Construction

Since the turning of the first sod on the construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway at Fort William, Ont., September 11, 1905, by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the construction work has proceeded steadily to the extent that at the present time, covering a period of four years and a half since the building of this transcontinental railway was commenced, of the entire main line from Moncton to Prince Rupert, a distance of 3,550 miles, a total of 3,000 miles has been placed under construction. On this there has been laid 1,795 miles of track, which in some cases is made up of disconnected sections and as, therefore, not all continuous. That portion of the line, however, from Winnipeg to Edmonton, 793 miles, has been constructed and in partial operation by the construction department for the past eighteen months. Within the past ninety days the track has been completed continuously from Edmonton westerly to Wolf Creek, 122 miles, thus completing the track laying on that portion of the line, designated as the prairie section, Winnipeg to Wolf Creek, 915 miles.

Track laying was also recently completed from Winnipeg to Fort William, 445 miles, thus making a continuous line from Fort William, via Winnipeg and Edmonton to Wolf Creek, 1,360 miles, which, however, cannot be completed for practical operation for some months, as considerable work is required to be done on the easterly and westerly ends of the line, to put it in a suitable condition for the movement for regular trains. The other portions of the main line on which the rails have been laid are situated at different points east and west of the city of Quebec. During the past year contracts have been let for the construction work from Wolf Creek, Alberta, westerly to Tete Jaune Cache, in the Rocky Mountains, 179 miles, and there are at present engaged on this section of the line, 7,000 teams and a large army of men. Similar forces are also engaged on the construction of the line from Prince Rupert, the terminus on the Pacific Coast, easterly to Aldermere, B.C., 240 miles.

In addition to the mileage referred to above, the provincial governments of Saskatchewan and Alberta passed acts at the sessions of their legislatures in 1909, authorizing guarantees for the construction of branch lines by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Company in these provinces to the extent of 686 miles, comprising branch lines from the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway to Torkton, Regina, Battleford, Calgary, Lethbridge, Macleod and Coutts, the construction of which is at present under way.

At the session of the Saskatchewan Legislature in December, 1909, an act was passed authorizing the guarantee of the construction of additional branch lines by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in that province, to the extent of 475 miles, comprising lines from Regina southerly to the United States boundary line, from the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway to Prince Albert and from Regina westerly to Moose Jaw, Calgary, etc., the construction of which will be undertaken during the present year. From the foregoing it will be observed that out of a total mileage of main line and branches of approximately 7,900 miles, there have been completed and under construction at the present time approximately 4,800 miles, or 60 per cent. of the entire mileage authorized in the company's charters.

OTONABEE COUNCIL HELD MEETING

The Otonabee council met on the 18th of April, all the members being present. A petition was received from all the ratepayers of the 7th line, south of the Keene road, asking to be detached from road division 22 and formed into a new road division. On motion, the request was granted and a by-law passed making the change. It was decided to hold the court of revision on the 28th of May, J. H. Taylor was present, representing to the council that the deep ditch on the side of the road opposite D. P. McFarlane's lot, which he excavated to drain his farm, was dangerous to the travelling public. Mr. Anderson was appointed to interview the owner and occupant of the farm with a view to having it remedied by filling it up. On motion the township rate was fixed at 2 2-10 mills the same as it has been for a number of years.

A communication was received from Dumble & Johnston on behalf of Jas. Manly forbidding the council to open the established road through his lot.

The following accounts were passed: Wm. Dewart, gravel, $1.92; A. J. Cameron, laying out the road across lot 18, con. 9, $11.60; W. J. Porter, conveying Miss Pearson to House of Refuge, $2.50; John Edwards, cement, $45.10; J. J. Turner, tent for road gang, $25; R. E. Wood, Otonabee's portion of cost of removing body found floating in Otonabee river, $5; Stillman Bros., account $4.93; R. J. Brown, making tile, $11.

The Council adjourned to the 26th of May.

FOLDING STAIRS.

They Can Be Let Down Between Floors or Drawn Up at Will.

An ingenious invention that is a great space saver is the folding stair. This stair works on the lazy tongs principle and can be drawn up or extended at will. All that is needed for this device is a small opening in the floor, large enough to admit a person comfortably. The stair is then fastened to a post at one end and a pair of spring doors fastened under it to open downward. The opening can be guarded by railings if so desired. The apparatus is controlled by a gearing, and when not in use the stair rests in closed position against the top of the post, while the spring doors are closed beneath it, and any person passing below would not know there was a stair there. By turning the crank that operates the gear, however, the stair is extended, pushes its way through the spring doors and comes down to the floor below, where it rests on rollers. With the hand rail for a support one may then ascend it in safety. The device is rather hard on book agents and bill collectors.

CURRENT EVENT CLUB

Profit and Pleasure From This Get-Information-Quick Source.

WOMAN THE MODERN MARTYR

Corsets Worn That Discount Comfort. Heavy Hats and Tight Skirts—Blue Jewelry Is Smart This Season—When It's Not Becoming.

Dear Elsa—Have you a current event club in your town? Well, if you haven't, why don't you gather together the matrons and girls of the community, those who can rise above discussing the latest fashions or the domestic situation, both good topics in their place, and, say every two or three weeks, give them a little talk, a resume of the big happenings of the day—things doing in the political, economic, artistic and literary world? "We all read the papers and current magazines," you say. Yes, certainly you do. But how interesting it would be to come together and intelligently discuss the world's work!

I can picture the charming talks that might take place next summer on your delightfully roomy colonial porch. The girls could bring their sewing, and after the feast of reason abundantly supplied by their hostess, your clever self, there would be a flow of afternoon tea dainties, the sort you know so well how to make.

A current event talk I attended last week given under the auspices of the Daughters of 1812 has aroused my enthusiasm anew for this kind of get-information-quick entertainment. The clever speaker that morning, a woman, by the way—spoke very eloquently of the benefits of the proposed postal savings banks to people living in out of the way communities. The idea is to have Uncle Sam for the people's banker and to send small savings to him through the post, just as letters are sent. He would give a receipt for the money and 2 per cent interest. A spirit of thrift would be awakened in persons living far from towns and farther still from savings banks.

The bill has passed the senate, and let us hope the house will act upon it this session.

The Modern Martyr.

To drop the political outlook and dip into the forecast of spring and summer modes, the first thought after reviewing the styles designed for us this season is what true heroines are the women of today who wear clothes as they are ordained by the little tin goddess of fashion! These women go forth in tight, long corsets that discount comfort, enormous hats which won't allow them to lean back in a car or closed carriage and in high heels that are always catching in something or other, skirts which make it impossible for them to take a normal step, silly little wrist bags that must be clutched constantly or they will get lost, and heads weighed down with swirl turbans, extra braids and curls under their "Chanteclerr" or "airship" hats. And women wear all this toggery so smilingly that men think— But what does man think when he beholds a fashionably dressed woman? Perhaps he doesn't know that her clothes are uncomfortable, for he hasn't worn them, and no woman on earth would confess to him how she feels in them.

Yes; women of fashion or those who aspire to be such are braver than the martyrs of old, for the martyrs recanted sometimes. But what woman ever wavered in her smiles, no matter how her clothes were hurting her?

It seems to me if women accomplish great things in the future it will be because of their training in discomfort. But here is a comfortable corset hint worth noting. Instead of letting the strings dangle at the waist line to make a bump at the middle of the back, the lacers should be crossed, not tied, brought round to the front and fastened just within the top hook and the surplus ends tucked into the corset. This removes any strain around the waist line or hips and is a smoother and better tying than to draw lacers through the extra front hook. Fastened in this way, it is easy to draw in the hips and keep them so securely girded that the corset does not slip and slide on the figure.

The Soutane Frock.

And, while on dress hints intent what do you think of this little soutane frock? It is one I have just had made and like extremely. The frock has the side fastening that is so fashionable this season and the girdle which appears on most dresses that are not provided with belts. Oh, yes; we've found our waist line this spring and are accentuating it with all kinds of pretty girdlings. You may be interested in knowing that the little costume is carried out in knitted silk, one of the new fabrics of the spring. And I wear with the dress my new set of lapis lazuli, including a stunning close dog collar of the blue stones. Never has blue jewelry been more in favor than at present, and lapis lazuli is considered very smart. It is being shown in charming cuff buttons and whole sets for the tailored shirt waist as well as in oriental looking necklaces and chains.

In wearing blue jewelry one's complexion must be taken into the reckoning. It is not safe to say that all blue eyed women can wear this popular color. Turquoises, for instance, bring depths of blue in certain azure eyes, while others turn green. Never go in for them extensively if they are to be worn close to the face without first testing them in every possible light. Lapis lazuli is distinctly for the brunette of blue-black hair and clear skin, though blonds also can wear it.

New Way of Serving Asparagus.

At a recent luncheon here in New York the asparagus was very daintily served. The vegetable came to the table in a bread boat. One of the long loaves of bread, with pointed ends, had been dressed on its brown crust and scooped out to make room for the asparagus. It had been brushed with melted butter and placed in the oven to get a fine biscuit color. The asparagus from a can had been cut into short lengths and seasoned. These were turned into the boat, and over them was poured a bechamel sauce made with a cupful of rich milk, two tablespoonfuls of butter, a tablespoonful of flour, the yolks of three eggs and minced parsley and seasonings. The sauce was turned over the boat, and the dish was served very hot. My hostess sent me this recipe today, and I am passing along the good thing to you. Yours devotedly,

MABEL.

New York.

A Dainty Dessert.

One cupful of water, one cupful of flour, two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of almond extract and four eggs. Put the water and butter into a saucepan, bring to boiling point, then add the flour, salt and sugar, stir over the fire till the mixture leaves the sides of the pan, remove from the fire and add the almond extract and the eggs, beating each one in thoroughly. Set away in a cool place for one hour. Put on a baking tin in small rounds, brush over with beaten egg and bake in a hot oven for forty minutes. One-half this recipe will make a dozen small puffs. When cold split them open on one side and fill them with the following mixture: Boil together one cupful of sugar and one-third cupful of water until it forms a soft ball when tested in cold water. Pour this syrup slowly into the beaten white of one large egg; beat until cool. Add half a teaspoonful of almond extract, one well beaten egg, one cupful of chopped nuts, one-quarter cupful of sugar and one-quarter cupful of thick cream. Beat until thick and fill into the puffs. Sprinkle over with confectioners' sugar and serve in a silver cake basket decorated with roses.

An Artistic Easter Dessert.

Save the shells of your eggs for several days before Easter. This is done by making a hole about the size of a dime in the small end and pouring out the contents. Rinse in cold water and set the shells in the refrigerator.

Make a jelly of blancmange, coloring it with several harmless vegetable dyes. Divide the jelly into portions for different colorings.

Set the eggs, holes upward, in a pan of cornmeal or sawdust and fill the shells with the jelly. This should be done the day before the dessert is to be used.

Make a nest on a shallow glass dish of split lady fingers or strips of candied orange peel. Crack the shells from the eggs and arrange them artistically on the nest with a mound of whipped cream in the center.

To Cook Cereals Perfectly.

To cook oatmeal or any kind of cereal as thoroughly as it needs to be cooked requires more time than can usually be given in our hurried breakfast getting, and not all of us are blessed as yet with a fireless cooker to do the work overnight.

So the best substitute is to put the cereal on the stove at supper time, let it come to a good boil, then turn the fire out and leave it in that same spot until breakfast time without lifting the lid. The heat already generated will finish cooking the grains so that all that needs to be done in the morning is to stir it from the bottom, add a little water possibly and reheat for serving.

Of course the vessel must be of crockery, enamel (in which there are no breaks) or aluminium for the food to be left in it so long, and the lid must be as tight as possible to retain the steam which does so much of the work. But this method is a great time and gas saver, and the cereal is much more digestible than when cooked by quick boiling. It is the fireless cooker idea applied to common utensils.

The Beauty of Pansies.

Pansies, as a rule, are difficult flowers to arrange. The stems are short, and the dear little heads of the flower are apt to twist about in a most provoking fashion. The illustration shows a delightful solution of the trouble of arrangement. A small bowl is filled with wet sand, which gives a firm foundation in which to place the frail stems. Pieces of the plant's own foliage are placed among the flowers, but any kind of substantial foliage may be chosen instead. The best time to plant pansies is early in March, and an abundance of bloom will follow the same season.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. Today I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

An Egg-stravaganza Creates Fun For Evening Party.

Question and answer games are so easy to prepare for and such good fun that a pleasant little evening can be built up from one at a few minutes' notice.

For such a game to be played during the Easter season try the new and lively one called an "Easter extravaganza."

The fun of the evening consists in guessing words beginning with ex, a syllable which for the time being is pronounced like eggs. For example:

What eggs are necessary in answering these questions? Eggs-actitude.

What eggs are always overdone? Eggs-aggeration.

What eggs are high up? Eggs-alted.

What eggs investigate? Eggs-amination.

What eggs are models? Eggs-ample.

What eggs are irritated? Eggs-asperated.

What eggs are fond of digging? Eggs-cavation.

What eggs surpass all others? Eggs-cel.

What eggs are very great? Eggs-ceedingly.

What eggs have a title? Eggs-cellency.

What eggs are not included? Eggs-cept.

What eggs are unusual? Eggs-ceptional.

What eggs are too many? Eggs-cess.

What eggs are bartered? Eggs-change.

What eggs are unquiet? Eggs-citable.

What eggs cry out? Eggs-claim.

What eggs debar? Eggs-clude.

What eggs may be cleared? Eggs-culpable.

What eggs are detestable? Eggs-ecrable.

What eggs make allowances? Eggs-cuse.

What eggs render due justice? Eggs-ecutioners.

What eggs carry out orders? Eggs-ecute.

What eggs should be imitated? Eggs-emplary.

What eggs are solemn? Eggs-equies.

What eggs are athletic? Eggs-ercise.

What eggs use effort? Eggs-ertions.

What eggs emit? Eggs-hale.

What eggs drain out? Eggs-haust.

What eggs display? Eggs-hibit.

What eggs brace up? Eggs-hilaration.

What eggs advise? Eggs-hort.

What eggs press? Eggs-igency.

What eggs go out? Eggs-it.

What eggs dig up? Eggs-humo.

What eggs live? Eggs-ist.

What eggs are too much? Eggs-orbitant.

What eggs drive out devils? Eggs-orcism.

What eggs are wide? Eggs-pand.

What eggs banish? Eggs-ile.

What eggs look for? Eggs-pect.

What eggs hasten? Eggs-pedite.

What eggs travel? Eggs-pedition.

If the company is a large one each question card can be used by two persons, one gentleman and one lady becoming partners for the evening.

This will reduce the work of copying one-half.

The two persons whose card when filled is pronounced most correct by the hostess and her corps of aids carry off the prize, or, rather, the two prizes.

An hour is a good time limit for the game, all players beginning and ceasing work at the same moment.

Crystal and silver articles in egg forms are just the ones for prizes for such an occasion.

Tactics.

"Is there any portion of the fowl you prefer, major?" asked the hostess blandly.

"The left wing, if you please."

"The left wing?"

"Yes," returned the major, gazing dubiously at the platter. "I believe it is always good military tactics to bring the left wing of a veteran corps into action."

Thrifty.

"I am a poor man."

"When we are married I can learn to cook."

"Hadn't you—er—better begin practice," suggested the thrifty suitor "while your father is yet supplying the raw material, so to speak?"

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Indigestion Causes it—Mi-o-na Will Cure it

If you have indigestion, you don't get all the nutriment out of your food that you should.

Your worn out stomach passes the food on without extracting enough nutritious substance to supply the blood and nerves.

And if the nerves are not supplied with nourishment, they begin to rebel. They kick up a great disturbance. They make you irritable and cranky, you worry about trifles, and you cannot sleep soundly at night, you have bad dreams, and you get up tired in the morning.

Try Mi-o-na tablets, the money back cure. Mi-o-na will cure your nervousness by driving out the cause. Mi-o-na will give you relief the first hour; it will cure acute cases in a few days, and chronic cases in a few weeks.

Belching of gas, heartburn, sour taste of food, waterbrash, foul breath and other dyspeptic symptoms vanish before the mighty power of Mi-o-na.

Try Mi-o-na, Wm. Madill, sells it and will refund your money if it doesn't cure, and only 50 cents a large box.

BRILLIANT AUDIENCE SAW "THE GEISHA" PERFORMED

Under the Distinguished Patronage of His Excellency, the Governor-General, at the Grand Opera House on Saturday Evening—Opera Was Charmingly Presented and Appreciatively Received.

The most brilliant audience of the season, and one that taxed the capacity of the theatre, attended the performance of "The Geisha" on Saturday night at the Grand opera house, by the Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey. Great interest was taken in the performance as it was under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency Earl Grey. His Excellency, the Earl of Lonesborough and Capt. Fife, A.D.C., occupied the middle box on the right side of the theatre, the whole three boxes being patriotically and handsomely draped for the occasion. His Excellency appeared to thoroughly enjoy the presentation of the opera, and it must be said for the company that each member performed with remarkable ability. The acting and singing were done with ease and confidence, and everything proceeded smoothly and pleasantly from the opening to the close of the performance. Although the other two presentations of "The Geisha" at the Grand were of a most satisfactory character, it was the consensus of opinion that the company acquitted themselves to greater advantage on Thursday evening than on either of the other occasions. The ensembles and the solo work were and there was no hesitancy or quaintresting moments during the entire performance.

Miss Hallihan's numbers, 'The Amous Goldfish,' 'A Geisha's Life' and the 'Jewel of Asia' were admirably sung by that talented artiste, and encores for all of them were enthusiastically demanded.

Several ladies of the company were presented with handsome bouquets.

The officers of the 5th entered the opera in full dress uniform.

MISS HALLIHAN PRESENTED WITH A GOLD PENDANT

At the conclusion of the presentation of the Geisha Saturday night, the Earl of Lonesborough, permanent chairman of the Earl Grey Trophy Competition Committee, presented Miss Lavina Hallihan, with a handsome gold pendant, as a tangible evidence of the committee's recognition of Miss Hallihan's exceptional talent in operatic singing.

His Excellency stated he was highly pleased with Miss Hallihan's singing and would be very glad of another opportunity to hear her.

RAILWAY CONNECTION WITH NORTH COUNTRY

The Peterborough Times publishes the following letter from an Apsley correspondent, who wrote several letters to the Review:—

Circulars from the Peterborough Distributing Agency have been coming to the residents of this locality semi-monthly for over a year, said agency supposed to be at 114 Hunter street east. About four months ago I wrote them a letter showing how it was almost impossible for parties up here to get to your city without trouble and expense, whereas with a money order and two-cent stamp they could send to Eaton's for almost anything wanted and have the goods back within five days. I suggested Peterborough capitalists ought to form a company and build a road to Apsley and on as far north as enterprise and capital would permit. The P. D. C. had my letter published in the Review and I got several marked copies, also a letter from F. H. Dobbin to give any information I could as to imports, exports, etc. Other letters were written to the Review by citizens, endorsing the proposition, and finally a map was given in same paper with a sketch of proposed road from Peterborough via Burleigh, Apsley, Wilberforce and on to North Bay. That was encouraging, and I began to think something might be done, and that soon we would hear the whistle of the incoming train, but perhaps it may be like the one proposed some twenty odd years ago—die from want of push—and as the enclosed clipping from the daily Review shows how the more enterprising town of Lindsay can see good money in the road if it is built to their town and Apsley go begging to Coe Hill. Well, if you must have it so, all right, but you are letting what I, and many others—among them some good prospectors—know a second Cobalt slip out of your grasp. There is mineral all through this section—gold, silver, nickle, iron, copper, have all been found, besides other ore, and lately a first-class specimen of tin was found not five miles from Apsley. But, of course, if Peterborough is waiting for us to hand over a diamond mine before they get busy, why we will have to call a halt, as I have not heard of any diamonds having been found here, though, if reports are true, Lindsay has got us there.

Tourists could reach good summer resorts via Apsley, and not far from Apsley either good fishing and hunting. If some of your citizens would come to Apsley I think we could show them some samples of ore that would surprise them. Build the road; it will pay.

INDIAN WAS DISORDERLY ON STEAMER RAINBOW

Mitchell Chubb, a reserve Indian from Hagersville, did not have the necessary $5 with which to pay the fine imposed on him this morning at the police court, for his conduct Saturday when he was drunk and disorderly, and so had to take the alternative of fifteen days in jail with hard labor.

Chubb pleaded guilty to being drunk but could not furnish the court with the name of the man who gave him the liquor. He said that he was on his way to visit relatives at the Allan wick reserve, having arrived from the north, where he had been trapping.

A doctor had told him to take a little whiskey to help him, he said, on account of his having an artificial leg. The limb pained him somewhat on Saturday and he had taken a couple of drinks of whiskey.

Chubb was disorderly on the steamer "Rainbow," and was arrested on complaint of the mate.

ODDFELLOWS ATTENDED SERVICE AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Rev. J. G. Brown Preached Splendid Sermon to Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges I.O.O.F. and Rebekah Golden Link Lodge.

The seating accommodation of the St. James' Methodist church was taxed to its utmost capacity last night when the pastor Rev. J. G. Brown, delivered an appropriate and helpful sermon to a particularly large representation of the Peterborough and Otonabee Lodges of the Independent Order of Oddfellows and the Rebekah Golden Link Lodge, I.O.O.F.

Rev. Mr. Brown took for his text St. Luke 10, chapter, verses 36 37:—"Which now of these three, thinkest thou was neighbor unto him that fell among the thieves? And he said he that showed mercy on him. Then said Jesus unto him, go, and do thou likewise."

The sermon was prefaced by the extending of a hearty welcome by the pastor to the visiting lodges, on behalf of the church and on behalf of himself and brother members. He hoped that the occasion would be one of mutual blessing. Special music was given by the male choir.

Rev. Mr. Brown used the character of the young lawyer throughout his discourse. The words of the last verse was the answer of the young lawyer to the question of Jesus, after he had related the parable of the good Samaritan in answer to the young man's query, "Who is my neighbor?"

The lawyer had first tempted Jesus, saying: "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" The reply was: "What is written in the law? How readest thou?" Christ approved of the lawyer's answer: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself." But the lawyer had need of gratifying himself and others of his class, and asked: "Who is my neighbor?" Christ's mode of answering this question was not by endeavoring to give a definition of the word neighbor. He told him the parable of the man who fell among thieves, and then asked the lawyer which of the three men, the priest, the Levite or the Samaritan showed himself to be a neighbor unto the man. The lawyer answered: "He that showed mercy on him."

"The duties involved in obtaining eternal life are double," said the preacher. "We must show love toward men as well as to God." Men think they understand what the brotherhood of man is, but they do not practice brotherhood. They have nothing to say to the men of the day who has fallen along the wayside. There are some who are bound by custom and conventionalities, and to whom an actual appeal or case of need is a distraction. They do not show themselves to be a neighbor. They do not respond to the story of the street, its woe and its wans. The samaritan forgot all and helped the fallen man. He displayed the sentiment of love, which Christ wished all to have. If we love, we won't have to ask who is our neighbor. The whole commandment was summed up in that word "love."

The spirit of Oddfellows was the true spirit of fraternity and brotherhood. The order was not merely an organization for the relief when in distress for any particular people. It sought to teach the spirit of friendship and love. It was against vice and iniquity, and its object was to extend the spirit taught by Jesus Christ. There is nothing more beautiful. Nothing does more to do away with sin or dark passion than the exercise of the spirit of love. To be a neighbor to other fellowmen such as Christ would have us be, love must manifest itself, otherwise it is not genuine in actual deeds of mercy.

Rev. Mr. Brown believed that the sentiment of the parable of the good samaritan commended itself to every member of the I.O.O.F.

NEW COMPANY A GOING CONCERN.

Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, is a new Company which has taken over the whole undertaking as a going concern of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company Limited, including therein that of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company Limited. The company has mills at Kenora, Thorold, St. Catharines, Welland, and Port Colborne (the last named in course of construction) in the Province of Ontario and at Brandon in the Province of Manitoba. When the construction at present under way at Port Colborne is completed the company will have a total milling capacity of 12,500 barrels per day. The company has at present thirty-five elevators situated throughout the Western Wheat Belt, and fifteen additional ones are being added at the present time. A million bushel elevator is being constructed next to the new mill at Port Colborne. The company has also warehouses and offices at Toronto, Winnipeg, Kingston, Ottawa, and Montreal.

MARKET FOR OUTPUT.

The rapid growth of the business of the two companies taken over has long made apparent the necessity of additional milling capacity. Further, the tremendous increase in the total output from the Western Wheat Belt makes it absolutely necessary to have more mills in Canada to handle it. Last year this output amounted to about 125,000,000 bushels, and experienced men estimate that by the end of the year 1920 Canada will be producing fully 500,000,000 bushels annually. A great proportion of this will of necessity find its way into Canadian mills. Larger demands are bound to come as the population of the country increases, and the enquiry for the Canadian product, both from Great Britain and from the foreign markets of the world, will increase. The chain of mills now controlled by the new company will enable it to secure its full share of the trade of every section of Canada, as well as of Great Britain and foreign countries.

SECURITY AND EARNING POWER: The assets of the old Companies taken over as above stand in excess of all liabilities and without any allowance for good-will, trade marks, etc., at $3,770,524.11, this amount being ascertained on the basis of an appraisal by the Canadian-American Appraisal Company, Limited, as of March 17th, 1910, of the capital assets taken over, and the certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, as of February 28th, 1910, as to current assets and current liabilities, with a liberal allowance for all contingencies. There has also been placed in the Treasury $1,000,000 of additional cash, which, besides permitting of the completion of a 6,000 barrel mill and a million bushel elevator and storage warehouse at Port Colborne, and of fifteen additional elevators in the West, will provide the new Company with further working capital. As per certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, of London, quoted below, the earnings of the old Company on the present plant amounted from September 25th, 1908, to August 20th, 1909, to $218,942.98
And from August 21st, 1909, to February 28th, 1910, to $164,798.29
being for the latter period at a rate equal to over 13 per cent. on the preferred stock of the Company.

LOCATION OF MILLS AND MANAGEMENT.

Mr. Hedley Shaw and Mr D. C. Cameron, under whose direction the properties of the old companies have been developed, will retain large interests in and be actively identified with the new Company, Mr. Hedley Shaw as Managing Director.

The location of the new 6,000 barrel mill at Port Colborne is without exception the best in Canada.

A complete report on the advantages of the Port Colborne site, prepared by Mr. Hedley Shaw, will be found in the prospectus.

CHILD RETURNED TO THE MOTHER

On Probation by the Children's Aid Society — Investigation Been Has Made

In the Fobert case, which has been before Magistrate Edmison for the past several months, pending an investigation by the Children's Aid Society, His Worship has made an order giving the child over to the society. The child will now be handed over to the mother, who lives in Detroit, on probation.

The uncle of the child secured possession of it and the mother took steps to have the child returned to her. There were circumstances in the case which called for an investigation, and now, if the mother shows herself capable of taking proper care of the child, it will remain in her possession.

CONSECRATED AT LONDON

Special to the Review.

London, April 25.—The Right Rev. M. F. Fallon, a native of Canada and formerly of Buffalo, was formally consecrated Bishop of London by Archbishop McEvay, of Toronto, this morning. The consecration ceremony lasted about four hours. The church was crowded. Seven Archbishops and many Bishops, with three hundred priests from all over Canada and the United States were in attendance. Bishop O'Connor, of Peterborough, was present.

CANADIAN COMMISSIONER.

Melbourne, July 30th, 1908.

"During the three years I have made this city my headquarters, I her professional capacity as the most have known Miss Maggie McCann in popular and successful singer in Australia of Scottish songs.

"It gives me pleasure to state that Miss McCann is deservedly held in the highest esteem in the principal cities throughout the Commonwealth, and most particularly by Scottish people, to whom she has endeared herself by her charm of manner and her delightful interpretation of the songs of old Caledonia.

"Miss McCann purposes visiting Canada at an early date, and I can, with confidence, recommend her to Scottish societies and others throughout the Dominion, as a talented singer, whose efforts will undoubtedly ensure the recognition they merit.

Yours faithfully,
D. H. ROSS,
Canadian Commercial Agent for Victoria.

MANITOBA FREE PRESS, WINNIPEG.

The Australian Scottish singer, Margaret McCann, was well placed. She sang four songs most effectively, and had to respond to vociferous encores. If her acting was highly commendable her vocalism and accent were still more agreeable, for her well-trained soprano voice was used with much finish and refinement.

GAELIC CONCERT AT CARNEGIE HALL.

Last night the auditorium of the church was filled to hear Master Wilfrid Morison, of Toronto, who assisted in the praise service at St. Andrew's during the day. Wilfrid Morison will return to assist in the anniversary of the organization of the church to be held May 8th, and the congregation reunion May 9th. The Rev. T. Crawford Brown, M.A., of New St. Andrew's, Toronto, will be the preacher for that occasion.

$1,900 for Chimes

During the evening service at St. John's church last night, the rector, Rev. Canon Davidson, broke the pleasing intelligence to his flock that the fund for the proposed set of chimes for the church, now in hand, amounted to nearly nineteen hundred dollars ($1900), including contributions from late members of the church now residing out of town.

The rector expressed the pleasure it gave him to find that he and those assisting him in raising this fund should have met with so hearty a response within about two weeks. He also remarked that certain small sums had been offered toward the chimes fund by several people whose zeal for the cause exceeded their pecuniary condition. It now seems that Peterborough is practically assured of having a set of chimes that will be a credit to the city.

The Governor General's Reception

To the Editor of the Review.

Peterborough, April 25.

Sir,—"As the keeper of the King's peace, both by common law and special commission, the Sheriff is the first man in the county, and superior in rank to any nobleman therein, during his office." These are the words of the most eminent authority for which he cites judicial affirmation.

Then why was not our Sheriff selected for the place of honor in the reception of the Governor-General?

Yours, etc.,
ENQUIRER.

THE CITY'S ENTERTAINMENT OF THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL

Well Arranged Programme Successfully Carried Out—Rain Made Day Somewhat Disagreeable, But Did Not Intefere With Success of Visit and Reception—His Excellency's Remarks at the Armouries.

Saturday dawned bright and sunshiny, and everything seemed to point to a clear warm day for the first visit to Peterborough of Canada's Governor-General, His Excellency Earl Grey. But the early indications were not consistent with the disagreeable, drizzling rain that fell later, and which, while it could not but have a depressing effect, by no means spoiled the day, and His Excellency pronounced his visit a highly enjoyable and interesting one.

An encouraging interest in the presence of the King's representative in this fair Dominion was shown by the citizens of Peterborough and he was royally received by an enthusiastic populace. After the honors had been done in the morning by the city fathers and the distinguished guest shown through the premises of the Canadian General Electric Company and the Quaker Oats Company, the vice regal party were entertained at luncheon at the Oriental, and at this very pleasant and successful function His Excellency expressed his extreme pleasure occasioned by the visit to Peterborough and by the thoughtful and generous treatment tendered him.

While the luncheon was in progress the band assembled in front of the hotel and played "Rule Britannia," "O Canada" and other patriotic selections. The crowd began to gather and in a remarkably short time assumed large proportions. Everybody anxiously but patiently waited for the Governor-General to take his carriage for Central Park, where he was to be presented with a civic address of welcome by His Worship Mayor Morrow.

The programme of the reception called for His Excellency to leave the hotel at 3 o'clock, but it was a few minutes later than this when he took his carriage amid heart cheering. Other carriages were lined up in waiting for the aldermen and followed to the park. About three o'clock it had commenced to rain again, and during the drive to the park (the heaviest shower of the day was falling. For this reason the official welcome did not take place under the canopy on the band stand in the park, but in the armories. An immense throng assembled, and there was a large overflow out of the east door, which had been swung open that the people and carriages might enter.

The address as published in Saturday's Review was read by the mayor. His Excellency in reply said:—"Mr. Mayor, gentlemen of the Council, ladies and gentlemen. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for this kindly expressed address. I am sorry that the sun is not shining, but the rain is wanted for the crops and I hope this rain will mean large and abundant crops. I am glad to visit your city for several reasons. When I first came to Canada, as Governor-General the population here was only about half what it is now and I was anxious to see a place that had grown so fast."

His Excellency remarked that he was delighted with the talent sent from Peterborough to take part in the Earl Grey trophy competition. He was much struck with the general excellence of "The Geisha" company and remarked that the performance was a highly creditable one.

Earl Grey stated that he had been over the great works of the Canadian General Electric Company and was delighted with what he saw. He spoke highly of the intelligence of the workmen with whom he had conversed.

His Excellency said that Canada was already a large factor in the British Empire and proceeded to give some wholesome advice as to the conduct of political campaigns and municipal campaigns and strongly condemned the underrunning influences of corrupt practices.

The people were admonished to keep their national and municipal affairs free from graft and corruption and if they did so Canada would surely go ahead. Canada had area and potentialities for gigantic work. However, it was character and not area that built up a world.

His Excellency stated that he had been through the Quaker Oats mills and referred to their large output and importance as an industry. Peterborough was a beautiful city and Earl Grey wished its citizens every success and prosperity.

His Worship Mayor Morrow called for three cheers for the King and these were given very heartily. The band payed "God Save the King," then the Mayor proposed three cheers for His Excellency and the large audience shook the roof with its response.

The vice regal party accompanied by the Mayor and City Council left the Armories for a short drive around the city after which they went to the Wolfe street wharf and took a trip across the lake on The Government boat the Pessic Butler, and over the lift lock. The party then drove to St. John's church, which was the last place that was visited.

Mr. J. H. McClellan, superintendent of the canal, saw to it that nothing was left undone to make the trip to the lift lock an enjoyable one. The band accompanied the party and played excellently.

Like all visitors to the lift lock, Earl Grey was very much impressed with this stupendous work of engineering and was much interested in explanations concerning its mechanism and the mode of operating the lock. The trip up the canal was also made by the steamer "Otonabee."

In the evening the vice regal party attended the performance of "The Geisha" by the Peterborough Amateur Operatic Company, under the direction of Mr. R. J. Devey and left at midnight for Toronto, where Earl Grey unveiled a monument yesterday in honor of the memory of the South African veterans who fell in the defence of the Empire.

THE BOY SOLOIST WHO SANG AT ST. ANDREW'S YESTERDAY

Large congregations filled the auditorium of St. Andrew's church yesterday morning and evening and the Young Men's Guild did excellent work in seating the large assembly at the evening service.

In the morning Rev. Harold Clarke, of Honan, China, gave a most interesting account of conditions and work in China, and the entire congregation followed the speaker throughout with intense appreciation.

In the evening the Rev. J. G. Potter, pastor, preached a practical sermon on "Christian Toleration," dealing with some of the present day ecclesiastical barriers that stand in the way of the realization of Christ's great work of saving the world from its sin. He knew the time would come when churches would—while rejoicing in their traditions—see the more fascinating duty and privilege to direct all their energies and power—mighty as it was—in carrying out the will of Christ in saving the world. The discourse was based upon the passage of Scripture in Mark 9, 38 40.

At the morning service Miss Olive Howell and Mr. James Browne sang with excellent expression, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say."

Master Wilfred Morison proved a rich and inspiring occasion to the worshippers at both services. In the morning he sang "Rock of Ages," in a manner that went straight to the heart of every listener. In the evening the singing of "There is a Green Hill," and "The Holy City," was of an order unexcelled. His inspiration of the latter selection was rapturous.

Master Morison will return and assist the choir at the anniversary services on May 8th and will give the musical numbers at the congregational re-union on May 9th.

Welland, April 25.—Alexander McAlpine's residence in ward one, was destroyed by fire early this morning with nearly all its contents. Mrs. McAlpine, who is an invalid, was carried from the burning building and is now very low from the shock. Mrs. Sarah Haun, a widow employed there, was burned to death. The cause of the fire is unknown. There was no insurance on the building or contents.

BOWLING

Everything seems to indicate that bowling on the green will be more popular than ever during the coming summer. Several gentlemen who have only been interested spectators in past years have expressed their intention to personally take part in the game during the coming season. The Brock street green is in splendid shape for this interesting and healthful pastime. Those who are modest about the possible result of their virgin effort on the green may be re-assured, as the elementary points of the game are easily picked up and beginners may be sure that the older players will give every encouragement and confidence to them. Those who are intending to join should be on hand this evening.

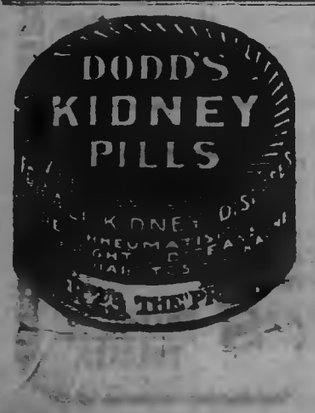
SPORTING NOTES

In Saturday's game Toronto pulled out with a 4—1 win from Providence. Deal featured the contest with a steal home in the sixth.

Detroit leads the American League with a percentage of .741. The Tigers won from Cleveland Saturday 5—0.

Rochester won at Newark on Saturday, 5—4, but fell down again yesterday before McGinnity's pitching. The score was 4—2.

Montreal won again from the Skeeters on Saturday, but lost the Sunday game.



BASEBALL

Providence, April 24.—Newton pitched a magnificent game against Providence at Rocky Point to-day, holding the Greys down to three hits, and having the game sewed up at all times. He mixed a slow curve with a tremendously fast one, and forced the locals to hit weak flies to the outfield or easy grounders to the diamond knights. His support was of the best, and altogether the visitors made the home team look like a second-rate aggregation.

Speed on the bases was a feature of the Leafs' work also, all hands showing lots of ginger in this department. Barry worked for the Greys, and in all but two innings, the first and eighth, was equally as effective as Newton. The Leafs bunched their hits in the innings mentioned, however and won by a score of 4—3.

FOOTBALL

There will be an important meeting of the C. C. I. football team at the Y.M.C.A. this evening at eight o'clock. All interested are asked to be on hand sharp on time.

London, Eng., April 23.—Burnley and Newcastle United tied with one goal each in the final game to-day for the Scottish association championship cup. The match was played at the Crystal Palace, and attracted an attendance of about 60,000 persons, barely up to the record crowds usually congregating for this annual picnic at the Mecca of Scottish enthusiasts. About 150 special trains brought between 50,000 and 60,000 spectators.

HIS MAJESTY ROASTED.

King Edward Made a Tremendous Noise When He Was Born.

"Is it a boy?" asked the Duke of Wellington, as the nurse came out of the royal chamber with the new-born baby in her arms.

"No, your grace," replied Mrs. Lilly, with immense dignity, quite crushing the Iron Duke. "It is a prince!"

As a matter of fact, though, the nurse was wrong. Queen Victoria's eldest son—our present King—was not born a prince; he came into the world a duke—the Duke of Cornwall. The higher rank was given him later.

Curiously enough, when the King was born, there had been some mistake about letting the state dignitaries—whose duty it is to be at the palace on such occasions—know what time to get there.

And so the Duke of Wellington was the first to welcome the little heir to the throne.

As he was leaving the palace he met Lord Hill tearing up too late.

"What has happened?" asked he breathlessly.

"All over," said the duke. "A fine boy—a very fine boy! Very red indeed—nearly as red as you, Hill!" he added unkindly.

"If," he told another late-comer, "healthy babies cry loudly and kick hard, then this is an uncommonly healthy baby!"

Our future King certainly seems to have distinguished himself on entering the world. He absolutely roared, and Prince Albert, his overjoyed father, said:

"Well, if his appetite is as good as his lungs, I pity his nurse."

Yet no fewer than seven hundred women volunteered for the post! Of course, it was a post worth having. Apart from the honor, it was a lucrative one. The nurse of the Princess Royal got $2,500, and for such an important personage as the heir to the throne the fees were doubled. The nurse and her charge were installed in a room next the Queen's, and that devoted father and husband, Prince Albert, divided his time between mother and baby.

Meanwhile, London and the whole kingdom went mad with joy. Never was such a Lord Mayor's Day as Nov. 9, 1841. The Lord Mayor was almost forgotten. Great crowds gathered, cheering the Queen and the heir.

Forty-eight hours after his birth King Edward held his first official reception. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs of London came in state to welcome him.

Then four weeks after his arrival he was created "Prince of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland—Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester," and a host of minor titles were given him. Until then he had been known in the royal household as "the Little Duke."

He was not only created, but crowned, Prince of Wales.

The proclamation runs:

"We do ennoble and invest him with the said Principality and Earldom by girting him with the sword, by putting a coronet on his head, and a gold ring on his finger, and also by delivering a gold rod into his hand."

Poor baby! What a solemn and important ceremony! But probably his time was taken up by admiring the glittering objects as they were given him.

George IV. and the King's Speech.

One of the best stories in connection with the history of the King's speech, delivered at the opening of each fresh session of Parliament, is told of George IV. when Prince Regent and recalled by a contributor to The Strand Magazine.

The prince, it is well known, took his responsibilities lightly, and on one occasion is said to have bet Sheridan a hundred guineas that either owing to the magnetism of his personality or the flutter which the occupants of the Lords' chamber were in so little attention was really paid to the verbal character of the speech he was delivering that he could make any interpolation he liked without it being detected.

The bet was taken and the Prince Regent agreed to introduce the words "Baa, baa, black sheep" in the middle of the speech.

"If anybody smiles or looks startled," he said, "I lose my bet."

This exploit actually came off and at the close of a weighty allusion, composed by Lord Liverpool, to Wellesley's difficulties in Spain, the Regent cleared his throat, said "Baa, baa, black sheep" hurriedly and went on without apparently exciting any remark.

Sheridan related the royal audacity to Canning.

"It is perfectly amazing to me," he said, "that no notice was taken. Didn't you hear him distinctly say "Baa, baa, black sheep?"

"I did," rejoined Canning, "but as His Royal Highness looked you full in the face at the time I took it as a personal allusion and my delicacy forbade me to think more about it."

One of the "Punch" Wits.

The wit of Mr. Walter Emanuel, who for years past has contributed regularly a page of bantering humor to Punch, is illustrated by a remark which he made in connection with his book, "A Dog Day," which was published some years ago. A friend meeting him in the street, congratulated him warmly on his work. "A I Mr. Emanuel, A 1!" he exclaimed "And K 9," rejoined Mr. Emanuel quietly. Mr. Emanuel is a solicitor in the City.

KING AND PARLIAMENT.

What His Majesty Has to Do After an Election.

The first thing a reigning sovereign does in Great Britain, after the declaration of the result of a general election is to select his Premier. The choice rests with him entirely, and, if he is so minded, he may choose some insignificant member from Slocum-on-the-Sea. But, of course, he does no such thing. He invariably sends for the natural leader of the party having a majority in the Commons, and asks him to accept the responsibility of Premiership.

If this acceptance is forthcoming, His Majesty requests his visitor to form a Ministry. This takes, as a rule, but a few days to accomplish. As Mr. Bagehot used to say, there are always some men in the party who cannot be left out and some who cannot be included. When the Prime Minister has constructed his Cabinet the result is officially announced in the "London Gazette," and the names printed of the members who have been appointed to preside over the various great departments of state.

When a party goes out of power, His Majesty the King is personally and very materially affected. He finds, in the event of a change in popular opinion, the people he has for years been accustomed to have about him summarily dismissed, and new officers, of the political convictions of the predominant party, installed in their places. Not only may changes take place in such important posts as those of the King's Private Secretary, Treasurer of the Household, etc., but even among much lesser lights.

This may appear hard, but there is "method in the madness." Nobody can help being influenced by his or her surroundings. Queen Anne, for instance, was completely under the sway of Sarah Jennings, Duchess of Marlborough, and Mistress of the Robes. This lady decided everything for her mistress, from questions of state to the cut of a gown or the color of a ribbon; and it grew to be a common saying that "Queen Anne reigns, but Queen Sarah governs."

When a new party comes into power the vacation of office on the part of old Ministers forms always quite a touching scene. It is customary for those who are retiring to meet their successors personally, and to explain to them the general condition of affairs. Official books, documents, insignia of office—all are surrendered by those vacating office, the hand of the sovereign is kissed by the newly appointed Ministers, and thus the transformation is affected.

When the first day of the meeting of a new Parliament follows hard upon a general election, it frequently happens that the front Government benches present a very empty appearance. This is due to an old statute which enacts that when a member of the House of Commons accepts an office of profit under the crown he thereby vacates his seat in Parliament; so that it becomes necessary for Ministers to seek re-election in their own constituencies before they can take their places in the House.

This custom has a sound, rational basis; for when a member of a constituency becomes a Cabinet Minister, it is naturally impossible for him to devote as much time to the especial needs of the electorate he represents as he would in the ordinary way. Hence, it is only fair that the constituency should be given an opportunity of reconsidering its decision; although the re-election is generally a mere matter of form.

The King, also, is a regular absentee on the first day of a new Parliament—which is generally summoned to meet on a Tuesday or Thursday, these being the most convenient days for the arrival of members.

The Fighting Scotsmen.

In a Yorkshire mining village a number of the colliers were discussing trade prospects when one of their number, known to his pals as the Cockney, with a scowl at his vis-a-vis, a "man frae Glesga," thus delivered himself: "Tell you what, mates; we'd 'ave plenty of work and good wages in this England if less Scotchmen come'd South."

To this the Glaswegian made a stinging retort. The men sprang to their feet, and once more the Thistle and the Rose wrestled.

At length, during a pause in the fight, the Cockney remarked: "Well, I'll be a great fool to go fightin' on this 'ere subjeck, for I'm Irish, I am."

"Are you?" replied his opponent. "That bates all; for I'm Irish, too!"

THE LIFE OF A SCIENTIST

BARON KELVIN OF LARGS WAS A REMARKABLE MAN.

William Thomson, Who Made Himself Famous Under Two Names, Came of a Family of Scholars and Entered Glasgow University at a Very Early Age—Always Had a Preference For the French Language.

Prof. Silvanus P. Thompson has just written the life of that great man of science, so long identified with Glasgow, and yet with a world fame—William Thomson, Baron Kelvin of Largs. One who knew Thomson well reviews the book in The Glasgow Herald thus:

"William Thomson was peculiarly fortunate. His mother was a woman of refinement and talent, but she died while William was still a child, and the main influence guiding him in his tender years was that of his father, Prof. James Thomson. 'A man of remarkable abilities and strong character,' he devoted much care to forming the minds of his children, with the result that they were soon in advance of most children of the same age.

"He lived to see his son installed as professor of Natural Philosophy in Glasgow University, where he himself held the Chair of Mathematics, but in the following year he fell a victim to the epidemic of cholera which then ravaged Glasgow. Of his death William wrote: 'God has willed it for the best, and has tried us with a heavy affliction. . . . It is a terrible and irreparable loss, and a sad void is now left.'

"At the early age of ten William Thomson matriculated for the first time as a student of Glasgow University—his brother James, two years his senior, making his first entry at the same time. The two brothers earned special distinction in the departments of mathematics and natural philosophy, but William also gained prizes in the Latin and logic classes.

"It is gratifying to find the biographer quoting from a speech made by Lord Kelvin at a dinner of the Glasgow University Club in May, 1907—his last public speech, and one of the most delightful and most characteristic—in which he gave his mature views on education.

"'A boy,' he said, 'should have learned by the age of twelve to write his own language with accuracy and some elegance, he should have a reading knowledge of French, should be able to translate Latin and easy Greek authors, and should have some acquaintance with German. Having learned thus the meaning of words, a boy should study logic.'

"He also put in a word for Greek, and added, 'I never found that the small amount of Greek I learned was a hindrance to my acquiring some knowledge of natural philosophy.'

"It is interesting to note in this passage the distinction between the 'reading knowledge of French,' and 'some acquaintance with German,' as it marks a preference for the former language which he often exhibited in private life. To read French was always a pleasure to him, but not so to read German.

"For the purposes of his scientific work he had from time to time to read papers by German scientists, but he was apt to become impatient in so doing, and the present writer has seen him cast the paper aside and exclaim, 'Dear me! What a cumbersome language!'

"He had while a student at Glasgow spent a vacation in France and one in Germany, but while he took free advantage of the opportunity of learning French his German trip was less successful, the reason being—as his biographer now shows — that he took with him to Germany his copy of Fourier's 'Mathematical Poem' on the theory of heat, and used to slip away to a quiet spot to revel in its pages! This wonderful treatise had a most powerful effect upon the mind of Thomson and profoundly influenced his whole career.

"From his first matriculation at Cambridge he began to publish papers of striking originality, and before he had completed his course he was so generally recognised as a mathematical genius of the first rank that one of his examiners remarked to another, 'You and I are just about fit to mend his pens.'

"With such a university record, it was but fitting that on the death of Prof. Meikleham Thomson should have been chosen to succeed him in the Chair of Natural Philosophy at Glasgow University—a post which he held for fifty-three years. In that time many thousands of students passed through his classes, and all came under his influence.

"It is perhaps well to remind readers of the part he played in the introduction of laboratory work as an integral part of a course of instruction in physical science. To-day that is common practice, but it was not so when William Thomson became professor in Glasgow.

"There was then no laboratory for students in existence in the country, but the young professor felt the need of such practical instruction, and set himself the task of preparing to supply the deficiency.

"His first step was to convert a disused wine-cellar in his father's house in the Professors' Court into a laboratory, where his students could work, and thus he became the pioneer in this great advance in the teaching of science.

"Later on, when the college was removed from High street to Gilmorehill, proper accommodations was given for this practical work, and 'Prof. Thomson's laboratory' soon became famous throughout the world."

"'Remember,' he once said to his class, when for the moment an experiment had failed, 'remember, gentlemen, that when you meet with a difficulty you are on the eve of a discovery.' In that sentence lies the key to the success of Lord Kelvin."

Chest Inflammation

Suffered From a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side — Constant Coughing.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold draffy places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

5,200 DOUGHNUTS IN 32 DAYS

Mrs. Tarr of Brunswick, Me., Goes After a Record.

There is a woman in Brunswick, Me., Mrs. Lizzie Tarr, who has something of a local reputation as a doughnut maker. Recently she went after the doughnut record and in thirty-two days made a trifle more than 5,200 doughnuts. This was done in odd moments when she was not caring for and feeding and doing housework for her husband, herself and fifteen children.

Mrs. Tarr's recipe for molasses doughnuts, which she considers the best product of her kitchen, is as follows:

One cupful of sour milk, one-half cupful of New Orleans molasses, one even teaspoonful of ginger, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of soda, one egg, four cupfuls of flour and a dash of nutmeg.

She adds this information about the making:

"The frying is the most important. You must not get the lard too hot or the doughnuts will brown on the outside before they are fully cooked through. When you have put them in the fat they will sink to the bottom, and the lard must be hot enough so they will rise quickly to the top. If you can get the real old New Orleans molasses it will give a wonderfully rich, light color to the doughnuts."

A Page for Misses

A Rose "Pie" for Dispensing Favors

ORIGINAL ideas for parties are always welcomed by the girl who never enjoys herself quite so well as when, in the rôle of hostess, she extends hospitality to her friends. It is needless to say that such a girl is exceedingly popular and that her presence is eagerly sought by other young hostesses, who envy her perennial originality.

For such a girl who appreciates a brand new idea and who is sure to garnish it according to her own individuality on her natal day, the suggestion for a "sweet sixteen" birthday affair is offered.

Nor does this mean that she must be accommodatingly just sweet sixteen, for even though her age falls below or exceeds this numeral a little spice may be added to the occasion by such an announcement.

If the birthday unobligingly comes on Sunday or a weekday which interferes with lessons it may be planned as an "early candlelight affair," announcing this fact, of course, in the invitations. For instance:—

"You are invited to a 'Sweet Sixteen' party—an early candlelight affair—February 22, at five o'clock."

If possible to limit the number of guests it is better to confine the number to sixteen, in order to carry out the idea in every particular. Upon arrival the guest should be presented with a favor, indicating her place at the table. Each favor may be different, but all should harmonize in the color scheme chosen.

Nothing could be more charming and suggestive of a rosebud garden of girls than pink and white and flower hats made by artistic fingers. These may be purchased or fashioned at home in all shapes and sizes, keeping in mind the girl's face each one is to frame.

For example, there is the pink and white checked sunbonnet with pink ribbon ties, and a garland of tiny pink rosebuds for the piquant faced girl. There is a Gainsborough with a sweeping white "willow" plume for the stately girl—a pink crêpe paper foundation, with a white crêpe paper plume.

A Rose Setting of Tissue Paper for Candlestick and an Ice Cup

SHORT negligees such as any girl can make for herself may be contrived from a very few yards of albatross, crêpe de Chine or any fine wool and silk fabric. For breakfast there are few prettier sacques than those of pale blue, pink or green albatross made with widely plaited back and front forms and long puffed sleeves. The sailor collar, deep cuffs and narrow belt may be of soutache, embroidered silk or of brocade. If one has plenty of time to devote to hand work a breakfast sacque of fine wool and silk mixture may be of the half fitting order, the shoulder and under arm seams laced together with ribbon and all the edges outlined with hand scalloping. Should something rather elaborate be preferred, crêpe de Chine inset and edged with Valenciennes lace may be accordion plaited for the back and fronts, the short flowing sleeves and wide sailor collar similarly trimmed and satin ribbons below the chin.

Smart looking dressing sacques may be developed of any of the striped French flannels, medium priced cashmeres and the various soft wool materials of plain and fancy design. A pretty model has straight fronts, a back cut in one piece and bell sleeves. It has no collar or cuffs, but is edged all round with wide bands of stitched satin. One which is especially pretty in plain materials has a semi-fitted back, surplice fronts and a large pointed collar, which, like the deep turned back cuffs, is trimmed with wide ruffles of embroidered muslin. A third jacket of kimono shape is in two pieces, joined by seams in the middle of the back and running from the top of the shoulder down the outer side of the sleeves, which are cut in one with the garment. The edges are finished with machine stitching and the V shaped neck with a nautical collar.

An invalid's bed sacque of fine eiderdown may be cut in two pieces. The edges of two sides sewed together for three-quarters of their length and then joined beneath the arms by ribbons form the loose sleeves. The remaining point of one section is turned over to form the back of the collar, while the other section is divided through the centre and its upper triangles when turned back become the lapel fronts of the collar, which is joined by ribbon ties. The entire garment may be bound with ribbon or silk and need not be lined, but if a fine wool or silken material is preferred to eiderdown it should have a flannel lining and its edges finished with hand scalloping.

DESK FURNISHINGS.

UNIQUE desk furnishings include 1910 calendars of weathered oak representing a hanging sign post done in Mission style, an owl blinking from a branch of an oak tree and a square frame of gun metal guarded by a mouse which is perched upon its top. It is fitted with removable celluloid leaves, lettered in red or black to indicate months and days.

Pen trays are of crystal or cut glass rimmed with pierced metal, of unpolished hand hammered copper and a verde, bronze finish centre decoration and of enamelled metal picked out with gold.

Paper knives are of brass or copper, with teak handles, or carved ivory with teak shaped ends and of old ivory and alligator.

Stationery and book racks are of inlaid mahogany or ebony; of green, golden or fumed oak in Mission style; of hand painted olive wood and of carved walnut.

Telephone registers, address books, clipping cases, magazine covers and boot rests are covered with taupe Shantung worked in dull red or yellow, with grass linen embroidered in a heavy green and gold design outlined with black, and in dull green denim garnished with a scroll pattern outlined with pale blue and dead gold.

Smocked Frocks for School Girls.

FAVORITE "best frocks" for school girls just now are the smocked frocks which have no other trimming but this form of needlework. They are turned out by leading houses in Paris and London and are exquisitely made and of the finest material. Crêpe de Chine, voile de soie and similar soft materials are used for these gowns. They have no lining and are all in one piece. The yoke and collar are formed of the smocking. The upper part of the sleeve is smocked and the lower part also. The smocking also forms the belt, which is usually quite wide. The skirt is full and finished with a hem. Although excessively simple, the beauty of the material and workmanship and the lovely colors of these gowns render them suitable for almost all occasions in which school girls take part.

A SWEET SIXTEEN PARTY

A Huge Pink Crepe Paper Rose, Filled with Bonbons

A Home Made Candle Board

Picture hats in all shapes and sizes, embellished with pink and white roses, large and small, in wreaths, clusters and singly, will be sure to delight the guests to whom they are presented. And nothing could be more attractive than sixteen sweet girlish faces framed in such floral chapeaus seated about a rose decked table, if the month is June the idea is indeed perfect.

Wire frames may be used, or pasteboard foundations will answer every purpose, using wire to shape. It is astonishing what a pot of glue, a dozen sheets of crêpe paper, another dozen of tissue, and a rose outfit will accomplish. The result will be an infinite variety of creations—braided, corded, shirred, plaited, and all rose bedecked. Full instructions for making will be given one at any shop where crêpe papers are kept.

Lamp shades in hexagon, dome, Empire or princess effects, and candle shades rose petalled and in all shapes, or electric light screens of roses may be fashioned.

The place card, that most necessary accessory to a well appointed table, should be attached to either a full blown real rose or an artificial one with foliage. The white card may be further embellished, if desired, by cutting roses from crêpe papers and appliqueing upon them.

A beautiful conceit which may be carried out in the dining room by deft fingers is that of a rose bower. For this purpose one end of the room, or a huge screen, should be latticed with white ribbon or broad tape, a simple trick which will not injure the background if small thumb tacks are used. Tissue paper roses, the rambler, for instance, and their green leaves should be twined in and out of the lattice to give the bower effect.

SUCH a party given in an old Saratoga mansion counterfeited such a bower by using two large folding screens across one corner of the dining room, thus helping to carry out the pink and white effect. Grandmother's old mahogany table was polished until it shone, and plates were laid for sixteen on the best crocheted doilies. On the large crocheted centre piece was a candle board, with sixteen pink lighted candles. In the centre of the board was a snow white angel cake, with one pink candle surmounting it, which meant "one to grow on," the hostess afterward explained at the candle board ceremony.

Just above the table, suspended from the chandelier, was a huge pink crêpe paper rose—really a bomb, for a wire frame was filled with bonbons, then covered with crêpe paper and the rose "built" on it petal by petal. Runners of pink and white satin ribbon extended from the rose bomb to the plates, where they terminated in "sweet sixteen" sachet favors. Each sachet had many loops and sixteen ends, from which were suspended candy hearts with the usual sentimental inscriptions. One end of the ribbon had painted upon it, "We are sweet sixteen but once."

When cake time came around the hostess arose and invited her guests to arise also, whereupon each one was requested to snuff one candle with the old silver extinguisher, which had once upon a time been great-grandmamma's and which Daniel Webster himself had used when a guest in their home. When the sixteenth candle flickered out under the little silver cap the hostess was privileged to snuff out the extra candle on top of the cake—the "one to grow on"—after which she served a slice of snowy cake to each guest.

At a signal from the hostess the ribbon runners were pulled simultaneously, when the rose bomb burst in a shower of bonbons over the table. Everything breakable had, of course, first been removed.

Such a party can be easily given by any girl. Five sheets of tissue paper will make the bomb, rose and all. The latter is fashioned of large crumpled petals, glued on a pasteboard foundation. An ordinary baking pan may hold the gifts and have the rose attached to the cover. In other words, a rose Jack Horner pie may be inverted and suspended from the chandelier.

Three bolts of ribbon will make the runners and "sweet sixteen" sachets. Or if you do not wish the expense of ribbon runners twist strands of pink and white crêpe paper and utilize them instead. You have no idea how effective sixteen of these floral ropes may be made. Ideal ribbon favors, however, should be given as souvenirs, unless you think of a cleverer substitute.

The ice cups were also covered with crêpe paper rose petals, a simple trick any girl can readily learn by practising on one. These ice cups or "cases" may be bought at any caterer's or crêpe paper shop, or they may be made of pasteboard at home. Lace paper doilies are also for sale, and they are excellent imitations of real Irish crochet and other choice laces, although, of course, nothing can ever take the place of hand made ones.

CANDLE boards are old time accessories, and but few of these heirlooms are to be seen to-day, but any girl who is handy with a saw can make one. Or perhaps there is a father or brother who can be called into requisition. If not a carpenter will cut a circular board for a few cents. It should be about half an inch thick and eighteen inches in diameter. Ordinary pine takes an excellent stain—mahogany, Flemish oak or any shade desired to match the dining room furnishings.

Candle pins may be purchased at any caterer's shop, or with the aid of a pair of shears they may be cut from sheet lead in the shape of a four leaf clover. These "caps" should be dipped in a paint made of dry lampblack and thin shellac, or gilded. After the candle pins are painted or gilded they can be punched through the "four leaf clover," which will serve as a cup to catch the candle drippings. A brisk hammering will drive them into position on the board.

A pretty effect may be given the sheet lead cups by laying each one on the bottom turned face of an old flatiron and tacking the edges with a small tack here and there. This should, of course, be done before it is painted or gilded. A small five cent funnel, painted or gilded to match, may be substituted as an extinguisher.

In fact, any round board may be substituted, and candle cups are by no means a necessity. If the end of a candle is exposed to a flame for an instant it will melt sufficiently to adhere to the wooden surface, if laid on the board for a few seconds.

If the candles are placed in the ice box a few hours before using they will harden and not burn down so quickly. This simple precaution is also a preventive against undue dripping, which is undesirable if no cups are used, to catch the overflow.

A suggestion in line with this, and which may be used by the girl for her sweet sixteen party, is to utilize a real or artificial rose for a candle holder. Pinch a few petals from the centre, pour in a little hot wax or drippings from the candle exposed to the flame, and set the candle firmly in the heart of the rose. The stem should be left intact and twisted in shape for a handle.

This idea is an artistic simulation of the old fashioned candlestick without a shade, and many such set around the dining room will add to its decorative effect, also beating out the idea of "an early candlelight affair."

Such a candle board will do duty for more than one birthday party, and it will also serve gracefully at Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners and other festal occasions. It admits of all sorts of floral decorations—holly, myrtle, garlands of roses, sweet peas, morning glories—and it will add much to the joy of many home feasts.

So "sweet sixteen" need not think she can monopolize it for her own, but then, of course, she would not wish to do so, for she has already learned that "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

SKY BLUE DOG COLLAR.

SKY blue is the fashionable color of the season for pet dogs, and to be altogether smart your little Fifi or Bijou must have a blue collar and blue bows of precisely the same shade. The collar may be simply blue leather or as elaborate as your pocketbook will allow.

Some of the ornamented ones are veritable works of art, being studded with turquoises or delicate designs in blue enamel. The butterfly bows which coquettishly adorn the pampered darling are of velvet, which has taken the place of ribbon for the winter season.

If you are a superstitious little mistress you protect your doggie from bad luck by attaching to his collar a charm of the same sort you would wear from your chain, only doggie's at the moment must absolutely be of blue to preserve the fashionable harmony of his adornment.

GRANDMOTHER APRIL TALK

"ALREADY fatigued to the verge of exhaustion, and yet you have just made another engagement for to-day!" expostulated the April Grandmother as her second oldest granddaughter hung up the telephone receiver. "Like most young girls," she added in tolerant tones, "you fail to realize the importance of allowing yourself plenty of rest. Yet at no period of life is sufficient repose more essential to the building up of a strong constitution than during the years when growth is most rapid.

"Of course," she admitted, accurately construing the expression which clouded the countenance of her young descendant, "courage is required to decline an invitation to a matinee, but it is infinitely better to forego the pleasure of seeing the greatest star that ever twinkled in the theatrical heavens than to take one step toward nervous prostration.—Hades.

"Intended to rest for an hour before again going out," repeated the April Grandmother. "Your idea of resting, my dear, is to curl up, kitten fashion, on a lounge and read a novel, whereas the only way to obtain any real benefit from an hour's rest is to allow every muscle of the body to relax. The best sort of relaxation is to recline at full length, preferably on the back, with the feet almost as high as the head and the arms resting slightly away from the sides. A capacious easy chair may be substituted for a lounge, providing that the toes are not pressed against the floor and that the fingers do not grasp even a handkerchief. To relax the muscles of the hands is most of all difficult, and yet it is an art well worth cultivating if only for the sake of facial beauty. In nearly every instance the young girl—nervous from overfatigue—who habitually makes her fingers into a fist also holds her lips together in the tense line which in time creates a narrow, hard looking mouth. Moreover, the growing girl who never relaxes cannot be graceful. Her nervous energy may impel her to stand correctly, but it is the uncompromising erectness of a ramrod rather than the pliable straightness of a reed.

"Although a consciousness of being correctly garbed is a great aid to mental serenity," continued the April Grandmother, "modern dress accessories greatly militate against physical comfort, without which there cannot be absolute rest. Therefore the girl who wishes to relax for an hour should remove her collar, corsets and shoes, as those articles prevent three very important sets of muscles from enjoying absolute freedom. And while it may be mental relaxation to sit in a lounging chair and nibble at chocolates, it certainly is not a physical rest, because to digest any sort of confectionery is a tax upon the stomach—an organ which, when its owner is weary, should be soothed with a bowl of clear soup, a cup of hot boullion tea or a glass of warm milk. Any of these fluids are quieting to the nerves, and if they induce a nap so much the better, for if the mind is temporarily rendered blank the effect upon the entire body will be a restful one.

"Not to rest when you are conscious of being extraordinarily weary is a sin of omission, the penalty for which is tired looking eyes, a faded complexion and premature wrinkles," solemnly concluded the April Grandmother. "The evidences of overfatigue—termed nervousness by one's friends and irritability by one's enemies—are at all events positively painful. And pain, whether physical or mental, quickly destroys beauty."

RALLY DAY AT THE MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH

In spite of the very rainy weather there was a big turnout at the rally day services yesterday morning at the Murray street Baptist church. The pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb, was assisted by those who had been superintendents in the past.

JAMES EDWARDS,
An early Superintendent at the Murray Street Baptist Church.

Mr. Wm. Aldridge read the morning lesson and Dr. Scott led in morning prayer. Dr. Browett assisted the pastor in the conducting of the service.

The music was under the direction of Mr. Finch Miller, and the choir was composed of children from the Sunday school.

The pastor preached on "The Past and the Present," taking for his text "Psalms 44-1: "We have heard with our ears; our fathers have told us what works Thou didst in their days."

Beautiful booklets containing the order of service and pictures of a former superintendent of the school, Mr. James Edwards, and the present superintendent, Mr. Wm. J. Dunlop, were distributed among the congregation.

The congregation were loud in their expressions of satisfaction of the service, and the children certainly made a stormy morning full of sunshine.

During the sermon Mr. Webb read an impressive message from Lt.-Col. E. B. Edwards, of Edmonton, who was superintendent of the school for many years.

Miss Bessie Elcome presided at the organ most acceptably.

$1,000,000 WILL BE SPENT ON PLANT

In Making Extensions to C. G. E. Premises in Peterborough—Much Larger Sum Than Was Anticipated Will Have to be Spent by the Company.

In the course of conversation with Mayor Morrow on Saturday, Mr. Frederic Nicholls, general manager of the Canadian General Electric Co., remarked that he made some of the plans for the extensions to the local plant of the company and had also prepared some of the estimates of cost. He found that the company would have to spend a much larger sum than was anticipated. An immediate expenditure of at least $500,000 would have to be made and within a very short time extensions and additions to the plant will have to be made at an additional expenditure of $500,000 making the total cost $1,000,000.

DEMONSTRATION OF AN ELECTRIC VACUUM CLEANER

Saturday afternoon the Collier Electric Co., Limited, gave a unique demonstration of the working of the electric Vacum Cleaner in the window of the Peterborough Hardware Co., Limited.

The demonstration proved exceedingly interesting, apparently, as a large crowd continually filled the front of the store and the sidewalk while the machine was in operation.

Cleaning house by the vacum method is one of the most recent inventions, and to those who had never witnessed the operation, the sight was both interesting and instructive.

This machine was a large and very powerful one, operated by electricity, and the manner in which it seemed to "eat dirt" was quite marvellous. Rags, matches, nails, tacks, pins, etc., flew into the floor tool as though the monster had an insatiable appetite and was not at all particular as to the nature of its food. Flour and fine dirt was spread upon a velvet carpet and ground into the washes by tramping and rubbing. A broom simply could not recover such material, but the vacum cleaner sucked all out in marvellous style. 60,000 cubic inches of air per minute goes through the "Invincible," as the machine is called. As this is drawn through the carpets all the fine dirt which has found its way down through to the floor is drawn back through the carpet again, and at the same time the great volume of air rushing through the meshes not only cleans, but aerates.

In the window were displayed several piles of dust and dirt taken from various homes in the city, no names, of course, being mentioned. One pile of dirt weighed some eight pounds, and this was said to have been taken from 35 yards of carpet from one house. People never know how dirty their carpets are until a vacum cleaner brings all the dirt to one heap.

Mr. Collier, asked by a Review reporter, if such a method was at all injurious to the carpet, the reply was an assurance that the vacum principle was not only non-injurious, but proved far less harmful than the ordinary beating method. And besides cleansing the carpet the vacum method makes the nap or pile stand up properly and thus freshens its appearance wonderfully.

The Collier Electric Co., Limited, not only sell these vacum cleaners, but contract to clean carpets as they are on the floor in the home. As the rate is on the basis of the square yard the operation is done at a nominal price, and should prove an economical matter in contrast to the present expensive method of tearing up the carpets and hiring men to beat them.

GOVERNOR GENERAL'S VISIT TO ST. JOHN'S ON SATURDAY

Rev. Canon Davidson the Rector Eulogized the King's Representative on His Able Administration and Fine Qualities—His Excellency Spoke of Unifying Power of Religion and Expressed Appreciation of Honor Accorded Him

The Governor-General's visit to St. John's church on Saturday was an occasion of much interest. The entrance of the church was decorated in honor of the visit of His Excellency was received by the rector and two wardens of the church and was ushered to a seat especially prepared for him. A large congregation was in attendance and the Mayor and aldermen and others who came from the lift lock in the party were also present. Prayers were offered by the rector for the King and country and the Governor-General, after which the rector expressed the welcome of the congregation to His Excellency and spoke of the pleasure and honor occasioned by the visit and recalled a similar occasion when Lord and Lady Minto attended the church.

The rector referred to the strong personality which had marked His Excellency's career and Canadians were glad to see some one in his high position, who was more than official and who gave expression to his manhood and individuality. His co-operation in the fight against tuberculosis was most valuable. The stimulus he had given to art, music and other refinements of life so greatly needed in a new country was thoroughly appreciated by the citizens of Canada. Religion and other such high things all went together for the uplifting of man. Other governor-generals would come to us, but Earl Grey's individuality and influence would long remain.

The Rev. J. G. Potter, of St. Andrew's church, was invited by the rector to speak on behalf of the clergy of the city. In responding Mr. Porter stated that he considered it a great honor which he appreciated very much to speak for the clergy of the city in addressing His Excellency. He had not expected such an honor and enjoyed the privilege of expressing, what he knew Canon Davidson wished to be emphasized, that the clergy of Peterborough were united and harmonious in the great work of maintaining that standard of righteousness that had always marked the strength and glory of Britain's greatness. He assured His Excellency that the loyalty and devotion of the people of Peterborough were always strong in maintaining the very best traditions of the Empire.

The Governor-General on the strong invitation of the rector, rose in his place in the church and he stated he felt over-awed by the sanctity of the building. He was not accustomed to speak in places of worship, but was glad to express his appreciation of the welcome which had been accorded him in that beautiful house of prayer. Religion generally, and from his standpoint, the Anglican part of it in particular, was a strongly unifying and patriotic influence throughout the British Empire and its value was inestimable.

Earl Grey said he had learned with interest of the proposal to place a chime of bells in the tower of St. John's, which from its commanding position, seemed to him to be admirably suited for the purpose. He had always delighted in the music of church bells, which he thought appealed in an elevating way to the toiling multitudes, besides giving to Englishmen a reminder of their distant homeland. He wished the project all success.

The "Old Hundred" was then sung with Mr. R. J. Dove, the organist, of St. John's, leading, and the Governor-General signed the registrar and was introduced to a number present, including different ministers of the town.

LOOKED LIKE A HOLD-UP

Affair on Hunter St. About Eleven O'clock, Saturday Night Had All the Earmarks of a "Reliever"

Saturday night about eleven o'clock, two boys and a young man were the participants in an affair on Hunter street, near Longdo's fruit store, which to certain eye witnesses of part of the programme, looked like a case of a hold-up game, but it happens that it was nothing more than an ordinary case of having some fun with an easy mark.

There was a muffled cry as if someone was in trouble, followed by a mix-up on the road, then a sudden departure of the two boys, leaving the young man standing in the middle of the road, acting as though he was having difficulty in coming to an understanding of what had happened. It turns out, however, that the supposed victim of a hold-up is a young man who is not altogether "right," and which the boys turned on him he took off his coat. This one of his annoyers secured, but retired suddenly with his pal, when assistance for their victim appeared to be forthcoming.

IS NOW FULLY ORGANIZED

The official announcement was made of the organization of the Maple Leaf Milling Co., with a capital of $5,000,000, and the new company has acquired as going concerns the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Co., Limited, and the Hedley Shaw Milling Co. The interests at the head of the new company, which include Mr. Cawthra Mulock, of Toronto, Mr. D. C. Cameron, of Winnipeg, and Mr. Hedley Shaw, head of the Hedley Shaw Milling Co., have placed in the treasury of the new company $1,000,000 of additional cash capital, and this in addition to the permitting of the completion of a 6,000 bbl. mill at present under erection at Port Colborne, and of a mill on bushel elevator and storage warehouse at the same point, will provide the new company with a large amount of additional working capital.

When the 6,000-bbl. mill at present under way at Port Colborne is completed, the Maple Leaf Milling Co. will have a total capacity of 12,800 barrels a day.

The capital of the new company will be $5,000,000, divided into $2,500,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, and $2,500,000 of common stock. The company has no bonds either issued or authorized. The company's mills will be situated at Port Colborne, St. Catharines, Thorold, Welland and Kenora, in the Province of Ontario, and at Brandon, in the Province of Manitoba.

Wireless Telephony

Wireless telephony is being developed at a rate that makes the plain citizen who aspires to be informed concerning the progress of the world hustle to keep up with the state of the art. Already A. Frederick Collins, the pioneer worker along this line, has developed three distinct systems of wireless telephones, each adapted to a certain sphere of usefulness each practicable and reliable.

The things that can be done with one or the other of these three systems would stagger the credulity of any but a poor people, who by long familiarity with scientific marvels have become hardened thereto. It is now possible to talk without the use of wires with persons in distant parts of a building or in adjacent buildings regardless of the number and thickness of walls and floors intervening. One may take a wireless telephone or an automobile, a motor boat, a yacht, an airship, or a submarine, into a caisson, a tunnel or a mine and be able to converse with others at any given point or points on the surface as freely and as plainly as one can now talk over a local telephone with nearby points.

It is even possible to combine the ordinary telephone with the wireless. Thus a telephone subscriber in Creston, Iowa, for instance, who wanted to talk with some one on board the Deutschland in mid-Atlantic need not be deterred by the fact that there was no wireless station at Creston. All he would have to do would be to call up Chicago on the long distance wire. Chicago would give the connection with the New York wire and the New York office would connect with the wireless station. The wireless operator, after calling the Deutschland by wireless, would connect the long distance wire from Creston with the wireless transmitter and the voice that had already travelled fourteen hundred miles overland by wire would project itself through the other to the listening ear on shipboard on the lonely Atlantic.—From "Wireless Telephone Wizardry" in Technical World Magazine.

Toronto, April 26—The Wholesale Grocers' Exchange, a provincial organization, yesterday opened an important convention at the King Edward Hotel, and will continue until Thursday. The new federal anti-combine bill is to be discussed to-day.

W. G. Craig of Kingston, the president, in his opening remarks referred to the court proceedings to dissolve the grocers' guild, which, beginning in February, 1906, were not terminated till last month, when the defendants were exonerated. In consequence, Mr. Craig predicted a new era and much success, progress and profitable advancement for the trade.

Referring to tariff changes, he said: "There seems to be a growing conviction that high customs duties encourages trusts and mergers, and this lends strength to the reciprocity propaganda. In the meantime, I think we Canadians can afford to let our friends over the border fight it out among themselves."

The keenest discussion of the day centered around an address by Hugh Blain of Toronto on "Declarations, Their Uses and Importances," dealing with the necessity of honesty in business. He discussed the addendum to the criminal code relating to the taking of gifts or rebates by agents, and said that every traveler should be required to take an obligation to faithfully carry out the terms of a business agreement before going out on the road. The fact that a man had taken an oath would have a deterring and an elevating influence, for the buyer would hesitate before suggesting or proposing anything which was contrary to the salesman's obligation, and the salesman in turn would be averse to proposing or giving what he and the buyer knew was contrary to the declaration he had taken.

He was confident that this declaration, if used in conjunction with the contract selling plan, would enforce a rigid and just observance of the manufacturers' prices by the wholesale distributors. With such a system established on a hard and fast basis, the standard of business ethics would be vastly improved. Everyone would continue to do their fair share of trade and competition would be promoted along healthy business lines. He condemned the custom of giving secret concessions, which involved the meanest kind of dishonesty, such practices arising from a desire to make more money, though he believed that those who followed them lost in the long run.

The following resolutions were passed:—

"That this meeting recognizes the conditions of trade and agrees that sound justice should be done by all the trade to the manufacturer who is loyal to both wholesaler and retailer. It is also the opinion of this meeting that every effort should be put forth by the members of the trade to stop injurious and dishonest methods all too common in the sale of proprietary lines."

"That this convention heartily endorses the attitude taken, that the wholesalers should take in dealing with manufacturers who will not reasonably share with the wholesalers a fair remuneration for the service rendered, and that immediate steps be taken at this convention to appoint committees to interview manufacturers whose goods the members of this exchange are selling on a margin too small to cover selling expenses with a view to a more reasonable working margin."

MACKENZIE KING'S BILL IS ADVANCED ANOTHER STAGE

Important Clause is Added Declaring That the Anti-Combine Law Will in no Way Affect the Lemieux Labor Disputes Act.

Ottawa, April 26.—Hon. Mackenzie King's anti-combines bill passed the committee stage of the Commons yesterday, and stands for the third reading. The purpose of the measure is to protect the consumer and the producer from combines which seek to injure their interests. The method to be adopted is similar to the practice under the Industrial Disputes' Act. Each party concerned in a charge, the complainers and the complained against, may name representatives on a board of investigation and these two representatives may name the chairman, who must be a judge of any court of record. Of course, the formal appointments will be made by the Minister of Labor.

The extension of the legislation to protect the producer was the outcome of a discussion initiated by Major Currie of North Simcoe, and taken part in by several members, particularly J. D. Taylor of New Westminster and W. O. Sealey of Wentworth. The former laid stress on the case of the salmon fishermen of British Columbia, who found themselves seriously injured as the result of orders in council, which prevent the fishermen from exporting fish and refuse to allow any more licenses for canning to be issued.

As a result a combine of canners has cut the earnings of the fishermen in half. The other case was that of the farmers. Buyers in combine cut down the price paid for the products of the farm. In neither case has the public benefitted. This new legislation, therefore, will deal with such situations.

An important new clause was added to the bill to cover the case of trades unions. It reads: "This act shall not be construed to repeal, amend or in any way affect the trade unions act." It simply means that trade unions as such as entitled to combine for their own legitimate purposes. The question of trades unions interfering illegitimately with the operations of trade is provided for in the criminal code.

It was noticeable that Mr. King was practically unsupported all day by the Ministry, and there were times when the presence of the Minister of Justice would have been useful to him, especially as G. M. Macdonald of Pictou did not betray much affection for the measure, and kept pressing amendments on the latest Cabinet recruit. Major Currie remarked upon the situation, and said it was a matter worthy of comment, and he was disappointed that Mr. Aylesworth was not in the House to assist the Minister of Labor.

Mr. King said the bill had been revised by the Department of Justice.

It is announced at Government House that the state ball will take place on May 10. This means that Parliament will be formally prorogued on May 11.

Government business is now being rushed forward, and there will be a rapid clearance of the order paper in the next fortnight. Owing to the illness of Hon. L. P. Brodeur, the Marine and Fisheries' estimates are as yet untouched. They will be guided through committee of supply by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Advices from Mr. Brodeur, who is in South Carolina, are that he is not making such rapid progress towards recovery as was hoped.

The Premier has given notice of a motion to begin Saturday sittings.

In moving the second reading of the insurance bill, which was adopted with practically no discussion, Hon. W. S. Fielding explained the chief amendments which had been made by the bill in the Senate.

The "gain and loss" exhibited, he explained, which was to have been included in the annual statement, was not included in the bill as it came from the Upper House.

Other changes are: Bonuses to agents must be agreed upon in advance by the agent and the company; policyholders cannot vote by proxy; directors may be elected annually, biennially or triennially; fire insurance is allowed in foreign unlicensed companies without any tax, but foreign companies cannot send agents into Canada to solicit business.

The annual report of the Militia Council, presented to the House of Commons yesterday, shows that last year out of a total establishment of 43,742, 36,294 underwent annual training, of whom 12,100 were in the district camps, 7,469 at regimental camps, and 16,565 at local headquarters.

The report of Sir Percy Lake, the inspector-general, states that "the efficiency of the whole force suffered severely from the decrease in the votes upon which it depended for maintenance and drill." In the permanent force establishments had been reduced below the limit of efficiency and recruiting had been stopped.

He reports that the Toronto Squadron of Dragoons has spent too much time in "musical rides" for Toronto and other exhibitions and that in future permission for this be given sparingly.

WITNESSES TESTIFY AGAINST PRODGERS

Detectives Down and Egelton told of fitting Prodgers' shoes to the footmarks south of the Frank house and of finding a Christie hat there. There was also produced the hat found in the Carling Block, where Prodgers lived, and the one which Bremner has stated he gave him on the night of the shooting.

Sidney Clarke and William Campbell testified to having seen a hatless man going away from near the Frank place about four o'clock in the afternoon of the shooting, and Campbell positively identified Prodgers.

Robert Bremner also identified him as the man to whom he had given the hat.

The trial was adjourned for one week.

RETIRES FROM CHAIRMANSHIP

Van Horne Will Withdraw From Head of C.P.R. Board.

Montreal, April 26.—Sir William C. Van Horne has resigned the chairmanship of the board of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., which he has held since Sir Thomas Shaughnessy came to the presidency, in 1898.

When asked if there was any foundation to the report, Sir William said: "Yes, it is my intention to withdraw from the chairmanship, my reason being that the office is only a nominal one. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy is and has been for a long time the real head of the C.P.R., and I need not tell you or anybody in Canada what a competent head the company has had in him, nor how abundantly able he is to manage its affairs without the help of anybody. I shall, of course, remain on the board of the C.P.R. as long as the shareholders see fit to elect me, for naturally the Canadian Pacific has a large place in my affections."

Sir William Van Horne came to the C.P.R. as general manager at the end of 1881, was made vice-president and general manager, in 1884, succeeding Lord Mount Stephen to the presidency in 1888. Sir William retired from the presidency in 1898 and was succeeded by Sir Thomas Shaughnessy.

FALLON CONSECRATED; GREAT GATHERING AT THE LONDON CEREMONY

Archbishop McEvay of Toronto, Acts as Consecrator in Function Which Attracts Notable Prelates and Laymen From all Over the Dominion.

London, April 26.—One of the most impressive ceremonies which have ever taken place in London was the service of consecration in St. Peter's Cathedral Sunday afternoon of Bishop Fallon. Hundreds were unable to gain admission.

The procession, which left St. Peter's Palace at 9:30, entered by the main door and passed up the main aisle. In the line were Archbishop McEvay of Toronto, the consecrator; all the clergy of the diocese, and hundreds of Knights of Columbus.

The parents and brothers of the new bishop occupied a front pew.

The bishop-elect was presented to the consecrator by Bishops Scollard of Sault Ste. Marie and McDonald of Alexandria. Many bishops and archbishops were present during the ceremony, including Archbishop Dennentwill, superior-general of Oblate Order; McCarthy, Halifax; Quigley, Chicago; Gauthier, Kingston; Bruchesi, Montreal, and Langevin, St. Boniface, and Bishops Hickey, Rochester, N.Y.; Cotton, Buffalo; Barry, Chatham, N.B.; Casey, St. John, N.B.; Larocque, Sherbrooke; Emard, Valleyfield; O'Connor, Peterboro; Foley, Detroit, and Downing of Hamilton.

Rev. James Fallon of Ottawa, brother of the bishop, was deacon at the mass, and Rev. J. P. McKenna, London, sub-deacon. Father Downey of Windsor was master of ceremonies, and Right Rev. Mgr. Meunier, also of Windsor, officiated as high priest. Rev. Father Kerwin of Buffalo assisted Bishop Fallon. Mgr. Meunier read the address from the priests of the diocese and Senator Coffey of London that from the laymen.

The address of the clergy said: "We welcome you, elect of God, chosen by the Master of the Apostles, and by His bidding voice, re-echoed from the hill of the Vatican, sent with mission sealed with the seal of the fisherman of Galilee to rule pastors and people in the Diocese of London. You come to us at God's bidding, the most sublime eulogy of them all, and by the will of the Father of Christendom."

The address from the laity said: "as an educator Ottawa holds your memory in benediction. Your untiring zeal for the advancement of learning, your salutary influence over the young, and your personality, that disarmed hostility as well as opened hearts, are not forgotten."

The laymen present included Hon. Dr. Reaugie, Hon. Charles Murphy, Hon. J. J. Foy, Judge McHugh, and D'Arcy Scott. Father Fallon's aged parents from Cornwall were present, and of were 400 of his former parishioners in Buffalo, who came in a special train. Hundreds of the members of the Knights of Columbus, Catholic Order of Foresters, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Catholic Mutual Benefit Society, and others, were present, and many handsome gifts and addresses were presented, including a diamond ring from M. P. Davis of Ottawa.

Bishop Fallon was born in Kingston, Ont., in 1867, and received his early education at the University of Ottawa. After being graduated from this institution of learning, Father Fallon went to Rome, there to pursue his theological studies. It was in that city that he was ordained to the priesthood.

Returning to Canada he accepted a professorship at the University of Ottawa, and four years later became pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Ottawa, where he remained three years. He then went to Buffalo as rector of the Church of the Holy Angels.

The erection of an imposing school building, the improvements in church buildings and the formation of a number of social and religious societies survive as part of his eight years' work there.

Bishop Fallon is a member of the Oblate Fathers and is provincial in that order. While stationed in Ottawa he took an active interest in athletics, and for years held the office of honorary president of the Ottawa College Rugby Football Club. He is a physical giant, standing 6 feet 4 inches.

KING EDWARD THE PEACE-MAKER

Alarming reports are in circulation regarding the health of King Edward, but several times before, since the beginning of his reign, similar reports were circulated apparently without justification

Not only the people of the United Kingdom, but the whole civilized world, will feel deep concern regarding the health of Britain's King. He is universally admired as a man of great tact and good sense, and there is no doubt that his influence has been great in preserving the peace of the world. Queen Victoria not long before her death said that while she would not wish Britain to have one less warship, she would like to be remembered in history as the "Peace-maker," and that King Edward evidently has the same ambition.

To a man of his disposition the present quarrel between the House of Lords and House of Commons is naturally annoying, both political parties are blaming each other for worrying the King, and it is possible that exaggerated reports regarding his health may have arisen in this way.

THE MURDEROUS AUTOMOBILE

Six men in an automobile drove furiously over Victoria bridge from Montreal to St. Lambert and after joy-riding along the bridge on the other side of the river started on the return trip across the bridge, going at the rate of a mile and a half in three minutes, they struck and instantly killed Miss Bessie Smith, a young woman, who was walking on the bridge. The reckless men did not stop to give assistance, but continued on their way at full speed. Upon reaching the other side of the bridge they stopped for a moment to examine the headlight of their machine the glass of which had been smashed in the collision and then quickly disappeared in the great city.

A restaurant keeper named Lariviere, has since been arrested, having admitted that he was on the car that crossed the bridge, with his bartender and four other men. He says the machine belonged to a man named Dionne, who invited him to take a drive, but says he knows nothing about this man or any of his companions, and can't tell where they live. He declares positively that the machine he was in struck no one.

The speed with which automobiles can escape after murdering innocent pedestrians makes it very difficult some times to bring about the punishment of the offenders.

Last September an automobile being driven furiously through one of the streets of New York city struck a young women throwing her high in the air. She came down on her head and was instantly killed, the driver merely glancing at the body of the young woman, continued on his way at full speed. Many people witnessed the killing of the young woman, but the man who would have escaped punishment, but for the presence of mind and pluck of a twelve year old boy who sprang on the automobile and clung desperately while it traversed many city streets, the chaffeur being entirely unaware that he was carrying a passenger who had witnessed the death of the young woman. Finally after a six mile drive something went wrong with the machine and the chauffeur stopped to fix it. The small boy immediately dropped to the ground, hurried forward, ascertained that it would take some time to fix the machine and then ran at full speed to a police station and brought policemen who arrested the guilty driver. That boy has in him the making of a great man. It is to be hoped that all the men concerned in the killing of the young woman on Victoria Bridge will be brought to justice. The manufacturers of automobiles should endeavor to assist the lawmakers in devising methods of identifying automobiles and those who drive them. Some very drastic measures must be adopted for the protection of pedestrians.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Latest bulletin from Newmarket:—Weather rainy, wind sou'-west, Depth of water in the canal, one-half inch. —Toronto News.

The Governor-General spoke feelingly of the necessity of cultivating CHARACTER in Canada, at the public luncheon tendered to him by the city. There is no doubt we are very lax in this respect, but there are signs of the reaction setting in. Every new and rich country is sooner or later overrun by crooks, big and little, but it cannot last. The people will always protect themselves. Nevertheless we thank Earl Grey for his warning. We need it here rather badly.

You are plainly told that the Kidneys are sick.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney ills.

Mrs. A. Graham, 547 Water street, Peterborough, Ont., says: "My back was so weak and tender that I could not turn in my bed. A heavy, dull pain had settled across the small of it and caused me almost constant suffering. I became weak and languid. I was run down generally, and had little ambition to move around. Headaches were frequent and often accompanied by spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes, and I would be unable to see. I had tried numerous remedies without getting results. Doan's Kidney Pills were advertised at Madill's pharmacy. I tried them and soon found relief. The kidneys were quickly regulated and each and every symptom of kidney trouble was quickly cured. I am glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as I believe them to be the best and most reliable of all kidney remedies."

Sold by dealers, price 50 cents. The R. T. Doan Co., Limited, Fort Erie, Ont., sole Canadian agents.

Pity Your Mother

If She Is Frail or Weak.

The heroic side of life is most often found in the struggle between duty towards the family, and the mother's inability through ill-health to perform that duty.

"Words sometime seem poor things to express one's feelings," writes Mrs. J. P. Merritt. "I have a family of five all pretty close together. After baby was born my strength didn't come back. The child pulled me down a lot, and I couldn't wean him in the hot weather, my other children needed so much to be done for them. My system did not come right—my color was pallid, and morning and night and all the time, I was livid. My druggist told me of how well his customers spoke of Ferrozone, and I got six boxes right away. You wouldn't believe how well it built me up. It seems quite strange now to be real well again, to feel like my old self once more. I was really hopelessly in despair and too completely worn out to feel like living before I used Ferrozone, so you can imagine how highly I prize such a good medicine. My children now say 'mother isn't tired any more,' and for my children's sake I am so glad to be well enough to give them all the care and attention that every good mother feels she must bestow upon her family."

Ferrozone Cures Weakness

You are sure to be invigorated, certain to be built up and kept always at your best—you are bound to enjoy all the happiness of lasting good health if you use Ferrozone. Try it, one or two tablets along with your meals. Fifty cents a box, six for $2.50, all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, April 25.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards West End Market receipts last week were 2300 cattle, 175 sheep and lambs, 2800 hogs and 2300 calves. Offerings this morning were 850 cattle, 50 sheep and lambs, 1500 hogs and 600 calves. Cattle prices have scored another advance of 62½c per cwt., bringing Ontario steers to 6c per pound, live weight, probably the highest on record. The principal cause for the steady upward trend of prices during the past six weeks has been the keen competition on the part of the American exporters, and because the number of Ontario stall-fed cattle this year is much smaller than a year ago. Another strong factor is the steady advance in prices for Canadian cattle in Liverpool and London markets, sales on Saturday being made at as high as 15½c per pound.

Trade opened slow here this morning, but as the gathering of buyers was large trade became active and a clearance was made. Choice steers sold at 7¾c to 8c, good at 7½c to 7¾c, fairly good at 6¾c to 7c, fair at 6½c to 6¾c, and common at 5½c to 6c per pound. C. A. Dohan had a string of bulls of 22 head, which weighed 53,000 pounds, over 1650 pounds each, and he sold some as high as 6¾c per pound.

Hog prices, as compared with a week ago, show a decline of 20c to 25c per cwt. Supplies are commencing to come in more freely, and offerings this morning were in excess of requirements. Sales of selected lots were made at $9.90 to $10.15.

Demand for small meats was good and supplies were limited, and prices held high. Calves sold at from $3 to $10 each. Old sheep were scarce, at 5c to 6½c per pound, and spring lambs brought from $4 to $8 each.

Cook in Comfort

You no longer need wear yourself out with the weakening heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives NO outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking — none in outside heating.

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is NO surrounding heat — NO smell — NO smoke.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use too much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot.

It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

HIS SECRET.

How a Bank Clerk Eventually Became a Director.

By JOHN JONES.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

The lot of a younger son in England is usually a hard one because the boys are brought up in affluence only to be turned out with a pittance when they come of age.

Clarence Meldron was one of these younger sons, and at the age of nineteen a position on a high stool in the Bank of England was obtained for him. There has never been the chance for a young man in England to rise as in this country, and when Meldron entered the bank to begin a life of drudgery he felt like one on whom the doors of a jail had closed. What especially filled him with melancholy was that he loved the daughter of a baronet whom her family considered sufficiently attractive to marry the firstborn of a duke. And so she was. Lady Emily Twiss was extremely pretty, extremely kind, extremely bright. Indeed, she possessed every feature to recommend her as a wife.

Young Meldron had been in the employ of the bank two years with a few pounds a year increase in his salary when he received a note from Lady Emily bidding him a sad farewell. The Marquis of Stanforth had proposed for her hand, and there was no choice for her but to accept him. On receipt of Lady Emily's note Meldron suffered that agony which only a young lover knows who sees the girl he worships pass to another man.

Before leaving the bank that afternoon Meldron was notified that he was to deliver a box of papers from the strong room of the bank the same evening to the house of one of the directors. At the appointed time the young clerk went to the bank, got the box and carried it as instructed. He was told to wait in the hall, which he did for an hour or more while several of the directors were discussing a matter of finance in one of the apartments. Then he was called into the room where they were convened.

"Go," said one of the gentlemen, "to the bank and in the strong room you will find a number of chests in which are also papers. Open the box marked 1872 and bring me the package marked as indicated on this paper."

He handed Meldron a slip and a key. The young man took both, went to the bank, was admitted and entered the strong room. Having possessed himself of what he had been sent for, he looked about him.

He was in a room containing more treasure than any in the world. Great heaps of coin, bank bills and securities were deposited there. With a lantern he carried he poked about in corners and crannies. Suddenly he felt himself sliding downward. He struck a stone floor over which water was trickling, but he knew this only from the source of touch; for his lantern had gone out.

He bethought himself of a silver matchbox in his pocket, kept there for lighting his pipe. He struck a match and illuminated a sewer. He also lighted up the incline by which he had entered it and saw that he could go back the way he came. His lantern was at his feet, and, picking it up, he relighted it. Then he climbed back into the strong room.

Fortunately he had not caught much filth on his clothes, for he had not lost his balance in his descent of but a few feet. He ascended the stairs, was let out by the man in charge and went straight to the house where the directors were conferring. There he was rated soundly for having been so long on his errand. He made no excuse and was permitted to depart, his superiors saying that they would not need him longer.

A vision of a great change in his affairs loomed up in the young man's mind. He possessed a secret that involved millions. If he could leave the strong room by means of the sewer others could enter it in the same way. While the officials were watching their treasure above ground by the most carefully devised system there was no watch whatever at this opening where the sewer had broken and left a free entrance to the strong room.

No thought of using his knowledge for the purpose of appropriating the funds of the bank entered his head. He would leave the cursed country forever, career or no career.

He recollected with a sudden misgiving that his predecessor had thrown over the task because his wife had died—Elwin had returned to America and chucked the service forever.

Several days afterward Nell had recovered sufficiently to be brought out into the cool, matted sitting room. Her illness had taken the form of a strange inertia. Hour after hour she would lie with dark lashes fringed against her white cheeks, her bosom scarcely stirring with each feeble breath.

The little English doctor was plainly puzzled. He fetched a clever French physician, and together the two men consulted over the case. The French man went away without offering an opinion, but the next day he came back and ordered Jeremy to take his wife away.

"It is poison—so insidious—so subtle so lingering here is to die. Take her away."

"Where can I take her?" demanded Jeremy, wild with fear and anxiety.

"Anywhere—down to Hongkong if you like. It will be a change."

So Jeremy gave up the bungalow and discharged all the servants, even the faithful old nurse, whom Nell had learned to love. After them he tossed the medicine bottles and pills and powders. If a secret enemy lurked in his household, one whose object was to destroy his beautiful bride, the general clearing out would include him.

The sea voyage and the arrival at the picturesque island, with its delightful points of interest and its charming English population, did Nell Hoffman a world of good. Gradually the apathy left her and her bright spirits returned. The French doctor made a special trip down the coast to see her and pronounced her on the road to recovery.

"Be careful of her," he urged Jeremy. "She is not strong. I cannot determine what drug or how it has been administered, but surely some slow poison has been given to your wife. Watch, and take care if you have an enemy."

That very evening they attended a dinner party, Nell lovely in pale green with the mandarin's fan swinging from her wrist. An hour after her arrival Jeremy accompanied her home again, sitting beside her in the carriage, holding her unconscious form in his arms.

This time her illness was of longer duration, and in his distress Jeremy vowed he would return to America immediately upon her recovery. But the recovery was slow, even under the skillful ministrations of the French doctor.

"I told you to take care—to watch!" he hissed impatiently at Hoffman.

"I did, Dr. Davesne," groaned Jeremy, flinging himself into a chair and dropping his head into his hands. "God knows I have protected her. If she recovers sufficiently I will take her home."

There Ralph Elwin found him.

"Sheldon cabled me to come out—said you were in trouble and that I might help you out on the business," said the former as he shook hands with Hoffman.

"The business can go hang!" said Jeremy passionately. "All I care about is to take my wife away from this cursed country. Forgive my temper, Elwin, but you can understand."

Elwin nodded gravely. "I can understand. I waited too long and lost my wife. What is the matter with Mrs. Hoffman? I thought her looking unusually well when you sailed."

Jeremy explained, and Elwin listened with his face in shadow. As he finished, Jeremy picked up the mandarin's fan from the table where he had flung it the night of their return from the dinner party.

"She was looking quite well and fanning herself with this thing, when all at once she just crumpled into a heap," he said.

"Let me see it," said Elwin in a strange voice. He examined the fan with keen intensity, lifting it once to his nose and then hastily withdrawing it.

"Where did she get it?" he asked sharply.

"A gift from Liung Weh. You know, I'm on friendly terms with the old scoundrel, although"—

"Enough! So was I! Liung Weh was lavish in his gifts to us. He gave my wife a fan like this one, and—oh, my God, if I had only known in time!" Elwin's voice rang harshly as he leaped to his feet. "It is impregnated with some cursed poison, Jeremy. Ask Dr. Davesne! Let him examine the fan. If he recognizes the poison he can supply the antidote and cure your wife. As for Liung Weh"—

"But why—why should he attack Nell? Why not me—why"—stammered Jeremy excitedly.

"Liung Weh does not fight in the open, old man. He killed my wife, and it sent me home. He thought to do the same for you and would have done so in the end. Mary was taken ill in the same way, only, being of a weaker constitution, she succumbed to the poison at once. My advice to you, Jeremy, is to take Mrs. Hoffman home as soon as she is sufficiently recovered. Let your career go. You can find plenty to do at home. I will settle with Liung Weh. I will carry this mission through without one concession in his behalf."

"I will stand by you, Elwin, and together we will fight it out," declared Jeremy, clasping the other's hand.

"Nay," said Elwin; "love is greater than fame or revenge or the carriage of justice. Love is greater than all. Guard it carefully, Jeremy, and some day I will return to San Francisco and tell you how the romance of the mandarin's fan turned out to be a tragedy after all."

James the Great.

The educated chimpanzee known as James the Great is at present one of the sensations of the vaudeville stage in Europe. A man who saw him perform in Germany writes: "The animal does all sorts of tricks under the direction of his master and at one time occupies the stage all alone, and then he becomes the most interesting. He wears long black trousers, a green pea jacket and a light felt hat of alpine shape. The monkey makes his bow and advances to the wings, where he receives from an attendant a bicycle, which he mounts and rides around the stage at all speeds from the very slow to racing time and seems to enjoy it. Then he does some fancy riding and closes by wheeling in and out among a dozen champagne bottles, coming dangerously close to some of them, but hitting none. He is a wonderful example of the trainer's patience and the monkey's adaptability."

MOTHERS WHO HAVE DAUGHTERS

Find Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winchester, Ind. — "Four doctors told me that they could never make me regular, and that I would eventually have dropsy. I would bloat, and suffer from bearing-down pains, cramps and chills, and I could not sleep nights. My mother wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking one and one-half bottles of the Compound, I am all right again, and I recommend it to every suffering woman." — MRS. MAY DEAL, Winchester, Ind.

Hundreds of such letters from girls and mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them have been received by The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by its use.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

THE ART OF BEING SILLY.

Have Brains Enough to Forget Occasionally That You Have Them.

The fine art of being able to be silly is one that a good many of us need to cultivate, says Ruth Cameron.

To be able once in awhile to be silly not elaborately witty or studiously humorous, but thoroughly, healthily childishly silly—and to be able to stand off and laugh to yourself occasionally are two valuable abilities.

It is bad, of course, for young people to take themselves and their duties too lightly, but it seems to me that it is almost as bad for them to take themselves too seriously.

I heard a very clever and financially successful young bachelor setting forth his requirements for a wife the other day.

As a share in this bachelor's meal ticket would probably mean for the sharer the kind of meals that begin with oysters, have ice courses scattered through the middle and end up with a cut glass finger bowl, I fancy he is the sort of person whose requirements may be interesting to my feminine readers.

"I don't ask for beauty," he said, "nor money. I decidedly don't want an obviously intellectual woman. But what I do insist upon in a wife is that she shall know how to be silly once in awhile; in short, that she shall have enough brains to be able to forget occasionally that she has any."

Good sense is a fine thing to have but the people who are stuck so full of it that they forget that nonsense also has its place in life are making a big mistake.

A little nonsense now and then
Is relished by the best of men runs the quotation, pointing out, as you see, that it is the "best of men" who know enough to appreciate nonsense. The second raters fancy they are above it, while, as a matter of fact they aren't up to it.

Nonsense is a quiet doctor too.

The man or woman who doesn't know how to be silly misses one of the biggest recreative forces in the world.

Any one who is perpetually holding himself just so in order to maintain his dignity is apt to become mentally cramped from keeping in the one position and lose his mental suppleness.

Just as the physical abandon of laughter relaxes the muscles of the face, so the mental abandon of a good healthy fit of silliness relaxes the muscles of the mind.

Do you take yourself too seriously?

Don't just read that over mechanically, but answer it. Do you, now?

And do you know how to be silly?

If you don't and aren't past the learning age why don't you go and find somebody who does and learn?

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING.

Mrs. T. F. Beal, a rural mail carrier of the Burbank district in California, goes over her twenty-five mile route in an automobile which she bought with her own earnings.

Mrs. Margaret D Lyons has been appointed matron of the State School For the Blind at Baton Rouge, La., by Governor Saunders. Mrs. Lyons has served as matron in the Mansfield Female college and in the Dixie academy, besides filling a similar post in the Protestant Orphan asylum in New Orleans.

Selma Lagerlof, the Swedish writer to whom the Nobel prize in literature was awarded this year, will devote a part of the money to the purchase of a home on the Marbacka estate, where she was born. The house which she will buy was built by her grandfather and through reverses fell into the hands of strangers, from whom she will buy it.

Mrs. Belva Lockwood has written to President Taft asking his opinion of her plan to devote the Nobel peace prize fund, which two years ago was awarded to Mr. Roosevelt, to aiding the striking shirt waist girls in New York and Philadelphia. Mr. Roosevelt turned the money over to a committee on industrial peace, and Mrs. Lockwood is trying to interest this committee in the shirt waist-makers.

PRODUCED AN ECLIPSE.

The Persian Astronomers Were More Diplomatic Than the English.

Official Chinese astronomers sometimes get their heads cut off for not correctly foretelling an eclipse. Illustrating this, I am told by my friend, the astronomer royal, of a visit paid about thirty years ago to the observatory in Greenwich park by the shah of Persia of that date. The shah made a great point of visiting the British state observatory in company with King Edward, who was then the Prince of Wales.

Sir George Airey was the astronomer royal and showed the party over the building and gave them peeps through telescopes. "Now, show me an eclipse of the sun," said the shah, speaking in French. Sir George pretended not to hear and led the way to another instrument. "Dog of an astronomer," said the shah, "produce me an eclipse!" Sir George politely said he had not got one and could not oblige the king of kings. "Ho, ho!" said the shah, turning in great indignation to the Prince of Wales. "You hear; cut his head off!" Sir George's life was, as a matter of fact, spared, but in the course of a year he retired and was succeeded by the present astronomer royal.

On his appointment that gentleman was astonished at receiving a letter of congratulation from the shah of Persia. The shah evidently thought that his request had been attended to, though with some delay. He proceeded to tell the new astronomer royal that he had a few days before writing witnessed a total eclipse of the sun in the observatory at Teheran. This was perfectly correct, but the suggestion seemed to be that the Teheran astronomers knew their business and had the good sense to arrange an eclipse when a royal visitor wished for one and so escape decapitation.—Sir Ray Lankester in London Telegraph.

What the Doctor Did.

Gustave Ullyatt has a little daughter who hasn't been well recently. The other day a physician was called to the Ullyatt home to see her. He examined the child with the aid of a stethoscope. When her father came home that evening he asked what the doctor had said.

"Nothin'," replied the little girl.

"What did he do?" asked Mr. Ullyatt.

"He just telephoned me all over," was the child's reply.

CURE THAT COLD

This is Quickly and Pleasantly Accomplished If You Use

Catarrhozone

Catarrhozone will relieve colds almost instantly and in a few hours will cure completely. If it is old-standing asthma or bronchitis its quick and curative results will astonish you.

Catarrhozone is little drops of healing medicine carried by air to the sore and diseased parts. You breathe them through the Catarrhozone Inhaler and they spread throughout all the air passages.

It is sense as well as healing, because Catarrhozone is a germ killer, a healer and restorer of weak tissues, because it is so prompt and certain in its results, better than any other remedy for diseases of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, and it is neither alcohol, morphia or cocaine—all dangerous.

Tens of thousands have used Catarrhozone without reporting a single case of failure to cure diseases of the throat and lungs and nasal passages. Remember, CATARRHOZONE is taken in air, and is little drops of healing for the throat, nasal passages, or lungs. It always does cure—is guaranteed.

ANOTHER STEAMER FOR THE FLEET OF THE STONEY LAKE NAVIGATION COMPANY

"Islinda" "Empress" and "Stoney Lake" for this Season's Traffic—New Boat a Twin Screw Steamer With Accommodation for Two Hundred and Twenty-five Passengers — Daily Service From Lakefield Will be Commenced on May 30th,

The Stoney Lake Navigation Co. will be in a position this year to give unexcelled service. In the past the company has always catered to its patrons in a thoroughly satisfactory manner, but their business has grown to such an extent that they decided last season that a new and modernly equipped boat would have to be added to the company's fleet to meet with the demands of the rapidly increasing passenger and freight traffic. The new steamer, the "Islinda," is a credit to the company and will be the source of great satisfaction to the passengers. It has been completed, and was launched at Young's Point last week, and will probably be put into commission next week.

The "Islinda" is a screw steamer, 85 feet long, with a 16 1-2 foot beam, and is capable of running smoothly at 12 miles an hour. The frame of the boat is of white oak, and it has a carrying capacity of 225 people. The commodious dining-room is finished in panel work, and there are two large mirrors on either side of the room. The boat is excellently appointed throughout, and is the most attractiv ecraft of the Stoney Lake Navigation service. Mr. P. J. Young will be the captain of "The Islinda." Mr. F. M. Young, engineer, and Mr. P. Ayott will also be a member of the boat's executive.

The company's other two steamers, the "Stoney Lake" and the "Empress" have both been completely overhauled in anticipation of a heavy traffic for the season. The "Stoney Lake" will be in charge of Capt. Scollard, with W. Gilman engineer and S. Duvall mate. Capt. W. Robinson, Mr. Ed. Condon, engineer; and Mr. Fred Holland, purser, will be the staff of the "Empress." This season meals will be served on all three boats.

"The "Empress" and "Stoney Lake" have made several freight trips this year, and from now on there will be a two days' service from the Lakefield wharf. The regular daily service will be inaugurated commencing the 30th of May, when the boats will meet all trains arriving at and leaving Lakefield.

The company will accept excursion engagements for any points on the Trent waterway. Their roomy and speedy excursion steamer the "Stoney Lake," is lighted by electricity throughout, and equipped with a searchlight, and there is no more comfortable or satisfactory excursion boat on the Trent system. As a matter of fact, all the boats of the Stoney Lake Navigation Co. are noted for the excellent service given on them, and for the courtesy of the officers and the men.

THE SAMPLES OF ORE FROM PRENEVEAU MINE ASSAYED HIGH IN CAREFUL TEST

Special to the Review.

Havelock, April 26.—Samples of ore from the mine owned by Mr. John Seabrooks at Preneveau, three miles east of Havelock, were recently sent to the Canadian laboratories at 37 Melinda street, Toronto, and the following big values in gold and copper reported from the assay:—Gold values per ton, $7.20; silver values per ton, 70 cents; copper values per ton at 13.5 per lb., 13.20 or a total value of $21.10 per ton. This is the mine that an important mining company secured an option on a year and a half ago but on account of the drop in the value of copper, they did not think it was desirable to start operations at the time. Two years ago copper was worth 25 cents per lb., but now it has dropped as low as 13.5. If copper regains its old price again, which those who are in a position to know say it will, the Seabrooks mine will undoubtedly be able to be mined at a handsome profit.

Everything is proceeding nicely at the drilling for ore at Blairton iron mines. The Diamond Drill Co., of Sudbury, who have the contract from the Hamilton Steel & Iron Co. to make an examination of the mine, have now two diamond drills at work, under the management of Mr. McEurris. Mr. Hamilton, of the firm of Hamilton & Henshall, of New York, mining engineers, are making a magnetic survey of the mine.

The Thistles, of Toronto, senior champions of Ontario have written the local club asking for an exhibition match with the Havelock team here on May 24th.

EIGHTEEN CENTS LEFT OUT OF FIFTEEN DOLLARS

Last evening a hurry-up call, to the effect that a man was attempting to commit suicide by means of the razor route, at the Otonabee bank, was sent in to the police station. P. C. McGinty responded and took into custody a young man under the influence of liquor.

This morning he gave his name as Harry Johnston, and said that he had arrived in the city last Friday from the woods. He had $15.00 in his possession then. This morning he was very much surprised to be acquainted with the fact that his fifteen bucks had dwindled down to eighteen cents. He was given another chance.

FATALITIES AS RESULT OF PENITENTIARY OUTBREAK

Special to the Review.

Canon City, Colo., April 26th.—As a result of a mutiny in the Colorado State Penitentiary last night two convicts were shot dead, three others were seriously hurt in the battle following the outbreak. The trouble was started by John Brophy, a trusty, sent up for seven to fourteen years for burglary. Broophy, who was to have been pardoned to-day, in some way smuggled a pistol into his cell and the fight followed, the discovery of the fact.

A BAD SMALLPOX OUTBREAK HAS TAKEN PLACE IN COBALT

Special to the Review.

Cobalt, April 26.—A serious outbreak of small-pox has taken place in Cobalt and radical measures were decided on this morning by the authorities. All churches, schools and theatres were ordered closed for two weeks, or longer, if necessary.

Even more sweeping is the order quarantining all the mines in Cobalt and township of Coleman. The Temiskaming has been closed for several days as 24 cases of small-pox were discovered there. The town is thoroughly alarmed over the situation.

ARRIVED HERE THIS MORNING

OBITUARY

EDWARD G. STRATTON, M.D.

Mrs. James Stratton, Gilmour street, received a telegram yesterday morning from Mrs. E. G. Stratton, wife of Dr. Edwy G. Stratton, advising her of his sudden death, which took place on Sunday evening, the 23rd of April, at Oakland, California.

Dr. Stratton was the youngest son of the late James Stratton, and a brother of Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P., West Peterborough, A. H. Stratton, Mrs. T. F. Matthews, Mrs. Hunter and the Misses Rory and Mary Stratton.

Dr. Stratton, upon receiving his degree, was offered and accepted the position of superintending physician of the Marine Hospital, Detroit, in which position he remained for several years. Subsequently he was offered and accepted the position of Medical Advisor to the Soldiers' Home, at Orting, on the Pacific slope. In this position he remained for several years and resigned with a view to spending some time on the continent. He was absent in Europe four years, and visited every country in the old world. While on the continent he took advantage of walking the leading hospitals and was an acknowledged surgeon.

Dr. Stratton had been practising medicine in the Western States for the past twenty years, and his death was quite unexpected by the family, as no intimation of his sudden serious illness had been received until the announcement of his death. The family are in communication with regard to the arrangements for his funeral, particulars of which will be announced later.

Dr. Stratton had many school mates and friends in Peterborough who will regret to learn of his sudden death, and the family will have the sincere sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement. He was a favorite in Peterborough in his early school days, and although absent from the city for many years, has still many warm friends who will exceedingly regret to learn of his sudden death.

Returning a few years ago, he visited his mother and family, since which time he has not been in Peterborough. The deceased was in his 42nd year and leaves to mourn his loss, his aged mother, two brothers and four sisters, besides his wife. At the time of his death he was residing at Oakland, California.

MRS. BYRON WESTAWAY

Lindsay, April 23.—The death occurred in the township of Fenelon this morning of Mrs. Jennie Westaway, wife of Mr. Byron Westaway, aged 33 years. The deceased lady, who was well known throughout the community, has been ailing for two years, and her death was not entirely unexpected. In religion she was a Presbyterian, although she attended the nearest church to her home, viz., the Methodist church at Cameron.

The late Mrs. Westaway was born in the township of Harvey, being a daughter of the late Robt. Tedford. She is survived by her loving husband, her mother, who lives in Peterborough, and by one child, Master Rolland Westaway, aged four years. Two sisters and five brothers also mourn her loss. They are: Mrs. Thos. Hewie, of Fenelon; Mrs. Jas. Wilson, of Harvey; Robert Tedford, of Smith township; William Henry, of Peterborough; Richard, in Manitoba; John, at Omemee, and George at Peterborough.

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock from the family residence, lot 9, con. 7, Fenelon, interment taking place at Riverside cemetery.

RETURN OF A POPULAR PLAY

St. Elmo, which pleased two large audiences at the Grand a few weeks ago, has been secured by Manager Turner to play a return date there on Saturday, April 30th, matinee and night. Special reduced prices has been arranged for this engagement, and no doubt a large house will greet the company on their return. Each member of the company, is a capable actor. Mr. Laffette McKee, who plays the part of St. Elmo, gave the best of satisfaction and was well received in the part. Seat sale for this engagement will open Thursday.

THEATRICAL

The alliance between Church and Stage, of which something has been expected, gains no great impetus from recent occurrences at Bluffton, over in Indiana. For the other day the stage, in the shape of a musical comedy company, arrived there to find the church in the shape of a methodist conference, in full possession of the hotels and lodging houses. Consequently the chorus girls of "The Time, the Place and the Girl," who needed rest after their labors had to sleep in the only place left. That was the jail, and the jail was fortunately empty. We suppose no "girl" ever had such a "time" in such a "place" before.

The Soul Kiss

"The Soul Kiss," which won such wide favor with Adeline Genee in the title role of the dancer, was at the Grand last night minus Adeline and the other members of the original cast. A lot of the music of "The Soul Kiss" is pretty, and some of the features were entertaining, while others were somewhat ordinary. The offering savors a little too much of burlesque to meet with much favor on provincial time.

Ben Grinnell was immense as J. Lucifer Mephisto, and carried the burden of the entertaining. Nat Jerome earned quite a few laughs as Sol Skevensky, and Eva Mull made a good impression as Cleo. Constance Farmer, who played the part of Susette, a model, either didn't take very seriously, or else thought the town pretty small, for she persisted in restrained chuckles at the most inopportune moments.

The piece was excellently staged.

CAPT. McGRATH WILL HAVE CHARGE

SPORTING NEWS

WILL THE T.A.S. CLUB REMAIN IN CITY LEAGUE?

Will the T. A. S. Ball Club, withdraw from the Peterborough City Amateur Baseball League, or do they intend to stick? At the meeting of the league last Friday night, during a discussion amongst the representatives of the four clubs, it was hinted by the champions' representatives that the club would not enter a team in the organization. They were not in sympathy with the clause which reads, "Any amateur player will be allowed to play in this league, but he must be a resident of the city at the time the schedule is drawn up. The objection to the rule was that one of their players in particular, is attending college and would not be home for some time after the playing season begins.

When the committee appointed to draft the constitution, came to this clause, they were unanimous in deciding that it was an important one and that should be strictly enforced, and the feeling of the league meeting was that a stringent rule such as this was necessary.

It was not a case of the other clubs attempting to "block" the T.A.S. club. There was no more popular player in the league last season than the same "Mike" O'Brien, who will in accordance with this clause, be barred from playing with the T.A.S. club this season, but if a good constitution, such as has been endorsed by a majority of the clubs, can be secured, it is to be hoped that the club which won the championship last season can at least be liberal enough to make a sacrifice, when such step means, the advancement of the baseball game in the city.

SPORTING NOTES

The Western Canada Baseball League opens May 4th.

There will be a big entry list for the Toronto Marathon, May 5th.

According to Sam Berger, Jim Jeffries regards Johnson as a snap.

Pat McDonough, formerly of the Torontos, may get a berth on the Tecumseh line-up.

It is said that Walter Johnson, of the Washington Club, threws the swiftest ball of any pitcher in the majors.

BASEBALL

Baltimore had their batting togs on yesterday and took to McGinley's shoots in the seventh, hence the 8—1 score against the Leafs.

Newark won a pitchers' battle from Montreal and ascended to the top position in the league standing.

Buffalo and Jersey City dished up the correct article of ball and were tied at the end of the eleventh when the contest was called.

Providence secured only one hit off McConnell, while the Hustlers got away with seven and a 4-0 score.

Toronto occupies fifth place with a percentage of .400.

Tommy Jones took one on the nose in the Detroit-St. Louis game and had to be carried off the field. Rube Waddell started to pitch for St. Louis but gave way to Bailey.

By their win from Washington the New York Highlanders stand on the top of the heap.

The Boston speed merchants boosted their batting average in the game with Philadelphia, getting twelve hits.

In the New York-Brooklyn game there were four doubles and one triple play.

Dr. Frederick Cook, the Arctic explorer, is in Paraguay.

RING TALK

Joe Gans has seen his last fring days without a doubt. The former light-weight champion recently posted $1,000 forfeit to meet any man of his weight in the world. Ad Wolgast preferred and Bat Nelson barred. Later Joe took down the forfeit, declaring he was not in good health. Gans has not been in good physical shape for a long time.

Frank Klaus, of Pittsburg, is looming up as a formidable candidate for the middleweight championship. Frank's latest victim was Jimmy Gardner, the Boston welter-weight, whom he bested in a 12-round contest in Boston last week. Klaus had Gardner out almost in the third round, but seemed to be satisfied with the lead he had on him, and did not try again for a knockout. The Pittsburger is to meet Billy Papke at San Francisco May 14 in a 45-round bout, and a fierce battle may be expected.

Ad Wolgast is to give up theatrical work and devote his time to fighting. He will train on his new farm at Cadillac, Mich. His manager says of his fight plans: "We are willing to give Bat Nelson the first chance, as we believe he would draw better than any of them. Personally I think Nelson will be a pipe for Ad, but at the same time I think he will beat any other light-weight in the world, and will bet that way. Wolgast is good right now. That's why I want him to fight early and often. I have no fear of his being whipped as long as he stays good. How long he would stay good in the show business is a debatable question. That's one of the reasons we are getting out of it."

Billy Delaney, who was Jeffries' trainer for several years, tells of the first time he met the big fellow: "I first saw Jeff at Colma when he was training Billy Gallagher to fight "Mysterious Billy" Smith. I liked his size immensely, and when I saw him pawing with that big left, took him away with me to Carson to help Jim Corbett work for the Fitzsimmons bout. His left hand was almost perfect. Corbett and Tommy Ryan whipped him into shape, and I want to say right here that when he quit the ring after beating Munroe he was just learning how to fight. When Jeff refused to fight Squires, after we signed, I passed him up."

Bob Armstrong is one negro who does not believe Johnson can beat Jeffries. Bob is one of Jeff's staunchest admirers and is helping to get him in condition for the fight. "This man Johnson hasn't any idea of what will be stacked against him when he faces Jeffries. He will soon discover that he never in all his life was opposed to such a fighting machine. Jeff is as good as he ever was during my connection with him. He is not only better, and he does not need to be any better. I am getting old in the service myself, and many people think that I overestimate Jeff's strength in consequence. Nothing of the kind. I have just sized Mr. Jim up, and he hasn't lost anything in the fighting line that he ever possessed. I can just see him starting out like a steam engine and carrying everything before him. Johnson is all right in blocking and delivering punches when he is pitted against an ordinary fighter, but Jeffries is extraordinary. You can't stop him and you can't hurt him, and what counts more than a good many things with me, I know Jeff to be a game fellow, while I am not so sure about Johnson. I have travelled and trained with both Jeffries and Johnson, and that's the way it looks to me."

BOWLING

A number of gentlemen interested in bowling will meet to-night at the home of Mr. W. S. Robinson, 288 Westcott street, for the purpose of forming a south end bowling club. All interested are requested to attend.

THREE CALLS IN SHORT TIME

In the short interval between five minutes to 12 and 12.30, the fire brigade had three dashes in response to alarms sent in for chimney fires. Two of the fires were on George street and the other was on Murray street. All of them were put out with chemicals the damage being slight.

DATE OF MEETING NOT YET FIXED

"There is no date fixed yet," was Police Magistrate Dumble's answer to the Review, when asked when a meeting of the Police Commissioners would take place to deal with the appointment of a chief of police to succeed the late Chief Rogers. The meeting may possibly be held this week, but as His Honor Judge Hutcheon, who is chairman of the Police Commissioners, is out of the city, and has several other appointments, the date is at present indefinite.

GREATEST OF AMERICAN HUMORISTS

That Mark Twain was the greatest of American humorists, and one of the greatest in the world, is freely admitted. But he was a great deal more than that. He not only made his readers laugh, but he made them think. The laughter that he provokes is not seldom due to the puncturing of a lie or a pompous absurdity; to the sudden revelation of a truth that has been obscured by some hoary tradition or convention. Clear thinking, in his case, produced clear writing.

Although the "Jumping Frog" was the first of his writings that brought him fame, it is by no means a fair specimen of his work. His distinctive qualities first appeared in "The New Pilgrim's Progress." That book contains numerous exaggerations and laughable absurdities, but it is not the exaggeration or the absurdity that is distinctive. It is the determination to relate what the traveller really felt, not what the guide books and rhapsodical writers told him to feel. It is the essential sincerity of the book that appeals to humanity as fresh and original.

Take, for instance, the story of the man who simplified the collection of relics from famous places. He had been laboriously gathering pieces of rock all the way from Gibraltar to Asia Minor, when it suddenly occurred to him that they all looked pretty much alike. So he got a bag of stones from one place, and solemnly labelled them Rome, Naples, Milan, Florence, and so on, until the historic shores of the Mediterranean were all represented. This is not mere flippancy, or vulgar contempt for history and tradition. It is glorified common sense. It illustrates the truth that such relics, as they do not even faintly suggest the place from which they were taken, are so much useless lumber. Happily since the voyage of the Quaker City, the camera has come to be recognized as an essential part of the traveller's equipment; and the camera really does tell a story.

Another instance. Huckleberry Finn, as going down the Mississippi on a raft with Jim, an escaped slave. It occurrs to him that he is doing a wicked thing in helping to conceal the fugitive; that he is robbing Jim's mistress of a piece of property. The voice of conscience tells him that he ought to betray the old negro to the slave hunters. But the memories of their vagabond comradeship crowd upon him, and his heart sets his conscience right. He decides to conceal the slave, even at the risk of perdition. This is not a bit of grotesque nonsense. It is the account of a false, conventional morality overcome by the greater morality that springs from the effections.

Mark Twain had a marvellous insight into the boyish heart. His boys are neither pigs nor monsters of wickedness, but real boys, who live in a little world of their own, filled with romance and with innocent wildness. Huck Fin, despite his vagabond upbringing, is a more solid character than Tom Sawyer. Jim, the escaped slave, is a fine specimen of the faithful, tender-hearted African, as good in his way as Uncle Tom.

In descriptions of scenery and other incidents of travel, the great humorist excelled. "Roughing It" is one of the best specimens of work of this kind. The description of the stage coach ride across the continent, of the Mormon City, of life in Nevada in the days of the silver excitement, are full of life, vigor and freshness. The reader seems to inhale the air of prairies and mountains, to be on terms of personal acquaintance with stage drivers and miners. It is no mere jester that has passed away, but one of the greatest of Americans.

FREAKS OF OUR TONGUES.

Some of the Remarkable Things About the English Language.

It is perhaps only natural that a language made up of so many heterogeneous elements as is our own should abound in curiosities not to be found in a language whose development was little influenced by outside sources, or in a scientifically constructed tongue like Esperanto or Volapuk. Certain it is that a knowledge of these curiosities brings with it something of fascination and serves to endear to us our curious old language.

Noticeable is the fact that words which rhyme perfectly may have altogether different terminations, as the words "geese" and "mice," and that words which terminate similarly not infrequently fail to rhyme, as in the case of "brides" and "cantharides."

In "suspicion," "remission," and "contrition" we have three words in which the final "ion" is preceded in each case by a different consonant; but, as the T and C both take the sound of S, these words all rhyme perfectly. Further investigation reveals the interesting fact that, whereas there is a great variety of words ending in "tion" and "sion," only five bear the termination "cion." These five are "scion," "coercion," "suspicion," "epinicion," and "internecion." "Epinicion," meaning a song of victory, and "internecion," meaning slaughter, are not in common use; but the other three words are familiar to all. It is perhaps worthy of remark that of words having the phonetically similar ending "tion" there are over one hundred examples.

The termination "dous" is, however, even more exclusive than "cion," as it is borne by just four English words. These are "stupendous," "tremendous," "hazardous," and "horrendous." Curiously, all the words in this latter group are adjectives, while the former group is composed entirely of nouns.

It seems somewhat strange to speak of beheading a word of one syllable and leaving a word of two syllables; but there are several monosyllables that admit of this possibility. If we behead either "caged," "raged," or "waged," used as monosyllables, we have the word "aged," which, when used as an adjective, is pronounced with two syllables. "Staged," twice beheaded, leaves the same result. Better yet, behead "vague" or "Hague" or twice behead "plague," and we have "ague," which admits of only bi-syllabic pronunciation. Likewise, "shrugged" twice beheaded leaves the different word "rugged."

There are over thirteen hundred words in our language ending with the long E sound, such as "tree," etc.; but even this remarkable showing is eclipsed by words ending in "ess," as there are fourteen hundred of these.

From the citation of these two cases it might be inferred that the poet has a sinecure to select a rhyme for any word he chooses to employ, but such is not always the case. Exclusive of the ordinal numerals, most of which are unrhymable, there are more than sixty words that have no rhyme. Well known examples of these include such words as "gulf," "month," "orange," "source," "silver," "window," "warmth," "spoilt," and "wasp."

It is perhaps not generally known that there is a verse in the Bible that contains all but one of the letters of the alphabet. This, however, is a fact, as in the twenty-first verse of the seventh chapter of Job are found all the letters but J. This is, of course, purely a coincidence; for, as the verse contains forty-three words and one hundred and seventy-three letters, it would be unworthy of note if done by design.

While our language does not contain such long words as are found in some other tongues, nor so many words of unusual length, still we have several that are awkwardly long for conversational purposes. We have "philoprogenitiveness," with twenty letters; "interconvertibilities," with twenty-one; "intercommunicabilities," with twenty-two; "disproportionablenesses," with twenty-three; and "transubstantiationalists," and "contradistinguishability," each containing twenty-four letters. But how insignificant are all these compared with the Dutch "Albasserdammerlandarenopatseckerswegaderinlokaal!" An effective little word is "synacategorematic," as it manages to compress eight syllables into seventeen letters.

The longest monosyllables contain nine letters, and there are four examples: "sploiched," "squelched," "strengths," and "stretched."

Smoke Detector.

A Scotchman, John Lowden, has invented a "smoke tintometer," which, it is thought, may be of use in prosecuting cases of "smoke nuisance." It consists of a tube with a single eyepiece and two object openings. One of these is clear, but the other contains a revolving diaphragm, in which are set five circles, one of clear glass and the other four of tinted glasses corresponding with the standard tints of a scientific "smoke chart." In examining smoke defiled air the diaphragm is turned until the tinted glass coincides in darkness with the air seen through the clear aperture. The various glasses are systematically numbered, so that a glance suffices to show the degree of defilement of the air.

Where the hogs are fed large amounts of sloppy food a little baking soda added occasionally will tend to prevent any undue acidity of the stomach.

How to Cure Stringhalt.

Stringhalt spoils a horse for market. To cure a horse of this trouble use some alcohol once per day on his stifle joint and just above it and hind rub well.

For Hard Worked Horses.

One of the best remedies for sore backs and harness galls on horses is two teaspoonfuls of ground white oak bark and two quarts of water. Pour this water (hot) over the bark and let it stand until cool. Then strain and bottle for use. Bathe sores in this solution.

More bread and Better bread
—And the Reason for it

A STRONG FLOUR can only be made from strong wheat. Manitoba hard wheat is acknowledged the strongest in the world—and that is the kind used for Purity Flour.

But that's not all. Every grain of this wheat contains both high-grade and low-grade properties. In separating the high-grade parts from the low-grade the Western Canada Flour Mills put the hard wheat through a process so exacting that not a single low-grade part has the remotest chance of getting in with the high-grade.

Of course this special process is more expensive to operate but it means a lot to Purity flour users—that's why we use it.

It means that Purity Flour is made entirely of the highest-grade flour parts of the strongest wheat in the world.

It means a high-class, strong flour and therefore yields "more bread and better bread."

Purity may cost a little more than some flours, but results prove it the cheapest and most economical after all.

SELECTIONS FOR THE BOYS AND GIRLS

THE FAIRY DETECTIVE

Being A Fish

BY RUPERT HUGHES.

Copyright 1910 by Rupert Hughes. All rights reserved

ONE spring day, while the Little Girl and her family were visiting a large hotel on one of those big ponds which are either great lakes or little oceans, as you wish to call them, her father announced that he was going fishing the next morning.

The word "fishing" had a funny sound to the Little Girl, for she had never heard of any one going out "roast beefing" or "hamming and egging." So she told her father that she would go fishing with him and see what it was like.

The next morning, as soon as the sun peeked over the hills, it saw the Little Girl and her father—Mr. Knight was his name—and the nurse, Bridget, sitting in a rowboat fishing for dear life.

After a while Mr. Knight brought in four flippity-floppity fish—two bass, a pike and a pickerel. The four kept the Little Girl fidgety with their somersaults and their prickly fins. She wondered why she caught nothing and began to yank the pole up and down while her father was looking the other way. Suddenly she felt a tugging, struggling something fighting with her line.

She began to shriek and shiver. Her father told her what to do, and she did something else every time, but at last she got the fish out of the water.

Every Widow and Widower There Will Dance the Fisher's Hornpipe

She waved him round in the air and made him a flyingfish for a while.

On one of his trips overhead his tail flipped Bridget's nose, and she woke up with a scream and nearly went over backward into the lake.

With her father's help the Little Girl finally got the fish into the boat and her father reached out to take it off the hook.

"You must have caught this by accident," he said. "The fish didn't swallow the bait at all. You just caught your hook in one of his gills."

To his great surprise the fish answered him.

"Agonizing angleworms! Of course it was an accident. Do you think I'm fool enough to bite at a baited hook?"

"What did you say, my child?" said Mr. Knight.

"I didn't say anything," said the Little Girl. "It was the fish that spoke."

"The fish that spoke! Nonsense!" said Mr. Knight.

"No, I didn't speak nonsense," said the fish. "I spoke the truth. I was going peaceably along on an errand when I got yanked out by the gill. I insist upon being put back immediately. I'm a very busy bass."

"Listen to the impereence of him," said Bridget, who was awake and angry. "If all the fish was put back what would we do of Friday, to say nothing of listening to oysters and clams."

"It's the Fairy Detective! It's the Fairy Detective!" shrieked the Little Girl, and she began to hop about until she lost her balance and would have sat down hard on the lake if her father had not caught her.

She picked the fish up in her hand, but he wasn't there. He slipped out and fell. She picked him up again and again. He flopped. He was angry and he shrieked:—

"Hilarious Halibut! This Is Better!" Cried the Bass

"Hooks and sinkers! but what do you think I am; a rubber ball?"

"Oh, I beg your parsnips," said the Little Girl. "I was trying to pick you up. You didn't look comfortable on the floor of the boat."

"No more am I. I'm about as comfortable as a cow in a canoe."

"Where would you be more comfortable?"

"In the lake."

"But then you'd run away, wouldn't you?"

"Would a duck swim?" said the fish sarcastically.

"But I'd like to have a talk with you before you go."

"How can I talk when I can't"—b-b-bubble—bubble—

"Do you mean 'breathe'?"

"Y-yes-s-s," gasped the fish.

Mr. Knight had sat staring with amazement, unable to believe his eyes or his ears. The Little Girl had told him about her other meetings with the Fairy Detective in the disguises of a squirrel and a mouse, but he had only laughed at them as little imaginations.

Now he saw the Fairy Detective face to face. Having heard the bass say so much, he wanted it to say more, but he saw that the fish was growing weaker and weaker. He looked about and found an old tin pail used to bail the boat. He seized it, lowered it over the side of the skiff and brought up a bucketful of lake. He put the bass in this and immediately the fish began to improve.

"Hilarious halibut! This is better!" cried the bass; "now I can breathe. It's pretty small in this jail of a bail pail, but I can breathe, and that's something."

"Good gracious; do you breathe water?" said the Little Girl, leaning over the bucket.

"Certainly not! Fish are just like human beings, only different. We get air out of the water, you get water out of the air. If the water we swim in isn't fresh, and it doesn't rain on us, we die; if it doesn't rain water on the earth you people choke up and die. You drink water and breathe air; we breathe water and drink air; so you see we're just the same, only the other way round. Now if you had kept me out in that terrible treacherous air a little longer I'd have drowned, and as for asking me to talk while I was suffocating with fresh air—why, they might as well hold your head in a pail of water and ask you to sing 'Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star.'"

"But tell me what you are doing out here," said the Little Girl.

"I don't care to talk to such cruel people as you are," the bass snapped.

"Why, we're very nice people," said the Little Girl.

"Nice!" screamed the bass. "Electrical eels! It's ferocious! Suppose some big ogres came floating out over Central Park on cloud skiffs and let down boxes of candy and oranges and bags of peanuts and glasses of ice cream soda among the trees where children were playing, and when the children ran to them and reached out for them big hooks would stick into them and drag them up to the sky out of sight, and the nurses would wring their hands and scream and say, 'Oh, dearie me, there goes Gwendolyn and there's little Jimmie Robertson. The ogres will fry them for supper.' How would you like that?"

Bridget sat up angrily. "I'd like to see the ogre that could fish the Little Girl away from me. Faith, I'd have me cousin, the policeman, shoot 'em."

"But suppose," said the bass, "the police couldn't shoot that far, or, while we're supposing, suppose the ogres let down an innocent looking cup of tea for you, Bridget, and an innocent looking bottle of something else for your cousin, the policeman, and you both got hooked and taken home so that the ogres could have a nice nurse in a chafing dish or a planked policeman for their first course?"

"Ugh!" said Bridget; "quit supposin'. You give me the creepy-crawls."

"It's different when you put yourself in their place, isn't it?" said the bass. "Well, that's my business—putting myself in the place of the poor beasts and helpless, speechless things and learning their troubles. That's why my father sent me here."

Mr. Knight looked rather uncomfortable. He was a very tender hearted man, as men go, and always trained his daughter to be kind to animals. Yet here he was held up as a monster, an ogre of cruelty. Finally he said:—

"Excuse me, Mr. Fairy Detective, but don't you think people have a right to eat fish as food?"

"Well, when you come to that," said the bass, "I suppose people have to eat something. Animals eat each other and fish eat fish. The whole world is a struggle for getting something to eat without getting eaten. But other animals go out and kill what they need and eat it; they don't usually go out and just torment things and call it sport. Now if people only caught fish and ate them right away, as the otters and the eagles and the others do, it wouldn't be so bad. But to take a fish out of the water and keep it in a basket, or on the sand, or the grass, or the bottom of a boat, until it slowly gasps its poor little life away, that is a thing too cruel to believe. Yet it happens every day all over the world to millions of fish."

"But we have to keep them fresh or they're not good to eat."

"That's easy. One little motion with a knife or a needle and their suffering is over, and a bucket of ice would do the rest. They don't torture cows or calves or sheep to keep beef or veal or mutton fresh, do they?"

"That's so," said Mr. Knight.

"Well, then, you'd better put those poor fish that I hear flopping down there out of their misery."

"But I didn't bring along any ice," said Mr. Knight.

"Then throw them overboard," the bass commanded.

"After all the trouble I've had catching them!" said Mr. Knight.

"And whin we're after gettin' up before the screech of dawn," said Bridget; "not much! I'm hopin' to eat some of those fish."

"Dugongs and devilfish," roared the bass. "In one minute I'll turn myself into a shark and eat all three of you," and he began to thrash about in the water most fiercely.

Before Mr. Knight could make up his mind what to do the Little Girl was scrambling about the bottom of the boat scooping the fish overboard, and she said:—"All right, Mr. Elf Prince, all the fish are gone, and not one of them even said 'Thank you.'"

The bass answered:—"Little Girl, whenever you let a wild thing free the flicker of its tail as it flies says 'Thank you.'"

"But you promised to tell us what brought you here," said the Little Girl.

"Well," the Fairy Detective sputtered from the pail, "you see, the black bass are very nice fish folks and take good care of their eggs and their little fish when they're hatched. But there are two or three big, vicious muscalonge in this lake and they eat up the young bass, fathers, mothers, eggs and all. The black bass appealed to my father, the king of the elves, and he sent me to save them from being destroyed. I disguised myself in a fish skin and I was just on the trail of one old pirate called Mike Muscalonge when your hook caught in my gill and here I am."

At that moment Mr. Knight felt a terrific yank on his line and he had a long, hard battle with some ferocious prisoner. The Fairy Detective cried:—

"He fights like a muscalonge. Oh, conscientious codfish, if it could only be Mike!"

At last Mr. Knight wore the fish out and brought him alongside the boat, but he was so big and his teeth were gnashing so wickedly that Mr. Knight hit him over the head with the end of the Little Girl's fishing rod and knocked him senseless.

Then he lifted him in. He weighed at least twenty-five pounds, and his open mouth looked like a row of small bayonets and daggers.

Mr. Knight was very proud, the Little Girl was scared and Bridget was scareder, but the black bass shrieked with delight.

"Oh, please let me out till I tell the black bass villagers. Shiftless shad! but every widow and widower there will dance a fisher's hornpipe. And go on fishing for muscalonge. Fish every day till you get them all. There are only three more, and the other fish will come and get on your hook just to thank you."

Suppose You Got Hooked and Taken Home So That the Ogres Could Have a Nice Nurse in a Chafing Dish

The humans were sitting and thinking hard. They hated to let the black bass go, but suddenly he gave a push and a leap and turned a flip-flap on the edge of the pail and another on the edge of the boat. A splash in the water was the last of him.

The Little Girl always insisted that she heard him cry:—

"Hilarious horsefish, but this is good news."

A WALK THROUGH THE WOODS

BY SEWARD WALLACE

Try Sitting for Half an Hour as Still as a Mouse

IN walking through that loveliest of gardens, the real forest, we can get far more pleasure if we act like quiet, peaceable guests there than if we go in to noisily wreck and destroy things. People who carry a gun into a forest simply to kill its inhabitants for the love of killing should be kept out of our beautiful woodlands as a bull is kept out of a china shop. The real nature lover never kills anything without a good reason.

In the barest field or meadow there is an infinite variety of creatures living out of sight, under stones, moss, logs and even underground; in the bark of trees, among bunches of grass or tangles of vines. The later the season, toward fall, the more astonishing becomes the lavishness of form, color, purpose and activity in plants and animals. Even trees and bushes are never idle. They begin in earliest spring to push out buds, build new bark and stretch their limbs toward heaven. All summer every plant and animal has work to do—hard work, too, which, perhaps, we never thought of. The trees must produce new sap, new leaves; the flowers must be grown, the seeds formed. Insects—the most active creatures in the forest—work incessantly, and if we do not previously convince them, by our volcanic arrival, that an upheaval of the universe is in action, we may watch them at work.

While walking we may gently lift stones or sticks to see what is beneath them, how many different kinds of beetles are there and what their houses look like. When we take a seat on a rock to rest it is interesting to see how many and how different living things are working and playing within the limits of a circle drawn with a stick in the grass or mould. The list will surprise any one who has never tried it, and always has fresh surprises for one who has. But people who love nature should remember certain rules that, followed, will tend to the preservation of the little creatures whom they find by uncovering their hiding places.

For if a stone is upturned it will remain so, while the sudden light destroys the dampness and coolness, leaves the moss and lichens to die and the little homes without a roof. So the stone should be carefully put back as it was, or the bark of the tree replaced, where it is possible. Another rule that may be followed to the advantage of the forest dwellers is this:—Don't build a fire anywhere near bushes, piles of dead leaves or in the hollow of a tree trunk. Some campers say that a hollow tree trunk makes a grand chimney, but while their fire burns, hundreds of little lives are sacrificed, in exquisite torture; while they are cooking coffee or trout by such a fire the heart of the living tree is burned out. Bad forest fires have been started in this stupid way. Instead of a tree, why not select a corner of the rocks or build up a rough fireplace of stones? And be sure your fire is entirely out before you leave it.

During a walk in the country many well meaning people, with a true, though unguided love for nature, talk loudly, laugh and shout, until their progress may be heard for a quarter of a mile in all directions, and every living thing that can escape flees—up into the trees, down holes, under the rocks, while perhaps even the trees, that cannot escape, tremble. To these good folks, who go noisily blundering into places where a naturalist knows that the sudden snapping of a twig will startle the timid dwellers into hiding, the fields and lanes are a closed book. And they report, on their return, that there are no birds, rabbits, anything, to be seen.

There are many ways of making friends with Mother Nature, and in a few rambles any one can learn them. Walk lightly, stepping on hard places, avoiding dead leaves and sticks where possible; talk quietly in places where you expect to see something interesting, and keep your eyes, ears and nose alert. Pennyroyal, sassafras, birch and other pleasant odors may be recognized, and the scent of flowers is often a guide to the flowers themselves. Sometimes, listening carefully, you may hear faint, curious sounds, which it is delightful to trace to their sources. You hear something like a fairy auger busily whirring; perhaps a carpenter bee is working inside of a tree or under a rail fence. A soft rustle near your fe. may mean that a motherly field mouse is waiting to her brood of six wee gray velvet babies or gnawing out a new room in her house.

Try sitting for half an hour as still as a mouse on a rock in the spring sunshine, amid the quiet woods, or even in a city park, and see what a different place it is from what you thought.

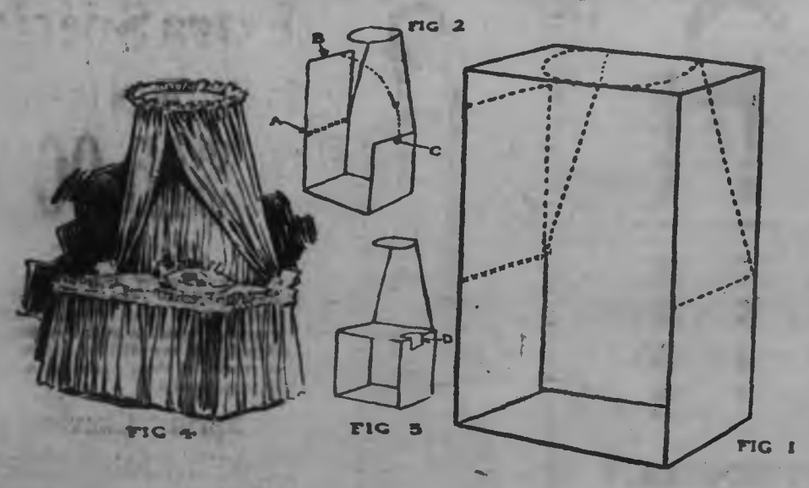
DRESSING TABLE FOR THE PAPER DOLL



PAPER dolls are so very vain and so fond of changing their clothes and arranging their hair that it is quite necessary for them to have dressing tables with mirrors. These may be easily made of cardboard boxes. The ordinary candy box, large enough for holding one pound of candy, is a very good box to use. This shape box is almost twice as long as it is wide and quite shallow. The length of the box makes the height of the dressing table. If a box is quite twice its width it may readily be cut off a little at the bottom.

Figure 1 shows how you are to cut the box for the dressing table. The dotted lines show where the box is to be cut. Draw straight lines carefully on your box to correspond with these dotted lines. Put the box over a book so that you can make the lines straight, and use a ruler. If you find difficulty in cutting the box pierce the line first with a knife point or large needle. You will then be able to cut it easily.

All the lines are straight except that of the top of the dressing table. You can lay a round object such as a small glass—a medicine glass—perhaps, on the end and draw a circle around this. Prick this so as to make a succession of holes close together and then cut it with a knife, pressing on lightly. You will find it very easy to make an even edge.

All of the lines are to be cut through except that marked A on Fig. 2. Instead of cutting through at that point you merely run the knife lightly over the cardboard so that it bends easily. The end marked B then is bent over so that it rests on C. The end projects slightly over the edge so as to make a stronger table. This makes the top of the table part. To hold it in place paste a strip of paper on the top and side as shown in the diagram, and this will hold the table in place.

Fig. 3 shows how the table looks before it is draped.

White tissue paper is very nice for draping the table. Pink or pale blue tissue paper or paper having small flowers would also be pretty. Draping the table takes patience and you must not be discouraged if things do not go just right at first. You need two pieces of tissue paper, one for the flounce for the bottom part of the table and the other for the top drapery. The paper for the bottom flounce must be a little deeper than the height of the table from the floor, so that you can turn it over and make a frill around the edge. It must be twice as long as the distance around the table top. Turn the edge over and use a needle and thread to put in the gathers. Make the stitches in the double paper so that they will not tear through and be gentle in your handling. Then you will have no trouble. Make most of the gathers in front and very few at the sides. Then paste the flounce to the table at the sides, so that the frill stands up just a little above the table top.

To make the long curtains you need a piece of paper a little wider than the entire piece of furniture and long enough to go twice around the circular piece of cardboard at the top. Turn under the edge that is to be fastened around the top, so that it will make a frill, and gather it as you did the flounce, using white thread in both cases. Then arrange the drapery on the circular piece at the top so that it covers the back and front curtains at the side. To fasten this drapery on you must take a few stitches through the cardboard top. This is not easy if the cardboard is thick, but you can do it by using a big needle and carefully boring the hole instead of trying to make it with one quick thrust, which is apt to break the needle. Only a few stitches are necessary. First fasten the front and then carry the double thread across and fasten the sides and back. Finish off the thread in the back.

In order to tie the curtains back at the sides make holes in the drapery at the back and run narrow ribbon through or a triple band of tissue paper, which can be pasted at the back.

A small mirror, which may be bought for a penny or two, may be hung at the back of the dressing table or stood up. If the top of the table is not white, the box having been colored on the outside, cover it with a piece of tissue paper scalloped on the edge.

BEAUTIFYING THE HOME

Nearly every person, we believe, be he old or young, rich or poor, ignorant or cultured, delights to look upon a home surrounded by well-kept grounds, studded with shrubs and flowers, and wide-spreading trees, says the Quebec Journal of Agriculture. Such a scene somehow appeals to the sense of the artistic and beautiful in his nature in a way that nothing else does. In this age of hurry and hustle when men and women find little time for the enjoyment of home comforts, there is a strong tendency to neglect the home surroundings, either as a matter of little account or as a condition forced about them. We can excuse the city man whose home is hemmed in by long rows of houses and scarcely a square yard of available space for grounds. The situation thus forced upon them is unnatural, and he often longs, we may be sure, for the open air and the grass and trees which he finds only in the public parks. But with the man in the country the case is different; he has the opportunity which the open country offers of surrounding himself with the best from Nature's garden. How often, however, one finds the farm house as cheerless and as forbidding as the most congested city house. With the removal of the trees of the forest primeval frequently no attempt has been made to replace them by others that would furnish shelter in winter and cool, refreshing shade in the hot days of summer.

This province of Quebec, we are pleased to note, can boast of many beautiful homes that would do credit to the older countries of Europe. The Seigneur brought with him from the old land his love for the stately mansions and the delightful pleasure grounds but in the long periods of stress that led up to the settlement of the province, the majority of the rural people were unable to pay much attention to the matter of improvement of the home surroundings.

Those were the bread and butter days of bare existence, but with the greater material comforts of to-day may we not expect to find a revival of the spirit of the seigneurs, in the planting of flowers and shrubs and trees about the home? The influence of beautiful surroundings of the ideal country home is an important factor and a greater factor than most of us believe, in the education and uplift of the fortunate possessor. John Stuart Mill, one of the greatest of economists, has said: Solitude in the presence of the natural beauty and grandeur is the cradle of thought and aspirations which are not only good for the individual but which society could ill do without, and Victor Hugo has very truly said the beautifying is as useful as the useful. Our country is young but with the first necessities of food, clothing and shelter provided, more leisure will furnish beautiful home surroundings which, in time, will perhaps vie with those of the older world.

Moreover, from a business standpoint, the beautifying of home grounds is always a good investment should the owner ever be compelled by force of circumstances to dispose of his property. A hundred dollars spent in planting out shrubs and trees, and in grading would improve the appearance of the farm to such an extent in a few years that any buyer would be willing to pay an extra thousand dollars for the property.

From every point of view, therefore the improvement of home grounds would benefit the owner and his family. A bare, treeless, farm home is, to say the least, an uninviting placem and moreover is always an incentive to the young people to leave for more cheerful surroundings. In fact, it will be conceded by nearly everyone who gives the matter any attention that the subject plays no unimportant part in any discussion oof the causes why people leave the country for the city.

William Duckworth Who Died in Toronto Spent Some Time Here

To-day's Toronto World says:—William Duckworth, an Englishman, who arrived in the city Saturday and was so ill he was taken to Grace Hospital, where he died, was sent here from St. Catharines, where he had been in a sanitarium for three days, on the mayor's orders. Then the authorities gave him a ticket to this city. He was formerly doing advertising work in Montreal and Peterborough.

NOVEL REQUEST TO DOG OWNER

A dog owner of the city feels very indignant over a reflection—unintentional though it may have been—on the cleanliness of his dog. It appears that the study of flees is being taken up in connection with the entomology course at the schools and a young lady student asked the gentleman referred to if he could get her one from his dog. The one to whom the request was made believes in being chivalrous and all that but—

BOY'S MEMORY FAILED HIM

Last night, about 9.30 P. C. McGinty observed a small boy on George street smoking a cigarette. As the boy was quite apparently under the eight-sixteen old mark the officer asked him where he got the "mail." The lad replied that it was given to him by one of a "bunch" of fellows but couldn't give the name of the individual who supplied him. The constable suggested that probably a spell in the lockup would have the effect of refreshing his memory, and took him in tow. As the boy didn't appear in police court this morning, apparently no charge was laid against him.

NO REDUCTION IN LINDSAY

The annual meeting of the License Commissioners of West Victoria was held in Inspector Thornbury's office on Chamberlain street south, Saturday afternoon at 4.30 o'clock.

It took less than half an hour to transact the business of the meeting as none of the applicants had any difficulty in receiving their license for 1910.

The following applications were received and granted for the ensuing year;

Simpson House—W. H. Simpson.
Pym House—O. McCrolan.
Benson House—H. J. C. Burgess.
Butler House—R. Butler.
Central House—J. Maunder.
Royal Hotel—T. McConnell.
King Edward—A. J. Ashmore.
Shop license—J. R. Shannon.

Mr. John Wardrobe was granted a permit for the Grand Union hotel, his application will not be considered until next Saturday, April 30th.

In his annual report License Inspector Thornbury congratulated the hotel men in Lindsay for the manner in which they are conducting their hotels and stated that no town in Ontario had any better hotel men than Lindsay. During the past year not one conviction was registered against any of the local hotels for selling after hours or on Sunday.

Mr. John Carew brought up the question of selling liquor by the bottle stating that considerable drunkenness was caused by the selling of bottels by people who would give them away to minors and fellows on the "Indian list."

The members looked up the statutes, but found nothing to prevent the sale of bottled liquor in certain quantities.—Warder.

TO BE INDUCTED THIS EVENING

Rev. J. G. Potter Will Give the charge of Mill Street Presbyterian Church Port Hope to Rev. W.H. Brokenshire

Port Hope Guide;—Next Tuesday, the 26th inst., is to witness an event of the greatest importance to Mill st. Presbyterian church, for on that evening, at the hour of 7.30, the Presbytery of Peterborough are to meet in Port Hope and formally hand over to the care of Rev. W. H. Brokenshire, M.A., a pastorate which has been vacant for nearly ten years. It was early in 1900 when the last pastor was inducted, the Rev. W. W. MacCuaig, who remained about one year. Since then, the church has been served by student supply until the close of the year 1907, when the Rev. Mr. Brokenshire was appointed minister in charge. Twice since then his appointment has been renewed by the Presbytery. This month a call to the pastorate of Mill street and Knoxville churches, signed by 159 members and adherents, was submitted to the Presbytery in favor of Mr. Brokenshire. This call was confirmed; and as he has accepted the same, the Presbytery have fixed Tuesday, April 26th, as the date of induction.

The Rev. James Skene, of Baltimore, who, for years has been the efficient Moderator of the vacancy, will preside at the induction. The Rev. A. K. McLeod, B.A., of Brighton, will preach the induction sermon; the Rev. J. G. Potter, B. A., of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, will give the charge to the pastor, and the Rev. Wm. Johnston of Millbrook and Garden Hill, will address the congregation.

The event is of interest, not alone to the two congregations most affected, but to all the churches of the town who will doubtless be well represented on Tuesday night by pastors and members.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. NEW FISHERY REGULATIONS IS HARD ON THE CANADIANS

A. H. Clarke, of South Essex, Pleads for the Men Who Gain Their Liveiihood on the Detroit River—Anti-Combine Measure Passes Third Reading.

Ottawa, April 27.—The fate of the Canadian fishermen on the Detroit River formed the plea which A. H. Clarke of South Essex put forward in the Commons last night, when he argued that before the new fishery regulations should come into effect the fishermen should be heard by a committee of the House. Men who had been fishing for a lifetime, he said, and whose capital was invested in their equipment, would by the regulations have their business entirely cut away from them.

Hon. William Templeman, who was in charge of the bill, said the treaty would make a vast improvement. In some cases the state regulations had never been enforced. There would be danger involved in the fishing industry if this treaty did not go into effect. The U. S. Government had undertaken to carry out the regulations and the fish must be conserved. If the same conditions as at present obtained on the Fraser River were continued, there would be no fish in ten years.

George Bradbury (Selkirk) said the trouble would be to get the American officials to carry out their part of the bargain. Canadian inland fisheries had been exploited for many years by American companies. He suggested that the export of sturgeon should be prohibited for four years, and that no whitefish under two pounds should be taken out of treaty waters.

The anti-combines bill was given the third reading in the Commons yesterday. W. F. Maclean (South York) commended it for the introduction of publicity in these matters.

Dr. Sproule ex. ressed the opinion that the measure was a gold brick for those who expect relief from the combines. In the event of a verdict being given against members of a combine in the courts, an appeal could be carried right through to the Privy Council.

George Bradbury referred to the increase in the prices of cement in the west as compared with last year, quoting to show that the price had gone up from $1.80 to $2.40 per barrel. He asked if it was the intention of the Minister to deal with this merger.

Replying to Dr. Sproule, the Minister said that on the finding of the board final action might be taken. Prosecution would be easier after investigation, and punishment would be more likely.

Referring to the cement merger, Mr. King remarked that many men connected with it complained that they had been placed before the country in a false light. The result of an enquiry, if nothing wrong was found, it would have the effect of satisfying the public mind. One of the purposes of the bill was to enquire into over-capitalization.

R. L. Borden agreed that the bill should be passed without objection. He warned Mr. King, however, that enquiries would be more limited than the Minister imagined.

Notices of three questions to be put on the Commons' order paper by Hon. Geo. E. Foster yesterday, have given rise to a rumor in the lobbies that Mr. Foster will be back in his place in the House this week. However, it is learned that it is very unlikely that he will be able to be in the House this session. He was out of doors a couple of days ago, and came up to the buildings, but he was apparently in exceedingly poor health.

The debate on Senator Belcourt's bill to prohibit the operations of American labor organizers in Canada was resumed in the Senate yesterday and again adjourned.

Senator Power said there was a good example in the Nova Scotia mine strike of the damage which an outside organization could do a Canadian industry.

There were certain organizations, such as the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which naturally extended across the boundary, and should not be intereferred with.

The proposed bill, he said, would destroy trade unions in Canada. In the opinion of the labor organizations themselves, the presence of one or two non-British subjects in a trade union of Canada would make it a criminal institution.

Senator Belcourt denied that this was the effect of the bill, but Senator Cloran insisted that it was, and would prevent immigrants joining Canadian unions until they had been in the country the three years needed to naturalize.

Senator Choquette said that he was opposed to the bill, believing it a bad one. Senator Belcourt replied that he had introduced it with the object of having the question discussed, so that a remedy could be provided next session.

In the Senate yesterday Senator Cloran gave notice of the amendments to the race track gambling bill. They propose to cut out the clause limiting the length of time that meets may be held, and declare that the bill shall not affect articles 1,927 and 1,924 of the civil code of Quebec. The first of these articles states that there is no right of action for the recovery of money under a gaming contract, and the second declares that the denial of this right of action is subject to exception in favor of exercises for promoting skill in the use of arms and of horse and foot races and other lawful games which require bodily activity and address.

The second reading of the naval service bill was moved by Sir Richard Cartwright, who stated that the question involved had been so extensively discussed elsewhere that he did not feel the need of making an elaborate speech in support of his motion.

He was aware that there were opponents to the bill, some of whom thought it did not go far enough in the direction of creating a navy, and some of whom thought that it went too far. However, these were gentlemen who would be inclined to condemn anything brought in by the Government, and that fact should be kept in mind when their views were expressed.

AS MUCH FUN AS COMEY ISLAND CARROUSELS

ROUMANIAN VILLAGERS ON THE DULAP — FROM THE GRAPHIC

At Easter time in all Roumanian villages and on the outskirts of the towns is to be seen the Dulap, a species of primitive merry-go-round. It is considered by the lower classes most unlucky not to have a "ride round" on this erection, which is erected and tended by a couple of men, who receive coppers for their trouble. Their insignia of office is a most elaborate apron, with ribbons on their hats, and they are known as Dulapjee.

The national dance, the "Hora," is also much indulged in on this occasion. It has monotonous two-steps forward, one step back movement, danced in a large ring, places being taken at haphazard and not in pairs. To the music of the national bagpipe such a dance may last three or four hours.

A PRESENT OF $120,000 TO HON. W. S. FIELDING

The Careful and Conscientious Way in Which the Minister of Finance Has Handled the Moneys of the Dominion Since Taking Office Has Resulted in Subscription to Make up a Handsome Gift for Him.

Ottawa, April 27.—Liberal members of the House of Commons and Senate gathered at a late hour last night for the purpose of presenting to Hon. W. S. Fielding a testimonial in the form of a handsome gift of money, which the Minister of Finance was asked to accept as an evidence of public favor and appreciation from his personal political friends.

For a good many months past there has been talk of giving a present to Hon. W. S. Fielding. The reason of it all is that self-interest has never been a consideration with him. Like the late Sir John Macdoald and Sir John Thompson, he served the public faithfully, but did nothing for himself. His handling of public funds has never been questioned and has commanded admiration of both sides.

The suggestion was acted upon and a committee of Senators, members of the Commons and some influential gentlemen outside was formed for the purpose of receiving subscriptions for a testimonial in recognition of his services as member of Parliament and Minister of Finance.

Although the subscription lists are not yet closed, the committee felt that as the House is likely to be prorogued at an early date, they would ask Mr. Fielding to accept the testimonial.

No announcement has been made as to the amount of the testimonial, but it is said to be about $120,000, which, safely invested, will make ample provision for Mr. Fielding and will relieve him of any worry as to how he is to provide for himself and family in the days when, owing to advancing years or a change in political fortunes, it becomes incumbent upon him to relinquish the post of Minister of Finance.

Mr. Fielding's friends feel that relief from doubts as to the future will leave him free to devote all his time and energies to the service of the party.

At the presentation, which took place in the Commons last night, Sir Wilfrid Laurier expressed his delight at the honor extended to the Minister of Finance, and Mr. Fielding in warm terms thanked the donors for the honor done him.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was presented with a residence by his frends, and Lord Strathcona presented him with a touring car. Senator Ross is reported to have received a purse of $30,000 from Ontario Liberals. Presentations were made in the old days to Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Hector Langevin. It is understood that the Premier, in accepting his house, insisted on protecting his personal independence by placing a mortgage upon it which provided a method of liquidating the obligation.

TWO HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Montreal, April 27. That Louis Dionne and John Louis Keiffer are both criminally responsible for the death of Miss Bessie Smith, the domestic who was run down and instantly killed by an automobile on the Victoria bridge, was the verdict brought in by a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon, at the inquest held on the body by Coroner McMahon.

Dionne, who keeps a saloon, is the owner of the automobile that killed the young woman. It was driven by Keiffer, an unlicensed driver, and from the testimony adduced at the inquest, at an excessive speed. Both men will have to face a charge of manslaughter.

Dam Washed Away.

Bowmanville, April 27.—Lightning, thunder and a tremendous heavy downfall of rain attended an unusually violent storm that passed over this section Monday night and early yesterday morning, flooding flats, drains, cellars and streets, and causing numerous washouts on the roads.

The dam on the west side of this town was washed away. Mr. Vanstone's loss will be considerable.

PROPERTY FOR G.T.P.

Montreal, April 27.—The property known in Montreal as the Seminary Block, opposite the general postoffice, embracing 17,000 square feet, has been leased for 99 years on the basis of $50 a square foot. The structure, a ten-storey one, which will be built in 1911, is said to be for the Grand Trunk Pacific. This is the first lease of valuable property here for half a century. When the Canadian Pacific Railway bought the St. Lawrence Hall site for a round half million, the Seminary Block apposite could have been purchased outright for $40,600, whereas the lease price is now about $800,000.

THE DAMAGE EXAGGERATED

Stories of Crop Losses in West Designed to Boost Prices.

New York, April 27.—The American yesterday said:

In an effort to obtain accurate information and not exaggeration of the damage done by the storms in the south and west within the last two days, The American instructed its correspondents in the states affected to furnish statements of conditions as they really exist, with these results:

First, the reports sent of the damage originally sent out were gross exaggerations.

Second, most of the misinformation was apparently inspired by interests desiring higher prices for food.

Third, the hand of the beef trust is to be found in these wild exaggerations.

Fourth, there has been some damage to fruits and vegetables, but comparatively little to wheat and corn.

Fifth, cotton has met with reverses, but the extent is problematical.

Sixth, the planters and farmers of the states affected by these erroneous reports of disaster are indignant because of the gross misrepresentations that have been sent out.

COBALT ALARMED OVER SMALLPOX

Cobalt, April 27.—Owing to the prevalence of smallpox, the mine managers have agreed to a voluntary quarantine.

All schools, churches and theatres will be closed for fourteen days from Wednesday. The separate school is already closed, a case having developed Monday among the pupils.

The Indians voted unanimously against selling their property. They claim that the officials are looking for some way in which to get the redmen away from that locality. The officials will seek the aid of the Department at Ottawa.

THE REPORT WAS INACCURATE

Montreal, April 27.—There is nothing to the story published in an evening paper to the effect that Sir William Van Horne's retirement from the chairmanship was to permit Sir Thomas Shaughnessy to take the dual position of leader of the Conservative party and chairman of the C.P.R. The position will be abolished at the next meeting of the board of directors.

THE HORSE SHOW OPENS

Toronto, April 27.—Back in its old stamping grounds once more, the Canadian National Horse Show last night at the Armouries, in the fifteenth year of its career, exhibited a dash and spirit which shows that whatever years may do to horses individually, age cannot stale nor custom wither their infinite variety collectively.

There has never been a finer display of the noble animal, and the long series of entries, stretching over the week numbering nearly 1,000, and attracting the rank and fashion and beauty and talent of the land, will establish a record for Canada. There has never been a greater attendance on an opening night, and while the ladies reserved their most brilliant frocks for the benefit of His Excellency next Friday, there was color and plumage sufficient to make an interesting picture.

DEDICATED TEMPLE OF REPUBLICS

Washington, April 27.—The magnificent new marble palace of the International Union of American Republics—within a stone's throw of the White House—was dedicated in the name of universal peace yesterday. President Taft joined with Andrew Carnegie, Secretary of State Knox, Senator Root and Senor de la Barra, the Mexican Ambassador, in prophesies of peace among the twenty-one American republics, and pledged themselves always to strive to bring about that happy state. Mr. Carnegie went so far as to express the hope that some day Canada, with the consent of Great Britain, would join the family of peaceful American republics.

DON'T WANT TO SUBMIT RATES

Ottawa, April 27.—Great efforts are being made by emissaries of the Commercial Cable Co. to stave off the threatened order to submit its rates to the consideration of the Railway Commission.

If the Commercial Cable Co. is forced to have its rates regulated by the Railway Commission, it is probable it would get around the difficulty by doing Canadian cable business through Newfoundland and the United States.

This would give strength to Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux's plan for a state-owned cable.

NORWEGIAN NOVELIST IS DEAD

After a Severe Illness of Over a Year Bjornson Succumbs.

Paris, April 27.—Bjornstjerne Bjornson died here last night, surrounded by his family. The end was peaceful.

The last serious illness of the novelist extended over nearly a year. He was brought to Paris in the early part of last November for special medical treatment. In Paris, however, he was unable to receive the treatment for arterial sclerosis, from which he was suffering, but notwithstanding this, he showed marked improvement for a time, due to his wonderful vitality. Again last February his death was expected momentarily.

JEWELS IN A PEDESTAL

New York, April 27.—The mysterious disappearance of $100,000 worth of jewels of the late Mrs. Theodore Octavia Moss, widow of the late theatrical manager, has been cleared up by the accidental striking of a foot on a secret spring, which released a door in a pedestal in the home of Mrs. Moss on Madison avenue and revealed a dazzling array of gems.

MANGLED BY A BEAR

New York, April 27.—With his body badly mangled by teeth and claws, and his left arm almost torn from its socket, Richard Spicer, a keeper at the Bronx Park Zoo, was rescued unconscious yesterday from the bear pit after a desperate struggle with an angry bear. He was removed to a hospital in a serious condition. Elwyn Sanborn, a photographer, escaped from the pit with minor hurts after a hard fight with the animal.

TURNED BACK AT BORDER

Port Huron, April 27.—When a girl, giving the name of Bessie Moorstown, 20 years old, and claiming a home in Toronto, was detained by the immigration officers here, she cried as though her heart would break.

"Why, I'm on my way to Detroit; I'm going to be married when I arrive there," she sobbed.

But the U. S. officers thought that she had been deceived, and in view of the fact that she was penniless, she was given a ticket and sent back to her Toronto home.

AMERICAN MSS. BRINGS $43,250

The papers are addressed chiefly to William Blathwayt, Secretary of State and commissioner of trade and plantations, and cover the period from 1683 to 1710. They were purchased by a Bond street dealer.

CANADA RECEIVED TRADE ADVANTAGES

Washington, April 27.—Copies of all papers in reference to the granting of the minimum tariff rate to various foreign countries are called for from the President by a resolution favorably acted upon yesterday by the House committee on ways and means. It was introduced by Representative Underwood (Democrat) of Alabama.

Mr. Underwood contends that these papers will show that Canada and other countries have been given large trade advantages under the minimum rate, without the United States having received proportionate concessions in return.

A DEPENDENCY OF THE UNITED STATES

After the failure of the reciprocity negotiations of the Joint High Commission some years ago, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said; "Canada no longer wants reciprocity." It was generally supposed then that we would hear no more of reciprocity negotiations. However, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the other day; "We are now within measurable distance of reciprocity with our neighbor. Canada is free to negotiate for better commercial relations with any nation and we intend to begin those negotiations with the United States!"

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier is now in favor of the same kind of reciprocity that he used to advocate he will make Canada a commercial dependency of the United States.

FARMERS, NOTE THIS

When Mr. Fielding went to Albany to discuss tariff matters with the President of the United States, the Canadian tariff on both farm products and manufactured products was very much lower than that of the United States. Let us take a few farm products as examples of the difference between the two tariffs.

	Canadian Tariff.	American Tariff.
Eggs	3c	5c
Wheat	12c	25c
Barley	15c	30c
Peas	15c	40c
Beans	25c	45c
Hay	$2	$4
Butter	4c	6c
Cheese	2c	6c
Apples	15c	25c
Potatoes	20c	25c

When President Taft asked Mr Fielding to make tariff concessions the Finance Minister might have said: "Don't you think that before asking tariff concessions from us you should lower your tariff on farm products to the level of the Canadian tariff?"

Did Mr. Fielding say that? Possibly he did, but he certainly did not insist upon it. He meekly yielded to President Taft, made a number of reductions in the Canadian tariff and did not get a single reduction in the American tariff in return. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and all his associates in the Government approved of this surrender. Can such men be trusted to negotiate a reciprocity treaty with the United States?

LIBERAL HYPOCRISY

There is sent out from Ottawa every week to a number of Liberal newspapers in small towns throughout the country a letter which is supposed by the farmers who read it to be a truthful account of what goes on in Parliament. This letter is franked by Mr. Jacques Bureau, of the Department of Justice, and is delivered free of postage. One of the letters recently sent out began with this heading:—"Liberals attempt to stop race-track gambling, obstructed by Tory race-track owners." The opening paragraph contained the following sentence;—

"The Government introduces an amendment, and it is strenuously opposed by leading Tories."

It intimated that "the clean-minded, non-gambling portion of the community" should condemn the wicked Tories for this.

Now what are the real facts? The anti-gambling bill introduced by Mr. Miller and afterwards amended with his consent, was most strongly opposed by the Liberal Minister of Justice himself, from whose department this lying letter was sent out. The House of Commons did not divide on party lines on this question. The most violent opponents of the anti-gambling bill were Liberals. Some of the Conservatives also opposed it, but there were more Liberals than Conservatives among the opponents of the bill. On the other hand, the bill was supported by a number of Conservatives as well as by a number of Liberals. It will be remembered that Mr. Miller, the author of the anti-gambling bill, and Hon. Mr. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, had quite a bitter quarrel over it in the House of Commons. Taking these facts into consideration it is the most contemptible hypocrisy to send out to rural newspapers the statement that the Liberals tried to stop gambling and that the Conservatives prevented. It is supposed that the readers of the rural newspapers are opposed to gambling and consequently these lying statements are sent out franked by the Department of Justice.

When the attention of the Minister of Justice was called to the matter the only defence he made was; "I am a political partisan."

The Review has already referred to the hypocrisy of the Liberals in trying to deceive the Prohibitionists. This is another example of Liberal hypocrisy. Turn the hypocrites out.

FIRE AND POLICE DEPARTMENTS

The suggestion has been made that the duties of fire chief and chief of police should be combined in this city. If Peterborough were a village of fifteen hundred inhabitants such a plan might possibly be workable, but we have here a city of about seventeen thousand people and as a result of the extensions of the Canadian General Electric, the Quaker Oats and other industries we may have twenty-five thousand before long. Village methods will not do for Peterborough. When we invite great industries to the city we must be able to assure them that we have a first-class system of fire protection. We already have several industries which would be regarded as important if located in the biggest city of Canada. The city of Peterborough must always be prepared to give them as good a fire protection service as they would have if located in the greatest city of America.

The Fire Chief should devote his whole attention to maintaining the fire brigade as a perfect organization.

The combining of these offices would open the door for excuses for inattention to duties. The Fire Chief might say the reason he was not fighting a disastrous fire in Peterborough was that in his capacity of Chief of Police he was arresting a man for murder. On the other hand, when the Chief of Police was asked why he allowed a desperate criminal to escape he might say that in his capacity of Fire Chief he was checking a conflagration.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Large Families

Mrs. Baker, the suffragette lady, who comes from Spokane, and who talked on race suicide to a Washington audience the other day, is receiving considerable newspaper attention as a result. Possibly this is what the lady talked for; it is sometimes so. Whatever her purpose, the Spokane representative delivered herself of a marvellous lot of foolishness.

According to Mrs. Baker, it is quality, not quantity, that is most to be desired in the matter of family. With the first suggestion in her statement of the case everyone will heartily agree, but that, as her complete statement implies, it is necessary to forgo quantity in order that we may secure quality, no one who has any close knowledge of the facts will admit.

The day of large families in Canada and the United States has not so long past that we have forgotten from personal knowledge what the large family mean in the way of quality. Most of the big men of to-day in both countries were children in the large family, and they are able to point to this brother and that sister, covering the whole family record, without having to blush at the inferior quality of any of them. On the other hand, in the small families of these days, it is easily possible to discover more and more frequently an utter absence of the things which the Spokane woman calls quality.

Which suggests that Mrs. Baker has missed the real point of the argument in her tirade against, things as they are—something that too many would-be reformers are apt to do. The fact is that there is nothing the matter with the large family idea. It is as good and wholesome to-day as it was when the world was younger and when the pride of a married woman was chiefly in the number and quality of her offspring. What is wrong to-day is the average condition of living forced upon the people, and under which the raising of a large family of quality is next thing to an impossibility.

The large family is still all right, and when we get away from our craze for the artificial delights of modern civilization, which are too frequently illusive and delusive, attracting us only that they may enslave, we will be willing to admit it. As so many people live, or, rather, exist, to-day in crowded centres of population, the large family is an economic impossibility. But there is really no good reason why we should be living this way. There is plenty of room for us elsewhere and more than a mere living such as we now struggle along with. In both countries there are unlimited acres of fruitful land, sufficient to meet the quality needs of the largest families, inviting occupation. There we may live naturally rather than artificially, and raise large families of real quality.—Hamilton Spectator.

"FEEBLE STOMACH"

Causes Digestive Weakness and Poisons the Entire System.

"No one can have suffered more than I did with stomach trouble," writes Phil. E. Pascalar, well known at St. Andrews Corners. "My doctor told me my indigestion and sleeplessness were due to poisons in the blood. Certainly my condition was desperate, and it seemed from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Such body-cleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the humors out of the blood. My stomach gained strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills, enjoying robust good health."

No remedy for biliousness, indigestion, headache, sick stomach, or constipation that compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse substitutes. Sold in 25c. boxes. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

TEMPTED, HE ATE.

A Story of Heinrich Heine and a Toothsome Lyons Sausage.

Returning from a journey to the south of France, Heinrich Heine met a friend, a German violinist, in Lyons, who gave him a large sausage that had been made in Lyons with the request to deliver it to a mutual acquaintance, a homeopathic physician, in Paris. Heine promised to attend to the commission and intrusted the delicacy to the care of his wife, who was traveling with him. But as the postchaise was very slow and he soon became very hungry, on the advice of his wife both tasted of the sausage, which dwindled with every mile.

Arriving at Paris, Heine did not dare to send the remainder to the physician, and yet he wished to keep his promise. So he cut off the thinnest possible slice with his razor, wrapped it in a sheet of velvum paper and inclosed it in an envelope, with the following note:

Dear Doctor—From your scientific investigations we learn that the millionth part of a certain substance brings about the greatest results. I beg, therefore, your kind acceptance of the accompanying millionth part of a Lyons sausage, which our friend gave me to deliver to you. If homeopathy is a truth, then this little piece will have the same effect on you as the whole sausage. Your Old Time English Elections.

In old time England each constituency gave its representative in parliament a horse to carry him to Westminister and also paid his expenses on the road. These expenses, together with an allowance for each day spent in duty at the house of commons, generally at the rate of 30 cents a day, were refunded in one lump sum when the member returned home at the end of the parliamentary year. Sir F. Deval totaled seven votes in an attempt at Andover to the general election of 1768. An item in his election agent's bill is typical of the reckoning he had to pay: "To being thrown out of the George inn, Andover, to my legs being hereby broken, to sugeon's bill and loss of time and business, all in the service of Sir F. Delaval, £500." Lord Landaff won Dungarvan in 1808. The item "1547 whisky," caused him to protest faintly. "Begorra," said his election agent, "if ye want to squeeze a pippin like that ye'll never do for Dungarvan."

THE MANDARIN'S FAN

A Gift That Had In Itself a Subtle Meaning.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Mrs. Hoffman was sewing in the deep, cool veranda of the bungalow. Jeremy, her husband, was coming up the path.

"What have you got today, Jeremy?" she asked laughingly as he laid an oblong package on the wicker table.

"Another cumsha (gift), sweetheart," he smiled, clapping his hands at the drowsy punkah boy on the mat.

The great fan swung again into motion as the boy awoke to energy, and a servant brought the inevitable tea tray and tall glasses of iced lemonade.

Jeremy Hoffman leaned back in his chair with a sigh of relief. "It has been beastly hot down in the city, Nell. I've been closeted with Sheldon all the afternoon over that tiresome business, and when I returned to my office I found an envoy from Liung Weh, bearing many friendly messages and this gift for you."

IN ANOTHER INSTANT SHE WAS LYING UNCONSCIOUS IN HIS EMBRACE.

Mrs. Hoffman held out her hand for the package. "There, Jeremy! I told you the mandarin entertained the kindliest sentiment toward you. He was perfectly charming and warm in his praise of you."

"I could not help feeling that he suspected my mission. He's a sharp old beggar, and Sheldon has always been very lenient with him. Still, one can't refuse a gift in China."

"Not one like this," said his wife breathlessly. "Look, Jeremy! Is it not beautiful?"

As she spoke she held to view a fan. The sticks were of richly carved ivory covered with lustrous green silk, gay with embroidered flowers in various colors. The fan was connected by a chain of ivory links with a bracelet of the carved ivory.

"How exquisite!" sighed Mrs. Hoffman, slipping the bracelet on her wrist and fanning herself gently with the toy.

Late in the evening she was chatting with that polished Chinese courtier, who, ample of figure, with serene countenance and watchful eyes, was one of several of his countrymen whose gorgeous apparel made splendid dashes of barbaric color among the simpler clad Europeans and Americans at the brilliant public reception.

"I am sure this fan has a history," suggested Nell Hoffman, after she had thanked the dignitary for his gift. "Pray tell it to me."

Liung Weh smiled inscrutably and shook his sleek head. "Madam must contrive her own history for the fan," he said. "Perhaps the mission of madam's husband might form the basis for a romance."

Mrs. Hoffman paled and turned away. A wave of repulsion swept over her, and for a brief instant she was prompted to return the fan to the mandarin, quite reckless of the breach of politeness. The cold, deadly glitter of the little black eyes threatened harm to something—some one—she loved, and Jeremy's mission was a delicate one and dangerous, indeed. Her husband's work might become the theme for a tragedy, never a romance.

At that moment Jeremy Hoffman appeared and carried her away, with parting apologies to the great mandarin.

"You are looking ghastly, Nell. What is the matter? Do you feel ill, dear?"

As he asked the question Jeremy's arm was outstretched to catch his wife's swaying form, and in another instant she was lying unconscious in his embrace.

"Too much dancing—playing too hard—nerves unstrung—verge of prostration," snapped out the wiry little English doctor as he left the Hoffman bungalow in the pale dawn.

Jeremy went back into the sickroom and looked down at the white face on the pillow. He bitterly reproached himself for letting his fragile wife dance her way so merrily into an illness. But they had been married only a brief three months, and his important mission had carried them directly to Shanghai, his sole thought outside of business had been to make her happy and keep her amused, and now if anything happened, if Nell should die, he would leave the cursed country forever, career or no career.

He recollected with a sudden misgiving that his predecessor had thrown over the task because his wife had died—Elwin had returned to America and chucked the service forever.

Several days afterward Nell had recovered sufficiently to be brought out into the cool, matted sitting room. Her illness had taken the form of a strange inertia. Hour after hour she would lie with dark lashes fringed against her white cheeks, her bosom scarcely stirring with each feeble breath.

The little English doctor was plainly puzzled. He fetched a clever French physician, and together the two men consulted over the case. The Frenchman went away without offering an opinion, but the next day he came back and ordered Jeremy to take his wife away.

"It is poison—so insidious—so subtle—to linger here is to die. Take her away."

"Where can I take her?" demanded Jeremy, wild with fear and anxiety.

"Anywhere—down to Hongkong if you like. It will be a change."

So Jeremy gave up the bungalow and discharged all the servants, even the faithful old nurse, whom Nell had learned to love. After them he tossed the medicine bottles and pills and powders. If a secret enemy lurked in his household, one whose object was to destroy his beautiful bride, the general clearing out would include him.

The sea voyage and the arrival at the picturesque island, with its delightful points of interest and its charming English population, did Nell Hoffman a world of good. Gradually the apathy left her and her bright spirits returned. The French doctor made a special trip down the coast to see her and pronounced her on the road to recovery.

"Be careful of her," he urged Jeremy. "She is not strong. I cannot determine what drug or how it has been administered, but surely some slow poison has been given to your wife. Watch, and take care if you have an enemy."

That very evening they attended a dinner party, Nell lovely in pale green with the mandarin's fan swinging from her wrist. An hour after her arrival Jeremy accompanied her home again, sitting beside her in the carriage, holding her unconscious form in his arms.

This time her illness was of longer duration, and in his distress Jeremy vowed he would return to America immediately upon her recovery. But the recovery was slow, even under the skillful ministrations of the French doctor.

"I told you to take care—to watch!" he hissed impatiently at Hoffman.

"I did, Dr. Daveane," groaned Jeremy, flinging himself into a chair and dropping his head into his hands. "God knows I have protected her. If she recovers sufficiently I will take her home."

There Ralph Elwin found him.

"Sheldon cabled me to come out—said you were in trouble and that I might help you out on the business," said the former as he shook hands with Hoffman.

"The business can go hang!" said Jeremy passionately. "All I care about is to take my wife away from this cursed country. Forgive my temper, Elwin, but you can understand."

Elwin nodded gravely. "I can understand. I waited too long and lost my wife. What is the matter with Mrs. Hoffman? I thought her looking unusually well when you sailed."

Jeremy explained, and Elwin listened with his face in shadow. As he finished, Jeremy picked up the mandarin's fan from the table where he had flung it the night of their return from the dinner party.

"She was looking quite well and fanning herself with this thing, when all at once she just crumpled into a heap," he said.

"Let me see it," said Elwin in a strange voice. He examined the fan with keen intensity, lifting it once to his nose and then hastily withdrawing it.

"Where did she get it?" he asked sharply.

"A gift from Liung Weh. You know, I'm on friendly terms with the old scoundrel, although"—

"Enough! So was I! Liung Weh was lavish in his gifts to us. He gave my wife a fan like this one, and—oh, my God, if I had only known in time!" Elwin's voice rang harshly as he leaped to his feet. "It is impregnated with some cursed poison, Jeremy. Ask Dr. Daveane! Let him examine the fan. If he recognizes the poison he can supply the antidote and cure your wife. As for Liung Weh"—

"But why—why should he attack Nell? Why not me—why"—stammered Jeremy excitedly.

"Liung Weh does not fight in the open, old man. He killed my wife, and it sent me home. He thought to do the same for you and would have done so in the end. Mary was taken ill in the same way, only, being of a weaker constitution, she succumbed to the poison at once. My advice to you, Jeremy, is to take Mrs. Hoffman home as soon as she is sufficiently recovered. Let your career go. You can find plenty to do at home. I will settle with Liung Weh. I will carry this mission through without one concession in his behalf."

"I will stand by you, Elwin, and together we will fight it out," declared Jeremy, clasping the other's hand.

"Nay," said Elwin; "love is greater than fame or revenge or the carriage of justice. Love is greater than all. Guard it carefully, Jeremy, and some day I will return to San Francisco and tell you how the romance of the mandarin's fan turned out to be a tragedy after all."

NERVILINE CURES ALL PAIN

Residents of Wynard, Sask., fought all night to save their town from fire.

SAVED HER FINGER.

Mrs. B. E. Bedwell, of 337 Provencher Ave., St. Boniface, Winnipeg, says:—"Some time ago my children took diphtheria, and while attending them the poison entered a small scratch on the second finger of my left hand. This became very sore and blood-poisoning soon set in. For months after the children were quite well I was suffering from a shockingly bad finger. The scratch was caused originally by a pin, and in itself, was not at all serious. The consequences, however, of neglecting this scratch, were very serious to me.

"When the blood-poisoning set in I tried poultices and a salve I had in the house. These, however, did not have the desired effect. Quite on the contrary the finger became more and more swollen and discolored. It then began to fester, and I had to call in a doctor. He lanced the finger to let out the pus, and you can imagine how painful the finger was! Despite his care, however, it again festered and the ointments, liniments, and other preparations which the doctor gave me seemed absolutely unable to bring about any relief.

"The doctor thereupon advised me to go into the St. Boniface Hospital. I feared that if I went to the Hospital the finger would be amputated. We were told of a case similar to my own in which Zam-Buk had effected a cure when everything else had failed and the doctor had said that only amputation could save the person's hand.

"We, therefore, decided to give Zam-Buk a trial. A supply was procured, and we commenced the Zam-Buk treatment. It only needed a few days to show the wisdom of this step. The blood-poisoning and inflammation were reduced, the pain became less acute, and it was evident very shortly that the trouble was being reduced to a less and still less area. We persevered with the Zam-Buk and in the end the festering sore was thoroughly cleaned, then healed. In under three weeks from first commencing with Zam-Buk, the finger was entirely well; and had we applied Zam-Buk in the first place, instead of trying ordinary preparations, no doubt I should have saved myself hours and hours of acute agony."

All mothers should note this case. Zam-Buk is a sure cure for blood-poisoning, festering, sores, scratches from barbed wire, bruises, eczema, rashes, tetter, salt rheum, face sores, ulcers, piles, bad leg, varicose veins, and all skin injuries and diseases. Also for all druggists and stores or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send 1c stamp for postage of free trial box. Refuse all imitations.

Milady's Mirror

M. Marcel Prevost, the French novelist, who claims, above all other men, to understand women, exercises the rights of his comprehension in frequent admonition. His latest lectures are upon the tendency of the hour among the foolish daughters to seek slimness of figure as the essential good. Absurd enough it is, indeed, that dressmakers should be permitted to dictate our silhouette so effectually that those women who strive to be fashionable before all things must starve themselves in order to obey the mandate of the modiste to her slaves—be thin! According to M. Prevost, the modish Frenchwoman at present is literally and of her own free will starving herself in the midst of plenty. She sits at table only to trifle with a few vegetables and to let her wineglass stand untouched beside her half empty plate. The consequence is a reaction on the spirits and the wit of the victim. She diminishes her adipose tissue perhaps, but she certainly annihilates both her own brilliance and the gayety of her male companions.

Now, Lord Byron would have been enchanted to live in an age when women as far as possible actually did without nourishment. He detested seeing a woman eating and made her possession of a fine, healthy appetite one of his first grievances against Lady Byron, who had a robust constitution and no affectations and insisted upon taking proper nourishment. A little later on Byron objected to anybody having anything to eat. He accepted invitations to dinner for the apparent purpose of acting like M. Prevost asserts modern women do—to dull the enjoyment of the rest of the company. At Samuel Rogers' house Byron asked to have for his own dinner merely soda water and dry biscuits. It so happened (for those were wine bibbing days) that neither of the poet's requirements was forthcoming, so he made his meal off potatoes crushed down on his plate and drenched with vinegar. But Rogers asked Byron's most intimate friend, "How long will Byron eat like that at dinner parties?" and the reply of the wise one was, "Just as long as you take any notice of it," and the explanation was added that a solid beefsteak either preceded or followed the ostentatious refusal of proper food at table. Not so with some of the women today, who, in the effort to accommodate their natural human shape and normal proportions to the fashionable "sheath" gown and the "tube" coat, really do deny their systems a proper degree and variety of food.

Reefing the Hair.

In this day of false hair it is well to have it well reefed to the head or unpleasant exposure may follow. This is best managed by tying the hair firmly before attempting to arrange it.

Any woman who has attempted this tying with ordinary string will welcome some of the novelties now to be bought for this purpose. One convenient arrangement is a piece of wrapped wire about four inches long. One end is pointed and the other forms a loop, through which the point is pushed when the hair has been wrapped several times.

Even more easily managed is a loop of silk braid or elastic about two inches long. There is a small button at one end, over which the elastic is slipped after being wound twice around the hair.

For light hair these fasteners can be bought in browns and tans, so that there is less danger of their showing.

An added advantage of such arrangements is that they can be bought by the box or card, so there is no mad hunt for a shoestring or ribbon that has been mislaid.

Bleaching the Nails.

If one uses her hands much in housework or in writing it is impossible to keep the finger nails a clear white. No amount of ordinary scrubbing with a nailbrush will be enough. A bleach must be used.

There are several good nail bleaches that are safe to use, but for an emergency rubbing the tips of the fingers in half a lemon will do the work almost as well.

A solution of peroxide of hydrogen serves well. Dilute peroxide with one-half water and apply under nails with cotton on an orange wood stick. Allow it to remain a few minutes, then wash well with soap and water.

If there are dark stains around the nails that the black pumice stone cannot reach a covered orange wood stick can be dipped into the powdered pumice and rubbed over the flesh, which should first have been well moistened.

A Bracelet Hint.

Now that women are again wearing bracelets, a word of warning as to their size may prove useful.

Do not wear a bracelet that is too tight. It affects the circulation and will make the nose red, also the hand and arm. Often a woman frequently makes the mistake of wearing a bangle of childhood long after her arm has grown too stout for it. A bracelet that is too large rubs on the wrist joints and may bruise them.

Tommy to the Rescue.

Tommy's idea of punishment is being sent up to the school principal's room.

When he went to Sunday school the well-meaning teacher asked him if he knew where bad little boys go.

"Yes, sir," Tommy promptly responded.

"And do you know about the terrible being who rules there?" the teacher went on.

Tommy stared in surprise.

"Gee," he indignantly cried, "our principal ain't so bad as that!"

Drink Catnip Tea.

Catnip tea? Yes, of course. People are beginning to see the value of "yarb teas," and best of them all, they say, is the beverage made from the homely catnip that grows in country gardens.

Iced, it is delicious on hot summer days. Hot, it relieves tired nerves, acts as a sedative when one can go to sleep no other way, and it is a most excellent remedy for a cold if one takes it piping hot with a couple of dover powders just before retiring for the night.

Catnip leaves should be gathered when the plant is in bloom and dried. The tea made from them is pungent, aromatic and somewhat bitter. The tea, which is made by steeping the leaves in hot water, acts as a tonic and is an antispasmodic.

Old fashioned mothers give it to their babies to soothe and to expel the gas from the little stomachs. Then these mothers drink what's left of this soothing herb—and like it—and feel refreshed without knowing the reason why.

We are gradually getting back to nature, and before long we'll be a herb drinking people. When that time comes we'll forget all about the "nerves" and indigestion and other diseases caused by caffeine and tannic acid.

WHERE WILL MONEY GO?

One Thousand Dollars Left to St. Paul's Church for Maintenance of Mission Church

Yesterday's Toronto Star says:—The late Miss Christian Scott, of Peterborough, willed $1,000 to St. Paul's Presbyterian church there, for the maintenance of a mission church in the south ward, and to-day the trustees of St. Paul's asked Mr. Justice Riddell what they should do with the money. His Lordship directed that the matter go to trial.

Between the making of the will and Miss Scott's death St. Paul's did establish a mission church in the south ward. This mission is now an independent church, and it is known as Knox church.

"Shall we pay the money to St. Paul's church, the congregation of which is again building, or shall we establish another mission in the south ward? ask the trustees of St. Paul's.

Presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Devey by Members of "The Geisha" Company

At the social evening of the members of "The Geisha" company at St. John's school house last night Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Devey were presented with several handsome pieces of silver accompanied by an eulogistic address. Mr. Devey has been indefatigable in his well directed efforts in connection with the rehearsal and presentation of "The Geisha" and Mrs. Devey has also rendered valuable assistance in the rehearsals and in the part of Molly Seymour in the opera. The appreciation of the company was very timely and well deserved.

Mr. Devey expressed the gratitude of himself and Mrs. Devey.

Refreshments were served during the evening.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN RYAN.

Norwood, April 26.—One of Norwood's oldest residents passed away on Sunday, April 24th, in the person of Katharine Healey, relict of the late John Ryan. The deceased was 81 years of age.

She is survived by four sons and two daughters who are Messrs. Michael, of Westwood; Thomas and John, of Toronto, and James, of Norwood, and Mrs. K. Downs, of Norwood, and Mrs. B. Downs, of Chicago.

The funeral took place Tuesday morning at nine o'clock, from the home of her daughter, Mrs. K. Downs, spring street, to St. Paul's church and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery, near Norwood.

Rev. Father Conway officiated. The pall-bearers were:—Messrs. James McNicoll, John Fitzpatrick, Patrick Fallon, Thomas O'Neil, Thomas Heffernan and Michael Welsh. Relatives from a distance, who attended the obsequies were Mrs. B. Downs, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan, of Toronto, and Mr. John Ryan, of Toronto.

EDWARD McILVENA.

The death occurred on Friday, April 22nd, of Edward McIlvena, at the age of 69 years. The deceased was born in Antrim county, Ireland, and leaves a family of three sons and two daughters. The sons are: James, of Apsley; Edward, of New York, and John, of Cobalt. The daughters are Mrs. Joseph Cooper and Miss Eliza, both of Warsaw.

Mr. McIlvena came to this country from Ireland in 1852 and settled in Warsaw, where he carried on a blacksmith business until about twelve years ago when his wife died and he retired and lived with his daughters until a year ago, when he went to live with his son in Apsley. He was a man of much ability and had many warm friends.

The funeral took place on Sunday, April 24th, and was held under the auspices of the Orange Lodge.

St. John's Chimes

Subscriptions are being steadily received by St. John's chimes committee although no canvass has been made for several days. Up to this morning 169 subscriptions have been received making the total amount subscribed $2,000. As showing the opinion of leading citizens the following may be quoted from letters.

Mr. T. F. Matthews:—"I am pleased indeed that you have made this movement one of public interest and allowed those outside of your church an opportunity of expressing their practical good will."

Mr. . H. Hill:—"I am glad you are making good headway and trust the amount may yet reach $2,500 or $3,000."

The chimes, if they are good ones, will bring great pleasure to everyone and the energetic way in which the matter has been pushed is very creditable.

Eugene Whitky has been appointed to the staff of the city engineer at Hamilton at $1,200 per year.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH AT STONEY CREEK

Eli Fenton Found Dead at Back of His Barn With Ugly Wound in His Head—Foul Play is Suspected by Hamilton Authorities — Fenton Well Known in Community

Special to the Review.

Hamilton, April 27.—The neighborhood of Stoney Creek is excited over the mysterious death of Eli Fenton, one of the best known men of the community. Mr. Fenton's brother, who lived with him, on returning from a visit to the village yesterday, found Fenton dead at the back of the barn with an ugly wound in the back of the head, from which blood apparently had been pouring for some time. Mr. Fenton at once summoned Dr Thompson, who examined the body and immediately suspected foul play. The wound in the back of the head, he held, could not have been caused by a fall. An inquest will be held to-day. The authorities are understood to have strong suspicions as to how the old gentleman came to his death.

LATER.

Thomas A. Fenton, second son of the late Mr. Eli Fenton, is under arrest as a material witness. He was the last man to see his father alive. He drove to the farm yesterday and after the body was discovered was arrested there.

FISHERIES' INSPECTOR AT LAKEFIELD MAKES SEIZURE

Special to the Review.

Lakefield, April 26.—Mr. F. J. Moore, local fisheries inspector, succeeded in confiscating a batch of fish, which had been caught in Stoney Lake by two men, one day last week. On opening the fish they were found to contain thousands of spawn—sufficient eggs to fill a quart jam—thus illustrating the enormous destruction of the fish by catching them during the close season.

It is needless to say that the offenders shall be justly punished and that Mr. Moore is sharply on the lookout for others who may attempt to break the law.

FOUR OFFENDERS SENT TO THE HILL THIS MORNING

As is often the case "the morning after the night before," there was a scarcity of bank notes at the police court this morning, and a cosmopolitan party of four offenders were sent to the hill.

There was a local blacklister, an Indian, a visitor from Toronto, and last, but not least, Thomas (Mousie) McDonald.

TEN DAYS.

The "cut up" from Toronto was drunk last night, and he admitted the corn to His Worship. Two dollars was the fine, or ten days. He was broke and suffered accordingly. So will the wood-pile.

FIFTEEN DAYS.

T. Mousie McDonald claimed to have a position at the Albion hotel, but Acting Chief Adams went one better and informed the magistrate that the prisoner's name did not appear on the pay roll. Furthermore, his presence was not required at the said hotel.

"Mousie" didn't respond with the two spot, hence the order of the court, fifteen days.

FIFTEEN MORE.

John Peters, a descendent of the original inhabitants of this country, denied that he received money from the government. His home, so he says, is at Rama.

He took the count of fifteen.

ANOTHER FIFTEEN.

A young and unmarried man, whose name was but recently added to the blacklist, met a friend last night about 9.30 o'clock, at the laneway immediately to the east, of O'Brien's grocery store on Charlotte street, and the two finished a flask. This was not enough, so the friend was given a dollar with which to purchase another bottle. This, or rather, the contents, was also consumed.

Then followed a blank.

The sequel was an arrest of the first named and his appearance before the court this morning. The fine was $10.00, but the amount wasn't forthcoming.

It may be during the next fifteen days.

ANOTHER CHANCE.

A young lad of seventeen recently began to hit "the pace that kills," and his money gave out. Monday he wended his way to the repair shop of John Downs on George street, and by smarrating a smooth story, prevailed upon the proprietor to part with a pair of boots, the property of one Henry Truesdale. Gaining possession of the footwear, he made his way to Jay's second-hand store on Aylmer street and made a transaction, by which he left that place minus the boots, but with 60 cents in his pocket.

The proprietor of the repair shop after finding out the trick, complained, and the young lad was arrested last night.

This morning he was inclined to be penitent, but His Worship was in favor of a suitable punishment.

An interested friend of the prisoner spoke on his behalf and promised to assist him in an endeavor to travel along the straight and narrow path, and the magistrate then consented to give him another chance, on the costs of the case, $2.20, being paid.

A SERMON TO THE ATHLETES

At the Centenary Methodist church last evening the members of the Hamilton Bowling and Athletic Club and a large number of the usual congregation enjoyed an interesting sermon on "Love Versus Knowledge," delivered by the pastor, Rev. J. V. Smith, who selected for his text, "Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth" (1 Cor., viii. 1).

The question in the time of the Bible was whether Christians could go among heathens and amid evil associations. Some would not do that, while others said that there was only one Christ, and that the evil associates were ignorant, and that nothing would be lost by going among them. Christians might laugh at the pagan superstitions. Paul, with all his knowledge, had seen no love; Peter and the other fishermen, who were ignorant as far as knowledge of certain things were concerned, said naught of knowledge, but Paul with all his learning, said: "Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth." It was a strange thing that the man with all the learning and no love had made such a statement, while the poor fisherman with practically no knowledge, but with great love for God, had not scorned knowledge. The knowledge which Paul had, made him blind to love and charity, and when the love of Jesus came to his soul, his experience led him to make this statement in regard to knowledge.

Young men with very little culture, all of which was imparted to them by the labor of others, bore themselves lordly and criticised the Bible the preacher and others. Paul described that attitude of the young man in the words, "Knowledge puffeth up."

Learned men of all professions thought they were an authority on certain subjects, such as germs and other scientific matters, but there was more genius in the 23rd Psalm than in all the books, sayings and doings of learned men. There was in that Psalm more of God and more of love than in all the works of the so-called wise men published up to the present time.

Knowledge had not done much for humanity. It was a delusion on the part of the world when it thought that knowledge had done so much, as it had not accomplished as much as people believed. The scientific inventions of the day were not made through knowledge, but by genius rather than long study. Men supposed to have been ignorant had startled the world with their genius. The books of Shakespeare and the epistles were not written by men overburdened with knowledge, but by men inspired by the love of God, who had inherited their wisdom from moral thoughts and love. They had seen things through eyes of love rather than through a head full of knowledge. Christ had little to do with knowledge, for He said that the heart of an innocent child was of more value than all sagacity.

The meanest men who have ever lived, and those who have had the most corrupt ideas have had the fullest knowledge and were the greatest of philosophers. With all their knowledge they had no fear of God, and knowledge was useless without a fear and love for God. Were it not for the spirit of hopefulness breathed into the heart, knowledge would be of no benefit. No tender-hearted man who had seen the darkness and degradation of a city could forget it. In the fight for bread and rum the people had forgotten to think of God. Some had said that the world was going to the devil, and that instead of moving to glory, the world was going down. He did not agree with that, but believed that Christ was still the ruler and the only ruler. The increase of wealth meant corruption. That would be the state of affairs if Christ were not here, and instead of the light of the leading men to glory it would lead the other way. As it was not leading that way, God must be among men.

In conclusion, Dr. Smith said that knowledge censured everything which looked like refinement. Love it was that pleaded with sin and drink. It was love, not knowledge, which actuated the activities of the soul. The love of God came through the heart, and not the head.

Welland's assessment totals $2,818,820, an increase of 18 per cent.

The Reason We Do This

We wish to introduce ourselves to the spectacle wearing public and have secured two hundred (200) dozen pair, all told, embracing all kinds of glasses, every style to fit all eyes and faces. These glasses are the same as are sold regularly for $3.50 and $5.00. Sale in charge of the DIRECTORS OF THE INTERNATIONAL COLLEGE OF OPTHALMOLOGY who will be in attendance to insure you a first class examination. They will use just as much care in fitting them to your eyes as though you were to pay regular prices. When you come to inspect them that is the kind you will find them to be, and every pair will be replaced by the manufacturers should they not give entire satisfaction.

To the People of Peterborough:

I desire to make known that I have been fitted on several different occasions in the past ten years for reading and shooting glasses by the representatives of the International College of Opthalmology, and they are, in my judgment, the best Optical people in Canada, and am sure are regarded as such by the military crack shots all through Canada.

J. A. WILLIAMSON,
Major 45th Regt., Lindsay.

Peterborough, April 27th, 1910.

To the people of Peterborough:

Of Interest to Merchants

Local merchants and others, who are in the habit of employing young boys are advised to make sure that they are over fourteen years of age. Complaints have been made and in some cases boys under this age have been found playing truant from school and employed at stores and other places. One youngster who essayed to play a dual role in this respect, received a reminder this morning, on his return to school, that may bear fruit.

THE MAPLE LEAF MILLING COMPANY

In these days of cheap money, when investors are content to receive five and six per cent on their money, the exceptionally favorable terms offered by the Maple Leaf Milling Company are worthy of special notice. This company are offering their 7 per cent. preferred cumulative stock at par and giving a bonus of 25 per cent. of common stock with each share of preferred. As the preferred stock is secured twice over by the assets of the company, it presents an unusually attractive investment. It is further guaranteed that the preferred stock is redeemable at $145. During the last six months, the earnings of the old companies were equal to over 13 per cent. on preferred stock of the new company.—Adv.

STATION LOAFERS

By Walt Mason.

The railway station in the town is seedy, commonplace and plain; yet scores of people rustle down and gather there to meet each train. The waiting room is bleak and bare, a place of never-ending din; yet fifty loafers gather there each day to see the train come in. The station agent's life is sad; the loafers make it grim and gray; they drive the poor man nearly mad, for they are always in the way. The passengers can only sob as they their townward way begin, for they must struggle through the mob that's there to see the train come in. The men who have their work to do are hindered in a hundred ways; in vain they weep and cry out "Shoo!" they can't disperse the loafing jays. These loafers always are the same; they toil not, neither do they spin; they have no other end or aim than just to see the train come in. I've travelled east, I've travelled west, and every station in the land appears to have its loafers, its lazy, idle, useless band; I know the station loafer well; he has red stubble on his chin; he has an ancient, fishlike smell; he lives to see the train come in. Oh, Osler, get your chloroform, and fill your glass syringe again, and come and try to make things warm for these who bother busy men! For loafers, standing in the way, when standing is a yellow sin! For those who gather, day by day, to see a one-horse train come in!

JUDGMENT IN CASE OF INTEREST TO THIS CITY

A case was decided by Mr. Justice Britton, respecting snow and ice on the sidewalk, the other day which will be of great interest to the citizens of Peterborough. The action was brought for personal damages for personal injuries sustained by the plaintiff by a fall on the sidewalk in Hamilton, due as the plaintiff alleged, to the sidewalk being out of repair by reason of the snow and ice being allowed too accumulate. In giving judgment for the plaintiff, Mr. Justice Britton said:—It is alleged that the sidewalk where the plaintiff fell was covered with frozen snow and ice of a thickness varying from seven to three inches, which, through neglect in not being cleaned off after storms, had accumulated and become trampled down in an uneven manner by the daily traffic the surface being slippery and very treacherous. The judge said that the evidence established the fact, that the sidewalk was in that condition. He also said that from the evidence he had no doubt that in a general way in regard to most of the streets, the city had done the best it could, but that there was evidence of neglect with the piece of sidewalk referred to, and the plaintiff was not guilty of any contributive negligence.

The case was tried without a jury and judgment was given the plaintiff for $350.00 and costs.

This case will no doubt be of interest to the city of Peterborough; for while it is no doubt true that a perfectly clean pavement is more dangerous than one with some snow upon it, there is another extreme and that extreme exists when the ice accumulates, and is allowed to cumulate in a lumpy and dangerous condition. It would appear that if the city's employees had looked after the place complained of by throwing earth or sand upon it the charge of negligence would not have been established. It is quite evident that the judge was desirous of taking what may be called a commonsense view of the matter and the city of Hamilton suffered accordingly. As this case has just been decided it may be appealed against, but so far no notice of appeal has been given. As the case cited by the plaintiff's lawyer in support of his contention, was quite clear and as the defence put up by the city of Hamilton did not include much support from decided cases, it might be well for the citizens of Peterborough to take note of the learned judge's decision.

For many years it has been a question whether the by-law should be enforced as to have the sidewalks kept perfectly clean or to allow the carpet to remain. This decision shows apparently that the carpet of snow may remain, but that lumps of treacherous ice will incur a risk especially where warning has been given or where the sidewalks have been neglected for some time.

These Directions Should Be Kept Handy—They May Save Life.

It makes one shudder to think of the grim sign on the druggists' vials, but the shudder is worse when one of the family, perhaps a favorite child, has swallowed some deadly dose. What is done then must be done quickly. The following plain directions ought to be kept handy. They may save a life while the doctor is coming.

When the poison is unknown this is the treatment: Provoke repeated vomiting, give bland liquids, stimulate if necessary.

For Acids.—Sulphuric, nitric, muriatic, oxalic: Give an alkali, provoke vomiting, give bland fluids, secure rest, stimulate if necessary.

Alkalis.—Hartshorn, soda, potash, lye: Give an acid (vinegar), provoke vomiting, give bland liquids, secure rest, stimulate if necessary.

For Arsenic.—Paris green, Scheele's green: Provoke vomiting, give dialyzed iron and salt (repeat several times), give dose of castor oil, secure rest, stimulate if necessary.

For Sugar of Lead.—Give epsom salts, provoke vomiting (repeat several times), give bland liquids, give dose of castor oil.

For Corrosive Sublimate.—Tartar emetic, provoke vomiting, give strong tea without milk (repeat several times), give raw eggs and milk, give dose of castor oil, stimulate if necessary.

For Phosphorus.—Provoke vomiting, give five grain doses of sulphate of copper, give dose of magnesia, but no oil.

Lunar Costic (nitrate of silver).—Give strong salt and water, provoke vomiting (repeat many times).

Iodine.—Provoke vomiting, give starch and water, give bland fluids.

Opium.—Morphine, laudanum, paregoric, chloral, etc.: Provoke vomiting repeatedly, give strong coffee without milk, keep up the breathing.

Strychnine.—Provoke vomiting once or twice, give a purgative, secure absolute quiet.

Aconite.—Provoke vomiting, stimulate well.

Jamestown weed, hemlock, nightshade (belladonna), toadstools, tobacco: Provoke vomiting, stimulate well.

Alcohol.—Provoke vomiting, give hartshorn and water.

To provoke vomiting warm water may be used with or without ground mustard (a tablespoonful to a pint of water) or ipecac (a teaspoonful of the powder or a tablespoonful or so of the sirup) and thrusting a finger down the throat.

TRIO OF NEW YORK HIGHLANDERS PLAYING FAST BALL THIS SEASON

SPORTING NEWS

JEFF AS FAST AS A BULLET IN TRAINING

Jeffries' Training Camp, Rowardennan, April 26.—It will probably be three or four days before Jeffries again gets down to hard work. The boil between his shoulders is giving the big fellow considerable trouble. "Don't amount to much," said he, "but it isn't very pleasant. I will go ahead with my work on the road and in the gym., but I am going to hold off a bit on any hard ring work."

Jeffries, for the first time since he entered camp, showed a disposition this morning to discuss his condition and the progress he is making. To the suggestion that he had made a better showing on Saturday than in any of the previous workouts, the former champion replied: "Well, it's about time I was showing some speed. I guess every one knows that I haven't wasted any time since I have been here, and a fellow who works as hard as I do cannot help but get right. All of those boys around here got the idea into their head that I was training too hard. I knew all along they couldn't go too fast. I felt stiff and sore for a couple of weeks, and the only way to get rid of it was by hard work. Mark my words. In two weeks I shall be as fast as a bullet. I have carefully trained myself for every fight I ever had, and am not going to do anything in the way of taking air that will dull my speed. I suppose my trainers will continue to worry about me, but I have a certain amount of work to do, and I am going to do it."

Berger is more than pleased with Jeffries' condition. Where two weeks ago he was inclined to be pessimistic, he is now the most enthusiastic man in the camp. "I honestly believe he is fit right now to step into the ring," said Bumpel. "All the old spirit and dash is there, and I am confident he will be faster than he ever was when he steps into the ring with Johnson. What he needs more than anything else is plenty of boxing. His wind is good, his legs are strong, and he is within a few pounds of fighting weight."

The weather is much cooler to-day than it has been for several days, and there is considerable more "pep" apparent in the ranks of the training staff.

SPORTING NOTES

Jim Corkery, who finished third in the Boston Marathon, will be presented with a gold watch by the Irish Canadians to-night.

Raoul de Rouen and Mahmout meet at Montreal to-night. The bout will be at mixed styles, best two out of three falls and will be the first in a series to be run off between Montreal and Kansas City.

Dicky Rudolph of the Toronto Ball Club, has a new one called the "muah" ball.

Jimmy Frick may be loaned to the Baltimore Club.

Fox Rickard, manager of the big fight, it is reported, has so arranged matters that if Jack Johnson tries to break any more records he will lose his drivers' license.

Washington is hustling for the accustomed berth at the bottom of the heap.

New Westminster has consented to accept the dates offered by Montreal for the Minto lacrosse club series, viz., July 16th and 23rd.

In Montreal 1,800 lacrosse sticks have been distributed among public school boys in order to encourage the playing of the national game.

Hans Wagner is one of the few players who will not have to go to the minors when his best days are over. He is one of the wealthiest men in baseball.

The National baseball commission rules that no presents can be given the players of the teams contending for the world's title while the series is pending.

Ty Cobb has posted $25, which he says he will surrender to a worthy cause, if once during the season he is put out of the game by the umpires for registering a kick.

In the National Baseball League

St. Yves won the Marathon in Winnipeg in 2.48.19. John D. Marsh was second. Paul Acoose was an also ran.

"Any system of physical culture," says Dr. Woods Hutchinson, "which does not include at least from two to four hours' gentle exercise a day in the open air, three square meals and nine hours of sleep is of the Evil One."

Another meeting of the City Baseball League will be held at the Y.M.C.A. Friday evening at eight o'clock, sharp, and it is likely that there will be something doing.

SPORTING COMMENT

The T. A. S. Club got together last night and the meeting was unanimous in its disposal of the clause in the constitution of the league, which bars out players other than those residents of the city at the time the schedule is drawn up.

If Friday night's meeting decides that the constitution shall stand as it is, the T. A. S. will in all probability drop out.

In view of this "jolly" or whatever it may be called, will the clause be amended to conform with the wishes of the T.A.S. club.

The constitution was adopted at the last meeting, after considerable discussion, and particularly so in the troublesome clause.

The special committee appointed to draw up a schedule will meet to-night.

All clubs are reminded that the admission fee of $200 and the deposit of $5 must be paid at the meeting Friday night, in the event of the schedule being adopted.

The T.A.S. club will wear a white uniform with trimmings of green, this season.

TENNIS

The Y.M.C.A. tennis tournament will begin on May 2nd.

NEWSPAPER GUY

I see a man pushing his way through the lines
Of the cops where the world of the fire fiend shines,
"The chief?" I inquire—but a fireman replies:
"Oh, no; why, that's one of those newspaper guys."

I saw a man walk through the door of a show
Where great throngs are blocked by the signs "S. R. O."
"Is that man the star that no ticket he buys?"
"Star nothin'! He's one of those newspaper guys."

I saw a man start on the trail of a crook,
And he scorns the police, but he brings him to book.
"Sherlock Holmes?" I inquire—some one scornfully cries:
"Sherlock h—l. Naw; that's one of those newspaper guys."

And some day I'll pass by the great Gate of Gold
And see a man pace through unquestioned and bold,
"A saint?" I'll ask, and old Peter'll reply:
"No; he carries a pass—he's a newspaper guy."

FORTUNES FOR SERVANTS.

Faithful Domestics Who Have Come Into Big Fortunes.

It has been stated that the fortune of $300,000 with which the Misses Cohen rewarded their ex-footman, Mr. Frank Bradley, for his services—and which formed the subject of recent litigation—is the largest sum which has ever been bestowed upon an employe by an employer. This, however, is scarcely correct. When, two years ago, the will of Mr. Oscar Philippe, the proprietor of the famous Cavour Restaurant in Leicester Square, London, was proved it was found that he had left the whole of his fortune of $490,000 to Mrs. Geo. Dale of Bournemouth, who, as Miss Julia Edmonds, had acted as his bookkeeper.

Mrs. Dale had assisted Mr. Philippe in his affairs for twenty-five years; and the story of how he acquired the famous restaurant is as romantic as the story of his will. Mr. Philippe began life as a waiter at the Cavour. It was but a little restaurant in those days, though its frequenters were liberal in their tips, and it was not long before the genial French waiter became sole proprietor. Some time before his death he was offered $400,000 for the freehold, but the offer met with a courteous but firm refusal. The ex-waiter prized the Cavour above everything, and would not have parted with it for double the price offered.

Perhaps one of the most curious of bequests was that made by the late Mr. Alexander Fleming, a member of the famous firm of William Baird & Co., Scottish ironmasters, who died at the end of last year, and left an estate valued at $6,500,000. Mr. Fleming died a bachelor, leaving many thousands of pounds to Glasgow charities, and the bulk of his fortune to nieces, nephews and personal friends. Amongst the latter he numbered a young gentleman who frequently entertained him in his sick hours, by playing on the Scotch bagpipes, and who found himself rewarded with $50,000.

When Lord Burton's will was proved in March, 1909, it was found that he had left $200,000 in annuities to his servants; while for but two years' service Mr. Fred S. Westall, a coachman and gardener, found himself in November last the lucky possessor of a farm worth $35,000, left to him by his former master, the late Mr. Sidney Mervyn Meyrick. Westall entered Mr. Meyrick's services only two years ago, but his master had known him for many years. He acted as valet and general help, as well as coachman and gardener. Mr. Meyrick came to look on Westall more as a companion than a valet, and finally showed his gratitude in the manner mentioned.

A few years ago Mr. James Dick, a wealthy gutta-percha merchant of Glasgow, died and left no less than $500,000 for distribution amongst his employes. Bequests varied from $250 to $25,000 to his cashier. These sums were irrespective of $10,000 to his cook, and $5,000 each to his only maid-servant, coachman, and gardener.

The late Lady Clarke, who left property to the value of $1,500,000, remembered each of her servants in her will. Besides a large number of smaller gifts to her kitchen maids, she bequeathed to her personal maid a sum of $500 and an annuity of $2,500 a year for life.

So grateful was Mr. William Rohmer of Surbiton, Eng., for the faithful services of his housekeeper, that he left her the comfortable income of $2,500 a year for the remainder of her days. Yet another lucky housekeeper was Mrs. Sarah Ann Mann, who, when her master, Mr. John Adams, of Bedford, died last August, came into the whole of his property. It was valued at $220,000.

Days of Disaster.

There is a world of truth in the old saying that misfortunes seldom come singly. Neither do disasters. For it was only a short time after the terrible Christmas fire disaster at Clapham Junction, London, Eng., that we heard France was devastated by floods. Then the Brighton express met with an accident, causing the loss of seven lives.

Many other disasters have followed each other with appalling suddenness. In March, 1906, 1,228 persons were killed, over 2,000 injured, and thousands of homes destroyed by the Kagi earthquakes in Formosa, and in the next month came the San Francisco earthquake, in which the damage done amounted to over sixty million pounds, in addition to the loss of many lives.

In the following July there were twenty-seven people killed and eleven injured in the wreck of the London and Southwestern boat express at Salisbury.

Previously, the year 1905 had been marked by the collapse of the roof at Charing Cross Station, which demolished the Avenue Theatre, the loss of twenty-three lives in a Lancashire and Yorks railway collision, a mishap to the Cromer express, involving ten deaths and injuries to thirty people, and the loss of the London and Southwestern steamer Hilda off St. Malo, where 128 lives were lost.

Herons In Battle.

A curious duel was seen in Milton park, at Petersborough, England. A heron fishing in the pond near Milton House captured a fish. Another heron, which had been on the watch, at once tried to take the prize away. The result was a desperate combat. Both birds were full grown, tall and stately. They fought with bill and wing, uttering frequent shrieks of anger. The battle was waged so furiously that the combatants seemed to be in the midst of a cloud of feathers, when suddenly one rolled over, and the other, with a victorious "frank," stretched its long legs behind it and flew up to the trees. An examination proved that the other bird had been killed outright.

The Next Call.

Mrs. Sharpley—Next time you call I want you to give your opinion of the new dog we are going to get.

Mr. Bore—Delightful, I'm sure. When do you expect it?

Mrs. Sharpley—Oh, not for twelve months at least!

Mrs. Sarah McCully, London's oldest resident, died yesterday, aged 101, in Montreal and Peterborough.

THE MANITOBA BOUNDARY DISCUSSED IN THE COMMONS

People of the First Prairie Province Wish to be on an Equality With Other Western Provinces—Prorogation of Rarliament in About a Week.

Ottawa, April 28.—The Manitoba boundary question came up in the Commons yesterday, as an amendment to the motion to go into supply, moved by Alexander Haggart of Winnipeg. The amendment recited various correspondences and resolutions and concluded: "That this House affirms that the Province of Manitoba is entitled to equality of treatment with either the said Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan to the west, or with the said Provinces of Ontario and Quebec to the east, and regrets that the Government of the Dominion did not agree to give to Manitoba such equality of treatment."

Manitoba, he said, sent a deputation to Ottawa in 1905, but they were told to wait until the boundaries of Saskatchewan and Alberta had been arranged. In 1908 the Legislature passed a resolution setting forth a claim to all the land lying west of the northwest boundary of Ontario and northward to Hudson Bay. The Federal Government had to take some action and passed a resolution fixing the proposed new boundaries, giving a smaller area than had been asked for, and providing that financial terms should be the subject of negotiations. In February, 1909, Sir Wilfrid Laurier sent to the Premier of Manitoba a copy of the bill it was proposed to introduce, but making the suggestion that the only change in the financial terms should be an additional grant of $10,000 to cover the administration of justice in the new territory.

The attitude of Manitoba was: "Give us the same terms as Alberta and Saskatchewan. If you cannot do that, don't say you will give us nothing. State what you will give, but it is not right to say that you will make no counter proposition."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that in asking for equality of treatment with Ontario and Quebec, Manitoba was asking for control of the lands, and yet, according to the terms of the memorial passed by the Manitoba Legislature, all that was asked for was land in the new territory to be added to the province. The resolution asked not only for an addition to their territory, but that the financial terms upon which Manitoba was organized in 1869 be revised and new terms be given.

Sir Wilfrid did not think that it was reasonable to suggest that the terms of Confederation, which have been in force for forty years, should be revised. It was absurd to contend that, as a consequence of the extension of the territory of Manitoba, the land should be given to the province, not in the new territory of the province. If the Parliament of Canada was wrong in 1869 in retaining control of the lands for the Federal Government, that was another question.

There are strained relations between Rideau Hall and the Government. The state ball will likely be a fizzle, and Rideau Hall is angry.

The state ball and prorogation usually take place simultaneously, and the invitations for the former are not sent out until the Government announces the date of prorogation. In accordance with an announcement by the Government, the date for the state ball was set for May 10, and thousands of invitations sent out.

But the Premier announced yesterday morning that Parliament would prorogue next week, hence the strained relations, because the members and Senators will all have flown.

The Prime Minister is of opinion that the business now before the House can be disposed of in about a week.

This was the effect of his reply to George Taylor, chief Conservative whip, in the Commons yesterday morning when asked if prorogation could be reached next week. The Premier had moved that the House sit next Saturday.

At the opening of the House Mr. Blondin emphatically denied the report that at a meeting in Montreal he had advocated the formation of a separate French-Canadian party, on the lines of the Irish party in the United Kingdom.

Claude Macdonnel complained of Mackenzie King's action in putting through his bill to amend the Lemieux Act. These amendments really were his own, having been suggested by some of his constituents. He introduced a similar bill last year.

Hon. George P. Graham's bill to provide for the payment of bounties on crude petroleum was passed yesterday. This measure is to permit payment of a portion of the bounties on oil to farmers in Kent and Essex, whose lands have been damaged by petroleum works.

Three Men Drown.

Quebec, April 28.—At Bedards Rapids, Tewkesbury, three men met a watery death in the Jacques River. Only one of the bodies, that of Sam Dupont, belonging to Batison, has been recovered. The men were driving logs.

A Call to Winnipeg.

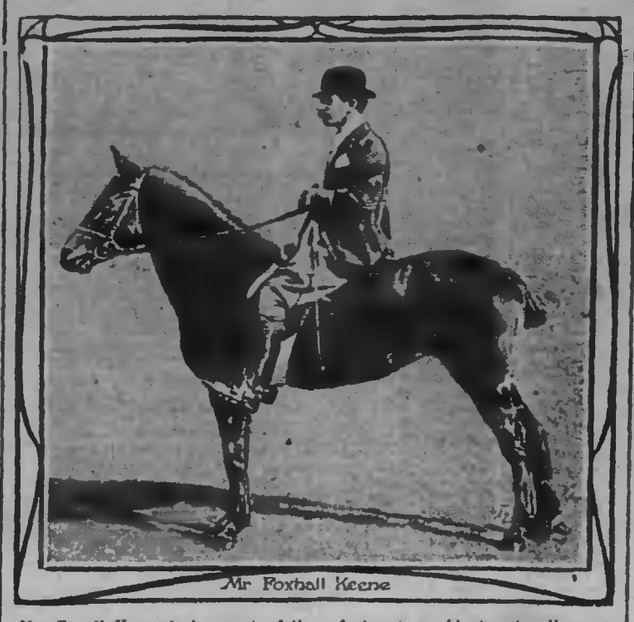
Belleville, April 28.—Rev. J. A. Ford, pastor of Victoria avenue Baptist church, in this city, has received a call to a church in Winnipeg, which it is said he will likely accept. The stipend is double that paid him here.

Danger in Beef.

Winona, Minn., April 28.—Seymour Brown, 68 years old, a capitalist, died yesterday of actinmycosis, contracted last December by eating beef from cattle afflicted with lumpy jaw.

The Erie Settles.

New York, April 28.—The Erie Railroad's wage differences with its firemen have been adjusted, it was learned yesterday, by an advance of 8 2-10 per cent. to the men.



Mr Foxhall Keene

Mr. Foxall Keene had a nasty fall while competing for the Ladies' Purse, the chief event of the annual Melton steeplechasers, His horse, Precentor II., which he brought over from America, in the hop of winning the Liverpool Grand National, came down while taking one of the jumps and threw his rider so heavily that Mr. Keene's collarbone was broken. The unfortunate accident naturally marred the day's sport, as Mr. Keene is very popular in the Melton country. Most of the fashionable people who have hunting boxes there were present at the races, including Lord and Lady Lonsdale, Lord Herbert Vane-Tempest, Lord and Lady Robert Manners, Lord and Lady Gerard and Marquis Cholmondeley.

PROVINCIAL PREMIER

Sir James Whitney Lays Corner Stone of Kingston's New College Building.

Kingston, April 28.—"I was asked when I came down here to choose a name for this building," said Sir James Whitney, who well and truly laid the foundation stone of the new chemistry building of the school of mining of Queen's University yesterday afternoon. "I had very little hesitation in doing so. I feel that I honor myself in the name that I have chosen. This building shall be known as 'Gordon Hall'."

Principal Gordon, whose name will henceforth be linked with the fine grey granite structure that has already begun to rise in harmony with the general architectural scheme of the university, replied to the honor done him in a few felicitious words.

Sir James was presented by the vice-chairman of the board of the school of mining with a handsome trowel of Cobalt silver, the handle being of Canadian maple. In a receptacle in the stone were placed copies of the local papers and the various university publications, sets of coins and tercentenary stamps and a scroll containing the names of Earl Grey, the Lieutenant-Governor, Sir James Whitney and of the university and civic dignitaries.

Accompanying the Premier's party were Hon. Frank Cochrane, Hon. Jas. Duff, R. J. McCormick, M.P.P., Allen Studholme, M.P.P., J. R. Dargavel, M.P.P., and Valentine Stock, M.P.P.

ANTARCTIC HERO TALKS TO BOYS

Toronto, April 28.—Sir Ernest Shackleton visited Upper Canada College yesterday and was given a rousing reception. In addressing them he said:

"You have here the carrying out of what your forefathers started years ago. Strong and upright men are needed to make Canada the greatest nation in the world. Some day in the future you will remember I spoke to you, and don't forget that it rests with you whether you make good or not. Don't look on your masters as enemies, but as friends, and be loyal to them. My men obeyed my orders, and unless you learn at your age to obey you never can command."

Later the Antarctic hero visited St. Andrews' College, the Military Institute and the Toronto Golf Club.

YOUNG BEST UNDER ARREST

Windsor, April 28.—After a coroner's jury announced that it held Arthur J. Best, a young tinsmith of Comber, Ont., directly or indirectly responsible for the death of his wife, who was drowned in the Detroit River here March 12, Prosecuting Attorney Van Zile ordered the arrest of her husband. He was in court yesterday on a murder charge. He says he will fight extradition and was remanded.

EDITOR BOTHWELL SQUARES HIMSELF

Niagara Falls, Ont., April 28.—The Daily Record was published by the amateurs of the city yesterday for the benefit of the general hospital. A considerable sum was realized, and the venture was a great success. For the past few months Proprietor J. R. P. Bothwell has roasted the City Council and other well-known men. To allow these to "get back" he donated the paper to them yesterday.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

John Linnan, who is said to have a son in Toronto, was drowned in a creek at Bradford, Pa.

The Grand Trunk Pacific has purchased sixty acres of land at St. John to provide room for terminals.

Five hundred Albanians, mostly women and children, were killed by Turkish shells at Godauntz, in Albania.

Mr. Lloyd-George's finance bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons and its first in the House of Lords last night.

The aerial Derby, worth $50,000, from London to Manchester was won by Louis Paulhan, who covered the 186 miles between the two cities with but a single stop.

The West Zorra Council has appointed two constables to patrol the roads and shoot all unmuzzled dogs running at large. A mad dog was killed there the other day after biting a couple of dogs.

The commission appointed by the General Assembly to consider changes proposed in Queen's University constitution have recommended the adoption of the report in favor of the separation of Queen's from the Presbyterian Church.

A SENATOR FORFEITS SEAT

Ottawa, April 28.—The close of the session will find another vacancy in the Senate, one more reduction in the dwindling force of Conservative Senators. Hon. Michael Sullivan, of Kingston, has not been able to attend during two sessions, counting the present one, and thus forfeits his seat under the rules. He has been too ill to attend.

Senator Sullivan is an Irishman from Killarney. He has had a distinguished career as a surgeon, was once an unsuccessful candidate for the Commons, and was called to the Senate in 1884.

Sir John Carling of London is also ill, but saved his seat by attending one day this session in the care of a member of his family.

THE BOUNTIES ON STEEL RODS

Ottawa, April 28.—Hon. W. S. Fielding has given notice of the following resolutions regarding the iron and steel bounties:

"It is expedient to provide that no bounties shall be payable in respect of rolled round wire rods after June 30, 1911, under the provisions of section 1 A of chapter 24 of the acts of 1907, an act to amend the act respecting bounties on iron and steel, except on such rods as may have been otherwise entitled to the payment of bounties under the provisions of said section, and which were, on or before June 30, 1911, sold to wire manufacturers for use, or used in making wire by the makers of such rods in their own factories in Canada."

ROOSEVELT FOR THE SENATE ?

Washington, April 28.—Theodore Roosevelt for the U. S. Senate as successor to Chauncey M. Depew. This is the way the political prophets and wiseacres in Washington have the situation in New York State figured out to-day. His support in the upper branch of the Congress would mean a wonderful strengthening of Mr. Taft's hands.

WAS IT A FALL FROM HIS BARN ?

Or Did Some One Batter in His Head With an Axe?—Farmer Found Dead—His Son Arrested.

Hamilton, April 28.—The neighborhood of Stony Creek, a village about six miles from this city, was startled by the finding of the dead body of Elijah Fenton, a well-known and wealthy farmer, and the detention of his son, Thomas, by the county police. The remains of the elder Fenton were discovered near his barn on Tuesday afternoon, the head having been, apparently, battered in, death being due to a fractured skull.

Two solutions have presented themselves. One is that the old man met his death by falling from a barn. The other is that he was hit over the head by some sharp and heavy weapon, perhaps an axe.

The body had been lying where it was found for several hours and death appears to have been instantaneous. Coroner Thompson conferred with Crown Attorney Washington and early yesterday morning Chief Twiss of the county police went out to the scene and took Thomas Fenton into custody. He was brought before Magistrate Lawrason at Dundas, charged with vagrancy, and remanded a week. The most important announcement made last night was that the overalls of the young man, and on which stains were noticed, will be examined to ascertain if they are blood stains. The autopsy on the body was performed yesterday afternoon by Dr. Edgar in Hamilton. The funeral has been set for Friday at 2 p.m., and the inquest is set for the same day.

The deceased was known to be worth about $40,000. He had suffered a great deal of late from his heart and had a number of fainting spells.

Reeve Millen, of Saltfleet, a near friend of the dead man, said: "On Monday night Elijah came over to my house and had a talk with me. He told me a lot, but I must refuse to report a word of what passed between us now. It will come out soon enough, and I don't want to be mixed up with any of them now.

"Tom went away from his father's home on Saturday night, and did not come home till late Monday night."

The son was at the Courthouse Hotel, Hamilton, when the news of the death of his father came in, and he went out home at once. At first he declined to go out to the back where his father's body was. He said that his father must have been hit over the head by thugs and robbed, as he always carried a lot of money in his pockets.

It is understood that the son went out to the barn Tuesday morning a short while after his father. The jurors say there are marks of bloody fingers on the barn door, and that the dead man was evidnetly hit with a four-cornered instrument.

NINE ELEPHANTS STAMPEDE DOING VERY GREAT DAMAGE

They Escaped From a Circus at Danville, Illinois, and Damaged One Hundred Homes—One Elephant Is Still at Large.

Danville, Ills., April 28.—Several persons were injured and much property was damaged yesterday by nine elephants which stampeded just after they had been unloaded from a car after several hours' ride from Chicago.

A large bull elephant made a break for liberty, bowling over the keeper and escaping. The animal was followed by seven other bulls, which ran bellowing through the streets and across fields.

Later, while the entire force of trainers and keepers was engaged in the unusual sport of hunting elephants in automobiles, a female elephant escaped.

For several hours the elephants were at large, hunted by all attaches of the circus, all the city policemen and the more venturesome citizens. The elephants at first moved in a bunch, then separated. They stopped for nothing except brick and stone buildings. Such small frame structures, coal sheds, fences and trees as came in their path were pushed over, trodden down, uprooted and thrown to one side.

At the home of Wm. Miller, three elephants found insufficient room to pass between the summer kitchen and house, so they pushed the kitchen aside, frightening the persons therein from the table, but injuring no one.

At the home of Joseph Peebles, after overturning a shed and killing a horse, one of the animals attacked Peebles and hurled him against the side of his house. Peebles is in a critical condition.

Barney O'Neil, a liveryman, was thrown from his wagon by the elephants as they dashed down a side street in front of his team. F. Krabbe, one of the keepers, while assisting in stabling three of the bulls, after their capture, was hurled against the side of a barn and injured. Several other persons were slightly injured, mostly because of horses, frightened by the pachyderms or through their own fright during the stampede.

More than 100 homes were damaged to some extent by the elephants, but the total loss will probably not exceed $10,000.

Several truck gardens and orchards were partly ruined in the outskirts of the city and many shade trees were broken or uprooted.

One elephant was still at large last night north of Danville, with a force of attendants with trusty elephants after it.

SAVED BY QUICK WORK OF SECTION MEN AND ENGINEER

Clarence Robertson, Two Years of Age, Wandered Away from Home on Bonacord Street and Was Struck by Engine of Passenger Train—Was Not Seriously Injured—Praise for Section Men

Clarence Robertson, the two-year-old son of Mr. John Robertson, Bonacord street, escaped from under the vigilance of his sister about 5.30 last evening, and wandered down the street and onto the Grand Trunk railway track, where he was struck by the cowcatcher of the engine of the passenger tain, which leaves the local station at 5.30 o'clock for Lindsay. By heroic efforts on the part of the driver of the engine and a party of four section men, the child received but slight injuries, and to-day is very little the worse for the mishap. The little fellow, by walking around the rear of the home, was able to go unseen by the sister down the sidewalk, and onto the track. The section men, under Foreman Armstrong, were at work near the crossing on Smith street, and on hearing the approaching train looked down the track and saw the child. They immediately ran toward him, and when the engine hove in sight from around the curve, shouted and signalled to the engineer. He also acted promptly and had almost succeeded in bringing his train to a stop when the child was struck and lifted up into the air, not to be further injured, but be caught in the arms of one of the section men, a young Englishman, who had reached there just in time.

The passengers on the train included a doctor, and he made an examination of the child and found that it was not apparently seriously injured, and Dr. McClelland, who was called soon after, was able to assure the parents that their son would be all right again in a few days. The only mark of an injury is on the right knee, and that is but a small bruise.

To the employees of the railway, and particularly to the young Englishman, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson are grateful indeed, as they feel that it is due to their prompt action that their son is alive.

THIEF'S VISIT TO CRYSTAL WAS AN ILL TIMED ONE

A bold entrance into the Crystal was made last night or early this morning by some thief, who, however, went unrewarded, for his trouble. The window at the rear of the theatorium was smashed and the thief made his way to the box office and forced open the till in the hope of getting some money from the cash drawer. As Mr. Edwards had taken away the proceeds of the day's business at the conclusion of the night's show, as is his regular custom, the trespasser got nothing for his trouble.

The police were informed of the affair and Acting Chief Adams and P. C. Meagher made a visit of inspection to the premises this morning.

GIGANTIC JEWELRY FRAUDS

New York, April 28.—Details of one of the most gigantic jewelry frauds of recent years, with merchants of many of the larger cities as victims, are given out in a formal statement issued by M. de Rothschild, president of the jewelers' board of trade, an organization of jewelers all over the country. The losses may range as high as $2,000,000.

The statement avers that nine men have been arrested. The scheme was to buy jewelry throughout the country and ship to Montgomery, Ala. After that the reports say dummy packings were sent to other stores controlled by the conspirators. These were then credited as real shipments of valuable goods and so listed. The stores were set on fire, it is alleged, and the dummy packages listed as lost assets by the firm in bankruptcy proceedings.

FARM HAND SHOT IN QUARREL

Guelph, April 28.—An Englishman named Risebrook was brought into the hospital here late Tuesday night with a bullet wound in the intestines.

According to the story it appears that Risebrook and a compatriot named Beer were engaged on McCurdy's farm near Campbellville. A quarrel ensued, and Beer is alleged to have drawn a gun and shot Risebrook, the bullet piercing the intestines.

When Risebrook reached the hospital his condition was thought to have been serious, as the bullet had taken a diagonal course, punctured the vertebrae and paralyzed the lower limb. At a late hour last night his condition was considerably improved, he was able to use his legs a little and strong hopes are entertained for his recovery.

LATEST SCHEME TO GET INDUSTRIES

Brantford, April 28.—Brantford Board of Trade has launched a movement for the organization of an industrial underwriting syndicate here, following plans adopted successfully in Williamsport, Pa. The plan is to secure a $200,000 fund for the syndicate, with a capable executive of prominent business men acting in an advisory capacity, so that stock of American firms locating in Canada may be underwritten locally. This inducement is thought to be much more preferable than bonusing, and the granting of land, hard cash and concessions.

Two large industries, the Crown Electrical Co. and the Brantford Shoe Co. have established factories here on the above plan.

IS THERE A CURE FOR RABIES?

There is now a dispute among the doctors as to whether the Pasteur treatment is successful in curing rabies, and some doctors even contend that the Pasteur treatment causes hydrophobia in patients bitten by dogs that were not mad. The uncertainty of cure makes it all the more necessary to prevent the spread of rabies. In the western part of Ontario the dreadful disease has become quite widespread, horses, cows, sheep and pigs being afflicted, as well as dogs. One mad dog running wild can bite a great many dogs and other animals. The regulations regarding the muzzling of dogs should be strictly enforced in any district where there is the slightest suspicion that rabies exists. In Hamilton four different dog owners have been fined one hundred dollars each for allowing unmuzzled dogs in the streets.

TROUBLE IN THE LIBERAL PARTY

Dissensions are rife in the Liberal party, Sir Wilfrid Laurier wants to get rid of Sir Richard Cartwright with a view to putting Hon. Sydney Fisher in his place. Mr Fisher is ambitious to have a title and to be leader of the Senate. Mr. Fisher is a wealthy man and can be useful to the party. Sir Richard Cartwright, on the other hand, is a poor man, and as he has grown old he cannot do active work for the party. It is stated that Sir Wilfrid Laurier was anxious to force his retirement several years ago, but that Sir Richard would not resign. It is alleged that Sir Richard talked about the effort to oust him and that he threatened to tell things about the party if Sir Wilfrid forced the situation. This may or may not be true, but this much certainly is true; A number of years ago at a Liberal banquet in Ottawa Sir Wilfrid Laurier said in the most clear and unmistakeable language that he particularly valued Sir Richard Cartwright because he was always ready to sacrifice his opinions and convictions for the benefit of the Liberal party. No matter how strongly opposed he might be to a policy favored by a majority of the Cabinet, no matter how vigorously he might object to it in the private councils of the party, as soon as it became the accepted policy of the Liberal party he would just as vigorously support it. Sir Wilfrid went back to the days when Sir John Macdonald, Sir Charles Tupper and their associates in the Conservative party first began to advocate the adoption of protection. He said that Sir Richard's convictions were in favor of protection, that he tried to get the Mackenzie Government to adopt it, but when it was found that the majority of the Cabinet were opposed to it Sir Richard Cartwright at once became one of the most strenuous opponents of protection and continued to be throughout the eighteen years that the Conservatives were in power. After the Liberals got into office he had proved equally ready to sacrifice his own opinions and convictions on questions of policy when the interests of the party demanded, and Sir Wilfrid expressed the wish that every Liberal politician were as pliant in this respect as Sir Richard Cartwright. It was at a banquet of Liberal politicians that Sir Wilfrid Laurier said this and he probably intended his words to be heard only by the politicians who were present, but a representative of the Toronto Globe happened to be there and telegraphed the speech to his paper. Anyone who wishes to read Sir Wilfrid's exact words on that occasion can do so by searching the files of the Toronto Globe.

If it is true that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is now trying to oust Sir Richard Cartwright from the Cabinet it is the natural ending of such party loyalty. A leader who expects every follower to sacrifice his convictions and favor policies which he believes to be wrong for the sake of his party will not hesitate to get rid of his faithful servant whenever it may suit his purpose to do so. But while Sir Richard was quite ready to sacrifice his principles and betray his country for the sake of the Liberal party, he is not ready to sacrifice himself, and no doubt he would tell some things about Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Liberal party that would startle the country if the Liberal leader should press him too hard. Therefore, the probability is that Sir Richard Cartwright will retain his position unless Sir Wilfrid Laurier can come to some amicable agreement with him. It is possible that some office may be found that will satisfy Sir Richard and induce him to give way. If the $120,000 just collected for Mr. Fielding by party friends, had been divided with Sir Richard it might have eased the situation somewhat.

But Sir Wilfrid Laurier is not the only one in the Liberal party who wishes to make changes in the Cabinet. Rev. J. A. Macdonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, who is very influential in the party, wants Sir Wilfrid to get rid of Mr. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, and H. H. Dewart, K.C., one of the most influential Liberals in Toronto, has contributed to the Globe a letter on the political situation, in which he says that none of the Cabinet Ministers representing constituencies west of Brockville are of any use to the party organization. He is particularly severe on the Minister of Justice, taking the ground that he should be more active in organization work. He evidently believes that the weakness of the Liberal party in Ontario is due to lack of organization.

The real truth is that the Liberal losses in Ontario are due to lack of principle rather than to lack of organization. The people of Ontario are disgusted with the corruption and general laxity of the Laurier administration. They demand a change, not merely of Cabinet Ministers, but of Cabinet makers. If Sir Wilfrid gets rid of his present Ministers he will select others equally bad.

Another question that is causing embarrassment in the party is a quarrel between the Ontario Club, the most aristocratic Liberal organization in Toronto, and the other Liberal clubs of that city.

ONE COW GIVES MILK FOR FIFTY-SIX PEOPLE

The Hon. Sydney Fisher has claimed credit for the great work accomplished in the Department of Agriculture by Prof. Saunders, Prof. James W. Robertson and their successors. Prof. Saunders and Prof. James W. Robertson were both appointed by a Conservative Government, and they accomplished great things in educating the farmers of Canada to adopt scientific methods in agriculture and dairying. They continued their good work after the Liberals came into office, and it is no exaggeration to say that by teaching the farmers how to get more out of their lands and their animals they added millions of dollars to the wealth of the country. These men deserved titles as much as the great railway builders for assisting in the development of the country. The successors of these men are also doing good work along the same lines, both by lecturing to farmers and by sending out bulletins, giving them information and advice. The latest bulletin issued from the office of the Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner is as follows:—

"In this busy age, when Canada is making a name for herself with big things, waterpowers, timber limits, railroads, real estate deals and so on, it is perhaps as well to remind ourselves that the ordinary farm operations occasionally show very big things. We hear now and then of poor cows and low yields of milk, so we need constantly to bear in mind that huge things are accomplished by the proper combination of the brainy dairyman, good feed and the selected cow. We have plenty of good cows in Canada, some that give 10,000, 15,000 and 20,000 pounds milk in a year. One or two big records were made in March by excellent cows, one lot of six in one herd giving a total yield of 9,285 pounds milk, and some giving as much as seventy pounds of milk in one day. Think of it, one cow giving enough milk to supply the needs of 56 ordinary people at the rate of one pint each. Such cows are not picked up every day. They are not average cows, but they are an indication of what is being accomplished by brain work, applied intelligence in dairying. We need to realize that it is perfectly feasible to do a good deal more raising, not only the much needed raising of the general standard of the average cow so that the 3,000 pounder is no longer to be found, but the raising of a good many more cows of at least the 10,000 lb. type. Dairy records of milk produced and feed consumed, will soon show which cow in the stable of the average dairyman is not worth keeping, and which will respond to more liberal feeding so as to produce milk in abundance. Cow testing associations will help every dairyman to success. Join the nearest to you, or assist in forming a new one."

CANADIAN MAGALINE

Sir Gilbert Parker, the celebrated Canadian novelist, contributes a political article to the May number of The Canadian Magazine, under the title, "The Land for the People." It is an account of a proposal to solve the land question in Britain. "The Arctic Host and Hostess" is the title of a well illustrated article in the same number by Agnes Deans Cameron, author of "The New North." In this article Miss Cameron relates some of her experiences as the guest of Eskimos in the Far North. Mrs. Jean Blewett has an appreciation of Dr. Torrington, the great Toronto organist and choirmaster, and there is a splendid article by Clayton M. Jones, entitled "The Great Silent Force in Canadian Development." "The Spirit of the Dance," by Mazo de la Roche, and "The Twelve Apostles," by St. Clair Moore, are two excellent short stories. There are other interesting things in the number.

A Grateful Mother

Tells of Her Daughter's Recovery.

A mother will always be worried and anxious if one of her daughters should be affected; that from any cause the natural functions of the body become retarded or suppressed. Any irregularity, especially in a growing girl, is apt to be the forerunner of a long chain of sickness, not unfrequently followed by pernicious anaemia or consumption.

"My daughter had just passed her sixteenth year when, owing to an exposure at an inopportune time, an important action of the system ceased." So writes Mrs. Thomas E. St. Nicholas, of Manchester South. "Stella was subject to violent nose bleed—was hysterical and borne down by fits of mental depression. She grew listless and debilitated, and her progress at school was prevented by frequent small ailments which kept her at home. After using Ferrozone six or seven weeks, some signs of improvement came, but not sufficient to show that she would grow natural again. It was fully three months after she had been using Ferrozone before my worry was over. After that her system became natural and regular. I cheerfully recommend Ferrozone for all troubles incident to girlhood and womanhood."

A Message to Laborites.

Melbourne, Australia, April 28.—Hon. Mr. Fisher cabled the following message to British Democracy:

"Go on and take courage from our success. Over 20 years' advocacy of the right of the toilers to fair and reasonable remuneration for their labor has been rewarded with great victory. This victory evidences the determination of the Australian people to prevent the growth of degrading poverty, the tyranny of private monopolies, and the evils of dangerous accumulations of wealth."

AMARYLLIS.

An Explanation That Reconciled the Sweethearts.

By MARTHA M'C.-WILLIAMS.

Outside it was raw and gusty, with white, high lying clouds scudding so thickly across a pale sky that only wan and watery sunshine strained through the breaks between. Inside there was the balm of May, especially in the south parlor, where I knew I should find Myrtilla.

Myrtilla is tall and twenty, with a child's foot and a turn of the head and neck that would become an empress. She has coral red lips, a fine, straight nose, olive skin, dark almond eyes, heavily lashed and lidded, and a low, straight brow, deeply shadowed by dusky floss silk hair. In virtue of all this she reigns as a queen over most men. We had been engaged until two weeks ago—to be exact, until the date of the Verinews' ball and the episode of the Grantley girl.

The ball is ancient history now. Besides, it has really nothing to do with the case. I left off dancing with the Grantley girl at 4 a. m. to fling myself into tweeds and set forth upon a week's journey. Coming home from it, I found my table cumbered with my letters to Myrtilla down to the most fragmentary note—those of the last week unopened—my ring, my books, a bracelet or two, the locket with my picture and a litter of those idiotic things one sends at Christmas and Easter and on birthdays. It was this litter that saved me from utter despair. I reasoned that if Myrtilla had cared enough for me to keep it all this time she could not give up caring for me in a moment.

Still, I knew there was a tough job ahead. But I did not dream she would go to the length of refusing to see or hear me or even to listen to my side of the case through Aunt Bab, most tactful of intermediaries. Her people backed her, too—all but Dicky. Dicky is fifteen and owns the distinction of being the only think in trousers Myrtilla has found herself unable to subjugate. I cannot flatter myself that Dicky's advocacy of my cause was wholly disinterested. Dicky has a fine taste in terrier pups and a relish for stolen gallops on my hunters. At home he is allowed nothing more hazardous than a steady going cob. However that may be, it meant a lot to have any sort of friend at court. Otherwise how should the hall door have swung open at my approach? The servants had strict orders to abut it civilly in my face.

"She's in there. It beats me why you want her, why you want any girl, when you've got heaps of dogs and horses," Dicky said, grinning, as I shot past him. "She's been real hateful polite; no good for even a fight this whole week." Dicky's voice pursued me down the hall.

The south parlor is a square jut, open upon three sides to the sun, with walls more than half windows, iron barred outside and full of green growing things within. There is a big fireplace.

Myrtilla stood in front of it, her eyes intently fixed upon the smoldering logs. At my entrance she started ever so little, turned her head the least bit and kept on staring in the fire.

"Myrtilla." I ventured irresolutely, my hand still on the doorknob.

She sat down and took up her embroidery, her face still further averted. Then I knew I had won half a point. If she had been as angry as she believed herself to be she would have marched away with her nose in the air.

I began again formally, "Miss Grey," but stopped short. She had begun to whistle over her work softly, meditatively, as though she knew herself to be alone.

Something happened then. I am neither poet nor romancer, but my ranging eye saw in the south window a creature of tropic charm, slim and tall, grege gowned as a wood nymph, with wonderful golden tawny eyes and a crown still more wonderfully red. As I went to her she shivered and set all her green gown fluttering defensively, but I paid no heed to it, only said joyously, baring my head:

"Amaryllis! You are a real godsend. I was never so glad to see any one in all my life."

Myrtilla's head came around so that I saw her profile out of the tail of my eye. I fancied she stared, but dared not make sure of it. My wood nymph barely nodded; her tremors were all at rest. I bent toward her low enough to look into her golden tawny eyes and ran on:

"What have you done to yourself? You are so beautiful, so strangely, so rarely beautiful, it makes me desperate that I did not keep my heart for you, or, rather, it would make me desperate if hearts were things that could be given or kept at will."

Certainly the wood nymph stared. The golden tawny eyes looked at me unwinking. Myrtilla's head had turned a little more. Her lips were the least bit parted, as though her breath came hard. I straightened and stuck a hand in my pocket as I added:

"The pity of it! There's a true heart gone to waste! True hearts are none so plenty, Amaryllis."

"Certainly they are not," came scornfully from the fireside. I affected not to hear and went on manfully:

"I've played and lost—lost so miserably. Listen—then tell me if you think I quite deserve what I am getting."

"I am going away," came faintly from Myrtilla's chair, but Myrtilla herself sat still and even made a pretense of putting stitches into her work. Finding me silent through a long minute, she sat very straight and added:

"Naturally one is nervous at finding oneself alone with a lunatic. Only lunatics talk to things as though they were people."

"Don't mind her, Amaryllis," I said softly. "Poor creature, she is jealous. She thinks you are no more than a lily blooming in a pot. We know better, of course."

"Really I did not dream you had so much imagination." Myrtilla said outright, snipping her thread as she spoke.

I stared harder than ever at Amaryllis, saying: "Imagination is a fearful thing sometimes. I am glad, Amaryllis, you altogether lack it. You would never see in ordinary civilities to a pretty girl anything to turn your love-lit golden tawny eyes green."

"Dancing or sitting out every other number, I suppose, comes under the head of 'ordinary civilities,'" Myrtilla said, her lip curling.

I kept on quietly: "And even if you felt hurt you would let me explain. The Verinews have hearts as big as their fortune. Thus it happens I owe them what money can never pay. Not so many years back there was a big flurry in the street that put my governor in the worst sort of hole. It needed a cool million to get him out, and a Verinew million did it. Yet the governor was hardly an acquaintance. Verinew learned his extremity by chance and came to his help because, as he phrased it, he didn't think the other side was putting up a square deal. It does not lessen the obligation that he got his million back, plus a good profit. Eventually the Grantley girl will have it with several millions more. She is a granddaughter—unacknowledged because Muse. Verinew wishes to seem as young as their fortune—but the very apple of the Verinew eye. They wanted her to be the belle of the ball. She was shy and sensitive and frightened half out of her wits. Somehow she trusted me"—

"I don't at all wonder at that," said a voice from the fireplace.

I bowed gravely and resumed: "When she is not frightened she is pretty. Amaryllis. Her head is splendidly red—not quite so red as yours. She is light on her feet, too, and loves to dance as well as the flowers do. The trouble is she has not yet quite caught the rhythms she must move to, so needs must lean heavily upon her partner. I understood some of the others did not. Occasionally one was flurried, still more occasionally one impertinent. And a single cad let her see he was ashamed of dancing with her in spite of the millions. At her first ball—think of it! I had to take away the sting of it somehow. Perhaps I did seem devoted, but she didn't understand. I told her about Myrtilla in our very first waltz."

A little inarticulate cry from the fireplace here. Covertly I saw tears on Myrtilla's cheeks. She made as though to rise, but sank back, turned away her head and resumed the furious stabbing with her needle. I gathered the greenery of Amaryllis in my hands, laid my cheek against it and said dreamily:

"Amaryllis, tell me why I am fated to love dusky hair. All the painters and poets agree that red is ever so much more beautiful."

"Are you sure, quite sure, you do love it?" Myrtilla asked tremulously. She was not answered in words.

Five minutes later Dicky, bursting in upon us, found us side by side, looking down at Amaryllis through sunshine grown suddenly and magically warm and golden. After a long look Dicky whistled, turned on his heel and said from the door over his shoulder: "So you two have made it up. McSnifters said you would 'cause that red lily bloomed so far ahead of time. But I don't care about that. All I want is to know what you're goin' to give me when you get married."

Old Italian Pantomime.

If we can believe a traveler's tale the pantomimes in Italy of the seventeenth century exceeded even present day productions in strange stage effects. An anonymous writer quoted in "Broadbent's History of Pantomime" describes a piece called "Neroue Infante," produced in Rome at the Theatre Capranio in 1698, in which was exhibited the interior of hell. "The stage opened," says the chronicler, "and discovered a scene underneath representing the river of Lethe full of infernal spirits spitting fire while Charon's boat made its way across. Upon landing a prodigious monster appeared whose mouth nearly covered the whole of the stage and emitted a number of monstrous snakes. The monster moved toward the audience, who shrieked with horror, but in a moment it was transformed into a multitude of broad white butterflies, which flew into the pit so low that some touched the spectators' heads. At the same time the scene changed into a beautiful garden."—London Chronicle.

Meanings of the Word "Stove."

The word "stove" as applied to a heater for a room seems to be of about the same age as the article to which the name is now applied, for, while the word as a name had an existence in early English, it was used in a different sense. Both Lord Bacon and Woodward used it as referring to a house or room artificially warmed and particularly a hothouse for plants. Bacon also used the word as a verb in the way of keeping warm in a house or room, as "to stove orange trees and myrtles," to quote from his writings. Pepys used the verb in a nautical sense, as heating for the purpose of making pliable, as "stove bolt ropes." But all these definitions are obsolete now, such disuse dating from the time when Dr. Franklin made his discoveries and applications. The French word "etuve," it may be added, describes a hothouse or bathing room and hence is parallel in meaning with the early English word.

What Jowett Said.

In spite of the reputation for latitudinarianism he gained from his early trial for heresy, the late Prof. Jowett of Oxford was intolerant of pretentiousness and shallow conceit. One self-satisfied undergraduate met the master one day. "Master," he said, "I have searched everywhere in all philosophies, ancient and modern, and nowhere do I find the evidence of a God." "Mr. ——," replied the master after a shorter pause than usual, "if you don't find a God by five o'clock this afternoon you must leave this college."—Argonaut.

Catarrh and Bronchitis

The Bane of Thousands, and has Hitherto Baffled the Skill of Medical Science.

Catarrhozone

Dry air treatment is the one treatment that will cure these diseases.

What stomach medicine has ever been known to cure Catarrh or Bronchitis?

Catarrhozone is not a stomach medicine, but an air medicine, that carries to the remotest parts of the throat, lungs, and air cells little drops of healing so curative that whenever it touches germ life it kills and eradicates them from the system.

Thousands of doctors and patients have been disappointed by using stomach medicines for coughs and colds. Have you not found it a rather roundabout way to reach the diseased portion of the throat and lungs?

Why not use Catarrhozone, which is breathed to the very root of the disease and heals so quickly and perfectly that every spot is rebuilt with new healthy tissue?

Catarrhozone is the only medicine that will cure. Thousands have testified.

Think for a moment. Is it not sense? Little drops of healing—the air carries them just where disease exists. That is why

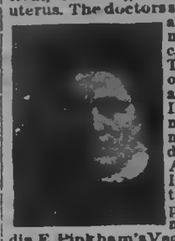
TUMOR OF YEARS GROWTH

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"Eleven years ago I went to the Victoria Hospital, Montreal, suffering with a growth in the uterus. The doctors said it was a tumor, and could not be removed, as it would cause instant death. They found that other organs were affected and said I could not live more than six months in the condition I was in. After I came home I saw your advertisement in the paper and commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it constantly for two years, and still take it at times, and both my husband and myself claim that it was the means of saving my life. I highly recommend it to suffering women."—Mrs. ORILLA BRADLEY, 284 Johnson Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba.



One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy—tumor. If you have mysterious pains, inflammation, ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation, but try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills.

Woman's World

TEDDY JUNIOR'S FIANCEE.

Sister Ethel to Be One of Miss Alexander's Bridesmaids.

The wedding of Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Miss Eleanor Butler Alexander of New York city will not take place until after Colonel Roosevelt's return from Africa and the subsequent quieting down of the family.

This was the statement of young Mr. Roosevelt recently when a request to see Miss Alexander brought him into the reception hall of the Alexander home.

The maid who answered the door bell and smiled and declared that she would tell Miss Alexander of the reporter's presence. A young man came out of the room into which the maid had disappeared. He was democratic and hearty in his greeting. He was of medium height, blue eyed, considerably tanned and wore a blue serge suit.

"I'm Mr. Roosevelt," he said, pulling down his coat a trifle nervously, then smiling broadly. Then there could have been no doubt be was the son of the man who has been pictured a thousand times saying "Dee-lighted!"

"Say, this is very strenuous, announcing an engagement," Mr. Roosevelt said. "But everybody has been so nice it makes it splendid. Now, what did you want to see Miss Alexander about? Perhaps I can tell you what you want to know."

"There are four questions," was the reply. "Have any arrangements been made in regard to the wedding? Will the trousseau be imported or home-made? Does Miss Alexander take any interest in politics? How does she stand on the suffragette question?"

Teddy junior didn't study over the matter very long, but answered with the assurance of a fiance who feels very confident of his knowledge of the lady's mind.

"The wedding will not take place until after my father's return—that is positive—and probably not until next summer," he said. "My sister Ethel will probably be one of the bridesmaids and Miss Elizabeth Bertron the maid of honor. But no more definite plans than those have been made.

MISS ELEANOR BUTLER ALEXANDER.

"Miss Alexander hasn't any trousseau idea as yet. Why, how could she? The styles might change in the meantime, might they not? As to whether it will be imported or not—well, different parts come from different places, don't they?

"No. Miss Alexander doesn't care anything about politics—I mean, not more than anybody else cares about politics. Well, she is just interested as a person is interested in anything that goes on, but that one doesn't think much about.

"No, indeed," and here Mr. Roosevelt shook his head with much determination, "she doesn't care a bit about this suffrage foolishness. The thought of it has never come into her head."

Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't know where they were going to live, as it was possible that he would be transferred from Hartford, where he is employed in the carpet works. He said he didn't care much where he lived so long as he gets along nicely.

The Flower Craze Continues.

Sets of artificial flowers will be just as popular this spring as they have been all winter. The same blossom or collection of blossoms will decorate the dainty parasol, the becoming straw or lingerie hat and appear as milady's corsage bouquet. The illustration shows the attractive use of these flower adornments.

A Good Prize.

It is a curious fact that Sir William Ramsay, professor of chemistry at the London (Eng.) University, who is appealing for funds on behalf of new laboratories, was warned against adopting chemistry as a profession. "There are too many blanks and too few prizes," he was told. But Sir William has proved himself quite capable of drawing some of the prizes. He it was who, together with Lord Rayleigh, discovered the new element "argon," the two scientists sharing a prize of $10,000 awarded by the Smithsonian Institute for the discovery.

FRIENDLY ADVICE.

Josh Billings' Parting Shot to a Cheeky Drummer.

About Christmas time once the sometime famous Josh Billings, humorist, was on his way to his old home at Lanesboro, Mass. On the train were three traveling men who wanted a game of whist. One of them pointed to unpretentious and unprepossessing Josh and said:

"Let's ask Rube into the game and comb some of the hayseed out of his hair."

"My venerable friend," he said as he laid his hand on the shoulder of the old man, "will you join us in a game of whist?"

"Ya-as; we will get there in about three hours," replied Josh, putting his hand to his ear.

"You don't seem to understand," said the young fellow in a louder tone. "We want you to take a hand"—

"Ya-as; the stand o' corn has been unusual good this year."

"My friend," the young fellow then yelled, "will you take a hand in a game?"

"Ya-as; I was tellin' Mandy this mornin' how plenty an' how fat the game is this year."

"Oh, you go to the devil!" shouted the young fellow as he took his seat, while the other drummers unmercifully pestered him.

When Lanesboro was reached the old fellow got up, handed one of his Josh Billings cards to each one of the trio and then said to his interlocutor:

"Young man, while you are traveling on your cheek don't get any hayseed on your clothes or the other drummers will take you for a Rube and get you into some game and skin you."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

WEDDING BELLS

MANLEY—DELONG.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Delong, Douro, on April 27th, when their second daughter, Vera Maude, was united in marriage to Mr. John Wesley Manley, of Peterborough. Rev. J. R. Bonner, of Smith, performed the ceremony, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends of the bride and groom. The bride was handsomely dressed in cream bedford cord.

After supper was served the happy couple left on the 5.30 train for Toronto and Niagara Falls.

The handsome presents displayed show the esteem in which the young couple are held.

MIDDLETON—MANNING

A very pretty wedding of unusual interest to many people of Peterborough was solemnized in Whitby, on Tuesday, April 26th, when Frances Willard, second daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Manning, was united in marriage to Dr. J. E. Middleton, of this city, only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom being present. The Rev. H. M. Manning conducted the ceremony in the drawing-room, which was beautifully decorated with bride's roses and smilax. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white ivory satin. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Kate Manning, sister of the bride. Miss Doris Milner, of Brantford, gracefully performed the duty of flower girl.

After the ceremony a very dainty repast was served, and the happy couple left for Toronto. A large number of beautiful gifts, including two substantial cheques, testified to the high esteem in which they are held. On their return Dr. and Mrs. Middleton will take up residence at 388 Rogers street, East City.

BENEFIT CONCERT TO MISS HALIHAN

To Assist Her in Pursuit of Her Musical Studies

A few days ago a number of citizens met to discuss the idea of a complimentary benefit concert to Miss Lavina Halihan, whose splendid work in the "Geisha" company received such commendatory remarks from the Governor-General. The object of the concert is to afford our citizens an opportunity of evidencing in a tangible manner their appreciation of Miss Halihan's musical abilities and thereby enable her to further pursue her musical studies. An executive committee has been formed composed of Messrs. MacFarlane Wilson, W. McIlroy, F. D. Kerr, W. Rudkins, R. J. Devey and R. Giddon. Mr. Wilson was elected chairman, Mr. Kerr, secretary, and Mr. McIlroy, treasurer.

A number of other leading citizens are now being asked to help this commendable movement by becoming honorary members of this committee.

BED FOLDED ON SLEEPING COUPLE

New York, April 27.—Groans from the apartment occupied by Willard Smith and wife in a boarding house on West Thirty-sixth street early today attracted the attention of other tenants. When they broke down the door and entered they found the couple doubled up in their folding bed. Smith was dead, his neck having been broken, and Mrs. Smith nearly smothered. The bed had closed while they were asleep. Mrs. Smith was taken to the hospital and will recover.

Smith was a wealthy wall paper manufacturer with a factory in Waterbury, Conn. He and Mrs. Smith arrived here two days ago and went to the boarding house, which was their usual stopping place while in this city.

THE CHIMES OF ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

Subscribers to the Fund Asked to To Meet in Bank of Montreal Chambers Friday Evening

The small committee who have been collecting for the chimes have called a meeting of subscribers to be held in the Bank of Montreal chambers tomorrow, (Friday) evening, at eight o'clock.

Owing to the wide co-operation of citizens generally the project has now assumed far larger proportions than when inaugurated. Various suggestions have also been made which call for consideration and replies will be given to several letters of enquiry.

"It is becoming to be more and more generally realized that the whole city is necessarily interested in this movement as any mistake might result in jarring and unpleasant sounds while a beautiful rich-toned chime would waft pleasing melodies over the whole city and suburbs," said a member of the committee to-day. "In view of these facts the committee feel that brief consultation is advisable and hope that in the public interests a large and representative meeting may be held to which all interested citizens are invited.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

SUPERIOR PROGRAMME AT THE FORMAL OPENING OF ST. ALPHONSE'S LYCEUM

Singing of Miss Maggie McCann Proves a Delight to Enthusiastic Audience — Assisting Local Talent Gave Interesting Numbers — Concert Will be Repeated This Evening.

"St. Alphonse's Lyceum," the dignified name given to the new home of the societies of St. Peter's by His Lordship, Bishop O'Connor, was formally opened last night in brilliant and successful fashion when a delightfully entertaining programme of superior merit was given by Miss Margaret McCann, the distinguished mezzo soprano, assisted by talented local contributors. A large and most enthusiastic audience assembled in the commodious auditorium of the new hall, and every number on the programme won immediate approval. It is a matter of congratulation that the services of Miss McCann were available for the important occasion, which was an appropriate and auspicious celebration of a new era in the splendid progress of the T.A.B. and other societies of the parish of St. Peter's.

Miss McCann's art is of the highest and most refreshing type, her beautiful voice and very pleasing expression establishing her a great favorite with the audience from her first number to the end of her interesting and well chosen repertoire. Although Miss McCann was announced as the Australian queen of Scottish song, her range of interpretative powers is remarkable, and she was as equally at home in other numbers, as in the "lingering" ballads of the heatherland. She is undoubtedly one of the most versatile and cultured vocalists that has ever favored a Peterborough audience, and should she ever visit this city again it would seem that she would be assured of a most cordial welcome.

The opening number of the programme was a spirited march by the Glee Club, who played in splendid harmony and with excellent finish. For their encore number they gave Paul Lincke's pretty idyll, "The Glow Worm." The boys of St. Peter's school acquitted themselves to great advantage in the patriotic song, "Where the Wild Flowers Blossom and the Sugar Maple Grows." They sang with confidence and expression, and their creditable work evoked a storm of applause, to which they responded by repeating the selection. Miss Maggie Hurley acted as accompanist.

A cute and taking parasol drill by a number of convent girls followed, and they were generously applauded for their commendable work. The accompaniment for the drill was played by Miss Marion Germon.

Miss McCann, on her appearance, was given a flattering reception, and the quality of her work fully justified the audience's anticipations. Her first number was the Scottish favorite, "Doon the Burn Davie Lovet," and the number was piquantly sung, Miss McCann's splendid understanding of the dialect of Bobbie Burns' land making it thoroughly enjoyable. "The Rosary" was the next of the trio of songs, and was given with fine sympathy and beautiful expression. Lady Dufferin's "Terence's Farewell" was the last number of the group, and was exquisitely interpreted by the charming artiste. The audience was most insistant in its demand for an encore, and on her recall Miss McCann captivatingly sang the ever popular "Comin' Through the Rye."

The next selection was "Fairy Bells," given by a chorus of convent girls, and in the chorus realistic bell effects were introduced. The selection was received with warm applause. Miss Kathleen O'Brien was at the piano for this chorus.

One of the most popular numbers of the evening was "What the Midgets Say," in which a dozen juveniles from St. Peter's school held the floor. A few of the number introduced themselves by telling how great men had once been helpless infants and the boys then made a very humorous departure in singing in chorus the continuous return of a persistent cat that preferred home sweet home to any place else. The audience would not be satisfied till the youngsters made a second appearance. Miss Bernice Giroux presided at the piano.

"Caller Herrin'" ("Kathleen Mavourneen," the Japanese love song of the ardent admiration of the little man on the package of tea for the lady with the fan, were the numbers of the next group of songs given by Miss McCann. In "Caller Herrin'" her wide range of voice was employed with splendid effect, and the number proved one of the most attractive of her repertoire. Her rendition of "Kathleen Mavourneen" touched a responsive chord and prolonged applause greeted her singing of this haunting number. At the conclusion of the song Miss McCann was presented with a lovely bouquet amid a storm of applause. The Japanese love song was a highly appreciated number, and Miss McCann had one of the best opportunities of her programme to show her native gift of humor of a very infectuous order. She was enthusiastically encored and bowed her acknowledgement of the audience's hearty plaudits.

An original feature of the programme was the whistling and bird imitations by J. H. Werden, formerly of Rochester, but now of this city. Mr. Werden proved himself an accomplished and entertaining whistler, his imitative work being especially interesting. He whistled a tuneful march in response to the encore accorded him.

Miss Carrie White, who is always a favorite with Peterborough audiences, recited "Yes, I'm Guilty" with dramatic expression and intelligent feeling. Her elocution was of the most lifelike and impressive character, and she fully merited the encouraging appreciation of her efforts that was shown by the audience.

The concluding numbers on the programme were two songs by Miss McCann, "Come Under My Plaidie" and a tender ballad of the south, "Hommie, Mine, Good Night." Both were given in a most artistic fashion and were greeted with fervent applause.

Mr. John Armstrong acted as accompanist for Miss McCann, and Mr. Welden also, and played with his usual skill and sympathy.

The programme will be repeated tonight, when Miss McCann will change her repertoire of songs, and the excellence of last night's concert would indicate that a capacity audience will be in attendance this evening.

During the evening His Lordship Bishop O'Connor thanked the audience for turning out in such encouraging numbers. The bishop spoke of the growth of the societies of the church, making it necessary to obtain larger quarters, and briefly explained the layout of the hall and the purposes for which the different rooms would be used. The new building would stand for the moral, mental and physical betterment of the members of the societies. His Lordship announced that in response to the invitation extended to him to name the new hall he had chosen the name of "St. Alphonse's Lyceum."

Rev. Father McColl expressed his gratitude to those in attendance for their patronage, and was greatly pleased that the programme was so much enjoyed.

WEST ENDS AND T.A.S. ARE DRAWN TO OPEN LEAGUE

First Double Header to be Played Saturday May 21st and Schedule Will Close July 23rd—Each Club to Play Nine Games—League Meeting Friday Night.

The committee appointed to draw up a playing schedule for the Peterborough City Amateur Baseball League met last night and accomplished this thankless job, but a careful investigation of the arrangement should satisfy all four clubs.

The West Ends and T.A.S. champions took up for the first game, with the former at home. It was agreed that the Abstainers were due the honor of opening the league, and as worthy contenders they were given worthy opponents.

The Strathcona and T.A.S. will have four first games and six seconds, while the P.A.C. and West Ends are drawn just the opposite. The team which will wear the green and white this season, will depend somewhat on players from the local banks, and the four o'clock hour will, therefore, be satisfactory. Each of the four teams will play nine games. In the matter of home games the T.A.S. and Strathcona will, in accordance with a clause of the constitution, be called upon to furnish balls on six occasions to the other two clubs' four, but taking a fair view of the schedule arrangement it would appear that all clubs will get a square deal. The first named team is the home team. The schedule follows:—

May 21—
West Ends vs T. A. S.
P. A. C. vs Strathconas.

June 4—
Strathconas vs West Ends.
T. A. S. vs P. A. C.

June 11—
P. A. C. vs West Ends.
T. A. S. vs Strathconas.

June 18—
Strathconas vs P. A. C.
T. A. S. vs West Ends.

June 25—
P. A. C. vs T. A. S.
West Ends vs Strathconas.

July 2—
Strathconas vs T. A. S.
West Ends vs P. A. C.

July 9—
T. A. S. vs West Ends.
P. A. C. vs Strathconas.

July 16—
Strathconas vs West Ends.
T. A. S. vs P. A. C.

July 23—
West Ends vs P. A. C.
T. A. S. vs Strathconas.

This schedule will be presented at Friday night's meeting for adoption.

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE TO MEET

Important Meeting Called for To morrow Night at Eight O'clock in Y.M.C.A.

To-morrow night a meeting of the City Baseball League will be held in the Y.M.C.A., and representatives of the clubs are requested to be on hand sharp at eight o'clock. The entrance fee and deposit are payable at the meeting. The schedule was drawn up last night and will be presented for adoption.

It is understood that the T.A.S. club will endeavor to add an amendment to the constitution, which will allow players whose homes are in this city, but who are at present absent, to play in the league this season.

HE THINKS THAT JOHNSON DOES TOO MUCH TALKING

San Francisco, April 26.—W. W. Naughton, the Pacific Coast boxers' expert, says: "Methinks the lady doth protest too much," said one of the characters in a Shakespearian play, and ever since too much talk on any subject has been regarded as a sign of weakness.

If all the interviews published with Jack Johnson recently are authentic, the champion is talking "to beat the band." What's more, he does not "preserve the unities" to any appreciable extent. For instance, the other day Jack is reported to have said, and with some show of wisdom seemingly, that if he had mapped out any particular plan of fighting Jeffries, he was not going to let the public in on the secret.

A day or so later Jack said that he was going right after Jeffries the moment the gong signalled the advance and was going to keep after him until the man from Burbank sprawled upon the floor.

Jack is sneering at the helpers Jeffries is gathering around him. He refers to Corbett, Choynski, Bob Armstrong and Farmer Burns as antediluvians and opines that they will be a little service to Jeffries while the latter is training.

"I am going to have a lot of young huskies around me—fellows who can stand wear and tear and serve out stiff punches on their own account," is what Jack is reported as saying.

Seeing that no fighter possessing the first principles of humanity exerts all his force and talent on a sparring partner, it is a question whether men of experience, such as Jeffries has selected, are not of more service to a boxer undergoing preparation than an outfit of human punching bags. In a way Choynski, Corbett, Armstrong and Farmer Burns are veterans; but each of them has a world of valuable experience to draw upon. Choynski is the only man who has earned the credit of knocking out Jack Johnson, and Jeffries has always admitted that the hardest punch he ever received from an opponent was from Joe Choynski. These things carry with them the suggestion that Choynski is a valuable man to have around at this particular time. What is more, Choynski always was a student of matters pugilistic, and will no doubt be able to give Jeffries valuable pointers in respect to Johnson's ring methods.

Jim Corbett, again, is a walking encyclopedia of everything that pertains to jabs and wallops. Jim is about the most effective self-taught boxer known in the ring. Bob Armstrong is a useful trial horse and one who lightens the labors of the training grind with his native good humor and his flow of wit.

Farmer Burns is probably one of the wisest men that Jeffries has around him. His stock of 'book larnin'" is scarce, and the chances are if you mentioned Nathaniel Hawthorne to him, he would want to know who Nat ever licked. But the farmer has been a long time on the road as an athlete and has marked, learned and inwardly digested a great deal that has been useful to him and the men he has had to do with.

Port Hope Ped Will Make Another Attempt to Get a Fall on the Route of His Former Defeats

Mr. James Reynolds received a reply from Mr. John Seip, of Galt, this morning, stating that he would accept his offer of $500 to $1,000 to walk to Toronto and return in 34 hours on June 20th. Reynolds, it will be remembered, offered the above wager or $300 to $600 that he could make the journey in 35 hours on May 24th. Mr. Seip preferred to wager more money and allow Jimmy less time.

Jimmy is quite pleased that his offer has been accepted, and an agreement is now being prepared. Mr. Reynolds will go to Toronto in a few days with the agreement and also $50 to bin tothe bargain.—Port Hop: Guide

YUSSIF MAHMOUT WON THIS BOUT

Montreal, April 27.—Yussiff Mahmout, the Turk, to-night won the first of the series of matches to be wrestled here, at Buffalo, Kansas City and Chicago, to decide who will have the eright to meet Gotch in a championship battle. He defeated Raoul de Rouen in 18 minutes for the first and 16 minutes for the third fall. The second went to de Rouen in 25 minutes. The match was at mixed styles. The Turk won both falls when the style was catch-as-catch-can, and lost when it was Graeco-Roman. The bout was the fastest heavyweight go of the season here and was marked by a good deal of rough work on both sides. Zebysco and Cutler will probably be the next pair to meet in the tournament and the match will probably come off at Buffalo.

BASEBALL

Toronto took another from Baltimore yesterday. The score was 4—3 and the game was anybody's up to the last innings. Deal had the only error of the berp.

Six to three was the score at Jersey City with Buffalo having played the better ball and on the long end of the figures.

By falling down on a double play in the last innings, Montreal allowed two Indians to score, and the game was lost.

Providence had four errors to Rochester's one, but managed to win by a batting rally in the fourth.

Newark has a pretty fair record, 6 wins, and but 1 loss.

Fred Falkenburg, twirling for Cleveland, won against Walsh.

Detroit had an easy win from St. Louis. Both teams were all to the bad.

It was 11—1 at Boston, with Washington having the one. Boston secured 21 hits.

Philadelphia lost their second game of the season to New York, batting against Matthewson.

The Pittsburg champions lost to the Cubs, being unable to do much with McIntyre, who was steady with the cushions occupied.

Fred Mitchell, is occupying space on the bench for the Highlanders.

SPORTING COMMENT

The departure of "Teddy" Miller from Lindsay means the loss of a good baseball player. He was one of the old Redskins and was a member of the championship team of the Midland League in 1901.—Post.

Christy Mathewson, in commenting upon last season, says that only once did he gave a base on balls to a batsman when he was actually working hard to make him hit.

Ten cases of drinking water have been shipped to Jack Johnson's California training camp. Upon his arrival on the coast the champion will hire a chef to prepare his meals, and the utmost precaution will be taken to see that the food is in proper shape when it is served.

"Bugs" Raymond, who between drinks used to pitch ball for the New York Giants, has quit the team. The ever-thirsty "Bugs" had another run in with Manager McGraw, who insisted that, as "Bugs" was drawing a fat salary, he ought to at least dry out once a week, and be in form.

SHE COULD NOT HOLD A TEACUP

But Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Mrs. James H. White

They took away her backache, cured her urinary troubles and made her a well woman.

Prevelle, Gaspe Co., Que., April 27. (Special.)—After suffering for four years from ills which many a woman knows, and being treated by a doctor, who failed to give her relief, Mrs. James H. White, a farmer's wife living near here, is again a well woman. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.

"My trouble started from a strain," Mrs. White states. "I had a pain always across my back and a steady pain in the back of my neck, and I had urinary trouble that caused me a great deal of annoyance.

"For four years I suffered in this way and the doctor I consulted did not do me any lasting good. In the morning I was dizzy and I finally got so nervous I could not hold a cup.

"Then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I got relief right from the start. Three boxes cured me completely. To-day I am a well woman."

Mrs. White's troubles were Kidney trouble. So are the troubles of nine out of ten of the suffering women of Canada to-day. That is why Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure them.

Saving became a passion with the man and the woman. No privation was too great if so by it they might add to their accumulations. And they labored jointly. The woman's sacrifice was in every respect equal to that of the man.

But when they had amassed $10,000 the man, because he had the power, took the money and purchased with it not the automobile which he had led his faithful wife to expect, but a home. "Brute!" she cried, and when next a mob of suffragettes came this way she joined them. Who could blame her?—Puck.

THE REVIEW'S STORY FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

The FAIRY DETECTIVE.

A Scandal in Mouseville.

BY RUPERT HUGHES.

[Copyright, 1910, by Rupert Hughes. All rights reserved.]

IT was as pretty a sight as you ever saw. The little girl, in her snow white nursery, in her snow white gown, was kneeling at her snow white bed.

"And—and," the little girl was saying, afraid to forget to remember somebody and having a hard time to keep awake, "and bless the dolls and the Angora cat and the fox terrier and—and—oh, yes, and bless the Fairy Detective, and let me see him again some time, and make it a nice day to-morrow so that I can play—and—I guess that's all. A"—— She was going to say "Amen," but she said "A-wow!" and jumped to her feet and pounced into her bed with a yowl.

"Whatever is it that's got into ye the night?" said Bridget.

The little girl gasped:—"A m-m-mouse ran over one of my bare feet."

"Sufferin' snakes!" shrieked the nurse, as she jumped into the air and lighted on a chair. A tiny mouse was scooting here and there along the wall. It looked like a couple of chocolate creams on wheels.

After a long time Bridget got the courage to dash for the closet and get a broom. Then the little girl got a broom herself—a child's broom that she used for sweeping out the dolls' house. Bridget and she chased the mouse here and there, pounding the floor black and blue and breaking nearly everything in the room except the mouse. The outlandish racket would have brought the father and mother up to save the house from being knocked down, but they had gone out to dinner.

Finally the mouse was out of breath and in a corner, afraid to move either way. Bridget was just about to bring her weapon down with a finishing blow when the little girl put up her arm, crying, "Don't! Don't—ouch!" The "ouch" was for her arm, which Bridget whacked with a broom handle.

Bridget paused and stared, and the mouse said in a very minute and mousish tone:—

"Cheerful Cheese, don't you know me?"

"See! See! It's the Fairy Detective," squealed the little girl. "It's the Fairy Detective."

And while Bridget stared, speechless, the little girl knelt and took the mouse up in her hands as if it were a canary bird.

"Oh, you've come back again! You've come back again! And I'm so glad to see you! But what brings you to our house?"

"I came on business," he answered; "on a most pe-cu-liar mouse matter."

"Has there been a mouse war or a mouse murder, or something?"

"Worse than that—gossip! The people are talking in Mouseville about Mrs. Molly Mouse, of Attic avenue."

"But who is Mrs. Molly Mouse and where is Attic avenue?"

The mouse opened his eyes so wide they almost rolled into his ears. "You don't know where Attic avenue is? Well, I am surprised! Why, Attic avenue runs between Garret terrace and Shingle street! It contains some of the largest buildings there—the old Bureau Family Hotel, for instance. Well, Mrs. Molly lived there in a very swell flat. She was a widow, her husband having been attacked by a terrible footpad."

"What's a footpad, please?"

"Why, a footpad is something with padded feet. It was your Angora cat that got Mr. Maurice Mouse, leaving his wife Molly to wear mourning and care for a large family, and now they say that she has eloped with a foreigner from the next town."

"Where is the next town? Is it far?"

"Yes, indeed. It's all the way to the next house. Now, it's bad enough to elope with a foreigner, but it's more than bad enough to leave your little mice-lets to starve. And that's what the neighbor mice say Mrs. Molly Mouse has done."

"And have they starved?" sighed the little girl.

"Not yet."

"How long does it take a micelet to starve?"

"Well, that depends of course on how much food it gets while it's starving. These micelets have starved fatter and fatter, because the neighbors took pity on them, but the neighbors are beginning to get tired of charity."

"There's nothing that people grow tired of so quick as feeding somebody else," said Bridget.

The mouse looked at her with some vexation. "Please don't interrupt. Finally some of the mouse neighbors sent a petition to my father, the King of the Elves, and my father sent me to see what I could do about it. He ordered me to find the heartless mother and drag her back to her children. So I came here and donned this disguise. Whew, but it's terrible tight! We elves aren't very large, but we're larger than this mouse hide, and I can hardly breathe. And my nose is so long and sharp that I keep bunting it into everything before I know I've really got there. People tell me my eyes are very handsome, but after being a squirrel with a feather boa tail I must say that this piece of twine string that's fastened to me now isn't much of a comfort.

"And then it's such a sad life. Everybody is down on mice. Now, when I was a squirrel everybody was offering me peanuts and crackers and candies. I was called to and thrown things to by children and old ladies and boys and old gentlemen. Even the dogs were kept on chains so they couldn't get at me.

"But mice! Oh! Puppy dogs—oh! kitten cats—all kinds of animals—are trained to hurt us. Even the rats bully us and growl and bark at us and take our food away.

"And even the food isn't safe. Some of it is tied to wires, and when we bite it we get caught by a cruel snapper and slowly choke to death, or we find when it is too late that it has been spread with something that looks and tastes as nice as maple syrup but has a very different effect. I've had some of the narrowest escapes. As a matter of fact, I have actually been killed a dozen times, but, fortunately, being an elf, I'm immortal and it doesn't bother me much to be killed. But it's a sad life being a mouse. We mouses—or mice, I should say—are afraid of everybody, but nobody is afraid of us."

"Except elephants and women," said Bridget.

The Fairy Detective winked at the little girl and shrugged his shoulders. "Your friend here is a splendid interrupter, isn't she? But, as I was saying, I had no sooner put on my disguise than a cat"——

"Oh, you mean our Angora," screamed the little girl; "she's a beautiful mouser."

"That sounds fine to you," sniffed the Fairy Detective, "but it isn't so pretty in our ears. A beautiful mouser, eh?" I suppose the ogres who used to eat children would call themselves beautiful childers."

"Ugh!" said the little girl, and she felt as if her backbone had turned to an icicle. "Let's not talk about ogres just at bedtime. How did you escape the Angora?"

"I made a dash for a hole in the wall and I got to it before she got to me. I found the space between the walls. That's the mouse's fire escape, you know. I am going to look for that mother mouse. I'm searching this house from garret to cellar to see if there isn't some place where she is kept prisoner. She may have been lured into a cruel trap or captured by that fiend of a cat or that mouse murdering dog. Do you happen to know of any traps anywhere?"

"There's one in the cellar," said Bridget, "but the cook always looks after it of a morning and drowns any mice she finds there."

"Drowns them!" squealed the mouse. "Oh, captivating cat whiskers! Would you listen to the ogress! Take her away!"

"Does the cook always drown all the mice?"

"Always," said Bridget.

"Always, always or just nearly always?"

"Well, usually always," said Bridget; "sometimes she forgets. And now I do be rememberin' that this very mornin' she was after telling me she had the rheumatism that had she couldn't manage the cellar steps."

The Detective whisked his ears and tapped his nose, exclaiming, "Aha! If you'll pardon me I'll just have a look at that trap." The little girl slipped her arms into her blue elderdown bathrobe and slipped her feet into her crocheted slippers and Bridget put on a shawl and the three started down stairs.

They went very cautiously down the dark cold stairway into the damp, dark, dismal cellar.

Over in a corner they found the trap, a sort of beehive of wire. And there inside of it, sure enough, was a little gray mouse running like mad round and round the wire room.

The Fairy Detective approached and said in mousese:—"Don't take on so, madam," he said; "there is really no danger. They are not going to drown you."

"I'm not thinking of me," squealed Mrs. Mouse; "I'm thinking of my poor little squakers. Are they well? Has the cat got them? Have they had any food? Have any of those horrible humans found them? Do they miss their mother?"

"Yes. No. Yes. No. Yes," answered the mouse. "If you'll only be calm everything will be all right."

The little girl was overjoyed at the scene. She insisted on picking the trap up and carrying it to the garret.

They went to the Bureau Family Hotel and opened the drawer which the Detective pointed out.

There the little girl found a few bits of fluff which would some day grow to be mice if they weren't prevented. She opened the trap and the mother mouse dived into the nest and began nussling her children about to see if they were all there. They were rather stupid and simply grumbled and cooed and whistled in a tiny way.

The little girl thought it a beautiful sight, but the Detective said:—

"Better come away, for when Mrs. Molly comes to her senses she'll be so scared at the sight of you that she'll elope again."

So the little girl closed the drawer and she and Bridget and the Detective and the candle left the garret to darkness and contentment. They went back to the little girl's room and the Detective put out his tiny paw to shake hands.

Just then the Detective caught sight of the clock and exclaimed:—

"Capering cats! It's to-morrow and I ought to have gone yesterday. I've another job on hand. There's trouble among some gold fish in an aquarium down the block. So goodby till we meet again!"

"Don't go!" pleaded the little girl, and made a grab, but she grabbed only a handful of air. The elf mouse leaped right into the window pane and vanished like a melting snowflake.

Directions for Making Bed.

IT is quite easy to make a very nice bed for the paper dolls, and even for other dolls if you so desire, from a pasteboard box. The box may be quite small for the paper dolls, but it may be as large as you wish for the others. It should be about half as high as it is long and about three quarters as wide as it is long. The width does not make so much difference, since you may have a double or a single bed, but the height is important. It is all right to have the box more than half as high as it is long, because you may cut off as much as you like, but if it is less than half as high it will not be satisfactory and you would best wait to get another box.

Remove the lid of the box and cut a design after the pattern marked out by the dotted lines in the illustration. Before cutting out the design you should draw lines to show exactly where the cut is to be made. To make the lines straight put the box over the end of a piece of board or put a book inside, so that you may draw the line steadily. Use a ruler and be sure your line is straight.

As you will see by the illustration, you cut out the lower edges of the box to make feet. A piece is cut out from all four sides of the box on the lower edges. This causes the bottom of the box to fall out except at the four corners, which form the feet. If you leave the bottom in there it makes the box stronger.

As you see, the lower edges are not cut very far from the floor. If your box is eight inches long and four inches deep less than one inch is sufficient to cut away the lower edge.

The upper end of the bed is left high to make the headboard. It has panels drawn or painted to make a design. The footboard is cut off about half an inch to make a difference between it and the headboard.

The sides are cut down about two inches, as shown in the design. This, in the size box referred to, leaves about an inch of cardboard along the sides.

The springs to hold the mattress are made of a piece of cardboard not quite so wide as the bed and enough longer to turn over at both ends and stand on the floor, not quite so high as the sides of the bed. To turn the end over run a knife lightly over the cardboard, but do not cut half way through. The board will then bend easily. This springs or mattress support is then placed inside the bed and stands on its ends, reaching almost to the top of the sides.

You may find difficulty in cutting the cardboard. If so, after you have drawn the lines for cutting take a large darning needle, or the point of a knife will do, and make holes on the line all along. You will then be able to cut the design very easily. Of course after it is cut out some smoothing of the edges will be necessary. You may wish to color the bed with crayon or water color, and this will make it more attractive, although a white or green box makes a better bed without being colored.

A mattress to fit the bed may be made of a number of thicknesses of newspapers. There should be enough of the newspaper to make the mattress come up to the top of the sides of the bed. When the mattress has been made cut the sheets from plain white paper. Fairly thick white paper is best, but this is sometimes difficult to get in pure white, such as should be used for bed linen. Tissue paper will do if you cannot get the thicker white paper large enough.

If you use tissue paper first cover the newspaper mattress with it, so that the black will not show through.

The sheets are long enough to tuck in at top and bottom and sides.

After the sheets have been made you may make the pillows. These may also be made of newspaper. The pair of pillows should be large enough to exactly fit in at the head of the bed. Cover them with white paper, using mucilage to make the pillow cases. Then have shams of the paper also, with scalloped edges and embroidery.

To make the embroidery, fold the sham in four and cut out a design that goes through all four sections. You make several small triangles, squares or circles, and when you open the sham the design will be uniform.

A counterpane for the bed may be made in the same way. This should be just large enough to fit the top of the bed and the edges all scalloped. Fold the counterpane and cut a design as you did for the bed. Also cut a design in the centre of the counterpane. If made of heavy white paper the spread will look like a heavy linen one. If you make it of tissue paper you may put a pink or blue spread under it and then the design will show beautifully. The same effect will be very pretty for the pillow shams.

THE GAME OF ADVERTISEMENTS.

QUITE a lot of fun for an evening gathering of boys and girls is to be had from an advertising party. There are two kinds of parties, which may be given this title and they are entirely different. The first kind is more apt to amuse a general gathering, and so I will describe it first.

The necessary materials for the contest which furnishes the evening's amusement are a quantity of newspapers and magazines which contain advertising pictures, a sufficient number of cards about seven inches by five or larger, or strips of cardboard of equal size, scissors or pocket knives for all the guests and a number of pots of glue. The object of the competition is to make pictures of a number of the advertising illustrations which are cut from the magazines and newspapers.

The cards or cardboard on which the pictures are to be mounted should first be distributed to the guests. Then the knives or scissors should be given out and the pots of mucilage distributed on small tables or at different points on one large one. It is necessary for the guests to sit at tables and arrangements may be made for large or small tables as convenient.

After every one has been placed and provided with cards, necessary implements and mucilage the papers and magazines may be given out. These may be distributed by the host or hostess making a number of rounds among the guests and giving the papers out in regular order, or the guests may be asked to go to a table where the papers are piled up and select three magazines, three newspapers, &c., or as many as have been provided for each guest. When all have been supplied it is time for the hostess or host to announce the purpose of the game. It is better not to do this until the magazines or newspapers have been given out, as otherwise some of the guests might take too long over the selection of their material and suspicion of unfairness might arise later.

The hostess tells her guests that the idea of the game or contest is that every one is to form a picture of the various advertisements cut from the papers. After all the illustrations which are to make up the picture have been selected and cut out they are to be properly grouped and pasted on the card provided. The guests do not allow one another to see the pictures which they are making until the contest is over. Some of the guests will prefer to cut out all the pictures they come across and make their selections afterward, and others will start in at once to plan out a picture and will cut out only such illustrations as fit into this plan.

When the guests are beginning on the contest the hostess should explain that there will be prizes for the best pictures, one, two or more, as the case may be. If there are more than ten guests in it is better to have more than one prize, even if it is necessary to have them less elaborate. The hostess should also state the rules of the contest to the guests. The first of these is that none but advertising pictures should be used for the pictures. The second is that the number of advertising pictures used in making up the picture must not be less than ten. The third is that no new pictures can be supplied to any one after the game has started, and no player can borrow any picture from any other player.

These are the rules of the game. Then the hostess should also announce how the prizes are to be awarded. The first point on which prizes are awarded should be the forming of a complete picture, that is one in which the parts go together properly. The more nearly this has been done the more worthy of the prize is the picture. Then if a real picture has been formed, into which all the advertising illustrations fit properly, the next thing to consider is how many pictures more than the required ten have been utilized, and those using the most advertising illustrations, providing they fit into a real composition, should be given the prize. The third consideration is the interesting or amusing quality of the picture. But no matter how amusing the picture made up from the illustrations is nor how many pieces have been used, the prize should not be awarded for a picture which does not go together properly.

LECTURE AT THE ARMORIES

Sergeant Instructor Coffin, of Stanley Barracks, will lecture in the officers' rooms of the 57th at the armouries to-night on "Combined Training." A demonstration will be given on the blackboard of the application of strategy and tactics, as well as of general service regulations to the organization of a field force in attack and defence.

The lecture will be held at 8 o'clock sharp and Lieut.-Col. Stevenson wishes it understood that a cordial invitation to attend is extended to all officers and ex-officers of the Peterborough garrison.

WILL UNLOAD DIRECT FROM FREIGHTERS

Port Colborne, the home of the new 6,500 barrel flour mill of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, promises to be one of the big industrial centres of Ontario. Situated at the end of deep water navigation, this place was selected by the Maple Leaf Milling Co., as the most favorable spot for the location of their big new mill. When completed, the mill will be the largest flour mill in Canada and with the elevator and warehouses will cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. A 1,000,000 bushel elevator is being erected alongside the mill. Owing to the location of their large mill in Port Colborne, the Maple Leaf load wheat from the largest lake freighters and load their flour on to boats which will carry it to Montreal and thence to Europe at a lower cost than any other milling concern in Canada.

In addition, arrangements are being made for the securing of the last lake boats to tie up alongside the mill during the winter months, thus saving the necessity of additional elevators.

Altogether the selection of Port Colborne as the site for their new mill is a most favorable one.

Charles Smith, former city messenger, of Hamilton, will not be given a retiring allowance, [illegible]

R. L. BORDEN THE LEADER

His Hair and Nose are Not So Long as Sir Wilfrid Laurier's But He Has all the Qualities of a Statesman

Mr. R. L. Borden is one of the three best groomed men in the House of Commons, says the Toronto News. The others are Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding. At this season of the year he wears in the lapel of his frock-coat a sprig of May-flower—dear to the hearts of most Nova Scotians. It is akin to the trailing arbutus, but the people down by the sea used to believe that it grew nowhere outside their Province. Then suddenly it was learned that it also favored Massachusetts, and that it was about to be adopted as the floral emblem of that State. Whereupon Yankee presumption was forestalled by a bill rushed through the Legislature at Halifax and the country was saved.

BY WAY OF CONTRAST.

Physically, Mr. Borden is the antithesis of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The contrast which the two leaders present is strikingly evident as they sit opposite each other across "the table" on the floor of Parliament. The Conservative leader's strongly built figure and massive face and head crowned with abundance of iron grey hair are opposed to the Premier's tall, slight form, fine, attenuated features and scanty locks. On the one side the prime of life—on the other the declining years. If the First Prime Minister is alertness in repose, the Opposition leader's whole personality is indicative of abundant reserve force.

PERSONALITY.

Mr. Borden lacks the picturesqueness of Sir Wilfred Laurier, Sir John Macdonald or Disraeli, and there are those who say that such great men owe much of their success as party leaders to the bizarre element in their make-up. A very prominent nose or an unusual manner of wearing the hair may catch the popular eye, help to separate the chieftain from the crowd, and accentuate his individuality in the eyes of the multitude. It has even been suggested that Mr. Borden should shave off his moustache and let his hair grow longer.

CHARACTERISTICS.

It is doubtful, however, if he could be induced to avail himself of such meretricious aids even to please the cartoonists. The greater qualities of leadership he possesses in marked degree. He may not be a glad-hand artist or an adept baby kisser, but like Sir James Whitney, Alex. Mackenzie and Salisbury, he possesses character strength and rigid integrity of purpose. I once used the phrase "uprightness and downrightness" as describing the salient features of Mr. Whitney's character. The former quality Mr. Borden possesses and in the party re-organization now under way he is exhibiting much firmness of temper.

A DIFFICULT ROLE.

An Opposition leader's role is always difficult—especially in a new country of widely diverse local interests like Canada. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir James Whitney found it so. In the case of each, thousands in his own party refused to believe in him until victory had perched on his banners. Thereupon each became an unparalleled statesman in the eyes of his followers. To such an extent does office invest a party chieftain with glory. History will repeat itself with Mr. Borden, and he will make a really great Prime Minister. He is of such high character that some of his own people may regard him as over-scrupulous, but the country will be safer in his hands than in those of some Conservatives who are impatient for an early triumph at the polls.

IN DEBATE.

In distinction of presence Mr. Borden rivals Sir Wilfrid Laurier. As a constitutional lawyer he is superior to the Minister of Justice. An effective debater, Mr. Borden speaks neither too often nor too long. In his ability to condense an argument into a twenty-minute compass he sets the House a worthy example, and if everybody copied him in this respect the sessions of Parliament could be shortened materially. He is blessed with a robust, resonant voice, pleasant to the ear, and he seldom, if ever, uses it in mere declamation. Generally he employs the conversational tone which distinguishes debate in the Imperial House. He displays a broad grasp in dealing with important issues, and his wide information gives him much readiness in answering Ministerial utterances on the spur of the moment.

TORONTO CENTRAL IN MILLING INDUSTRY

At Port Colborne the Maple Leaf Company Will Have a Daily Capacity of 12,800 Barrels

The official announcement of the organization of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, indicates that Ontario is coming into its own in the milling industry. This company, besides having five of the six mills situated within the Province, will have a total daily capacity almost equal to that of any of the other companies operating in Canada. Prominent Toronto interests are identified with the organization of the new company, along with the interests who have been for some years past behind both the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, and the Hedley Shaw Milling Company, Limited.

Among these Toronto interests are Mr. Cawthra Mulock and Mr. C. W. Band, and both Mr. D. C. Cameron, the former president of the Maple Leaf Flour Milling Company, Limited, and Mr. Hedley Shaw, who has been General Manager of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, will retain their active interest in the new concern, the Board of Directors including, in addition to these four gentlemen, Mr. John L. A. Hunt, President of the Goderich Elevator and Transit Company, Limited; Mr. Chas. Wurtele, Vice-President of the National Iron Works, Limited; Mr. John Carrick, Secretary of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, and Mr. Hedley Shaw, of Toronto, Managing Director of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited.

When taking over the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, and the Hedley Shaw Milling Company, Limited, the interests behind the new company have placed in the treasury $1,000,000 of additional cash capital, which, besides permitting the completion of a modern 6,000-barrel mill, a 1,000,000-bushel elevator at Port Colborne, and the erection of some fifteen new elevators within the western wheat belt, will provide it with further working capital.

The new company will, when the new mill at Port Colborne is completed, have a daily capacity of 12,800 barrels of flour. The mills of the company are situated at Kenora, St. Catharines, Thorold, Welland and Port Colborne (the latter in course of construction), and at Brandon, in the Province of Manitoba.

Ontario will have a particular interest in watching the results achieved by the operation of the new big plant at Port Colborne, as experts state that a mill erected at such a point will enable the new company that owns it to lay down its flour at almost every point in Canada, in Great Britain and in the foreign markets of the world at a much lower rate than can be done by any other concern that has to alternate from any other point in the country.

Up to the present time Montreal has been rather the headquarters of the big milling concerns, but the organization of this company makes it look as though Toronto would rival the older city in still another industry by being the headquarters of the concern, the total output of which will be equal to that of any one concern in the country.

MASS IN A METHODIST CHURCH

Polish Congregation Allowed to Continue Worship in Building Sold to Protestants

A Toronto Globe writer says:—It is not a matter of common knowledge that there is in Winnipeg a Methodist church in which Mass is said every Sunday morning, and in which the elaborate ceremonial of the Independent Polish Catholic Church takes place regularly. This unprecedented state of affairs is the outcome of the interesting history of an independent Polish congregation organized in 1904 by Father Blazowski, who came from Philadelphia for the purpose. The first church and schoolhouse of the kind ever built in Canada was constructed for their use in that year. Through their unfortunate political history the Polish people have become intensely patriotic, and because they have been downtrodden and overrun by other nations they are passionate lovers of liberty as well, and in such a church as this they hoped that these dominant characteristics of their race would find suitable expression. In this church they have preserved all the intrinsic features of the services known and loved in their own land, but free from the domination of a hierarch. At first all went well. The opening services were a great success. The church was packed on the first day, and there were two hundred outside listening to the service. They held Mass in the morning and vespers at 4 o'clock.

In conversation with members of the church last fall, the writer heard a long and sordid story as to the subsequent history of the church. They were very unfortunate in their choice of pastors. It looked as though the priests were intent on getting as much money out of the people as possible and then clearing out. One priest borrowed money to pay debts on the church furniture, but pocketed the money, and the debts remained unpaid. Another was most objectionable in his private life. Then one of their own members who was on a building committee managed to make away with a good deal of the congregation's money. The result was that when hard times came two years ago the people were unable to meet their payments, and their church and schoolhouse were sold at public auction, being bought in by the Methodist Church.

Then occurred an incident absolutely unique in the history of the Christian Church. The congregation was granted the use of the church which it had formerly owned, while the schoolhouse, according to its last report, is retained for the use of All People's Mission. And so we have the anomalous condition of Mass in the Methodist Church, and incense, crucifixes and the confessional tolerated by a Protestant denomination. The old reformers would surely turn in their graves if the knowledge of this could permeate their ashes.

I could not let such a strange phenomenon pass without investigation. I had learned the foregoing from the people of the church. The leaders of the Methodist Church disclaimed all responsibility whatever for the services in the church. At the same time they justified their action by saying: "What else could we do? If we locked the doors of the church on these people who are just feeling their way towards religious liberty, it would be to drive them back to other churches not so good for them, or more likely to send them out without any spiritual care whatever, as they were not able to organize another church."

Asked as to the future of this movement, they stated that this was not part of a general scheme, but had merely been done to help the people in that special case. Nothing was further from their thoughts than proselytizing. Many of these people were ignorant, many of them already outside of the Roman or Greek churches, and some of them confessed infidels. As one man said, "On the ground of common citizenship, we seek to help them. We are giving these people the opportunity to work out their own religious problems and their advancement in their own way."

At the same time the Polish children attend the Methodist Sunday school in their old schoolhouse, and study the Bible under Methodist tuition, and grow up with a friendly feeling for the Church that befriended them.

RADIANT HAIR

New York Society Women's Hair Matched Only by Parisians

While much attention is given to choicest gowns by New York society women, the prevalent fad just now is the care of the hair.

For many years the clever women of Paris have been famed for the magnificent beauty of their hair.

"Glorious hair," a Virginian calls it; radiant and luxuriant that it not only attracts, but fascinates and compels unstinted attention.

But now that the elite of New York ever anxious to improve their beauty, have learned that Parisian Sage, a remarkable and almost marvellous hair nourisher and beautifier, is almost entirely responsible for the charming hair of the ladies of France, the demand for it has become enormous.

Parisian Sage is now sold all over Canada and in Peterborough by Wm. Mudill, who is glad to guarantee it to eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back. Large bottle 50 cents.

Of Interest to Merchants

Local merchants and others, who are in the habit of employing young boys, are advised to make sure that they are over fourteen years of age. Complaints have been made and in some cases boys under this age have been found playing truant from school and employed at stores and other places. One youngster who essayed to play a dual role in this respect, received a reminder this morning, on his return to school, that may bear fruit.

Bowmanville was deluged by a rain that washed out fields and roads and swept away Vanstone's mill dam.

HAUGHTON LENNOX DECLARES N.T.R. WAS A HUGE SWINDLE

Public Interests Ignored and People Given Poor Service—Positions Prostituted—Line a Haven of Refuge For Liberals.

Ottawa, April 29.—The most strenuous three weeks' fighting of the present Parliament culminated last night in an unusually powerful attack on the Government by R. L. Borden, C. A. Magrath and Houghton Lennox, in connection with the surrender of Canada to the Grand Trunk Railway.

Mr. Borden was especially bitter over the announcement that the Grand Trunk Railway has arranged to build a railway to and create a terminal at Providence, R.I., under an express agreement with the people of Rhode Island and the Legislature there, to make it a great port for the export of grain grown in Alberta and Saskatchewan. He demanded that the Government be patriotic and see, if possible, even now that Canadian traffic should not go through American ports, while Mr. Lennox moved that a royal commission be appointed to enquire into the whole transcontinental situation. This was defeated on a party majority of 43—105 voting with the Government and 62 with the Opposition.

Mr. Lennox pointed out that the Grand Trunk Railway had just announced that it intended to make Providence, R.I., its ocean port, and declared that it was the intention of the railway to divert a large amount of Canadian traffic to that port.

Mr. Lennox asked the Government to have the whole N.T.R. transaction investigated in order to allay the suspicion that it was a huge swindle. He made the charge that the people had been misled and deceived, that positions had been prostituted for political purposes, that it was a Liberal haven of refuge, that the public interests had been persistently ignored; that the country had been subjected to inefficient service, that in all proposed or attempted investigations the position of the commissioners had been in favor of the contractors and opposed to the public interest; that the attitude of the Government and the commissioners towards Hodgins and Lumsden, who had reported wrong-doing, would prevent others from fearlessly discharging their duties, and that there had been incompetence or dishonesty, or both.

Mr. Lennox concluded by moving that a royal commission be appointed. He asked that the leader of the Opposition should have the right to nominate the minority of the commission and the right to nominate one or two of the counsel who should be engaged.

Hon. George P. Graham said the only thing accomplished by Mr. Lennox was to make it difficult for this road to carry out its financing in the old country. He had never listened to a more unfair presentation of a case during his public career, and it should never have been made unless Mr. Lennox was prepared to face the issue by a direct charge.

The suggestion by Mr. Lennox that it was the intention of the G.T.P. to divert traffic to Providence, R.I., he was inclined to ridicule. The road was designed to use Canadian ports at both ends. It was the Opposition who had tried to get the country to accept an alternative scheme which would have diverted trade to American ports. It was the ambition of the Government and the people of Canada to do part of the carrying trade of the United States rather than to build up American ports.

Instead of persistently knocking this railway, it would be better for Canadians to pull together and assert ourselves, and not say that we could not compete with American ports.

Mr. Crosby of Halifax interrupted to ask what port would be utilized in the east.

Mr. Graham said he had heard that the G.T.P. were securing a site for terminal facilities at St. John, N.B.

DR. AND MRS. B. C. HYDE ENTERING CRIMINAL COURT BUILDING KANSAS CITY, MO.

Dr. Hyde is charged with having murdered Col. Thomas H. Swope, his wife's wealthy uncle. Other relatives of his wife, who might have shared in Col. Swope's wealth, died suddenly of mysterious diseases and it has been alleged that Dr. Hyde inoculated them with fatal diseases in order that his wife might inherit the whole of Col. Swope's great fortune.

DEATH OF ELIJAH FENTON WAS NOT ACCIDENTAL

According to the Signs Gathered at the Scene of Tragedy Police Say He Was Attacked and Repeatedly Struck—Important Points Discovered.

Hamilton, April 29.—That Elijah Finton was struck on the head with some blunt instrument, at least half a dozen times; that his body was arranged with the hands neatly folded across the breast; that the soft felt hat that he wore was found by the police with at least two cuts in it; that the body was dragged some distance and that the finger prints on the barn door were there before the body was moved, were developments yesterday in the alleged murder at Stony Creek. The police are of the opinion that he was attacked in the barn and that while trying to run away was pursued and struck violently over the head half a dozen times. The weapon has not been found.

Chief Twiss admitted yesterday that the people in the community refuse to say anything, as they were on good terms with the dead man and his family and do not want to be dragged into the case. The hat was found near where the body was discovered, and in it were two tell-tale cuts. The importance of the blood marks on the barn door cannot be underestimated, in view of the fact that the two men who were on the scene soon after the body was discovered declare that they saw the finger prints when they first arrived. The men are William Metcalf and Fred Dewberry, employés on the farm of Reeve Millen. A Dominion police officer may be called in to try and show whose finger points they are.

Mrs. Downing of Stony Creek, a sister-in-law of Thomas Finton, who is under arrest, claims that there are two children who say they saw the dead man around at 10 o'clock in the morning. However, as the dead man and his aged brother looked somewhat alike at a distance, the latter may have been mistaken for the brother. However, unless the brother retracts his statement of Wednesday, that he was at the barn door about 10 o'clock and saw nothing of the body, some importance may be attached to the report. Doctors, however, say death occurred before 10 a.m.

A farmer who lives about a mile east of the Finton house said yesterday that he saw the two men walking the Grand Trunk tracks near his farm on the morning of the alleged murder and that several other people also saw them. They were walking from the direction of the Finton home.

George S. Lynch-Staunton has been retained by Thomas Finton, who is under arrest. The inquest will open to-night.

ONE-THIRD ALREADY

Of $600,000 Required For Toronto Y.M.C.A. Work Raised.

Toronto, April 29.—With one-third of the $600,000 already in sight, with three branch committees whose combined strength is four hundred and fifty men, with the most efficient team organization ever got together for such a purpose, the Young Men's Christian Association building fund campaign was formally launched at a banquet given at the King Edward Hotel last night, when over four hundred representative men sat down. It was an auspicious gathering, marked by enthusiasm, fervent and sincere, which augers well for the success of the giant movement.

The opportunity is unparalleled for a city like Toronto. As told by Geo. Warburton, general secretary of Toronto, with the present limited and antiquated facilities, leads the continent in proportion of membership. There was the chance to lead the continent in generosity, and later in equipment, and by being foremost on this continent, Toronto would become the premier city of the world in the domain of Young Men's Christian Association endeavor.

At the conclusion of his address, Mr. Warburton announced the munificent benefaction of $100,000 by Chester D. Massey, on behalf of the Massey estate, $50,000 by E. R. Wood and $50,000 by John C. Eaton, the enthusiasm of the evening reaching its climax upon this announcement. With this initial impetus, the hopes of the entire organization resolved itself into confidence and renewed determination was manifested to carry the campaign to a successful consummation.

This being a campaign of work and not of oratory, the speechmaking only occupied little over an hour. A number of addresses were given, but each was characterized by crispness and pithiness. All were eminently practical.

TO CONTROL THE PRICES

Wholesale Grocers Decide Upon Joint Action.

Toronto, April 29.—With a resolution to bring those manufacturers into line who do not allow a sufficient profit on their goods, the Wholesale Grocers' Exchange brought their meetings to a close yesterday. A committee consisting of John Dillon, T. B. Escott, London; F. T. Smye, H. C. Beckett, Hamilton; A. H. Pulford, Hugh Blain, Toronto, and W. C. Craig, Kingston, will take up the grievance with the manufacturers, who will also be asked to declare themselves in favor of the declaration system. The profits on condensed milk and cream, canned goods, laundry soaps and baking powder were stated to be insufficient, and the committee will seek to readjust them with the manufacturers.

Though one member expressed himself as being loath to go to the extremity of boycott, H. C. Beckett's resolution to stand by the newly-appointed committee carried unanimously.

The members decided to go back to the former title of Wholesale Grocers' Guild, and an effort will be made to establish a local guild in Toronto.

The convention decided to grant vacations to travelers from July 23 to Aug. 26. Only cities west of Toronto and north of North Bay will be affected. Christmas presents to the trade were tabooed, Smye characterizing the practice as a pernicious and costly one.

The following officers were elected: President, F. T. Smye, Hamilton; first vice-president, John Dillon, London; second vice-president, F. F. Telfer, Collingwood.

WHERE IS FAULKNER?

Witness in Alberta Investigation Has Vanished.

Winnipeg, April 29.—W. A. Faulkner, a witness whose evidence is badly wanted by the Alberta Railway Investigating Commission, failed to appear yesterday.

One letter, supposed to be from Faulkner to Ross Sutherland, dated Feb. 21, 1907, says: That efforts had been made to interest certain people in the project, and that success was practically assured. Premier Rutherford and Hon. W. H. Cushing were to take up the matter of cash subsidy from the Dominion Government. On account of some political questions, it was necessary for the executive to deal secretly with the syndicate, and in order also to secure proper interest in the road, it was found necessary to arrange indirectly that those directly interested in securing the support of the Government should get a portion of the $544,000 stock. J. K. Cornwall testified he was to receive, if he succeeded in getting the guarantee and cash subsidy.

Emerson, testifying yesterday, said he had at one time thought that Hon. C. W. Cross was interested with Cornwall in the Athabasca railway project, but must have been mistaken. He could not explain where he got this idea.

He said that last Friday night he saw Faulkner last. Faulkner was accompanied by A. M. Parker, of Calgary, and told Emerson he was trying to evade service to attend the commission.

COMET SEEN AT LAST

Toronto, April 29.—Halley's comet was sighted by at least three Torontonians early yesterday, viz., Prof. Chant of the university, A. R. Hassard, the barrister, who is an ardent astronomer, and R. S. Muir, a member of the astronomical society.

Mr. Hassard reports it as being in the eastern sky, pretty well up. Those who know something about the position of the more important heavenly bodies will be able to locate it by the positions of the great square of Pegasus and the star Venus. Draw a line from the lowest star in the square to Venus, and on the line about midway between the two stars will be seen the comet.

Mr. Hassard viewed it from about 3.45 till 4.30, using a small glass at first. It can be discerned with the naked eye. The color of the head is clear white and the tail as it recedes becomes a light grey.

WHITEWASHED THE ENGINEERS

Special Committee Says Nothing in Lumsden Charges.

Ottawa, April 29.—The special committee appointed to investigate the charges made by Mr. Lumsden against some of the engineering staff of the Transcontinental Railway in connection with alleged disregard of orders and over-classification presented their report to the Commons yesterday morning.

They found the charges altogether unjustified.

The increase was not due to over-classification. The early estimates of the cost, were, however, naturally inaccurate, as they could not be based upon actual measurements, and no allowance could be made for train haulage, side hill cuttings and detours.

BATON FOR KITCHENER

Distinguished General is Now Field Marshal.

London, April 29.—King Edward handed Lord Kitchener the baton of field marshal at an audience at Buckingham Palace yesterday. Richmond Burdon Haldane, Secretary of State for War, stated that it was proposed that Kitchener should shortly commence his duties as field marshal and commander in chief of the Mediterranean with headquarters at Malta.

Interviewed with reference to the defence of Australia, Lord Kitchener said that for £1,700,000 a year Australia would in due course, have a complete system that will make her secure against attack. She will no longer need to look to the Mother Country for an instant for aid in the event of danger. The amount of money is but trivial to such a rich country.

Kitchener added that England is not decadent. Whatever anyone may say or think, her sons are as good as ever, and as full-hearted. She is quite able, under God, to determine her own destinies. She needs help from none of her children or from strangers. She can quite take care of herself.

"She has yet full youth of days I assure you," said Kitchener.

TWO MORE ARE DROWNED

Haileybury, April 29.—Roy Delibough, whose own brother was drowned recently, brought the news to town yesterday of the drowning of two Toronto men in Frederickhouse Lake on Monday night. No clue can be had as to the personnel of the drowned men, but it is said they came from Toronto. Their bodies have not been recovered, although the searching party is dragging the lake for them.

The body of Freddie Delibough, the eighteen-year-old Haileybury boy who was drowned in Frederickhouse Lake on Nov. 8 of last year, was found on Tuesday floating on the surface near the centre of the lake.

Continues to Hold Seat.

Ottawa, April 29.—Senator Michael Sullivan of Kingston has turned the tables of those who wanted to see Hon. Wm. Harty get his seat in the Senate. It was prematurely given out the other day that because he had not been in the Senate for two years Senator Sullivan had automatically lost his seat.

He took his seat in the Senate yesterday afternoon.

CROP DAMAGE EXAGGERATED

Washington, April 29.—Damage to crops in the southern states east of Mississippi River is not as great as first reports indicated, according to President Finlay of the Southern Railway. He said yesterday that cotton and corn have suffered in the northern two-thirds of the States of Mississippi, Alabama and Georgia, but that further south these crops were not injured and that further north they were not far enough advanced to be seriously hurt.

FRENZIED MURDERER

New York, April 29.—In a sudden frenzy of insanity Clarence Woods, 19 years old, of Rutherford, N.J., shot and stabbed Miss Anna Kipp at the boathouse of the Rutherford Boat Club, seriously wounded Chief of Police Smith of Rutherford and also shot Policeman McClellan. For several hours afterwards Woods was under siege at the boathouse, armed with a gun and revolver. The building was surrounded by Sheriff Brewster and twenty-five deputies.

Realizing that he was about to be captured, Woods turned a revolver on himself and took his own life.

FASTER TRAIN FROM MONTREAL TO TORONTO

Montreal, April 29.—It is reported here that the Grand Trunk Railway Co. have decided to make an important cut in the running time between this city and Toronto. At present the best time made is by the "International Limited," which does the run in seven and a half hours.

Next season it is proposed to put on a flyer, to leave Montreal at 1.30 p.m., and make the trip in six hours or less, which means that a passenger will be able to lunch in Montreal and dine in Toronto.

The new train will be the fastest for the length of the run (333 miles) on the continent, eclipsing the famous "Twentieth Century Limited" between New York and Chicago.

FOR CRUELTY TO CATTLE

Toronto, April 29.—At the April meeting of the Toronto Humane Society yesterday afternoon Staff Inspector Kennedy of the police reported that a cattle car arrived at the Western Cattle Market a couple of days ago with 19 calves and one cow dead from overcrowding. The animals were shipped by S. Pearson of Hickson, Ont., and in the car were crowded 17 steers, 92 calves and 1 lamb. No attention had apparently been given the live stock from the time they were shipped until the market was reached. A summons has been issued for the shipper.

BROTHER OF HON. J. S. DUFF DEAD

Toronto, April 29.—Word was received here yesterday evening of the death in St. Louis, Mich., of T. G. Duff, V.S., a brother of Hon. James Duff, Minister of Agriculture. About two months ago he had a paralytic stroke, but was thought to be recovering when he suffered another stroke, which carried him off.

Hon. James Duff was at Kingston attending the convocation of Queen's University when the news of his brother's illness reached him. He arrived in Toronto yesterday morning and immediately left for St. Louis, Mich., but was unable to reach his brother before he passed away.

FRENCH AVIATOR'S TRIUMPH

Manchester, Eng., April 29.—Paulhan, the French aviator, winner of the $50,000 prize for making the trip from London to Manchester by aeroplane, was given an official reception by the Lord Mayor of Manchester yesterday afternoon prior to his departure for London. He told the lord mayor that he would have been very happy if White had arrived at the same time he did.

Paulhan's actual time officially determined as already given as four hours and eleven minutes is considerably less than the average running time of the trains from London to Manchester and only 41 minutes more than the fastest express when covering the route.

London, April 29.—Paulhan arrived at Euston station last evening. A great crowd cheered him heartily. The French aviator announced that he would devote the $50,000 prize which he won to further the science of aviation.

Graham White, after descending at Hadenore Crossing, decided to abandon the flight. His aeroplane is being returned to London.

H. B. AMES, M.P., VERY SICK MAN

New York, April 29.—H. B. Ames, member for St. Antoine division, Montreal, in the Canadian House of Parliament, arrived here yesterday from Southampton on the steamer Adriatic, so ill that he had to be carried on a stretcher to the train for Montreal. He contracted typhoid fever in India in January, and this was followed by an attack of sciatica.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Aaron Strome fell from a barn roof at Elmira, and was killed.

The New Brunswick Government has appointed a committee to enquire into the export of pulpwood.

W. F. Lee, traveling agent of the Canadian Railway Insurance Co., died on a train at White River. The body will be brought to Toronto.

Premier Fisher of Australia denies that anyone in London is authorized to speak for the Australian labor party in reference to the empire messengers.

Judge Winchester, R. J. Fleming and Hon. Melvin Jones will be arbitrators to award damages to the trustees of the Massey estate for the C.N.R. cutting through a section of the Dentonia Farm, East Toronto.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hemstead, of 63 Palmerston avenue, Toronto, after having been blind for 15 years, as the result of nervous troubles, has had her sight restored. Last summer Dr. F. C. Trebilcock operated successfully on one eye and this week the other one was attended to.

TO CONSERVE RESOURCES

Carleton Place, April 29.—The Town Hall, holding 950 people, was filled Wednesday evening to hear an address by Kelly Evans, on the conservation of natural resources, especially of fish and game and tourist traffic.

There was great enthusiasm for the cause of conservation. Mr. Evans dwelt on the economic value of birds to the farming community. David Findlay spoke of the good work of the association.

Pioneer Passes Away.

Kincardine, April 29.—Richard Keyworth, an old resident of Kincardine, died yesterday morning. He was in his 73rd year, and came with his father to this locality from England early in the fifties.

MAD DOG IN OXFORD

Woodstock, April 29.—Drs. Purdee of Toronto and Tenant of London, representing the provincial board of health, are in the city co-operating with the city council and board of health in an investigation of the mad dog scare.

A dog, which has since been proven to have been affected with rabies, escaped from its owners a few days ago and bit several animals in the vicinity of Bremer, the provincial officials have issued orders for all of the bitten animals to be chained up and watched.

MUST IMPORT FROM CANADA

Washington, D.C., April 29.—If the supply of paper produced in the United States continues to decrease during the remainder of the present year as it has during the past six months, the country will be obliged in the near future to import from Canada and other countries a constantly increasing amount of wood pulp paper and to pay the greater price which is imposed by the tariff.

This is shown by statistics by Herbert Knox Smith, commissioner of corporation.

Banquet to Sir Richard.

Ottawa, April 29.—Sir Richard Cartwright, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and Government leader in the Senate, was a guest of honor last night at a banquet at the Parliamentary restaurant, which was attended by both Liberal and Conservative members of the Upper House.

Sir Richard has seen 47 years of public service.

Pope Will Not Protest.

Rome, April 29.—The latest report is that the Vatican has abandoned the idea of making an official protest against the visit of Albert, Prince of Monaco, to the Quirinal, it being considered that the prince's attitude while here sufficiently justifies his claim that he was in Rome as a private individual.

THE SLOGAN HE HAS CHOSEN

Not Likely to Win the Prize but Still is Written in a Commendable Spirit

ENGLAND STANDS BY RUSSIA AND JAPAN

London, April 29.—The British Government, under the fire of questions in the House of Commons, has dropped the mask which has concealed its far eastern policy, formally espousing the tactics of Russia and Japan which resulted in blocking China's Chin-Chow-fu-Aigun Railway project. The Foreign Office representative declared that the two powers in question were acting reasonably and fitly declared that the British financial group interested in the projected Manchurian railway loans needs not look to the Government for any assistance.

WHO ARE SO GENEROUS?

Who are the men who are so generous as to give the Canadian Minister of Finance $120,000? The names of the donors should be published. There are cases no doubt in which a giver should not let his left hand know what the right hand is doing. If Mr. Fielding were out of work and his family starving those who contributed to his support might rightly wish to conceal their names. But Mr. Fielding has been Minister of Finance for nearly fourteen years, receiving a large salary from the Canadian people. His family are not in need. Why should he accept something for nothing from the men who are giving him this large fortune? Or has he done something for these men that deserves such a reward while he was supposed to be working for the Canadian people who have paid his salary?

THE LIBERAL DISSENSIONS

Mr. H. H. Dewart, being the son of a Methodist minister, some people have supposed that his attack on the Minister of Justice was due to Mr. Aylesworth's defence of race track gambling, but the Toronto Star, a Liberal newspaper, says that Mr. Dewart himself is said to have been the representative of the racing interests in arranging the compromise bill, and that it was supposed he would be grateful to Mr. Aylesworth for assisting to kill the anti-gambling bill, as first proposed. Mr. Dewart said nothing about race-track gambling in his letter, nor did he refer to Mr. Aylesworth's having recommended the pardon of two men who were in jail for circulating indecent literature. The sole ground of his attack was that the Minister of Justice did not devote enough time to organization work. The real cause of the attack is probably to be found in the following paragraph of Mr. Dewart's letter:

"Now, with regard to the men who have done their best to galvanize the Liberal workers into an organization at election time, and who have accepted office in the Toronto Reform Association, often against their will and at considerable personal sacrifice, I protest against their being pilloried now. They have done their best. The fault does not lie with them. They have done wonders in a centre of active Conservative organization and society influence like Toronto. Where, then, must the responsibility be laid? It must surely be laid at the door of those Ministers of the Crown who have failed to provide the directing power. A commander-in-chief, even if he be as brilliant and skilful as Sir Wilfrid Laurier undoubtedly is, cannot be expected to achieve the success that he should without able lieutenants between himself and the men in the ranks. Hon. Charles Murphy and Hon. Mackenzie King have not had a chance to earn their spurs as organizers, but they will be expected to do so. It is a notorious fact that in the campaign of 1908 there was not a solitary Minister of the Crown in the Province of Ontario west of Brockville who was of the least value to the Liberal organization as an informing, energizing or directing force. In the Toronto district our only representative in the Commons is the Minister of Justice. None of our six Senators can now be reckoned on in the matter of organization.

DIFFERENT DOWN EAST.

We find a different state of affairs in the Provinces to the east. There Ministers of the Crown and even Senators not only perform their administrative and Parliamentary duties well, but also take charge of their districts, feel the pulse of the people, bring informed minds to the consideration of political issues, and see that the latent forces of Liberalism are brought into a political organization that means something. Analyse the returns in the Province of Quebec and you will see that behind the personality of Sir Wilfrid there is the organized effort that spells out success in close ridings.

Constituencies in Western Ontario can figure out this problem for themselves, and make their own application. But I know that in the city of Toronto and surrounding ridings we have suffered and are suffering as a party because the Minister who is supposed to represent this district is not a political force or even a factor in organization. A district or even a constituency may be lost if feather-weight advisers are the main sources from which knowledge of political conditions is derived. The local Minister should be at least the mouthpiece through which the political views or needs of the district are expressed. There are important views relating to the immigration policy, as it affects us locally, to be expressed. Large questions relating to the expenditure of moneys on public works have to be considered. Other departmental matters of importance require solution. The consideration locally that these matters have received and to which they are entitled is due in nearly every instance to the direct representations made by active Liberal workers to the Minister in charge of the department interested. Surely the public at large are justified in expecting the directing force of the Minister of Justice in these matters of local policy, just as much as Liberals are in matters of political organization. If our policy is sound and our views are right, as we believe them to be, the party leader who sees to it that unwonted effort and wise direction are brought to bear to achieve success performs a public as well as a party service.

AFTER MINISTER OF JUSTICE.

I am not now entering into the items to discuss the rightness or wrongness of the attitude of the Minister of Justice regarding matters that more particularly concern his own department. No one questions his preeminence as leader at the Bar of the Province or his comprehensive knowledge of the difficult problems of law it has been his duty to consider. The Minister of Justice can maintain and justify his opinions on these matters stubbornly if need be, and no man better than he. But in view of his recent declaration that he is a "partisan" by which I understand him to mean a man of party views in the best sense, every party man has the right to ask why the Minister of Justice does not give effective party service. I maintain that we have the right, both from the political and public point of view, on the grounds that I have pointed out, to receive effective direction in public matters and organizing ability in party business from those who are chosen the responsible Ministers of the Crown. I have hesitated for some time before expressing these views, but someone should speak out, even at the risk of incurring hostile criticism.

The history of Canada even since Confederation is not without its political lessons. Sir John Macdonald retained weaklings in his Cabinet that no party could successfully carry after his decease. Even strong men in the Province of Ontario made the fatal mistake of failing to introduce much-needed new blood in time to avert a fatal ending. Politics, after all, should be like any other business in life. It is imperative that the fittest should survive. The country is entitled to the best service of the best men, and political precedence as well as sound executive ability is needed.

H. H. DEWART.

Toronto, April 26.

THE GIFT TO MR. FIELDING

Hon. Mr. Fielding's acceptance of a gift of $120,000 will probably cause a good deal more talk throughout the country than the dissensions in the Liberal party. Some of the reasons why the Minister of Finance should not have accepted such a gift are set forth by the Toronto Mail and Empire as follows:

"A surprise and a shock to the community is the announcement that Finance Minister Fielding has accepted a gift of $120,000 from individuals whose names are withheld. One of the factors making the receipt of this gift objectionable is the circumstance that the act violates a resolution of Parliament passed on August 13, 1891, condemning such a proceeding. The resolution in question was proposed by Sir Richard Cartwright, and reads thus:

'That the acceptance of gifts or testimonials of any kind on the part of Ministers of the Crown or of any members of their families from contractors, Government officials, or other persons having pecuniary relations with the Government is entirely opposed to sound principles of administration and is calculated to bring Parliamentary government into contempt; and that the example thus given tends to corrupt and demoralize the officials serving under Ministers who have accepted or permitted the acceptance of gifts or testimonials as aforesaid.'

"The principle here laid down was unanimously endorsed. Parliament, indeed, went farther than the resolution appears to go. Sir Richard Cartwright, in raising the question, asserted that no Minister should under any circumstances, take anything from anybody. This view was accepted by the House, and it was supposed to be, to all intents and purposes, the law of the land. Mr. Fielding violates the order of Parliament, proposed by his own friends, in order to reach out for a fortune. Now, the acceptance of this large sum—$120,000, invested, as we are told, in gilt-edged securities—by any Minister would be a gross wrong, a breach of the proprieties, necessitating his resignation. But the taking of the money by a Finance Minister is a far more serious matter than its acceptance by any other member of the Government except the Premier. The Finance Minister exercises authority of an extraordinary character. He dictates the details of the tariff. It is within his power to ask Parliament to increase this duty, and to decrease that duty. What he proposes to Parliament the majority behind him is bound to accept, otherwise the Government is defeated. Through his initiative, or on his report to council, the duties on any articles may be reduced, or entirely removed, without any reference of the matter to the House of Commons. Thus the Minister of Finance has in his hands the fortunes of the various industries. He can kill a Canadian industry. Or he can assist an industry to make more money, as he has assisted by bonuses, and by protection, the iron industry and the agricultural implement industry, in which so many of his political friends are engaged. Within his purview comes also the question of bonuses to enterprises of various kinds. He it is who determines who shall receive subsidies. It was on his advice that the Standard Oil Company of the United States received a bonus from Canada as a reward for using our native product in its refinery. He determines what bridges and railways shall be subsidized, and the amount each project shall receive. All the railway promoters are looking to him and are soliciting his favor. It was he who designed and carried through Parliament the Quebec bridge scheme, under which certain politicians were to become possessed of the profits derivable from the enterprise, while the country provided all the capital and was pledged in the event of loss to bear the burden. Every politician who is looking for a graft every man who aims at the Treasury, must count upon Finance Minister Fielding's support if he desires success. The men who received public money under the pretence that they were the North Atlantic Trading Company could not have drawn a copper without the consent of Mr. Fielding. Not a cake-off can be collected unless Mr. Fielding agrees to it.

"These facts make it clear that if there is a member of the Government who ought to be free from the influence that a valuable present is calculated to exert that Minister is the Minister of Finance. It will probably be pleaded in extenuation of the offence of Mr. Fielding in receiving the money that he is ignorant of the names of the founders of his fortune. But no one need expect that he will be long in this state of innocence. He can easily find out who contributed to his wealth, and if he does not enquire, the ordinary course of business will furnish him the information. No subscriber to such a fund, a fund that brings so much pleasure and ease to the Minister is going to hide his light under a bushel. The pretence that Mr. Fielding does not know his benefactors is not an assurance that he is or that he always will be in the dark touching this interesting phase of the matter, but it is an acknowledgement that the money should not have been taken. Under the circumstances, Mr. Fielding had betterer resign his office. A Finance Minister whose hand has taken a gift is no longer a fit and proper person to act as the trustee of the people."

BITTER QUARREL AMONG LIBERALS

Retirement of Mr. Aylsworth Desired—Cabinet Ministers Declared to be No Good as Organizers

The following letter from H. H. Dewart, K.C., appeared on the first page of the Toronto Globe on April 27:— The Liberal party in Ontario to-day, while strong in its constructive policy, is lamentably weak in the matter of organization. Take the district of which the city of Toronto is the centre. Of sporadic and spasmodic activity at election time we have plenty. Of the systematic organization that results in local educational work we have next to nothing. Victories cannot be won by shouting and bustling about for four weeks before an election. We need the organized and constant application of directed energies. Now with regard to the men who have done their best to galvanize the Liberal workers into an organization at election time and who have accepted office in the Toronto Reform Association, often against their will and at considerable personal sacrifice, I protest against their being pilloried now. They have done their best. The fault does not lie with them. They have done wonders in a centre of active Conservative organization and society influence like Toronto.

SMART SPRING FROCK

The Hat Question Less of a Bugbear This Season.

MORAL OF THE BLOTTER.

Things Small in Themselves, but Large in Effect Upon Comfort—A Unique Booth For Fair—Modish Collar Made From Scraps.

Dear Elsa—Margaret, you remember, started a year ago to girdle the earth, not, though, in forty minutes, like our friend Ariel, for she has just arrived in little old New York. Yesterday I was one of a large luncheon party, at which Margaret was the guest of honor, and she showed her appreciation of the compliment paid her by wearing her very best spring costume, over which all the others at the party raved. I made mental notes of the creation to aid me in copying it, a safe and legitimate procedure, for Margaret lives in Chicago. Probably you would like to hear about this Rue de la Paix composition? The material was a delicious shade of gray oatmeal cloth. This, you must know, is one of the loosely woven fabrics on the homespun order that are to be popular this season. The skirt was plaited in front and at the back had gathered breadths. From the back seam a wide strap of cloth was brought around halfway up the skirt to the front, where it buckled over the left knee, confining the front plaits and full back in such a way as to give an extremely slim appearance to the wearer. The coat was shorter than usual, ending just below the hips, and was heavily embroidered in silk that exactly matched the peculiar lava gray of the material. The buttons were of lava set in silver, and the hat had a turban trim of rough gray straw with whirligig crown of tulle to match the smoky gray plumes at the side. A velvet bag, embroidered like the coat, hung on oxidized silver chains from her arm.

HAT FOR EARLY SPRING.

Easter coming so early this year, we are thinking of spring and summer clothes rather sooner than usual, and some women who like to be in the vanguard of fashion are actually wearing straw hats, but this, of course, is exceptional. Still, the shops are showing all their new millinery, and lovely it is.

If these advanced styles in millinery tell a true story, the season will prove a blessed relief to the women to whom of late the hat question has been a genuine bugbear. While extremes may always be found—the airship and French cook capoteux head the list this spring—the reign of the freakish and spectacular is no longer supreme. There are a gratifying number of models which are pretty and becoming.

Malines is a fine choice for the trimming of one's first spring hat, and cleverly arranged loops and twists of malines often take the place of feathers and aigrets, invisible wire being used to keep them in place.

Some of the new headgear looks like a flower garden and recalls to one's mind those famous lines from the "Mikado" with this variation:

The flowers that bloom on her hat, tra, la,
Have nothing to do with the earth.

The big hats of the season are all turned up somewhere to give a glimpse of the face. This is an excellent plan, as it is rather disconcerting to talk to a hat, even though assured that there is a listener underneath. Some of the hats have the cavalier swoop on the left side, others the Napoleonic upturned brim at the very front, while the very newest are tipped up in the back, where all the trimming is piled high.

In ribbons, shot effects are to be much used, and the same vogue extends to feathers and satin crowns. Blue-green and green-brown are evidently favorite combinations, and with them are worn two shaded quills or feathers. For real dressy hats I saw some stunning things in gold and silver, the gold creation having a white straw brim and the silver a black one. But I reckon you have heard enough about hats for awhile, and I do hope you'll like the sketch of the model I am inclosing.

The Moral of the Brown Blotter.

For the last few weeks I have been driven almost crazy by having to encounter a glaring white blotter every time I sat down to my desk. The hideousness of the thing seemed to leave my mind the instant I got away from the offending object. Today when I began writing to you I found that some one had replaced the soiled white affair with an artistic brown blotter. The blotter is a ridiculously small matter, but it is typical of a great many other things, small in themselves, but large in their effect upon comfort.

There are the doors that harass the nerves with their squeaking when a drop of oil would right them and spare the ears, and there is the reading light placed too high or too low—it has been so for months, perhaps years. A half hour of work would right it and in place of a little aggravating discomfort would be the satisfaction of a light that was right. Yet who takes the necessary half hour?

There is the same old hunt for a postage stamp when a stamp box in a fixed place would be so easy to arrange. But why continue the list?

A Unique Booth.

We are going to have a fair during Lent for a local charity, and one of the booths is rather unique. I think. Outside of the booth is a sign that reads: "Stockings darned, 5 cents a hole. Mothers of families, come to the fair and bring your darning bags." The adult class of the Bible school is to have charge of the booth, and the space inside is to be filled with "mothers in Israel," all of whom are to wear specs" and are to darn the family stockings. A pretty clever idea, isn't it? At another booth the girls are to make welsh rabbits, serving with the rabbits biscuits, pickles and olives.

A Dutch Collar.

I saw a beautiful Dutch collar recently that was made from the veriest scraps of insertion and lace and fine embroidery. First the collar was cut in paper and then covered with alternate strips of the lace and embroidery, so that not an inch was wasted, as would have been had the pieces been joined before the collar was cut. Besides, by the latter plan certainly double the quantity of the material would have been required. The collar was finished with a tiny lace frill all round the outer edge. As low neck frocks are to be as smart as ever this summer, the hint is worth while passing along. Your very devoted,

MABEL.

EX-EMPRESS' MEMOIRS

WHY EUGENIE HAS NEVER PUBLISHED HER BOOK.

Although She Has Been Offered Fabulous Prices by the Biggest Firms in the World She Has Steadily Refused to Let Her Memories of Great Men of the Nineteenth Century See the Light of Day.

M. Jules Claretie has made public some of the facts about the spurious edition of the ex-Empress Eugenie's "Memoirs" which is said to be now ready for the market. The present writer can add further information, received direct by him from a friend and confidante of the ex-empress.

Some four years ago this great lady did consider seriously the possibility of giving to the world some, at least, of the priceless letters and documents in her possession—letters which, it is said, would make it necessary for historians of the Franco-German war, and the reign of Napoleon III. to re-write their work to a considerable extent.

A publisher who was among the first to hear the news, said to the writer at the time:

"I consider this book, if it can be had, to be the most valuable work that is available to the world to-day, in the way of memoirs."

Offers to her majesty poured in from all sides, and I understand that she finally had in sight $100,000 for the magazine rights and as cash guarantee for the book rights, the money to be paid on the nail on delivery of the MS. to a French publisher who was conducting the negotiations on behalf of a syndicate made up of one leading publisher in each of the principal countries, this sum to be augmented by heavy royalties on the book.

There was much traveling of publishers to and fro between London, Berlin, Paris and New York, and the arrangements were so far completed that contracts were drawn up between everybody concerned—all except with the "grande dame" principally interested.

She, on looking over the documents for which the publishers were so hungry, decided, so I am told, that their publication might throw too much light directly and indirectly on the causes of the Franco-German war which plunged France into misery, debt, and humiliation, and cost her Alsace and Lorraine, and likewise her majesty's husband and his throne in 1871.

There were details, too, that did not show the amiable Napoleon III. in the best light, and so at last his widow set her imperial foot down on the idea of publishing any of her memoirs or her letters.

It was a trying time for the ex-empress after that decision. Personal friends, induced, some of them, by promises of goodly commissions, kept on approaching her with all sorts of arguments to prove that it was her duty to the world to open those precious safes at Farnborough, England, where she lives. Her personal secretary, M. Pietri, was kept busy answering letters and keeping off impoverished marquises with publishers' commissions in their pockets.

According to her own statement, not one line of the forthcoming "Memoirs" has she written, or read, or authorized, and it was undoubtedly at her personal request that M. Claretie has made the announcement that the "Memoirs" are bogus. They have been offered all over Europe, and came near being sold to at least one American publisher. Now that the facts have come out, probably they will be suppressed, although it is said that a huge French edition has already been printed.

Of course, the financial side of the offers made to the ex-Empress Eugenie did not appeal to her, for she is extremely rich—probably one of the richest women in Europe. Perhaps her own inclinations were not altogether in the way, either, for her final decision was reached only a short time ago, after a visit from her nephew and heir, Victor Napoleon, who, doubtless, would be Napoleon IV., emperor of France, at this moment, if the republic had not been declared.

He will inherit her millions. He has never given up hope of getting back to the throne of France, as soon as he can be reinforced with the wealth of his imperial kinswoman, and naturally he would not like to have the old scandals and discussions revived—as revived they would be if the ex-empress should tell a tithe of what she knows, however carefully that tithe might be edited.

The ex-empress has added to her house at Farnborough an immense annex of corrugated iron, in which many mementoes are stored, including two of the magnificent state coaches, lined with white silk, which were once used by her. Among other treasures is the beautiful little perambulator, a gift to the ex-empress soon after the birth of the Prince Imperial, from Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort. Pictures of the Bonaparte family abound, the most interesting, perhaps, of all being one of the great Napoleon as a youth, and another of the ex-empress herself, surrounded by the ladies of the court.

At Farnborough, Eugenie has been even as charitable as her great means will allow. In the gayest of her days she had thought for the poor. When she fled from the Tuileries, and rude hands were laid on her wardrobe, fifty parasols were found in one drawer, her furs were valued at $150,000, and the whole of her wardrobe at $1,000,000. Yet she has been lavish where charities were concerned.

She holds the highest record in sponsorship; for she is godmother to 3,000 children. When her only child, the late Prince Imperial, was born, Napoleon III. announced that he and his wife would stand sponsors to all children born in France on the same day; and, despite changed circumstances, the ex-empress still keeps an exact list of her godchildren, and has set aside a legacy for each one now living.

Residents of Kitscoty, Alta., closed their houses and fought a prairie fire that threatened the town.

HE TOOK THE CAKE.

A Story of William Black, the Novelist, and Mary Anderson.

One time when Mary Anderson was playing in "The Winter's Tale," in Dublin, William Black, the novelist, who was very intimate with Miss Anderson and her family, insisted upon assuming the part of one of the supers, who was dressed as a very old man with a venerable beard and locks that fell upon his shoulders. When Black went upon the stage in this disguise he walked about among his fellow supers with unceasing restlessness and, judging by the wild motions of his arms, seemed to be addressing to each in turn an impassioned harangue. The audience began to wonder who the new actor was and what on earth he was doing in a play in which neither Shakespeare nor the stage managers ever intended him to appear.

Presently came the time when it was the business of Perdita to distribute flowers among the peasants, among whom Black had his place. Miss Anderson, carrying on the practical jokes of the family circle, had prepared a surprise for this moment, and, having distributed flowers among the less favored supers, she handed to Black a large cake crowned with a wreath of laurel, saying as she did so, "You take it," in allusion to his triumphs in the contest of wits at the supper table.

To her consternation, Black showed that he was quite prepared to carry out the jest, for, taking the cake from the hands of Perdita, he immediately distributed it in substantial portions to his hungry fellow suppers, who, finding it to be of excellent quality, began to munch it greedily under the eyes of the house.—Exchange.

Elephants' Love For Finery.

Strange as it may seem, the elephant is passionately fond of finery and delights to see himself decked out with gorgeous trappings. The native princes of India are very particular in choosing their state elephants and will give fabulous sums for an animal that exactly meets the somewhat fanciful standards they have erected. For these they have made clothe of silk so heavily embroidered with gold that two men are hardly able to lift them.—Pearson's Weekly.

Force of Habit.

"I understand that all star cast was rather languid."

"Yes; they played poorly for stars. Even the life they put into the mob scene was accidental and came about merely through each of them trying to grab the center of the stage."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Trouble Makers.

"What men think," remarked the knowing woman, "causes fully one-third of all the trouble in the world."

"Yes," rejoined the mere man, "and what women say causes the other two-thirds."—Chicago News.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health Saving Explained by a Peterboro Citizen Who Knows From Experience

Many Peterborough people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help.

Sick kidneys are responsible for a great amount of suffering and ill-health.

The reason so many use Doan's Kidney Pills is their quick relief for all Kidney weakness. Here is what a Peterborough citizen says:—

Mrs. Geo. Hawes, of 357 Water street, Peterborough, Ont., says:—"I had suffered for some time with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble, and, although I had tried many remedies and doctors, I found little or no relief. My back was weak, and a dull, bearing-down pain settled across the small of it, and extended into my shoulders and around my sides. I was weak and languid and the least exertion would tire me out. Dizzy spells were frequent, and often I would awake with a severe headache. I tried Doan's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at Madill's Pharmacy. I soon found them to benefit me and continued their use. In a comparatively short time I was as well and strong as ever and without a symptom of the painful and long-standing disease."

Finance Committee Decided Not to Increase Fee of Local Moving Picture Houses

The Finance Committee at its meeting yesterday afternoon decided against increasing the license fee of the moving picture houses of the city. The chairman, Ald. Bradburn, had considerable information, which showed that the fee in other places, some larger and other smaller than Peterborough, was the same as here. At the present time the proprietor of the Crystal pays $40.00, and the proprietors of the Royal and Princess theatoriums pay $50.00, the difference in the amounts being accounted for by reason of the latter two proprietors having secured a theatre license. This allows them to add to the moving pictures vaudeville performances.

There were present at the meeting the chairman, Ald. Bradburn, Mayor Morrow, and Ald. Hicks, Turner and Phelan. The decision to not increase the licenses was not reached without a discussion, but finally the motion to this effect was unanimously carried.

Robert De Barnardo, through his solicitor, Ozzias De Lapiante, asked for a rebate on his peddler's license, for which he paid $50.00. He has ceased to peddle, but the committee decided to take no action.

Mr. W. Gould will be refunded $180.00. During the winter, when he took over the pool room on Water street, he paid $280 for licenses for the tables. He was only in business three months. The license must be returned and the tables taken from the premises.

Fred K. Darcy, who is the proprietor of a pool room on Charlotte street, thinks he should not pay the regular license fee on account of his having so much opposition from local organizations where pool tables are installed.

His request was not acceded to.

On motion of Ald. Hicks and Turner, the past month's salary of the late Chief of Police will be paid. The amount is due Saturday.

DEATH OF MISS BESSIE MENZIES

At Kingfisher, Oklahoma Territory a Sister of Mrs. K. G. Lech, Stewart Street

Mrs. K. G. Lech, 415 Stewart street, received a telegram this morning informing her of the death of her sister, Miss Bessie Menzies, at Kingfisher, Oklahoma Territory, and which occurred at seven o'clock this morning. The late Miss Menzies was born in this city, being the second eldest daughter of the late Thomas Menzies, with whom she spent the greater part of her time during this long illness. She remained in this city until her 20th year and then went to Kingfisher, at which place she resided up to her death. Mrs. R. S. Davidson left here three months ago on a visit, and with the other members of the family, with the exception of Mrs. Lech, was at the bedside of the deceased when she passed away.

Many friends here will regret to hear of her demise, as she was a lovable and highly esteemed young lady.

To mourn her loss she leaves four sisters and two brothers. The sisters are Mrs. K. G. Lech, Mrs. R. S. Davodson, Mrs. George Laing and Mrs. E. Wattress.

The funeral will be held on Sunday.

Death of R.L. Davidson

The Mail and Empire:—Mr. R. L. Davidson, who was well known to the dry goods trade of the city, passed away at his residence 122 Bleecker street, yesterday evening. Mr. Davidson had been in poor health for the past two years, but took a turn for the worse a week ago and sank rapidly. For many years he was employed as buyer for Messrs. John Macdonald and Company until he went into business for himself as a manufacturers' agent. His offices were on York street until ill-health forced him to retire. The deceased was 45 years of age and leaves a widow, also two sons and a daughter, who are all at home. He was a member of Zetland Lodge, A.F. and A. M., Canadian Order of Foresters and Queen City Orange Lodge. Funeral services will be conducted at the house to-morrow by Rev. Dr. Rose, of Sherbourne St. Methodist church.

The late Mr. Davidson was a nephew of Mr. Edmund Layfield, 500 Charlotte street.

TO-MORROW IS TAG DAY

For the Benefit of the City Treasury — Dog Tags Must be Taken Out

Dog owners are reminded that the first day of May is not far off, and that tags for their animals must be secured by that date. It has in the past meant a summons to police court and, in many cases, a fine to those who had neglected this important matter, so it would be just as well to call around and get a receipt from the city clerk to-morrow.

HAD NO THOUGHT OF OUTSIDE WORLD

He had his arms wrapped around her and they both were so wrapped up in themselves that they appeared to be just as oblivious to the outside world as if they had been in a cosy corner in a secluded drawing-room, instead of in a buggy on a much traversed thoroughfare.

The foregoing describes the happy state of a fond young couple who sat in a buggy on Aylmer street north last night, while passers by moved up and down. It was more like a scene in comic opera than in real life, the spotlike effect being furnished, though somewhat more dimly, of course, than on the ordinary stage, but quite effectively at that, by the electric light on the corner.

MELODY FROM PETERBOROUGH FOR SONG COMPETITION

The music house of Laemmle, 147 West 42nd street, New York, have decided that the winners of their big song contest are Al. Fredericks and W. Howard Cheney. The competition was one to obtain the most suitable melody for Joseph Lamb's lyrics, "I'll Change the Thorns to Roses." Fredericks' verse melody and Cheney's chorus melody were decided upon.

Three hundred and thirty-six melodies were received and in giving the names from some of the "far from New York" places from which melodies were sent, Peterborough, Lindsay and St. Thomas are mentioned.

AUTOMOBILE WAS DITCHED ON AYLMER STREET LAST NIGHT

An automobile, of which two young men and two young ladies were the occupants, was brought to a stop with an abrupt jolt on Aylmer street just above King street, about nine o'clock last night. The car was bowling along merrily when it bounded over the heap of dirt at the side of the waterworks trench at the site of the Free Methodist church, and the front wheels took a sudden drop into the trench. The car stopped still and the passengers were given a rather sudden shock but no one was injured. It stayed there at an angle of about forty-five degrees, and it took about an hour and a half to get it back onto the road, some G.T.R. ties from a pile near by being used as levers, with a big corps of willing volunteers lending assistance and offering suggestions.

FINELY BRED ANIMALS FOR STALLION AND BULL SHOW

The stallion and bull show at the Driving Park to-morrow afternoon is attracting widespread attention among the breeders, and from all indications the show will be a great success, as a big representation of the best known animals in both divisions will compete for the judge's awards. The stallion class especially will bring forth an aristocratic field, and some valuable and finely bred horses will be shown. The committee has given the show wide publicity, and on account of its importance to breeders and stockmen generally a big gathering of those interested is assured.

The price of admission has been fixed at ten cents more to cover the expenses in connection with the show than as a means of making any profit from it.

BOARD OF ARBITRATION HEARD EVIDENCE IN DISPUTE BETWEEN TWO COUNTIES

Judge Huycke returned to the city to-day after an absence since Tuesday, during which time he has acted as referee on an arbitration board appointed to settle a dispute between Victoria and Ontario counties regarding a road known as Mud Lake bridge. Judge Harding, of Lindsay, and Judge McCrimmon, of Whitby, were the other arbitrators.

The arbitration proceedings opened at Lindsay, but for the last three days have been carried on at Brechin, in Ontario county, for the convenience of the witnesses, most of whom live in that neighborhood.

Victoria county claims the bridge is a deviation from the boundary between the counties, and Ontario disputes this. The questions for the arbitration board to decide are: Is it a deviation and what responsibilities should either or both counties have in its maintenance?

The decision will likely be forthcoming in a month or so.

Eugene Whitby has been appointed to the staff of the city engineer at Hamilton at $1,200 per year.

True Household Economy

MOTHERS, we owe it as a duty to our husbands and families to take good care of them. We all want, of course, to have our loved ones cheerful and comfortable.

Our dominant part is to give them the very best that we can make or bake. But sometimes we are tempted to save a few pennies in food and think that in so doing we are economising. But is it so? Is this the kind of economy that is wise and profitable? Is it doing our full duty to our loved ones?

Royal Household Flour

We wouldn't think of buying the lowest priced eggs in the market just for the sake of economy. We would feel that because they were cheap they would be good eggs to avoid. The low price would give us a suspicion of their freshness and quality. None of us would want to economise by buying eggs marked ten cents a dozen.

But when it comes to flour, for example, we may be tempted to buy the second best instead of the best because of the few pennies difference in price. We may think that economy in flour is different from economy in eggs. But it isn't. The principle is the same. The difference in cost between the best flour in the world and ordinary flour is so little that in justice to our responsibility as wives and mothers we can not afford to take chances.

The one safe rule in buying flour is to buy "Royal Household" and in that way make sure of the finest quality, and absolute uniformity

From every point of view Royal Household Flour is more economical than any other. It produces more loaves to the barrel. It is richest in food value. It is more uniform. It is best for Pastry as well as Bread and yields more baked product in either bread or pastry than any other flour.

ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR furnishes more nourishment, more real food value per pound and per penny's worth than any other flour in the world.

The acme of economy in flour buying is to use only "Royal Household." Best for Bread. Best for Pastry. Most uniform. Most perfect. Best and cheapest for health and happiness of the entire family.

OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD

came in the shape of a young man, who claimed to be a cousin of Ethel, and wished to take care of her.

"Probably wishes her for immoral purposes," said His Worship, and pied the "cousin" with questions.

Cousin went into the box quite readily and stated that he had come to rescue the brand from the burning. Alas! when the family relations were questioned cousin fell down hopelessly. He was unable to tell what Ethel's father's name was.

"Step down out of that," said His Worship, his tones vibrant with contempt, and cousin stepped—lively.

Ethel was still to be disposed of.

"Guess we'd better let her go with the Salvation Army," said the Chief Inspector.

"Will you go?" asked Magistrate Denison.

Would she go! Did her whole face light up with smiles.

"Try and get her a position somewhere out of town," advised the Magistrate. "As far away from her so-called cousin as you can," he added.

Agnes Fletcher, the first "philanthropist" who had tried to get Ethel out of jail to reform her was remanded until Monday after some evidence of a very personal nature.

Ethel Taylor, the girl mentioned in the above, had been arrested on a charge of vagrancy, but was discharged. She was met outside the court by Agnes Fletcher, who had been to see the Taylor girl while in jail, and a "put up" job was suspected. Agnes and her friend were then arrested again.

Buffalo made 18 hits against three Jersey City pitchers.

Rochester took a fall out of Providence by a 10—4 score.

Newton took the last of the series from Royals. The game went ten innings, Bob Ganley repeated his performance of Wednesday when he drove in the winning run.

It took thirteen innings for New York to put Philadelphia away and send them down from the leading to fourth place. "Bugs" Raymond was on the mound for the Giants.

Brown saved the game for Chicago yesterday, being sent in to replace Cole a recruit, in the eighth.

Five players figured in a triple play in the Brooklyn-Boston game.

Jack Flynn, Toronto's former first-baseman, won the game for Pittsburg with a home run in the eighth, with two on.

Slim Chance For Her.

A missionary who was making his way through a backwoods region came upon an old woman sitting outside a cabin. He entered upon a religious talk and finally asked her if she didn't know there was a day of judgment coming.

"Why, no," said the old lady; "I hadn't heerd o' that. Won't there be more than one day?"

"No, my friend; only one day," was replied.

"Well, then," she mused, "I don't reckon I can get to go, for we've only got one mule, and John always has to go everywhere first."—New York Sun.

PITIFUL CASE OF YOUNG ENGLISHMAN WHO IS HOMELESS

Whether Peterborough is to have a House of Refuge, is not definitely known, but one thing is assured and that is that there are pitiful cases of need, which serve as a reason for such an institution being added to the city.

Fred Reynolds, a young Englishman, was released from the county jail about two weeks ago, and since that time he has been wandering about the city without money or a home. He is unable to do any work as he is continually ailing with a sickness. He is subject to epileptic fits, and his condition is such as is deserving of Christian charity. Relief Officer Miller has the case in hand and is endeavoring to place him in a temporary home until other arrangements can be made for his welfare. The case is not one with which the Protestant Home or House of Providence would care to deal and it is just a question as to whether they should be asked to.

This is only one of the many cases which come before these, who alone, have them to contend with.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS WILL MEET TO-MORROW

The meeting of the police commissioners to consider the appointment of a new chief of police to succeed the late Chief Ransel will be held to-morrow. His Honor Judge Hayden, the chairman of the Police Commission, advised the Review to that effect this afternoon. He stated that the meeting would, in all probability, have been held sooner had he not been out of town.

He informed the reporter that there would likely be several applicants for the position.

A DEVELOPMENT IN THE CITY'S NEW DOG BY-LAW

What about Peterborough's new dog by-law that was passed by the city council at their meeting on Monday, April 4th? It was mentioned, at the police court this morning during the hearing of a complaint in which the informant had been bitten by a dog. Magistrate Dumbis asked that City Clerk Armstrong be summoned and when the clerk appeared he furnished the information that in his opinion, the new dog by-law went into force at the time it was passed by the city council.

This is not the view the general public take of the matter. The impression at the time the by-law was passed was that it did not come into force until May 1st, but according to the city clerk, and he ought to know, the by-law was due to be enforced after the date on which it was passed.

If this be so, the champions of "man's best friend" are ahead in the deal, and those who are opposed to the dog running at large, have been euchred.

Where are we at anyway?

SPOKE IN HIGH PRAISE OF WORK OF ST. PETER'S T.A.S.

The second of the two concerts given in connection with the opening of the handsome new quarters of St. Peter's T. A. S. was given last evening and again a large and appreciative audience was in attendance. Miss Margaret McCann, Australia's queen of Scottish song, was given a most enthusiastic reception. As soon as she stepped on the platform she was given a rousing welcome. With a stage presence that was faultless and a well rounded voice that was tuneful, she soon won herself into the hearts of her hearers, who quickly recognized her artistic and musical skill. Each number was loudly applauded and encores were demanded, the charming vocalist graciously responding. Her programme consisted of Scottish and Irish selections both of which proved exceedingly popular. During the evening Rev. Father McColl again referred to the kindness and generosity of His Lordship the Bishop, for the assistance given the society in assuming the responsibility of the cost of the new building. He was sure they all appreciated it very much. The reverend gentleman also added words of praise to the school children who sang so well and to their teachers for the painstaking efforts in training them. He, too, congratulated his staff for the able assistance they had rendered. Father McColl then called on Mr. Daniel O'Connell to speak.

Mr. O'Connell on coming forward to address the audience was given an ovation. He said it was not his intention to make any lengthy remarks but he desired to offer his sincere congratulations to the Total Abstinence Society for the wonderful success they had achieved in many directions. It was only a short time ago, he said, they were celebrating the tenth anniversary with a membership of one thousand men. Now the society was opening a handsome new hall, another monument to their zeal and earnest endeavors. He referred in eulogistic terms to the good work of Rev. Dr. O'Brien in connection with this temperance organization, which was being so ably continued by Rev. Father McColl. There was a strong temperance sentiment passing over the entire province at the present time. This was an age of strength and intelligence and the time was coming when drunkards and inebriates would be a thing of the past. It was not only a work of temperance, but the methods of such a society as the T.A.S. tended to develop a strong character. He did not approve of legislation to destroy the drink evil, race-track gambling and cigarette smoking. There were evils, he admitted, but the proper way to work against them was by moral suasion, by appealing to the man. Mr. O'Connell referred in appreciative terms to the co-operation of His Lordship, the Bishop, whom, he said, they all revered and loved so much. In conclusion he remarked that every citizen must feel a debt of gratitude to this society for the good work they had done along the lines of temperance. He hoped that they would continue to flourish.

Railways for the West

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Mr. C. M. Hays, general manager of the G.T.P., said at London, Ont., the other day:

"Mr. Hays' address, a little over 20 minutes in duration, was instructive, and even entertaining. His auditors paid him the compliment of keenest attention. The only sound to disturb was the rumble of a long Grand Trunk freight train passing on the other side of the wall, shaking in its place a picture of Sir John Carling, hung for the occasion above the heads of the visitors.

"Almost before we can appreciate it," he said, "you will have another great railway crossing the continent, and still another; and when the third is completed, there will be lots of room for others, and when all the enthusiasm now being shown for the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific will be transferred to some new carrier and we will be spoken of as a back number."—The Globe.

If this is correct what on earth did Sir Wilfrid insist on making Canada pay $250,000,000 of good money for a G.T.P., or is it intended that Ontario shall be milked for the others also? The number of people leaving Peterborough county for the west this year is astonishing and the amount of money which they are taking with them is bleeding local enterprise white. A steady growth of the west is, of course, desirable, but a boom, and at the east's expense, too, is madness.

Agnes Fletcher and Her Friend Ethel Taylor Appear in Toronto Police Court

Toronto News:—Ethel Taylor, the girl who has furnished much newspaper copy on both sides of the border line, was a sort of white elephant upon the hands of the police court this morning. Ethel has beyond doubt, been misbehaving lately. The two young men who took her and another girl to the States are each serving a year for procuring. Ethel has been to Bobcaygeon since her return.

"Why didn't you stay in Bobcaygeon?" asked His Worship.

"I just came down for over Sunday," said Ethel with a pout.

"We found her in a house with a number of Macedonian men," said Staff Inspector Kennedy.

"Will you go back to Bobcaygeon if we let you out?" asked Magistrate Denison.

"Yes," drawled Ethel, smoothing her blouse.

"There is no sense in that," objected the Chief Inspector. "She has been misbehaving in Bobcaygeon and they don't want her there."

"We don't want her here," said Mr. Carley.

Then while the court officials stared one at the other the usual sensation

The Graveyard of Murderers

Within the high walls which surround Toronto jail is a little graveyard. Nowhere, perhaps, in Canada, is it possible to find a sadder spot. No memorial is erected; no flowers deck the graves; only a few mounds are there to mark the place in which repose the ashes of those who shed the blood of their fellowmen, and paid the penalty of their crime upon the gallows.

A new grave a heap of sand, shows the resting place of Paul Steffloff, who, for lust of gold, hacked a fellow-countryman to pieces in a little house on Eastern-ave. Close by are laid the remains of Harry Williams, who shot and killed John Edward Varcoe while robbing the latter's store during the night of November 4th, 1899. On the wall above the grave are rudely cut, evidently by some prisoner, the initials H. W.

There lies Robert Coulter, who, in the presence of between two or three thousand people, expiated the crime of murdering James Kenny on the night of November 18, 1851.

There lies John Travins, who died on the gallows confessing his guilt on November 23rd, 1871.

There lies George Bennett, who, on March 25, 1880, shot down Hon. George Brown, and who on the scaffold coolly said: "I am prepared to die. All I have to say is: May God have mercy on my (soul."

There lies Robert Neil, who plunged a knife into the abdomen of John Rutledge a guard at the Central Prison, when the latter entered the former's cell on the morning of January 13, 1898. Never did retribution follow so closely on a crime in Toronto, the murderer meeting his fate on February 10th, the same year.

There lies the perpetrators of murders of more recent date; Alexander Martin, who was found guilty of slaying his infant child by striking it with an oar of a boat off Munro Park; John Boyd, who edied on the gallows on January 8th, 1908, for the shooting of Edward Wandel in a little room above a store on York street.

Then comes the grave of Steffoff, the last of the sad procession of those who have marched to the scaffold at the present jail building.

Frederick Lee Rice was the only murderer hanged at the jail who was not buried in the yard. Rice was a member of the gang which attempted to escape from the constables while being taken to jail in a hack after their trial for burglary committed in Aurora. Pistols were thrown into the cab by a third person, whose identity was never discovered. Rice shot Constable Boyd in the desperate struggle which ensued, and for this he was tried, convicted and hanged. His body was claimed by relatives in the United States, and was taken to that country for burial.

THE EYE OF AN ARTIST.

A Case Where It Was More Reliable Than a Sailor's Optic.

Mr. N. Chevalier, the well known artist who accompanied the late Duke of Edinburgh on many of his travels was once going from Dunedin to Lyttelton, New Zealand, by steamer. Anxious to catch the earliest glimpse of the coast, he went on deck at dawn and was alarmed to see that the vessel was bending straight on to the land. Calling the officer's attention to the fact, he was told that it was only a fog bank. The artist maintained his point, but the second officer looked and confirmed his mate.

The artist then said, "Well, gentlemen, I will back my artist's eye against your sailor's eye, and I say that what you mistake for a fog bank is a low range of hills, and there is a range of mountains appearing above them."

But he was only laughed at until the captain, coming on deck, found in the growing light that the artist was right and the seamen wrong. The vessel was out of its course, and there was only just time to avert disaster. The helmsman was dismissed in disgrace and the course given to a new steersman, but the vessel's head still pointed landward—the compass was all wrong.

The cause was discovered later. A commercial traveler had brought a box of magnets on board and deposited them in a stern cabin, causing what might have been a fatal deflection of the compass.

To return to the question of interpretation, the artist was dealing with the appearances, which his eye was trained to see and his mind to interpret. A speck on the horizon might have remained a mere speck to him long after the sailors had interpreted the speck into a vessel of definite rig. There can be little doubt that the trained eye is accompanied by a sort of mental seeing—an instinct outrunning optics.

What Bothered Her.

"Some women are very selfish," said a woman speaker at a banquet. "They remind me of the woman who visited a fortune teller.

"'Lady,' said the fortune teller, shuffling the cards, 'fate decrees that you will visit foreign lands. You will mingle in the court life of kings and queens. Conquering all rivals, you will marry the man of your choice, a tall, dark, handsome gent of distinguished ancestry—in fact, a peer of the realm.'

"'Will he be young?'

"'Yes; young and rich.'

"The visitor in her excitement clutched the seer's arm.

"'But how,' she cried eagerly—'how am I to get rid of my present husband?'"

A Brown Sweater.

One of the most fetching examples of the long sweater coat is of leather colored yarn made with cuffs and a turned down collar of rich green and ornamented with brass buttons.

These durable colors should appeal to the knitter whose desire it is to make a garment not so perishable as the delicate white sweater.

COLOSSAL ARCTURUS

The Fourth Brightest Star In All the Heavens.

IN REALITY A MONSTER SUN.

It Is Thought to Be at Least a Hundred Times Larger Than Our Sun In Diameter and Is About Nine Hundred and Fifty Million Miles Distant.

Most of us are prone to think of our sun as being the largest body in the heavens, the grand high lord of all the little planets and the twinkling stars. Such is very far from being the case. Practically all of the fixed and twinkling stars are as large as, and some even larger than, our own sun. They appear small only because of their great distance, for they are just as truly suns with families of planets flying around them as is our central orb.

There is one of these stars in particular that has attracted the attention of astronomers, not only on account of its great size, but also its enormous distance from our solar system. This is the star Arcturus. To have some conception of the almost inconceivable distance that separates it from us the astronomical standard of measuring distance must be comprehended. Now, light does not come from a luminous body instantaneously to our eyes. It takes time to come, because it is a wave motion in a medium. The velocity of light as most recently determined is about 186,000 miles a second. Multiply this by the number of seconds in a year and we have a distance known in astronomy as a light year. Therefore when a star is, say, six trillion miles away we say it is one light year off, which means that the light from the star takes one year to reach us. It may be of some interest to know that there is no fixed star less than ten light years away, or sixty trillion miles. This is the one known as Alpha Centauri. Most of the stars are much farther even than that, Arcturus being the farthest one measured to date.

Arcturus is thought to be at least a hundred times larger than the sun in diameter. That would make it 10,000 times larger in surface, or the dimension that is ordinarily compared. By means of the photometer its brightness has been determined to be 0.200 times that of the sun. It is the fourth brightest star in all the heavens, Sirius, the dog star, being first in brightness. As regards the distance from us, it has been found to be a little over 100 light years, or 950 trillion miles. This distance, of course, cannot be conceived by mortal man, it is so stupendous and amazing. However, one can get a slight idea of it by means of an everyday analogy. Think of the fastest express train going at the rate of 100 miles an hour toward such a star and compute the time it would take. It is found to be in round numbers exactly 120,000,000 years! Now, as we know that it has taken its light so long to come to us and as there are a great many stars whose distance has never been measured exactly, but which have been computed to be approximately several million light years away, we have absolute proof of the great age of the world and the stellar universe.

The elements composing the sun Arcturus are, peculiarly enough, very nearly the same as our sun. As it is one of the most wonderful and astounding things that a scientist can tell what a star so far away is composed of, a small explanation of the modus operandi would not come amiss here. It is done by means of a small instrument known as the spectroscope, which consists of glass prisms so arranged as to split up the light falling on them into its constituent parts. Now, every substance has the power to cause a certain color or line in the spectroscope if it is in a luminous condition, so this instrument is simply pointed at the star whose composition is sought, and if any line is found that corresponds to a substance that we know about we assume that this substance is found in the star examined.

Another interesting thing is the method pursued in determining the great distance of the stars. This is done by determining their parallax or angle made at the star between two rays from the star striking at two different points in space. As the greatest distance that we can measure off in this way and still take the angle is the diameter of the earth's orbit, that distance is invariably used. It is almost 200,000,000 miles, but that, as is seen, is very small compared with the enormous distance of the star. Now, the angle thus measured from Arcturus is only two-hundredths of a second! When it is remembered that there are 60 seconds in a minute, 60 minutes in a degree and 360 degrees in a circle, it is at once seen what a small angle the parallax is and how careful the astronomer has to be in his observations. Indeed, for a long time, before modern delicately measuring instruments were invented, no star's distance could be found, for there was seemingly no angle formed, and thus the old scientists had to assume the star to be at infinity.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Guess This Is So.

NEW COMPANY A GOING CONCERN.

Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, is a new company which has taken over the whole undertaking as a going concern of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company Limited, including therein that of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company Limited. The company has mills at Kenora, Thorold, St. Catharines, Welland, and Port Colborne (the last named in course of construction) in the Province of Ontario and at Brandon in the Province of Manitoba. When the construction at present under way at Port Colborne is completed the company will have a total milling capacity of 12,300 barrels per day. The company has at present thirty-five elevators situated throughout the Western Wheat Belt, and fifteen additional ones are being added at the present time. A million bushel elevator is being constructed next to the new mill at Port Colborne. The company has also warehouses and offices at Toronto, Winnipeg, Kingston, Ottawa, and Montreal.

MARKET FOR OUTPUT.

The rapid growth of the business of the two companies taken over has long made apparent the necessity of additional milling capacity. Further, the tremendous increase in the total output from the Western wheat belt makes it absolutely necessary to have more mills in Canada to handle it. Last year the output of the Western wheat belt amounted to about 125,000,000 bushels, and men who have made a close study of the development that the Western country is likely to see, estimate that by the end of the year 1920 Canada will be producing at the rate of fully 500,000,000 bushels annually. As in the past, a great proportion of this large production will of necessity find its way into Canadian mills. Larger demands are bound to come as the population of the country increases, and the country for the Canadian product, both from Great Britain and from the foreign markets of the world, will increase. The chain of mills that is now controlled by the new company will enable it to go ahead and secure its full share of the trade of every section of Canada, as well as to obtain even a very much larger proportion of the export business to Great Britain and to foreign markets than it has up to the present time.

SECURITY AND EARNING POWER: The assets of the old Companies taken over as above stand in excess of all liabilities and without any allowance for good-will, trade marks, etc., at $3,770,534.11, this amount being ascertained on the basis of an appraisal by the Canadian-American Appraisal Company, Limited, as of March 17th, 1910, of the capital assets taken over, and the certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, as of February 28th, 1910, as to current assets and current liabilities, with a liberal allowance for all contingencies. There has also been placed in the Treasury $1,000,000 of additional cash, which, besides permitting of the completion of a 6,000 barrel mill and a million bushel elevator and storage warehouse at Port Colborne, and of fifteen additional elevators in the West, will provide the new Company with further working capital.

As per certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, of London, quoted below, the earnings of the old Company on the present plant amounted from September 25th, 1908, to August 20th, 1909, to $218,649.28
And from August 21st, 1909, to February 28th, 1910, to $189,788.23
being for the latter period at a rate equal to over 13 per cent. on the prefered stock of the Company.

The following is the certificate of Price, Waterhouse & Company:—

"Commercial Union Building,
"Montreal, April 4, 1910.

"Messrs. Cawthra Mulock & Company, Toronto,

"Gentlemen:—

"We have examined the books of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, which include the transactions carried on under the name of The Hedley Shaw Milling Company, Limited, at Toronto and Branches, from September 25th, 1908 (prior to which date the Company's principal mills were not completed nor in operation) to February 28th, 1910, and we certify that the profits for the period, after making provision for depreciation, but before charging interest on loans, were as follows:—

From September 25th, 1908, to August 20th, 1909 ..... $218,649.28
From August 21st, 1909, to February 28th, 1910 ..... $189,788.23

"Yours very truly,
"PRICE, WATERHOUSE & Co."

MANAGEMENT.

The properties of the old companies have been constructed and developed under the direction of Mr. Hedley Shaw, late General Manager of The Hedley-Shaw Milling Company, Limited, and of The Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, and Mr. D. C. Cameron, late President of The Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited. Both these gentlemen will retain large interests in the new Company, besides being actively identified with it. Mr. Hedley Shaw will occupy the position of Managing Director of the new Company, thus giving to it the full benefit of his long practical experience.

FAVORABLE LOCATION OF NEW LARGE MILLS.

The location of the new large mill at Port Colborne is without exception the best there is in Canada. This mill when completed, in addition to having the large capacity mentioned, will have one of the most modern equipments in the world. The Company at all times will be able to keep it well supplied with wheat. In addition to its own 1,000,000 bushel elevator, which will be situated just alongside of the mill, the Company will be able to make arrangements to have the last steamers, coming down from the West at the end of the season of navigation, tie up for the winter months at the elevator and in this way afford additional storage capacity without any necessity of any capital outlay for it. Should at any time the Company find it advisable to do so, it will also be able to draw from the Government elevator, which will be situated on the same pier as its Port Colborne mill.

The location of the Company's mills is such as to provide a ready market for the bye-products of each. The greater part of the milling capacity will be in Ontario, where, as Government statistics show, a smaller amount of wheat is being grown each year as the farmers go in more and more for stock-raising. This means a brisk demand for the bye-products of the mills for feed.

A complete report on the advantages of the Port Colborne site, prepared by Mr. Hedley Shaw, will be found in the prospectus.

MILLION DOLLARS OF NEW CAPITAL

Hedley Shaw, who takes over the managing-directorship of the $5,000,000 Maple Leaf Milling Company, is an example to young men who desire to "get there." About 20 years ago young Shaw was running a portable mill on the Island of Manitoulin. It wasn't a very profitable undertaking, but was better than earning $1.00 a week as a miller's assistant, which was his job and salary previous to the portable mill stage of his career. Probably that portable mill gave him a hint to keep on moving. At any rate he has done so and saw to it that his progress was in an upward direction. He left his portable mill after a time and became junior partner in a mill near Oakville. Then he started out for himself and opened a mill at Thorold. That was 15 years ago. Since that time the Hedley Shaw Milling Company has been growing bigger and better every year. A mill at St. Catharines was added later, then one at Welland. At about this stage the big Canadian milling companies began to come along with flattering offers for his plant and good-will. Shaw often hesitated because the offers looked good, but he had decided to make a name for himself and objected to losing his identity in a big concern. Early this year D. C. Cameron, the big lumberman of Winnipeg, decided to get into the milling business and was at once advised to get into touch with Shaw. The two met, and with Cawthra Mulock formed the Maple Leaf Milling Company. The latter company absorbs the Hedley Shaw Milling Company, but Mr. Hedley Shaw, the erstwhile portable mill manager, becomes managing-director of the new $5,000,000 concern.

The new company are going to "do things." They already have mills at Welland, Thorold, St. Catharines, Kenora and Brandon, and are building a 6,000-barrel mill at Port Colborne. The number of elevators is being increased to 50, scattered over the choicest wheat-growing sections in the West. A million dollars of new capital will materially assist in the development of the new company.

The total capacity of the new concern will be 12,800 barrels per day. The situation of their big new mill at Port Colborne is regarded as a strategetic move. It is the head of deep-water navigation, where grain and flour can be unloaded and re-shipped at the minimum of cost. The location of such a big mill in the province of Ontario means that all the by-products and waste materials will find a ready market among the Ontario farmers who are going more and more into stock-raising and less and less into the raising of wheat.

From all appearances Hedley Shaw kept his eyes open when piloting that portable mill of his about the by-places years ago. He learned the milling business from the ground up, and the new position to which he has attained has been merited. He is one of Canada's successful business men.

THIS DOG GOES TO THE COUNTRY

Elm St. Canine Has Contracted Bad Habits—Young Man Was Bitten in Right Hand

At the police court this morning an Elm street citizen was given until Saturday to send a dog, which is owned by his young son, to the country.

The animal, according to the evidence of the complainant in the case, bit him on the right hand Monday night as he was walking along the street. Three of the teeth penetrated the skin, and the injuries necessitated medical attention.

Three other witnesses, one the mother of the child, who had been bitten by the dog on the arm and on the leg, gave evidence, which gave the dog a rather bad character.

The defendant claimed that the animal was a cowardly one and that stones and sticks had been thrown at it by the complainant's half-brother. It was useful to his son because it would draw him about in a sleigh or cart.

Another witness said the dog had a habit of running after passing rigs, but that it was easily frightened off.

RAN AWAY FROM HOME

Two Young Boys Whose Home is in Campbellford Taken into Custody Here

Acting Chief Adams received word from Chief Lynn, of Campbellford, last night to the effect that two youths, Rufelt by name, had left their home on a travelling expedition. This morning P.C. Meagher arrested the two runaways as they were coming from the Grand Trunk station, and took them to the police station, where they remained till noon, when a relative took them back home on the 1.40 p.m. train.

Crouched together in the lower cell at the police court this morning the two youthful prisoners presented an appearance suggestive of an experience that would not soon be forgotten.

MEETING CALLED FOR TO-NIGHT

To Discuss the Chimes Movement —A Representative Meeting is Asked for

An important meeting will be held in the Bank of Montreal chambers this evening at eight o'clock to discuss the subject of procuring a set of chimes for the city. Subscribers to the fund and all those interested in the movement are invited. It has been suggested that the movement be made broader, and it is for the purpose of having a thorough discussion with a representative gathering that the meeting has been called.

TWICE SECURED BY THE ASSETS

In the prospectus which the Maple Leaf Milling Company is sending out to subscribers is inserted a clause stating that dividends on the 7 per cent preferred cumulative stock of the Company will accrue from April 5th, 1910. Thus, a subscriber will receive the 7 per cent. even previous to the date of his subscription.

With each share of preferred stock is given a bonus of 25 per cent of common stock. As the preferred is more than twice secured by the assets of the company, the investment should form a very attractive one

IS APPOINTED DEAN AT QUEENS

The following from yesterday's Kingston Standard will be of interest to local citizens. The Mr. Ellis referred to was for some time on the staff of what is known now as the old Collegiate:

William S. Ellis, who has been principal of the Kingston Collegiate Institute for several years, has been appointed Dean of the Faculty of Education of Queen's, in succession to Prof. C. F. Lavell, resigned. The appointment was made last night by the trustees of Queen's. Sinclair Laird, of Scotland, was appointed Associate Professor of Education. Mr. Laird comes here highly recommended. At present he is Associate Professor of Education in St. Andrew's College and lecturer in the Teachers' Training College at Dundee. He is said to be a scholar of great promise.

Statistics prove indisputably that the increased use of such a pure and wholesome beverage as Regal Lager ensures a decrease in any community's record of intemperance. That alone suggests the truth that Regal is NOT an intoxicant.—Adv.

Of Interest to Merchants

Local merchants and others who are in the habit of employing young boys are advised to make sure that they are over fourteen years of age. Complaints have been made and in some cases boys under this age have been found playing truant from school and employed at stores and other places. One youngster who essayed to play a dual role in this respect, received a reminder this morning, on his return to school, that may bear fruit.

Bowmanville was deluged by a rain that washed out fields and roads and swept away Vanstone's mill dam.

TWELVE PERSONS PERISH IN A CORNWALL HOTEL

The Rossmore, One of the Best Hotels in the East, Burned to the Ground—Little Chance of Escape for the Inmates—Loss About $250,000.

Cornwall, April 30.—Twelve human lives blotted out and a property loss that $250,000 will scarcely cover is the record of a fire which broke out at 3 o'clock yesterday morning in the Rossmore Hotel, destroyed that structure and damaged a number of leading business establishments.

It is Cornwall's second fatal hotel fire within 13 months and one of the worst holocausts of its kind in recent years in the Dominion.

The Dead.

Charles Gray, manager Ives Bedding Co.; his wife and two children, aged 6 and 8.

Ben Fielding, accountant, Sterling Bank.

Charles Gagne, teller Bank of Montreal.

Mrs. Taylor W. Archibald, aged 70, an invalid.

Wm. Hume, waiter, of Montreal.

Ernest Buller, bellboy, of Montreal.

Marie and Jennie Oliver, waitresses at the hotel for twelve years.

Mrs. Goeller of Philadelphia, a kitchen employe.

Breaking out in the Rossmore Hotel the fire spread with great rapidity, baulking for hours the efforts of the fire brigade and hundreds of citizens.

Three score persons, 20 being commercial men, and the others permanent guests and employes of the hotel, clad only in their nightrobes, reached the ground by means of sliding down ropes, with lacerated and bleeding hands.

One entire family was wiped out in the catastrophe, the remains of C. C. Gray, managing director of the Ives Modern Bedstead Co., with his wife and two children, having been found in the smoldering ruins. Mrs. Gray was in delicate health, and, while the facts will never be known, it is believed that it was in a desperate effort to save Mrs. Gray and the children that Gray himself perished. Of the six bodies found last night, four are thought to be those of the Grays. Judge O'Reilly saw him and held the door open for him until he himself was driven forth by the blinding smoke and rolling flames, and the last seen of Gray he was turning into the room where his wife and family were.

Pitiful, too, was the death of Mrs. Taylor W. Archibald, an aged invalid, who had for years resided at the Rossmore, and who through her weakness and infirmity, was unable to escape when the warning was given.

Cool heroism on the part of William Fitzgibbon, president of the Cornwall Lacrosse Club, resulted in the saving of several lives. Aroused by the watchman's outcry, he woke up young Fielding and showed him how he might escape. Fielding, however, became confused and trying to get out by the regular exit, was suffocated.

Fitzgibbon then broke a skylight above the servants' quarters and by means of a ladder managed to bring three of the dining-room girls to the roof when all fled to safety in their nightclothes.

Judge O'Reilly and his wife had a narrow escape in their plucky rescue of young Harry, their son, who has been ill with pneumonia. They were able to drag the boy from his room and then over the roof of Larmour's dry goods store beyond the reach of the flames.

Charles C. Gray was a former Torontonian, and two brothers, F. B. Gray, barrister, and R. A. L. Gray, electrical supplies, live there.

Strangely coincident with the fire is a judgment given yesterday morning by the Court of Appeal in a case arising from the death of George Hagle of Philadelphia. Hagle was burned to death in the fire which destroyed the Windsor Hotel at Cornwall early on March 23, 1909. In that fire three perished and four were badly injured. The money loss was about $25,000.

Benj. Fielding, aged 32, accountant in the Sterling Bank, one of the victims, belonged to Liverpool, Eng., and came here about a year ago, from the Toronto branch of the bank.

Charles Gagne, teller of the Bank of Montreal, belonged to Levis, P.Q., and came to Cornwall from Danville, P.Q., about four or five months ago.

Mrs. W. Taylor Archibald was a daughter of the late John Beckus of Santa Cruz, Osnabruck, and sister of Mrs. Harrison, mother of Dr. H. J. Harrison, of Sherbrooke street, Montreal. She has one son, Frank Archibald, of New York City.

Among those who had a close call was Major Beatty, M.P., of London. He was in a room on the second floor. There was, luckily, a rope in the room, which he secured, and throwing his clothing out the window, he slid down the rope in his pyjamas.

Among those who escaped were A. R. McLennan, Toronto, brother of the late Col. R. R. McLennan, ex-M.P. for Glengarry, with his wife and child. A. Findlay, traveler for J. C. Wilson & Co., paper bag manufacturers; Capt. Harold Lump, representative of Ewings Co., spices, Montreal.

Just how it was that the fire obtained such a hold on the building before it was discovered, Coroner Hamilton will endeavor to find out in the inquest which opens this afternoon. The night clerk claims to have found fire while on his hourly rounds, when, as he stepped from the kitchen to the rotunda, he was met with a burst of fire that swept up the main stairway. He at once ran up through corridors awakening the inmates, one of whom, A. F. Birchard, of the high school staff, rushed in his night clothes to the nearest alarm box. The hotel, of four storeys, was splendidly equipped with fire escapes, fire ropes, night watch and a watchman's clock.

The flames spread to the Colquhoun Block, and the upper portion of this was quickly gutted.

Probably the most important gift was the house, at No. 1015 Fifth avenue, New York, from Mr. and Mrs. Gould, the deed of which, handsomely framed, was displayed. This house will be furnished by the respective parents of the young pair.

Mr. Gould also gave to his daughter a necklace and pendants of diamonds set in a graceful design, and from Mrs. Gould there was a corsage ornament of diamonds and sapphires. Mrs. Gould also gave to her daughter a banquet ring set with emeralds and diamonds. From Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould there was a collar of pearls with diamond bars, and from Mrs. Charles A. Kingdon, grandmother of Mrs. Gould, a bracelet of pearls and diamonds. The Duchess de Talleyrand, aunt of Miss Gould, sent a handsome black pearl set in a ring, and from Mr. Frank J. Gould there was a bracelet of solitaire diamonds set in platinum.

Mr. Drexel's gift to the bride was a large sapphire set in a ring, and from Mrs. J. Henry Smith there was a star sapphire scarf pin for Mr. Drexel. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish sent a mesh purse of gold and platinum with a monogram in diamonds, and from Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, there was a star sapphire set in enamel. Mr. Robert H. Russell's gift being a turquoise pendant.

WIFE OF MAYOR BEECROFT DEAD

Barrie, April 30.—The death of Mrs. Beecroft, wife of Mr. Thomas Beecroft, Mayor of Barrie, occurred here yesterday morning. The announcement, while received with regret, created little surprise, as it was known for some weeks that she was gradually nearing the end. Besides her husband two young daughters survive.

Made Her Trial Run.

London, April 30.—The Royal Edward, of the Canadian Northern Railway Steamship service, returned from a trial trip, in which she made 21 knots in a heavy sea.

The guests were surprised at the excellent quarters provided for all classes. There was a dinner Thursday night to celebrate the event.

PRAISES FINANCE MINISTER

London, April 30.—An article on Fielding by "M" appears in The National Review. It says that if Laurier is the grand seigneur of Canadian politics Fielding is the essential business man. The article deals mainly with the financial career of the "Minister of Surpluses," and gives him credit for taking the first practical step toward the policy of preference, one of the greatest strokes of Imperial statesmanship in the world yet. When seen "M" concludes that there is ample ground for confidence in the reflection that Fielding is not to be bullied by Germany, the United States, or any other country. He has not hitherto forgotten while furthering Canadian interests that he is also a statesman of the whole British Empire.

FISH SAVED BOY'S LIFE

Kingston, April 30.—While playing on the edge of Delta Creek, Alson Whitmore, the four-year-old son of Samuel Whitmore, fell off the bank into seven feet of water. He had gone down the second time when Mary Jane Watson, a 15-year-old girl, fishing near by, ran to his assistance. Just as she started, a fish caught her hook, and her scream for help and the swimming of the fish around the boy's submerged arm, saved his life. The line became entangled around his hand and arm and she dragged him against the swift current, to safety. It was some hours before he was brought around again.

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE EXHIBITION

Toronto, April 30.—Mr. G. H. Gooderham, president of the Canadian National Exhibition, has written to the Exhibition offices from England, enclosing the agreement between the British Government and the Exhibition whereby the band of the Grenadie Guards will play at this year's Industrial Exhibition. Mr. Gooderham also states that Vickers, Sons, & Maxim will have an exhibition of every type of projectile and models of every gunboat in the British navy.

SPEND MILLIONS IN MONTREAL

Montreal, April 30.—According to D. B. Hanna, third vice-president of the Canadian Northern Railway, the company contemplates an expenditure of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 in Montreal in connection with the establishment of suitable passenger terminals in that city. It is also intended to have a fleet of at least three fast steel freight boats connect with the vessels of their Atlantic service on the arrival of these at Montreal, so as to have import package freight from the big liners rushed to given points on the great lakes.

MONEY IS POURING IN

Toronto, April 30.—At one o'clock yesterday the grand total for the Y.M.C.A. building fund was $267,000, and by six o'clock amounted to $283,605. During the afternoon Harry Ryrie, who had written James Ryrie and John Firstbrook, both of whom are in the orient, that unless he received a cable to the contrary he would put the name of his brother down for $5,000 and that of Mr. Firstbrook for $2,500. The cable did not speak and $7,500 was added.

SIR JOHN FRENCH COMING TO CANADA

St. John, N.B., April 30.—Sir John French, the great cavalry leader and inspector of the British forces, will arrive in St. John on June 12th to inspect the troops here. He will reach Halifax on June 7, and expects to spend three days there inspecting the troops in all kinds of military work. There will be a big review of the troops and will also be inspected separately.

DIED IN THE ARMS OF THE POPE

Rome, April 30.—Monsignor Guglielmo Pifferi, who had been the sacrista or parish priest of the apostolic palace since the time of Pius IX., died yesterday in the arms of the Pope, who had gone to the bedside in the morning upon learning that the end was near. The monsignor had served for fifty years under three popes

DEATH STILL MYSTERIOUS

Evidence Taken on Death of Stoney Creek Farmer.

Stoney Creek, April 30.—A motive and much circumstantial evidence were brought to light at the inquest, opened at Stoney Creek last night into the death of Elijah J. Finton, who was murdered in his barnyard last Tuesday.

It was shown that there had been trouble between the son, Thomas, and deceased for some time previous to the murder. The father had complained often to George Millen that neither his son nor his son's wife were treating him right.

ELIJAH FINTON.

Blood stains were found on a pair of overalls worn by the son on the morning of the murder. He could not account for the blood and has made several contradictory statements.

Medical evidence showed that deceased came to his death by being struck on the head.

Thomas Finton did not appear at the inquest, which will be continued Thursday evening next. Thomas is aged 22, is married and has one child. Dr. B. E. Thompson was the coroner. S. F. Washington appeared for the crown, and George Lynch-Staunton for Finton.

CANADA SHOULD MEET THE U.S.

London, April 30.—The Morning Post discusses Sir Richard Cartwright's speech at Ottawa, which it thinks interesting in view of the circumstances. Reciprocity between Canada and the United States is again to the fore, and it says that on Cartwright's hypothesis, that a policy of alliance with the United States only means safeguarding the heart of the empire. Canada's immediate imperial duty would then logically appear to be to meet the United States' overtures.

She Broke Out in Song.

Fresno, Cal., April 30.—Ethel Boylin, aged 16 years, detained in the county jail for alleged incorrigibility, Thursday sang herself to freedom. Her voice so appealed to the assistant district attorney that he made a plea to release her on parole, saying, that he believed the girl would win fame as a prima donna if her voice was trained.

HOW THE GAME WAS WORKED

Solicitor Minty Gives Inside Information on A. & G.W. Deal

Winnipeg, April 30.—The way in which the A. & G. W. Railways was financed at incorporation was divulged yesterday by G. D. Minty, under examination by W. A. Walsh. It was in effect that W. R. Clarke, on Oct. 2, 1909, went to Mr. Fraser, manager of the Merchants' Bank at Edmonton, verbally arranged for an overdraft of $50,000, and then paid in marked checks into this same bank the $50,000 capital subscribed stock of the company. Then the shareholders held a meeting on that same day and voted to W. A. Clarke $50,000, payment for expenses incurred while organizing the company. Consequently the A. & G. W. had no money.

Minty explained that Attorney-General Cross' connection with the project was simply as an officer of the Provincial Government, interested for the Government in the railway project. He declared that, to his knowledge, no member of the Alberta Legislature, or of the Government, was financially, directly or indirectly interested in the A. & G. W.

R. B. Bennett took the witness in hand. Minty declined to answer, claiming privilege as a solicitor for the Canada West Construction Co. He told Bennett that W. R. Clarke was waiting for his brother, B. R. Clarke, to get all financial benefit possible from the construction company, as W. R. was expecting to get great results for himself when the vast north country was opened by the railroad. He said he knew Clarke had spent more than $50,000 in furthering the railroad project, and had never spoken of any political contributions having been made.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Charles Lyell, Liberal, was elected at the bye-election in South Edinburgh.

Two hundred thousand bales of cotton were brought up on the New York Exchange by the bull clique.

H. B. Amea, M.P., has arrived at Montreal, suffering from sciatica, after his trip around the world.

Some ten thousand Jews have been forced by the Russian officials to leave Kieff and return to settlements within the pale.

President Plummer of the Steel-Coal Co. telegraphs that the strike is not settled completely, but that a considerable number of miners had accepted the company's terms.

The reason given why Field Marshal Lord Kitchener didn't visit Canada was because the Dominion forces were much more forward on the accepted model than the Australasian.

Five hundred of the finest-looking immigrants that have ever landed in Canada arrived in Toronto between yesterday noon and this morning. Nearly all of them will be sent to farmers in Ontario, who are still in need of thousands more men than can be obtained.

Premier Briand's Appeal.

Paris, April 30.—Premier Briand yesterday appealed to the workingmen to discountenance the dangerous and revolutionary element, whose words in announcing a May Day manifestation in the Bois de Boulogne were defiant and a menace to the peace.

EATEN BY CANNIBALS

Two Missionaries Captured by Savages and Devoured.

Seattle, Wash., April 30.—Details of the eating by cannibals on Feb. 5 of Rev. Horatio Hopkins and his assistant, Rev. Hector Laurie McPherson, missionaries of the Presbyterian Church on Savage Island, were brought by the barkentine Mary E. Winkleman, which arrived yesterday at Mukilteo, Wash., from the Tonga Islands in the South Seas.

While the barkentine lay at Tangatabuin, the Tonga Islands, a canoe load of mission natives from Savage Island arrived at Fau, bringing news of the butchery.

The natives said that Hopkins and McPherson were teaching in the mission building, which stands on the beach in the little harbor of Savage Islands, when 200 unconverted savages, howling war cries and brandishing clubs and spears, descended on them and took thirteen prisoners. The missionaries had 20 converts in training at the time, and only nine of them escaped.

Both missionaries were bound with thongs and left lying on the beach in the tropical sun for several hours, while the savages took the native captives inland.

The cannibals then returned to the beach and carried the missionaries on a litter to the crater of the extinct volcano Van Iue, in the centre of the island. There for two days and nights they held a corroboree.

At times their dancing and revelry could be seen plainly by the fugitive Christian natives.

While most of the cannibals were sleeping the captive natives escaped. Their going was hastened by the sight of two of the cannibal chiefs donning the missionaries' clothes. The clergymen had already been eaten.

The Winklemen brought news of a general revival of the old-time religious customs in the Tonga, the Society, the Solomon and the Cook groups. The natives are holding dances and feasting on human flesh as they did in the days before the white men interfered.

TRIED TO POISON GENERAL STAFF

Vienna, April 30.—The mystery of the origin of the wholesale poisoning plot directed against recently promoted officers of the Austrain army is cleared by the confession of Lieut. Adorf Hofrichter. He sent capsules containing prussic acid to ten members of the general staff, accompanied by a circular recommending their use for ill-health. One of the officers addressed took the preparation and died almost immediately.

BAD BLAZE AT WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, April 30.—Fire which broke out at 2.30 last night in the six-storey warehouse of Foley Bros & Larson, wholesale grocers and manufacturers of biscuits and confectionery, on Market street east, completely gutted the west half of the building and caused a loss of $125,000. The building is separated by a fire wall in the centre.

MEMBERS WORKED HARD IN THE HOUSE YESTERDAY

Goodly Number of Bills Put Through—Minister of Justice on Statutes of Prairie Provinces—Cable Bill Safely Passed as Were Oliver's Bills.

Ottawa, April 30.—The Commons did a heavy day's work yesterday and put through a number of bills.

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth's bill respecting escheats was passed. In regard to this the Minister of Justice once more referred to the inferior statutes of the prairie provinces as a result of the retention of their lands by the Dominion.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux's two bills to bring cable companies and their rates under the control of the Railway Commission were passed.

Hon. Frank Oliver's amendment to the volunteer bounty act before it was finally disposed of, involved some discussion. The bill had stood over until Mr. Oliver had time to consider several amendments proposed. He rejected all except one of small importance.

The amendments rejected were: By J. G. Turriff—To provide for the exchange of lands which prove worthless; by C. J. Doherty—to limit extension to the veterans and exclude purchasers of scrip; by Samuel Barker—To allow veterans to hire persons to perform their settlement duties; by Major Sharpe—To include civil surgeons; by Col. S. Hughes—To include Canadians who served in the war without being formerly enlisted; by John Herron—To include men who enlisted but were prevented by illness, etc., from landing in South Africa.

Mr. Oliver's immigration and land bills were passed, as well as Mr. Graham's bill regarding the taking over of branch lines for the Intercolonial, with the Senate amendment rejected.

Mr. Graham had a bill to amend the railway act put through which included bills by Messrs. Lancaster, Mr. Gehen and Mr. Papineau. The terms are to extend the authority of railway board, to include works already begun, to simplify procedure regarding stringing wires across a railway, to shorten time limit of appeal from decisions of the railway board, to widen liability of railways regarding the fencing of their property, and to limit liability of railways for loss by fire from locomotives to $5,000 over the insurance.

Yesterday morning in the House, referring to a published statement to the effect that, as Minister of Justice, he had been giving too much legal work to Mr. Shepley and to the firm with which he was formerly connected, Hon. Mr. Aylesworth said that, with regard to Mr. Shepley, he had been actuated by purely business reasons. Legal work had been sent freely to him because he had thought it would be better attended to by him than by any other legal gentleman in Ontario.

With regard to the charge that he had favored his own former firm, he had had no financial interest in that firm since he had become Minister of Justice; he had a natural interest in it because of old associations, and because his son was a member of it.

However, there was not one word of truth in the story that he was giving business to it. Before he entered public life it got much public business, but since he became a member of the House, not one dollar's worth of business had been sent to it by himself, or by any Department of the Government, so far as he knew.

Uproar characterised the meeting of the public accounts committee in the afternoon, and when Chairman Warburton left the chair at six o'clock, he terminated the stormiest meeting of the session of this usually unruly body.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley, and his continued breaking of all rules of procedure, and acting as defending counsel for the witness on the stand, caused it.

The case before the committee was that of the excessive rental by the Government of the Canadian and Woods Building on Slater street, Ottawa. Major Sam Sharpe was probing into the cost of lighting the buildings. The auditor-general's report for 1908-9 shows that the Department of Public Works paid to the Woods' estate for the lighting, $9,468. The cost to the estate for the light from the local light company is less than $3,000.

The manager of the Imperial Realty Co., which manages the estate, Mr. Linton, stubbornly refused to produce the contract with the company, and was supported by Mr. Pugsley. Major Sharp accused Mr. Pugsley of acting as defendant for the witness in the box.

Mr. Pugsley said he had a perfect right to object to wrong procedure. The chairman ruled that the contract need not be produced.

The naval debate was continued in the Senate yesterday morning, when Senator Choquette opposed the bill. He is the third Liberal in the Senate to do so.

Senator David, who spoke first, strongly favored the bill and a Canadian navy.

Senator Choquette opposed the whole naval project and argued for a referendum on the question at the next general elections. He said that the policy was contrary to Liberal principles and, had Sir Wilfrid Laurier made it an issue at the elections of 1908, not five Liberals would have been elected in the district of Quebec. In 1895, he said, Mr. Brodeur was an anti-militarist and in 1902 the Premier was against the idea of a navy. Mr. Lemieux had written to Mr. Bourassa in that year against participation by Canada in the wars of the Empire, saying it was a dangerous principle.

Cobourg Licenses.

Cobourg, April 30.—The West Northumberland License Board yesterday renewed all the Cobourg licenses.

BLAMES HIS SWEETHEART

Lansing, Mich., April 30.—Robert Collister, a young automobile works mechanic, upon leaving yesterday in the custody of an officer to serve a two-year sentence at the Ionia Reformatory for conspiracy to rob the bank at Laingsburg, Mich., blamed an unnamed sweetheart for his choosing a career of crime.

Budget Is Now Law.

Not more than a dozen members were present to hear the royal assent read. Both Houses adjourned until May 20.

MR. FIELDING'S BIG TIP

The head waiter of a fashionable New York restaurant died recently, leaving a fortune of about half a million dollars. He had carefully saved his tips and invested the money so advantageously that it had grown to this immense amount before he died. The tip of $120,000 which Hon. Mr. Fielding received the other day was not quite so big as that, but then he did not have to put out his hand so often for the money as the New York waiter did. It came in a lump sum, although a number of men contributed. Wisely invested, it may amount to as large a fortune as that of the New York waiter before Mr. Fielding dies. The New York waiter's salary was small and he depended almost entirely upon his tips, but Mr. Fielding has been receiving a large salary as Minister of Finance of Canada for nearly fourteen years, and he was the well-paid Premier of Nova Scotia for many years before he went to Ottawa. He should not need a big tip to keep his family from starvation.

Waiters, sleeping car porters and barbers are expected to take tips. Some of the people who pay them grumble about it, but they continue to put their hands in their pockets for the necessary coin. Whatever may be said about the custom of tipping waiters and porters the tipping of politicians is a practice that cannot be commended.

There are men and women in this country who would live on a crust of dry bread and a cup of cold water rather than accept charity. Which is the more debasing, the acceptance of charity by a man whose family is starving or the acceptance of an immense gift of money by a politician who has been drawing a big salary for many years?

SIR RICHARD CARTWRIGHT

The members of the Senate banqueted Sir Richard Cartwright in Ottawa Thursday night. It was on a similar occasion some years ago that Sir Wilfrid Laurier made the remarkable speech referred to in the Review of April 20th, in which he eulogized Sir Richard for being always ready to sacrifice his principles for the sake of the Liberal party. That was a purely Liberal gathering, but the banquet last Thursday was non-political. Conservative and Liberal members of the Senate took part in it. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was not present and no doubt ful compliments were paid to the aged politician.

Sir Richard Cartwright has been in politics for 57 years and it cannot be truthfully said that he has during all these years done anything for the good of Canada. There is no reason to believe that he has been corrupt. His private life has been clean and respectable, which is more than can be said for some of the then Sir Wilfrid Laurier has chosen as Cabinet Ministers. In public life we believe that he has never been a boodler and there is no evidence that there has ever been any graft in his department. For that, at least, he deserves some degree of credit, surrounded as he is by Liberal politicians, who believe that every public contract should provide a rake-off for some one who can be depended upon to contribute to the party funds. Yet his sense of public duty cannot be very high, for on one occasion when the Opposition objected to the appointment to a remunerative office of a political worker guilty of gross electoral corruption he sneered that Parliament should not expect the same moral standard in public officials as would be required in a girl's boarding school.

Having said that he is personally not a grafter and that his private life has been clean, what more can be said for him except that he has been in public life a long time? He has contributed nothing to the progress of Canada. He has done much to obstruct it. He worked for years to force the Canadian provinces into commercial union with the United States. He obstructed to his utmost every project for the development of Canada while the Conservatives were in power. On one occasion when Canada urgently required British capital Sir Richard Cartwright wrote to a London financial paper a blue ruin article deliberately calculated to prevent the investment of capital in Canada. He suppressed every fact favorable to Canada and magnified every unfavorable circumstance. The only salvation he could see for Canada in those days was closer union with the United States.

Since the Liberals came into power he has seldom spoken. He is an eloquent man, but he has never raised his voice to denounce the extravagance and corruption which characterize the Laurier administration, although the expenditure is three times as great as it was when he denounced the extravagance of Conservatives. In his own department he has shown no progressiveness.

At the banquet the other evening his theme was "An Anglo-Saxon Alliance," meaning an alliance between Britain and the United States. It should be Canada's great mission to bring this about, he thought. All Canadians desire to see friendly relations between the British Empire and the United States, but if Sir Richard believes that Canada should bring this about by annexation, commercial union or any surrender of Canadian rights, the people of Canada will decline to undertake the mission.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"The colonial tie cannot last forever," said Senator Cloran in the Senate. He agrees with his leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that Canada must eventually drop out of the Empire as the ripe fruit drops from the parent tree.

The Brantford Expositor alleges that Conservatives get extensions of licenses whilst Liberals are cut off. In Peterborough certainly this is not true. The license commissioners did their duty without taking into consideration the politics of the liquor-sellers, as any one familiar with the local situation knows. The general opinion seems to be that with very few exceptions the license commissioners throughout the province have been very fair and impartial.

Senator Poirier, one of the French-Canadian Conservatives, has come out strongly in favor of Mr. Borden's naval policy. In the Senate he said the fleet proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier would be useless to Canada and the Empire. He believed that Canada should contribute one or two complete fleet units to the Imperial navy. He probably understands French-Canadian Conservative sentiment as well as Mr. Monk does. Two of the Liberal Senators, Choquette and Legris, have expressed themselves as agreeing with Mr. Bourassa that Canada should spend no money whatever on naval defence.

Charles Smith, former city messenger, of Hamilton, will not be given a retiring allowance.

7 MONTHS OLD HOGS AT 300 LBS.

Mr. John Crowe of Cavan Disposed of Six to Matthew Co.

Yesterday Mr. John Crowe, of Cavan, brought six hogs to the city, and the result was a lively bid for them on the market. They were purchased by the George Matthews Co. and on being weighed it was found that each tipped the scale at 300 lbs. The hogs were but seven months old and Mr. Clarke is an authority for the statement that they were the heaviest purchased by the company this year. The price paid was $9 per hundred.

Montreal Girl Shot.

Burlington, Vt., April 30.—Jealous because Jessie Lebar, the girl to whom he was to be married, was receiving attentions from his companions-in-arms, Wm. West, first sergeant of Troop K, Tenth United States Cavalry, a colored regiment stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, shot and killed her at her boarding-house in Winooski yesterday, and then rode back to the fort and gave himself up. The Lebar girl was of such light complexion as to pass for a white woman. She was 22 years old, and came from Montreal about three months ago.

Smallpox From Clothes.

Toronto, April 30.—Four cases of smallpox have been discovered by the Health Department, all of which are traced to a new suit of clothes purchased and worn by a young man on St. Helen's avenue.

APSLEY NEWS

Special to Review.

Apsley, April 28.—We have been having some very fine weather for the past week, and as a result the growth is showing up nicely.

Mr. Norman James, of Apsley, has purchased the Apsley cheese factory from Mr. Andrew Pattison. Mr. James expects to begin business about the 9th of May. We wish him success in his new enterprise.

Mr. Archie Whitmore, of Lonsdale, intends drawing milk from the "Busy Corners" to Apsley this summer.

Mr. Richard Lees, public school inspector for Peterborough county, paid the schools in this vicinity his usual visit recently. He also addressed a public meeting at Apsley on Thursday evening last with a view to having a continuation school started in that place.

Miss Lydia Hall is visiting friends at Oak Hill this week.

A number of our young men have gone to the drive.

Miss Zella Johnson is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Albert Hall, for a few days before leaving for Peterborough, where she expects to engage for the summer.

A meeting of the directors of the Apsley Telephone Company was held in the school house No. 2, Chandos, on Saturday, April 23rd, for the purpose of arranging to extend the line from Apsley to Lansdowne. It is believed the line will be a great benefit to the country.

The farmers in this neighborhood are putting in their spring crops as rapidly as they can.

Are You Weak, Bloodless, Anaemic?

You Can Be Cured of Poverty of the Blood Just Like Miss Everett Was.

Since the early ages, in all countries, among all classes of people, anaemia has been one of the most pernicious conditions that affect mankind.

Writing from her home in Paisley, Mrs. Everett says:—"My daughter had just passed her sixteenth year, when she began to rapidly lose color and strength. Serious complications set in that made her family and friends most anxious. We were not only worried on account of her ill-health, but because she was likely to lose her years' work at the High school, where she was preparing for the profession of teaching. The doctor said it was 'Anaemia.' I knew the best remedy was Ferrozone—and made my daughter take two Ferrozone Tablets with every meal. The first box did little more than increase her appetite. But with the second box it was really delightful to watch the signs of returning health. Annie's face became sort of a yallowish at first—that deadly whiteness disappeared. But it wasn't long before a ruddy glow was perceptible in her cheeks, and real good color returned. All Annie's troubles were cured—she grew strong—vigorous—heavy in weight—feels and looks the picture of health."

The Piano That Improves With Age

COMPLETE satisfaction in a Piano is only attained when it fulfils the most exacting requirements in regard to touch, tone and quality of endurance.

For nearly three score years

The Haines Bros Piano

has been growing better. The fixed determination of the original makers to constantly live up to the highest artistic ideals in piano construction has been intensified and ripened by nearly sixty years of piano making.

A close and continuous allegiance to the highest musical standards during that time has produced the rarity, richness and permanency of tone that make the Haines Bros. the most satisfying piano of to-day.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

HIS SECRET.

How a Bank Clerk Eventually Became a Director.

By JOHN JONES.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

The lot of a younger son in England is usually a hard one because the boys are brought up in affluence only to be turned out with a pittance when they come of age.

Clarence Meldron was one of these younger sons, and at the age of nineteen a position on a high stool in the Bank of England was obtained for him. There has never been the chance for a young man in England to rise as in this country, and when Meldron entered the bank to begin a life of drudgery he felt like one on whom the doors of a jail had closed. What especially filled him with melancholy was that he loved the daughter of a baronet whom her family considered sufficiently attractive to marry the firstborn of a duke. And so she was. Lady Emily Twiss was extremely pretty, extremely kind, extremely bright. Indeed, she possessed every feature to recommend her as a wife.

Young Meldron had been in the employ of the bank two years with a few pounds a year increase in his salary when he received a note from Lady Emily bidding him a sad farewell. The Marquis of Stanforth had proposed for her hand, and there was no choice for her but to accept him. On receipt of Lady Emily's note Meldron suffered that agony which only a young lover knows who sees the girl he worships pass to another man.

Before leaving the bank that afternoon Meldron was notified that he was to deliver a box of papers from the strong room of the bank the same evening to the house of one of the directors. At the appointed time the young clerk went to the bank, got the box and carried it as instructed. He was told to wait in the hall, which he did for an hour or more while several of the directors were discussing a matter of finance in one of the apartments. Then he was called into the room where they were convened.

"Sir," said one of the gentlemen, "in the bank yard in the strong room you will find a number of chests in which are also papers. Open the box marked 1872 and bring me the package marked as indicated on this paper."

He handed Meldron a slip and a key. The young man took both, went to the bank, was admitted and entered the strong room. Having possessed himself of what he had been sent for, he looked about him.

He was in a room containing more treasure than any in the world. Great heaps of coin, bank bills and securities were deposited there. With a lantern he carried he poked about in corners and crannies. Suddenly he felt himself sliding downward. He struck a stone floor over which water was trickling, but he knew this only from the source of touch, for his lantern had gone out.

He bethought himself of a silver matchbox in his pocket, kept there for lighting his pipe. He struck a match and illuminated a sewer. He also lighted up the incline by which he had entered it and saw that he could go back the way he came. His lantern was at his feet, and, picking it up, he relighted it. Then he climbed back into the strong room.

Fortunately he had not caught much filth on his clothes, for he had not lost his balance in his descent of but a few feet. He ascended the stairs, was let out by the man in charge and went straight to the house where the directors were conferring. There he was rated soundly for having been so long on his errand. He made no excuse and was permitted to depart, his superiors saying that they would not need him longer.

A vision of a great change in his affairs loomed up in the young man's mind. He possessed a secret that involved millions. If he could leave the strong room by means of the sewer others could enter it in the same way. While the officials were watching their treasure above ground by the most carefully devised system there was no watch whatever at this opening where the sewer had broken and left a free entrance to the strong room.

No thought of using his knowledge for the purpose of appropriating the funds of the bank entered his head.

What he was thinking of was how he might use the secret honestly to assist him to a career. He lay awake all night thinking, but found no plan except to make some excuse to go into the strong room again and see if he could find his way out through the sewer.

A few days later, just before closing, carrying a lantern with him, he entered the strong room, thence the sewer and began to walk slowly through it. Presently he met a man who seemed to be looking about him for what he could pick up. Meldron questioned him and learned that he was one of that strange class who gain a living by searching the sewers. He piloted the clerk to an opening where egress was easy. Meldron marked the spot so that he would know it again.

One morning the bank's directors received a scrap of dirty paper on which was written in the hand of an illiterate person the following:

You think you is all safe hand you rank his safe, but I knows better. I bin inside the bank the last 2 nite hand you ose nuffin about it. But I am nott a heaf so hif yer will meet mee in the great squar room, with all the monnys, I tweif 2 nite, Ile explain ori to you, let nly thar 2 cum down, and say nuffin to obody.

The directors turned the note over to the police, gave orders that the strong room should be guarded and thought no more of the matter.

Nothing unusual happened in the bank that night, and the next day the note would have been forgotten had it not been for a remarkable circumstance. A chest of paper and securities taken from the strong room was received at the bank with another note from their mysterious correspondent complaining that the directors had set the police upon the writer and that he had not, therefore, kept his appointment, but he had sent the chest of papers he had taken from the strong room. The note further said that if a few of the directors should be in the strong room at midnight he would join them there.

Meanwhile Clarence Meldron sat at his desk in the bank, doing his duties with his accustomed regularity. He heard the note that he had sent the directors discussed in a low tone by two custodians and knew that a guard was posted at the strong room. The only matter that occupied him outside his duties was a letter he wrote to his sweetheart imploring her not to consent to a wedding with her fiancee until she could put it off no longer, adding that something might turn up for him. His sweetheart replied that she would do what he wished.

But on the arrival of the chest of papers and securities from the strong room Meldron saw evidence of commotion. A search of the strong room was made. Meldron had drawn a heavy chest over the crack through which he had fallen, and it was not found. After the discussion the directors decided to meet this man, spirit or devil, in the strong room in accordance with his appointment.

So that night secret police were called in to be ready to make any arrest that might be required, and armed guards of the bank were concealed behind treasure boxes in the strong room. Just before midnight three directors who were selected to meet the man in the strong room assembled at the bank and entered what was to be the meeting room. All braced themselves not to show fear. Nevertheless one of them was pale and the other two trembling.

When a deep toned bell without struck twelve a voice called from what point they could not tell:

"Put out the lights!"

After some deliberation this was done, and after the party had stood a few moments in darkness bright rays from a dark lantern at the other end of the room dazzled them. Then they heard the cry:

"Light up!"

The lights were turned on, and there before them stood their clerk, Clarence Meldron. He waited for them to speak.

"Explain this!" said one of the directors.

Meldron told them of his first visit to the strong room, of his sliding into the sewer, of his subsequent trip in the sewer and of his meeting there. Then he took them to the opening.

They looked at one another in blank amazement, thinking of the responsibility they had incurred in the fact that here was an entrance from the outside to their treasure room.

"But why have you taken this strange method of informing us of this opening?" asked a director.

"To impress upon you the fact that your treasure was exposed. I could have made myself one of the richest men in the world by secretly and slowly taking away treasure that might not have been missed in weeks, perhaps months. If I had simply called you in here and shown you this crack you would have presented me with £10 reward, and that would have been the end of the matter. I deemed it advisable that you should be made fully conscious that under your administration you were exposing the funds of millions of people intrusted to your care to be plundered by any dishonest person knowing the secret."

Not one of the directors but understood that they had an honest young man to deal with, but one who was bright enough to take advantage of the possession of his secret. Were the story to be spread about London the gravest consequences would accrue to the bank and would be their ruin. Before Clarence Meldron left them he was notified that he would be appointed to an important trust.

That was the beginning of one of the largest fortunes in England. Meldron became a great financier and a director of the bank. He married the Lady Emily Twiss.

Residents of Kitscoty, Alta., closed their houses and fought a prairie fire that threatened the town.

Montreal Man So Ill With Dyspepsia Thought He Would Die.

A SECOND SOLOMON.

How an Australian Judge Decided a Difficult Matter.

One of the occupations in Australia is sheep raising. There are large ranches upon which many sheep and lambs find feed, and the shepherds guard their own.

One day a man was arrested for stealing a sheep. The man claimed that the sheep was his own; that it had been missing from his flock for some days, but as soon as he saw the animal he knew him.

The other man claimed the sheep and said he had owned him since he was a lamb and that he had never been away from the flock.

The judge was puzzled how to decide the matter. At last he sent for the sheep. He first took the man in whose possession the sheep was found to the courtyard and told him to call the sheep.

The animal made no response, only to raise his head and look frightened as if in a strange place and among strangers.

Bidding the officers to take the man back to the courtroom, he told them to bring down the defendant. The accused man did not wait until he entered the yard, but at the gate and where the sheep could not see him he began a peculiar call. At once the sheep bounded toward the gate and by his actions showed that a familiar voice was calling.

"His own knows him," said the judge.

One of the Early Fire Engines.

The fire engine shown in the picture was built more than a hundred years ago and has been retired from active service for more than fifty years. Is it not a queer looking engine compared to the splendid ones we have now built of steel and copper, with all sorts of devices for quickly putting out fires? The wood of which this old engine is built is now badly decayed in places.

The Home Gardener.

Take a tumbler of water and place in it a potato, supported about half-way out of the water by two hairpins stuck into it, one on each side, resting on the edges of the tumbler. Set it in the sunshine or in any warm place. In about six weeks it will begin to throw out little silvery sprouts from the bottom and by and by tender green leaves from the top. Keep the glass well filled with water always.

These shoots will continue to grow till they become a beautiful vine, which you can trail so as to cover your window. As soon as the weather is warm enough you can transplant the vine to the garden and train it to creep over the trellis. It will flower out in the air.

Questions and Answers.

Why is chloroform like Richard Wagner? Because it is one of the greatest of modern composers.

What is the greatest acrobatic feat? For a man to revolve in his own mind.

Do women like to see themselves in print? No; they prefer silks and velvets.

Why are penmen like chickens? Because they scratch for a living.

The Bunny Story.

A family of bunnies lived under a stump. They were merry and frisky and playful and plump.

All the evening they danced by the light of the moon

And begged Mrs. Bunny to get dinner soon.

Mrs. Bunny brought onions and peas to the circle

Where the tenderest radishes grew she knew well—

With a carrot or two on a cabbage leaf plate,

And the young Bunnies chattered, and, oh, how they ate!

They had napkins of lettuce leaves tucked snugly in

That covered them up from their toes to their chin.

They nibbled the good things, and, wondrous to state,

They also devoured both their napkins and plate!

Said good Mrs. Bunny, "Housekeeping, I find,

Is a thing I can truthfully say I don't mind,

For my work is so light and my duties so few

With no napkins to wash and no dishes to do."

—Youth's Companion.

Easy Puzzles.

Take a certain word of four letters, multiply its fourth component by 2, and it will give the first letter; divide the first by 20 and it will give the third; divide the third by 50, it will give the second, and, lastly, multiply the third by 10 and it will give the fourth letter. The answer is, like teacher's temper, mild.

If from six you take nine and from nine you take ten,
Ye Wits, now the puzzle explain.
And if fifty from forty be taken there then
Will just half a dozen remain.

Answer:

From SIX take IX and S
From IX take X and I
From XL take L and X
} will remain.

The Butcher Bird's Larder.

It is possible that the butcher bird's "curious and cruel habit" of impaling various creatures upon hedge thorn is his way of supporting his wife during her period of seclusion. Of many species the female is fed by the male on the nest, but the butcher bird's prey consists often of creatures which are too large to be eaten at a mouthful. Even if the male could always drag these carcasses to the nest it is obvious that the female could not eat them there, so the "larder" may have been hit upon as a happy device to get over the difficulty, the female flitting thither to help herself whenever she is hungry.—Country Life.

COMMITTEE FOR CHIMES MOVEMENT

Tribulor Bell not Approved of—Suggested Chimes Will Cost from $4000 to $4500

The chimes movement was discussed by a large and enthusiastic meeting held in the Bank of Montreal chambers last evening. Rev. Canon Davidson acted as chairman, and the following resolution was passed:—

1—That this meeting warmly approves of the proposition to purchase a set of chimes to be placed in St. John's tower, Peterborough, no debt to be incurred in the purchase.

2—That we are convinced, after hearing reports verbally and by letter, that tubular bells would not meet with general approval, and that a greatly increased subscription be raised forthwith in order to purchase a thoroughly good chime of ordinary bells, ten or twelve in number, the said chimes to cost from $6,000 to $4,500, account to subscription received.

3—That we are thankful for the wide interest already manifested, and feel confident that this project should appeal to all citizens of Peterborough as being for the public advantage, and we hope that some of our generous citizens may enable the very best possible chimes to be purchased.

4—That our thanks are due and are hereby tendered to Hon. Geo. A. Cox and other out-of-town subscribers for this evidence of their kind feelings for Peterborough, which are warmly reciprocated.

5—That a committee be appointed to solicit subscriptions and carry into effect these resolutions, and that we hereby pledge our hearty support and co-operation.

The total amount subscribed is $2,070, $354 of which has been paid in cash. Rev. E. V. Stevenson, of Plainfield, N.J., is among the recent subscribers.

$30,000 SEWAGE AND DRAINAGE BY-LAW WILL BE SUBMITTED

For Much Needed Work in the South-Western Section of the City—City Engineer's Report Read at Meeting of the Board of Works—The Details of the Proposed Operations and Their Cost.

There is a crying need for greatly improved sewage and drainage facilities in the south-western portion of the city. The necessity for this has been realized by the Board of Works for some time, and a thorough and expert inspection of the ground was made by Mr. Chipman, C.E. Ald. Hicks, the chairman of the Board of Works, submitted the detailed report of the city engineer at last night's meeting of the board, and the report showed that it would take $30,000 to meet the expense in connection with the suggested operations. The engineer's statement as to the cost of the work was concurred in by Mr. Chipman, and a communication from him to that effect was read at the meeting. It was the opinion of the board that the work was badly needed and that the improvements and extensions as mentioned in the engineer's report afforded the suggestion of the only satisfactory means by which it could be accomplished.

After a thorough discussion of the matter it was decided, on motion of Ald. Duncan and Duffus, that a by-law be prepared for $30,000 as recommended in the engineer's report.

The report was as follows:—

29th April, 1910.

Ald. Hicks,

Yours truly,

City Engineer.

Think of Last Summer—

You can remember days when the heat inside your kitchen was so great you could hardly bear it. With the right stove you would have made a better hostess. Save your health. Don't put up with the drudgery of a coal range. You can have a clean, cool, pleasant kitchen. The

New Perfection
WICK BLUE FLAME

does away with all drudgery of cooking. Why should you be a slave to a coal range when you can have an Oil Cook-Stove that is cheaper than coal, cleaner than coal, doesn't "smell," doesn't smoke, lights instantly, can be put out instantly, leaves no ashes, and doesn't heat the kitchen. With one of these stoves you can boil, bake or roast the most elaborate dinner. You can change from a stove to a quick fire, or the other way about, by simply turning a wick. Apply a match, and instantly the heat from an intense blue flame shoots upward through the turquoise-blue enamel chimneys to the bottom of pot, kettle or oven—but nowhere else. The stove has every convenience that can be thought of: Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping food and dishes hot, drop shelves to hold coffee or teapots, towel rack; in fact every convenience possible.

The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive.

Cautionary Note: Be sure you get this stove—see that the name-plate reads "New Perfection."

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet.

VERY SUCCESSFUL CLOSING EXERCISES OF THE Y.W.C.A. AT COLLEGIATE AUDITORIUM

Last evening the Young Women's Christian Association held their closing exhibition in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall, and the event proved to be a huge success. The manner of its presentation betokened natural gifts which have been carefully and artistically developed by a very competent instructress, Miss Ivy Coventry. During the evening Miss Coventry was presented by the classes with no less than five bouquets, while the accompanist, Miss Sutton, received the same number, proving the high esteem in which the two ladies are held by the classes. In the course of the programme Mr. Charles Perkins rendered several vocal selections which received a great amount of applause. The classes are to be congratulated for the manner in which they carried out their parts. The deep interest taken in the class work was reflected in the performance given last evening.

The motley dresses and peculiar shaped hats used in the different "Folk" dances, gained much applause. The feature of the evening was the Japanese fan drill, in which sixteen senior girls dressed in Japanese costumes and carrying large, colored fans went through many delightful and pleasing gestures.

At the conclusion of the programme a vote of thanks to Miss Coventry for her excellent work was extended by Rev. J. C. Davidson.

The following programme was rendered in a most acceptable manner:

IMPROVEMENTS TO CANADIAN MACHINE TELEPHONE SYSTEM

Mr. F. D. McKay, of Toronto, general manager of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, is in the city to-day. Mr. McKay's visit is one of importance, and he is here in connection with improvements and extensions to the local system. The company have been carrying on large negotiations and have steadily been making improvements to their system and 'phones.

It is understood that extensions will be made to the local plant and other work of importance on the city service will be carried on.

The automatic 'phone has been improved considerably and the revolution of the connection apparatus is now made in the improved 'phone without the clicking noise. The new desk 'phones are of aluminum, and are thus rendered very light and convenient.

WILL ADVERTISE FOR A NEW CHIEF OF POLICE

A meeting of the police commission was held at the city hall this morning and it was decided to advertise for applicants for the position of chief of police of the Peterborough police force.

A resolution of condolence was passed to Mrs. George I. Rossel, the widow of the late chief of police. It was decided to recommend to the city council that the late chief's salary be continued to the 1st of July.

No applications for the position of chief were considered at this morning's meeting.

IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Robert Baxter Was Severly Burned at His Home by Explosion of Lamp

Robert Baxter, whose home is at 68 George street south, is lying in a critical condition in St. Joseph's Hospital as a result of being severely burned at his home on Wednesday night. He was in the act of blowing out a lamp when it exploded. He was burned about the face and chest, and to the Review to-day, Dr. Greer, who is attending the patient, said that his condition is critical.

Baxter was removed to the hospital yesterday in the Dan Spence ambulance.

SOME SPLENDIDLY BRED ANIMALS

At Stallion and Bull Show at Driving Park This Afternoon

The stallion and bull show at the fair grounds this afternoon, under the auspices of the Peterborough Fair, brought out a fine showing of splendidly bred animals in both classes, and the show was well patronized.

H. S. Manhard, V.S., of Smith's Falls, was judge. The awards will be announced on Monday and in the Weekly Review.

JOLLYING LED TO FISTCUFFS

Last night an interesting mill was pulled off on McDonnel street at Central Park a party of young fellows, who were walking along the pavement and two young men in a buggy, being the principals. The young men on the pavement commenced jollying the two in the buggy and came out to them on the road with the result that one of the occupants of the buggy jumped out and knocked one of the comedians on to the road and handed another a severe jab. This practically wound matters up and the drive was resumed uninterrupted.

TO BENEFIT PRISONERS

Paul Armstrong, who has started the movement for a performance of "Alias Jimmy Valentine," at Wallack's, New York, the proceeds to go to the life prisoners in the United States, has written the wardens of each of the penal institutions, asking for the number of "lifers" in their charge. It is Mr. Armstrong's contention that, while nothing of great moment can be done for the men sentenced to spend their lives behind bars, there are many minor comforts which may be made possible by the receipts from next month's special performance of the convict play.

DOG BY-LAW AGAIN THE THEME OF MUCH DISCUSSION

The Legal Committee of the City Council met in full strength last night, with Chairman Ald. Gillespie presiding.

The 57th Band will receive $25 for their services on Saturday last. This was decided on on motion of Ald. Phelan, seconded by the mayor.

Ald. Turner asked that the dog by-law be enforced. His documentary evidence showed that 90 per cent. of the general concensus of opinion was ranged on his side. He asked that the city advertise for a dog catcher and premises to constitute a dog pound.

City Solicitor Hall doubted that the leash clause could be enforced.

Ald. Phelan did not think the city could legally compel a citizen to pay license for a dog and to keep it in control of leash.

City Solicitor Hall characterized Peterborough as being the biggest "dog town" in Canada.

Ald. Turner argued that the sooner the dog by-law is enforced the better for the city. The by-law is a reasonable measure. He would like to see the measure tested in the police courts.

Ald. Turner moved, seconded by Ald. Gillespie, that tenders be asked for a dog catcher and a suitable pound.

Ald. Duffus characterized the council as weak in passing the by-law and not providing for its enforcement, and voted in favor of its adoption.

The committee were asked to appropriate $50 towards entertaining the Knights of Pythias when convening in this city from July 12th to July 15th, and to furnish them a hall in which to meet on that occasion.

The delegation were advised to consult the Board of Education as to whether they could be accommodated with a room in the Collegiate Institute or not. The question of a money grant will be considered later.

ALL THE BOARD OF WORKS APPROPRIATION WILL BE USED IN IMPROVEMENTS

$19,624 Expenditure Estimated by City Engineer Hay But This Had to be Reduced to Come Within the Limits of the $16,000 Appropriation for the Year — Cement Will be Purchased at $1.65 From the Peterborough Hardware Company.

At the meeting of the Board of Works last night the list of appropriations for the year's work, as submitted by City Engineer Hay, was presented to the meeting by the chairman of the board, Ald. Hicks. Those present at the meeting were Ald. Hicks, Mayor Morrow, Ald. Duffus, Duncan, Metheral, Gillespie, Graham and Phelan. City Engineer Hay and Street Commissioner Evans were also in attendance.

The amount of the expenditure as estimated by City Engineer Hay, was $19,624.00, but as the appropriation of the board is only $16,000.00, the expenditures had to be pared down to come within this sum, which meant a reduction of $3,624.00.

Ald. Hicks then submitted the list of the appropriations, which was a long one, mentioning the reductions he had made to keep the total within the $16,000 limit. They were accepted by the board as read, and a motion by Ald. Gillespie and Duffus was carried to the effect that a new plank floor be placed on the bridge over the creek on Smith street at Jackson Park, that Benson street be graded, and that the Downie street creek be diverted, if the satisfactory grant of the right of way is obtained, and that the other appropriations as outlined by the chairman be approved.

The engineer called attention to the fact that, although the walk across Central Park was not in the list, the work would be carried out.

The chairman stated that he had seen the Peterborough Hardware Co. about supplying cement to the city this year, and that they had named $1.65 a barrel as the price they would contract to supply the cement. This was the same price as the Canadian Cement Company quoted. The cement sacks would be ten cents each, and the stoning and unloading would be three cents a barrel. The chairman was of the opinion that it would be preferable for the city to test the cement and take that cost out of the contract price, and also thought that the city should do its own stoning. Mr. Evans said that the Peterborough Hardware Co. had given up the old storehouse and that it could be rented by the city for sixty dollars.

It was moved by Ald. Metheral, seconded by Ald. Phelan, and carried, that the city buy the cement from the Peterborough Hardware Co., and that the street commissioner make arrangements for a storehouse, the price to be paid for the cement by the city to be $1.65 a barrel.

It will be remembered that the Cameron Septic Tank Company took steps some time ago to recover royalty from the city on the septic tank in use, alleging that it would be an infringement on the patient if the royalty were not forthcoming. A murmur of satisfaction ran around the board when City Clerk Armstrong read a letter in which it was stated that the patents had run out through non-payment on the part of the company, and that, therefore, no royalty could be demanded.

A petition was read for a pavement on the south side of Bolivar street, from lot 78 to the Monaghan boundary. On motion of Ald. Duncan and Duffus it was granted.

A communication from Mr. T. D. Quartermaine, accountant in the office of the city engineer, was read, in which Mr. Quartermaine requested that his salary be raised from $650 to $800 a year. On motion of Ald. Duncan and Graham this will be dealt with at the next meeting of the board.

It was moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Duncan and carried, that sufficient gravel be put on the road in front of Mr. Wade's residence on London street.

The securing of the gravel for the city's use this year was left with Street Commissioner Evans.

CITY BASEBALL LEAGUE OPENING ON 24TH OF MAY

Proposed Date of May 16th Was Changed—College Players, Whose Home is in the City, Not to be Barred—Certificates Given Out.

All representatives of the City Baseball League were prompt on time for the meeting called at the Y.M.C.A. last evening and considerable business was transacted. The president, Mr. H. A. Yeomey, was in the chair.

The clause which refers to what players shall play in the league was amended to read: "Any amateur player will be allowed to play in the league, but he must be a bonafide resident of the city at the time the schedule is drawn up." This will allow of players attending college, but whose home is in the city, to play in the league during their summer vacation. In the case of Jack Corkery, whom the T.A.S. wish to play on his arrival here, it was decided to take no action until an investigation be made.

The committee appointed to draw up the constitution overlooked the question of players attending college, but have since made it understood that their intention was that these players should not be barred.

Another clause was added to the constitution. To the effect that the constitution cannot be changed only at the annual meeting, and that in case of a proposed amendment two weeks' notice be given to the secretary of the league.

It was suggested that the date of the opening of the league be changed from May 21st to May 24th, and a motion to this effect carried.

On July 2nd the West Ends will be the home team instead of the T. A.S., as was the case in the proposed schedule.

The first game will be nine innings and not seven, as was suggested at the last meeting.

Messrs. Dan McCabe, H. R. H. Kemmer, C. Graham and W. Grady were proposed as official umpires.

The certificates were issued to the four clubs, and the adopted schedule is as follows:—

May 24—
West Ends vs T. A. S.
P. A. C. vs Strathconas.

May 26—

HORSE'S LEG SWELLED

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by "Nerviline."

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline," writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore, and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

Nerviline is a Trusty Liniment

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters, recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Use it yourself. Large bottles of Nerviline 50c; trial size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

JACK JOHNSON IS TURNED AWAY

Los Angeles, Calif., April 29.—Jack Johnson, the negro pugilist, was refused accommodation in Los Angeles hotels on arriving here. He first went to one of the leading hotels, with a considerable number of attendants he entered the lobby, but a few moments later the party departed and tried another hotel. The same excuse was offered for not receiving the black champion—all rooms occupied. As Johnson refused to try to find lodging at any of the cheaper hotels, arrangements were made for his entertainment last night at the home of a negro editor.

ZAM-BUK IN 3 ACCIDENTS

It would seem that Zam-Buk, the famous healing balm we hear so highly spoken of everywhere, is particularly useful in the family circle. A report sent by Mrs. E. Davey, 786 Ellice avenue, Winnipeg, will illustrate this. She says: "My little boy of three, while playing, fell from a high verandah to the ground, cutting his forehead badly. Instead of calling a doctor who would undoubtedly have put in a number of stitches, I bathed the wound well, and applied Zam-Buk. The little fellow, although suffering keenly, soon had relief from his pain. In the course of three weeks, by applying Zam-Buk daily, the wound in his forehead was nicely healed.

"Since then I have also used Zam-Buk for a boil which came on my cheek, and which proved very painful and looked unsightly. Zam-Buk soon drew the boil to a head and it then quickly banished it.

"Another time my baby was scalded on her left thigh and calf of leg with boiling water. This was a severe scald and the child suffered cruelly, screaming from pain. Directly it was done I thought to use Zam-Buk, as we had a box in the house, and spreading some on flint I wrapped up the baby's limb. Next morning she rested much easier, and I applied a fresh bandage with Zam-Buk. I kept this treatment up daily and was rewarded by seeing a great improvement each time I dressed the wound. In a very short space of time the scalds were all nicely healed.

"I cannot recommend this wonderful healing preparation too highly for family use, and I have such great faith in its healing powers that my house is never without a box."

For all skin injuries and diseases, piles, eczema, salt rheum and face sores, Zam-Buk is absolutely unequalled. 50c. box; all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse all substitutes.

TROUT SEASON OPENS MAY 1

The open season for brook trout opens on May 1st. As to-morrow, May 1st, falls on a Sunday, it will not be legal to fish on that day, but from now on for some time, there will no doubt be a large exodus of ambitious anglers to the trout streams in the vicinity of Peterborough.

HALLEY'S COMET

Cambridge, Mass., April 28.—Halley's comet has brightened rapidly since last Friday, and is now clearly visible to the naked eye shortly after 3 a.m. The comet is displaying a fine brush-like tail of some three degrees in length, while the nucleus shines with a brightness of between 2.5 and 3 magnitude.

Prof. C. C. Wentwell, at the Harvard Observatory, was able to make a number of interesting observations this morning, despite the moonlight and threatening dawn.

Halley's comet has not as yet attained as spectacular stage as that of comet A, seen in the western sky in January, but the rapidity with which it has increased in brightness during the past five days gives promise of a splendid display in the course of a week, and astronomers have great hopes that when it emerges from the bright sunlight in the west next month it will be a most interesting celestial picture.

The comet is now moving through the constellation of Pisces, and for a day or two will be a short distance east of the bright star in the south-eastern corner of the great square of Pegasus. A careful search of the eastern skies an hour and a half before sunrise will disclose the visitor, and a field glass will bring it much clearer to view.

MOURNING COSTUMES.

In Summer All White Is Appropriate For Deepest Black.

Mourning costumes for very young girls are always somewhat of a problem. In summer all white is now considered appropriate for even deepest mourning, but the frocks must be of the simplest, without any lace or embroidery trimming.

White organdie trimmed with insertions of net or point d'esprit lace or with white crape is permissible even in deepest mourning for afternoon or evening wear for a very young girl. Sheer white lawn or mull made up with the utmost simplicity and even white dotted swiss is correct for summer afternoons.

For tennis or golf a black belt, tie and hat will not give the effect of second mourning, but will serve to distinguish between the severe style of white dress that is today so regularly worn during the forenoon.

HAT FOR YOUNG WIDOW.

One or two black lawn or batiste dresses, a black linen and a black rajah or pongee coat and skirt costume will be found necessary in a summer mourning outfit for a young girl. White pongee is permissible for lighter mourning, and coat and skirt costume in this material are much in vogue still.

The hat and veil illustrated are very smart for a young widow. The veil is of crape bound brussels net.

MR. KNOX PRAISES WOMAN.

Department Employee Is Able Lawyer, He Says.

Philander C. Knox, who was famous as a lawyer before he became attorney general of the United States, senator from Pennsylvania or secretary of state, has given the highest kind of indorsement of the legal attainments of an employee of his department. The employee is a woman, too, Miss Annie H. Shortridge, who is now law clerk to Counselor Hoyt of the state department.

"Miss Shortridge," said the secretary of state to the house committee on appropriations, which is making up the state department estimates, "has been in the service of the government since Mr. Olney was attorney general. She began as stenographer and general clerk, and she had been in the department of justice ever since until she came into the department of state, three or four months ago. She is undoubtedly and to my knowledge a very able lawyer. Many important briefs were prepared by her when she was in the department of justice. It is a great pleasure to me to be able to do her justice."

It is a certainty that many male lawyers would give a good deal to get so hearty an indorsement of their legal attainments from Philander C. Knox.

Dainty Baby Sack.

The dainty flannel sacks and kimonos that the baby wears are usually cut from a good pattern and then taken to some art needlework place to be stamped.

This is not always convenient, and it is well to know simple borders that can be put on at home.

Most of these small garments are furnished with a buttonhole scallop, which can be worked around the ends of a thimble or spool. A daintier scallop is made by using a spool of 200 thread and drawing halfway around it.

A coarse deep scallop never looks well on baby garments.

An easier way is to draw a series of scallops on stiff paper and transfer it to the material with transfer paper. Shift the paper and design when the section is done.

How to Detect Chicory.

Shake a spoonful of coffee with a wineglass of cold water and then place the glass on the table. If the coffee is pure it will rise to the surface and scarcely color the liquid, but if not it will sink to the bottom and the water will be tinged red.

THE AMERICAN ACCENT.

An English Writer Frees His Mind on the Subject.

"The American accent," writes a contemporary correspondent, "is far less irritating than the cockney dialect, and it would be well for us if the former, which is at least musical, could be substituted for the cacophonous patois of our east end."

As a matter of fact, we think that the cockney accent has a certain number of real admirers, but what we wish to call to our readers' minds particularly is that America has its cockney, so to speak, precisely as we have. People in Kentucky have a rather burrish way of speaking, and they loathe and detest the fruity twang which overwhelms New England. The westerner, again, is responsible for the dialect which was supplied on the English boards by stage Yankees.

Whether you acquire the American accent or not depends on the length of time you remain in America. Englishmen who stay in New York for protracted periods preserve their native cadences intact. It is the man who pays a flying visit to the United States who comes back and always says "nop" for "no" and "yep" for "yes."

Once we met a man who had returned from a week's stay in Boston. He said he had heard it was easy to acquire the twang and finally exclaimed, "Waal, stranger, I guess it may be dead easy for some, but not for Blank Z. Asterisk," meaning himself. "Now, what's your opinion? Am I right?"—London Globe.

THE VORACIOUS TUNAS.

What Happens When They Meet a School of Flying Fish.

One time at San Clemente we sighted a feeding school of tuna, an exhilarating sight. A flying fish weighing a pound and a half or more would start from the water and soar an extraordinary distance, nearly out of sight, but every inch of that flight I knew was covered by a big tuna keeping his place just beneath the flier and ready to seize it the moment it fell into the water. This rarely failed. The moment the fish began to drop the tuna would spring at it like a tiger, turning and tossing the spume into the air with a splendid and electrifying rush, a maneuver that was repeated all over the blue channel.

The sensational charge meant that a school of tunas had discovered a school of its natural prey, flying fishes. At once the lust for blood and food was on, and carnage was the result.

I have observed some curious scenes at sea, but never have I seen fear so forcibly expressed as by a school of flying fishes, exhausted and at the mercy of the voracious tunas. I have had them gather about my boat and cling to its keel as closely as they could, while the air was full of leaping tunas and soaring fish. At such times when a school of sardines is rounded up the fishes are so terrified that men have rowed up to them and scooped them in by the pailful.—Outing.

Catarrhal Deafness

Successfully Treated By

Catarrhozone

Deafness is not so common as blindness, yet thousands are more o less afflicted by it, and their comfort seriously interfered with.

Catarrhal deafness manifests itself but slowly, yet it must be acknowledged that the great majority of those who become totally deaf might have averted this unfortunate condition if they had treated the catarrhal inflammation at its beginning.

The only remedy that can be safely employed for all forms of catarrhal deafness is Catarrhozone. You simply charge the air you breathe with this healing, soothing agent, and by forcing it gently through the ears destroy the germ life which keeps up the inflammation, and at the same time by the soothing, healing action it heals the inflamed surfaces of the middle ear.

CATARRHOZONE, to those who are just a little deaf, and are growing increasingly deaf, is an agent capable of affording the utmost satisfaction, and its use is attended without danger, and as the treatment can be carried on at home no person threatened with the affliction of deafness should postpone one moment in beginning its use.

From every part of the Dominion glowing accounts of the beneficial action it exerts upon catarrhal conditions of the middle ear have been sent in, and you will be resorting to the only method of cure, and the simplest method too, if you try Catarrhozone. Dealers everywhere sell it, 25c, 50c, and $1.00. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

Curious Optical Properties.

Asterism is the beautiful name given to a curious optical property of certain minerals. They show a star shaped figure where light is reflected from them or transmitted through them. This is seen in the star stone, which is a sort of sapphire, and in the star ruby. There is asterism also in mica. The photograph of a lamp flame taken through a plate of mica shows a six rayed star, with six fainter radiations between. Outwardly star mica resembles the ordinary form and shows the same phenomena under polarized light. When examined under the microscope, however, the star mica is found to contain fine needles of another mineral. And these are regularly arranged at angles of 120 degrees. To these needles is due the star seen by transmitted light.—Chicago Tribune.

Useful Meat Chopper.

The meat chopper will soon save more than its cost by enabling one to use cheaper cuts of meat and to utilize leftover meats. Raw beef run through it is a pleasant change from plain steak. It should be well seasoned with salt and pepper before chopping and should have a little fat mixed with the lean. Drop the little rolls just as they come from the perforated plate of the chopper on a very hot pan, with a little butter. Stir lightly a moment or two and serve quickly on a hot plate. To use remnants of roasts, steak or any nice cooked meat put them through the chopper and mix with an equal measure of breadcrumbs. Season with salt and pepper. Some persons may like herbs. Moisten with any gravy or stock you may have or with cream, making a little more moist than you would dressing for poultry. Put in a skillet or thick pan, cover closely with a plate and bake in the oven until well heated. Twenty minutes or half an hour is about right. After a few trials, possibly the first time, any one may succeed in making this very nicely. Another favorite way of using meat, especially cooked ham, is to cut it in small pieces, beat lightly and break over it one egg for each person to be served. When the eggs begin to set, cut across them and stir carefully so as to preserve the distinct yellow and white of the eggs. Serve at once.

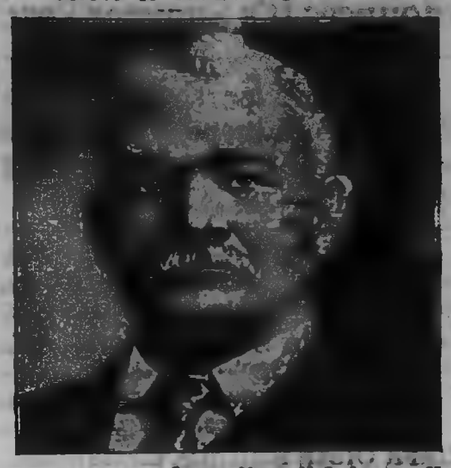
ANOTHER MIRACLE IN NOVA SCOTIA

Thought the Disease was Cancer of the Stomach

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Cured Him



SYDNEY MINES, N. S., JANUARY 25TH 1910

"For many years I suffered torture from Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Two years ago, I was so bad that I vomited my food [illegible]. The agony I endured all these years, I cannot describe and I lost over 25 pounds in weight. I also suffered with Constipation which made the stomach trouble worse. I consulted physicians, as I was afraid the disease was cancer but medicine gave only temporary relief and then the disease was as bad as ever.

I read in the "Maritime Baptist" about "Fruit-a-tives" and the cures this medicine was making and I decided to try it. After taking three boxes, I found a great change for the better and now I can say "Fruit-a-tives" has entirely cured me when every other treatment failed, and I reverently say 'Thank God for Fruit-a-tives'!!"

EDWIN ORAM, Sr.

"Fruit-a-tives" sweetens the stomach, increases the flow of gastric juice, strengthens the stomach muscles, and insures sound digestion. The wonderful powers of this famous fruit medicine are never more clearly shown than in curing the apparently hopeless cases of Dyspepsia and Constipation. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or trial size, 25c. TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL ORGANIZED AT LARGE AND REPRESENTATIVE MEETING

Mr. J. Flett, Canadian Representative to the American Federation of Labor, Was Organizer at the Meeting and Gave an Encouraging Address on Labor Topics—Officers Pro Tem Elected.

A very important meeting of the union labor men of Peterborough was held last night in the hall over the Crystal, when a Trades and Labor Council was formed for this city. Mr. J. A. Flett, Hamilton, Canadian representative to the American Federation of Labor, was present in the capacity of organizer and there was a large representation from the different labor unions of the city. Mr. Hugh Robertson was elected president pro tem and Mr. F. C. Debbin secretary pro tem. Provincial Organizer for the Carpenters' Union, Mr. John Tweed, of Toronto, was in attendance at the meeting and in an interesting address spoke of the excellent labor prospects and the prosperous state of the country. He called attention to the fact that this was indicated by the marked activity along different lines of industry and also stated that this year more building permits have been taken out than in any year previous.

Mr. Flett's address was closely followed by the meeting and his discourse proved most timely and valuable. In the course of his remarks he dwelt very optimistically on labor conditions and said that the labor unions were becoming better organized and more progressive. He gave much encouragement to the local council and offered some excellent suggestions as to its organization and methods. Mr. Flett severely criticized the Belcourt measure, which was unsuccessfully suggested for adoption in England. The measure, it passed, would have provided that it was an offence for any man to be connected with a labor union, and was characterized by the speaker as irrational and prejudiced.

On the third Monday in May a general meeting will be held at which the organization will be completed and the officers for the year elected.

COMMISSIONERS DIDN'T DEAL WITH EXTENSION OF TIME

A short session of the license commissioners was held in Inspector Stewart's office last night. The full board and Mr. Stewart were present.

When Mr. James Montgomery was granted permission to have a license it was on condition that he bought a license from some other hotelman. He bought Mr. J. B. Laroque's, and the transfer was ratified at last night's meeting.

There was a rumor to the effect that the commissioners were to consider the granting of extension of time to sell out for the hotel proprietors whose licenses were cut off.

Dr. Morrison, the chairman of the commission, advised the Review that this was not correct and that an extension was not considered.

NERVOUS DISEASE IN THE SPRING

Can Only be Removed by Toning Up the Blood and Strengthening the Nerves

Nervous diseases become more common and more serious in the spring than at any time of the year. This is the opinion of the best medical authorities after long winter months may cause much more than "spring weakness," and the familiar weariness and achings. Official records prove that in April and May neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, epilepsy and various forms of nervous disturbances are at their worst, especially among those who have not reached middle age.

The antiquated custom of taking purgatives in the spring is useless, for the system really needs strengthening—purgatives make you weaker. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have a special action on the blood and nerves, for they give strength and have cured not only many forms of nervous disorders but also other spring troubles such as headaches, weakness in the limbs, loss of appetite, trembling of the hands, melancholy and mental and bodily weariness as well as unsightly pimples and skin troubles.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure these nervous disorders and spring ailments because they actually make new, rich, red blood. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Rev. Robert Johnston, D.D., pastor of the American Presbyterian church, Montreal, will be the preacher to-morrow, on the seventy-fifth anniversary of St. Paul's church. Dr. Johnston is recognized as the most outstanding preacher in the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He will preach both morning and evening, and will address the Sabbath school in the afternoon. His morning subject is, "Jesus Christ Transfigured and Transforming," and the afternoon subject to the boys and girls, "How Christ Makes Life Splendid."

To-morrow will be the first of a series of impressive services to be held in connection with the important event of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of Presbyterianism in this city by the Rev. Mr. Roger, who was pastor of St. Paul's for forty years. On Monday evening a public meeting will be held, which will be addressed by Mr. J. R. Stratton, M. P., Judge Huycke and representatives of the different denominations in the city, as well as of the Presbytery. The public are invited to this meeting. On Wednesday evening the choir will give a grand sacred concert in the church. The choir will be augmented to fifty voices and will be assisted by Mr. Hollinshead, tenor, and Mr. A. L. E. Davies, basso.

A unique feature in connection with these services will be a communion service on Sabbath morning, May 8th, when former members of St. Paul's from different places are expected to be present. The Session have prepared a souvenir token which will be returned after communion with the minister's signature attesting the person's presence to all who attended. On Monday evening refreshments will be served from six to eight, and at eight o'clock a meeting will be held in the church, at which addresses will be delivered by Judge Roger, Sheriff Hall and former members of St. Paul's. Mr. Dobbin, of the Review will give an address on "Early Memories of Peterborough." The choir will assist at both Monday night services.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS AND THE COMMONS

Unionists Talking of a Referendum Instead of an Election to Decide the Issue Between Them, But the Liberals and Radicals Oppose.

London, May 2.—There has been a revival of talk of a referendum on the Unionist side as a practical method of meeting the present difficult situation. It is urged, with not a little plausibility, that the Government veto bill, when rejected by the Lords, can be sent to the country by a special referendum, and that the nation will have the authority for settling the dispute between the Houses without a general election. The Radicals have raised the objection at once that a general election would not be averted if the referendum should go against the Government, since Parliament would be dissolved in that event.

A special referendum would require the passage of a bill, and Premier Asquith is not likely to propose it when the Nationalists, the Advanced Radicals and the Labor members cannot be depended on to support it. A referendum in reality is a Unionist device for avoiding a premature appeal to the country and deferring the elections until there is a better chance of winning another hundred seats than there is at present. The earnest Radicals perceive this, and agree with Mr. Redmond that a general election on the veto issue, with the understanding that five hundred peers shall be created if the coalition triumphs, will be more decisive than a special referendum, which the masses are not likely to comprehend.

Two things are certain respecting the King's intervention: First, he will not be hurried or flurried by the politicians on either side, and, second, he will not depart from the constitutional practice of acting on the advice of the responsible Ministers of the crown. He did not consult Lord Lansdowne and Mr. Balfour last autumn until Mr. Asquith advised him to do so, and he is not likely to suggest a round table conference without the Prime Minister's initiative. He attaches great weight to the judgment of Lord Esther, Lord James of Hereford, Lord Rosebery and Lord Knollys, but these confidential friends cannot take the place of his constitutional advisers.

What is probable is that his influence will be properly exerted in the direction of a statesmanlike adjustment of the existing difficulties, and that affairs will take their course if he finds mediation impracticable. Mr. Redmond does not want a referendum or any compromise, and Mr. Asquith, if he succeeds in keeping Sir Edward Grey and R. B. Haldane with him, will probably stand out for royal guarantees, with an election in July. Even Lord Milner has lost his fighting power, and opinion among the Unionist lords is shifting from the rejection of the veto bill to its adoption with a referendum rider.

The House of Lords' veto will be submitted to the House of Lords when Parliament reassembles on May 26. There are six clauses in the bill. They contain nothing new or novel, but the preamble foreshadows that action will be taken later for the reform of the House of Lords, with which the resolutions do not deal. It says that it is intended to substitute a second chamber, constituted on a popular, instead of an hereditary, basis. Such substitution, the preamble declares, cannot immediately be brought into operation. Provision is also made for limiting and defining the powers of the new second chamber.

Premier Asquith has gone to Gibraltar with Mr. McKenna, and Mr. Balfour has started on a series of country house visits.

The Hague, May 2.—Upon their arrival at the frontier station of Hulland at Roosendtal on the morning of April 29th, the Roosevelts were met by a special train sent by Queen Wilhelmina, and, accompanied by American Minister Beaupre, they proceeded to Het Loo, where Mr. Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt were entertained for several hours by the Queen at the Royal Chateau.

In the evening they went to Amsterdam, where the Burgomaster gave a banquet in their honor.

FIRE VICTIMS AT CORNWALL

Seven Dead Bodies Recovered From the Burned Hotel.

Cornwall, May 2.—A large staff of men worked all day Sunday delving into the mass of brick, mortar, stone, iron girders and other debris of the ruins of the Rossmore Hotel, searching for bodies of those who lost their lives in Friday morning's holocaust. This work was authorized at a special meeting of the Town Council on Saturday, and was carried out by men employed by the corporation under the direction of their mechanical superintendent, Charles Launt.

As the result of their efforts two more bodies were found, which are believed to be those of Mrs. Taylor W. Archibald and Benjamin Fielding, the Sterling Bank accountant. Mrs. Archibald's rooms were directly over the C.P.R. telegraph and ticket office. In the debris beneath a quantity of bones were found and nearby a brooch which was recognized by her son as the aged lady's property. A bunch of bank keys found with the remnants of another body discovered yesterday indicate that they are those of Mr. Fielding.

The six bodies found up to yesterday were believed at first to be the White girls and the Gray family, but the autopsy conducted by Dr. Alguire leads to the belief that Mr. Gray is still missing, also his son. The body at first believed to be Mr. Gray's proved to be that of a woman, and everything points to it being that of Mrs. Groeler, widow of the man who lost his life in the Windsor Hotel fire last year.

One of the other bodies found is believed to be that of Charles Gagne, identification, it is said, being made by a stick pin found nearby. Summed up, according to the opinion of the local authorities, the bodies found are Mrs. Archibald, Mr. Gagne, Mr. Fielding, Mrs. Gray and her little daughter, and Misses Mary and Jane White daughters of the late Oliver White. The funeral of the latter will be held Monday morning to St. Columbian's Church and cemetery.

The calamity was referred to in nearly all the local churches, and on Monday morning a requiem high mass for the deceased will be sung at St. Columbian's Church by Very Rev Vicar-General Corbet.

The streets in the burned section were crowded all day with citizens, along with hundreds from the surrounding country, as well as many from points in New York State, the steamer Sirius running an excursion from Massena.

Dr. C. J. Hamilton, coroner, on Saturday opened an inquest into the cause of the fatal Rossmore Hotel fire of Friday morning. After viewing the remains they adjourned till next Friday night.

CONVERTING PEAT INTO GAS AND POWER

Government to Spend $74,000 on Experiments—Automatic Rifles Advocated by Major Sharpe—Pay of Volunteers in Camp.

Ottawa, May 2.—The Commons met on Saturday and put through a mass of Government business and estimates, the main militia and marine and fisheries items forming the bulk. The House was sparsely attended.

Hon. Mr. Templeman, on the vote of $74,000 for the operating expenses of the experiments with peat as a fuel and gas producer, said that from a thousand tons of peat had been prepared during this month at Alfred, Ont.

A sixty horse-power engine has been installed at Ottawa, and it is proposed to show the value of peat as a producer of power. The Department of Mines, through Dr. Hannel, is prepared to demonstrate that peat will make gas and produce power as cheaply as water-power. It is also stated that peat can be used for gas producer engines at less expense than coal. Records have been made of over a hundred peat bogs in Ontario and Quebec, and it is known that there are some valuable bogs in Manitoba.

Late in the evening, when militia estimates were under consideration, Sir Frederick Borden explained that in addition to the 700 old style Ross rifles which have been converted into the latest patterns, mark two, double star, at an extra cost of twelve dollars per rifle, one thousand new rifles of the latest design have been ordered. There was practically no difference in the rifles except that mark two, double star, had a longer barrel and weighed about a pound more. Sir Frederick said that the company claimed that the Government should pay a higher price for the long-barreled arm, but this was disputed by the Department. He intimated that the matter would be arbitrated by a board of experts, provision for which is made under the terms of the contract.

Majors Currie and Sharpe wanted to know if it was the intention of the Department to look into the matter of automatic rifles for the militia. Major Currie pointed out that Germany and Japan were arming their forces with an automatic arm and Great Britain and France were conducting experiments. Canada, he said, should not lag behind.

Sir Frederick said that if it were shown at any time that Great Britain possessed an arm superior to the Ross rifle, the Government could call upon the company, under the terms of its contract, to manufacture that arm.

Several of the military members of the House urged a more generous scale of pay for volunteers in camp, and Major Sharpe suggested that the cost of the keep of the headquarters' staff might be cut down and the money given to the militia.

The Minister did not think the headquarters' staff was over paid, providing the work was being well done. He said that with efficiency pay, the good men could easily make one dollar per day while in camp. An increase in pay could not be made without a change in the law, and it was too late to do anything this session.

Major Currie suggested that something should be done regarding old Fort Malden on the Detroit River, to preserve it for the country. It was, he said, now virtually in the hands of private parties and was being sold for town lots. He could not understand how the land had been alienated from the crown.

G. A. Lancaster hoped the Government would not insist that the monument to Laura Secord should take the original form, if the people interested thought a bell would be better.

CUTTING OFF THE LICENSES

Three-Fourths of Rural Ontario is Now Dry—250 Bars Must Go.

Toronto, May 2.—This is a blue Monday for about 250 liquor dealers in the Province of Ontario. Saturday, April 30, was the last day upon which liquor could be legally sold upon 250 premises formerly under license.

On Jan. 3 last, 77 municipalities in Ontario carried local option bylaws, cutting off 203 licenses, which come into force to-day. In a number of other places license reduction bylaws have been passed or the license commissioners have reduced licenses. By these means at least forty more barrooms must close. Altogether, about one-eighth of all the barrooms that were left in the province go out of business to-day.

It is interesting to note that 11 of the licenses cut off by local option are in rural municipalities, 31 in villages, and 61 in towns. About three-fourths of rural Ontario is now "dry."

A RAILWAY PROJECT

Montreal, May 2.—H. Gervais, M.P. for St. James, returned from Ottawa yesterday with the announcement that Montreal will be hitched up with the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific within three years, and perhaps in less, that the subsidy bill for the Montreal, Kapatchewan and Rupert Bay Railway had received its third reading, and that active work would be begun between Montreal and the main line of the transcontinental during the present year. Ex-Mayor Payette, Hon. T. Berthiaume and other Montreal gentlemen are behind the project and Mr. Gervais has been untiring in his efforts in securing the charter as well as aid from the Federal and Local Governments.

SAILED AROUND BRITISH FLEET

London, April 2.—The fleet of British warships anchored off Sheerness had a novel experience yesterday, when an aeroplane from the aero club aviation grounds at East Church suddenly appeared out of the haze and manoeuvred over the vessels at varying heights. After making a deliberate reconnoissance the aerial craft disappeared.

The aeroplane was piloted by Cecil Grace. After leaving the harbor, it flew nearly 50 miles in 51 minntes, rising at one time to a height of 1,500 feet.

Eugene Woods' Body Found.

Port Colborne, May 2.—The body of Eugene Wood of Port Dalhousie, chief engineer of the ill-fated car ferry Bessemer No. 2, was found on the lake shore yesterday morning.

Shot by Her Brother.

Melville, Sask., May 2.—The 2½-year-old daughter of James Wreens of this place was accidentally shot and killed Friday afternoon by her eight-year-old brother.

LIVE WIRE KILLS CHILD

Grasped it in Her Hand to Remove it From Her Path and Was Shocked to Death.

Mimico, May 2.—Little six-year-old Violet Harloch was killed, and her playmate, Cecil Johnston, 13 years of age, just escaped a similar fate by coming in contact with a live wire on Church street, in Mimico, Saturday afternoon.

Several children were playing in the neighborhood of the fallen wire, all unconscious of their terrible danger, when the screams of their little playmate were heard. Little Violet, in passing under the wire, had grasped it in her little hand so as to remove it from her path. Immediately she fell to the ground, and the other children rushed up to see what was the matter with her.

Cecil Johnston, aged 13, realizing her danger, went to her assistance, and tried to separate her from the wire. He, too, was thrown to the ground and the shock he received almost ended his life.

Immediately Drs. Godfrey and Serson were called, and arrived on the scene shortly after. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, the town coroner, stated that the death of the little girl had been instantaneous, and that the boy had had a narrow escape.

GAMBLERS ARRESTED

Toronto, May 2.—Rushing upstairs over a restaurant at 105 West Queen street at 8.45 last night and smashing in a big door, which was heavily barred, by means of axes and crowbars, a posse of police arrested 68 Chinamen on the charge of gambling. Some of the outfit used in playing fantan, the celestials' favorite game, was seized by the police, the rest having been thrown out the window. No money was found on the tables, but a search of the accused showed them to have money on their persons, some only a dollar or two and others as much as $150.

This raid, which is one of the largest ever made in Toronto, caused a furore of excitement in front of the restaurant. Hundreds of people gathered around to see the fun, and became themselves so excited that some of the police had to use their batons to keep the crowd back.

ONE WEEK'S ARRIVALS

Winnipeg, May 2.—Over ten thousand new-comers arrived in the west last week, and of this number about four thousand came from Europe, and six thousand from the United States. The people from Europe reached the city on no less than ten special trains, while all the regular trains were also crowded with them.

About ninety per cent. of the new-comers are Anglo-Saxons, and there is hardly a settler coming into the west this year that cannot be placed in the desirable class.

The total number of new-comers from Europe for the month of April should run between the fifteen and twenty thousand mark, while the American invasion will supply another twenty thousand.

A SOLDIER'S FUNERAL

Toronto, May 2.—With full military honors, in which the regiment he organized and subsequently commanded for several years took premier part, the funeral of the late Col. John I. Davidson took place Saturday afternoon.

Seldom has such an impressive sight been witnessed by the citizens of Toronto as attended the last rites paid to the honorary colonel of the 48th Highlanders.

Dense crowds thronged the streets and sidewalks as the procession slowly wended its way, traffic being temporarily held up, until the cortege had reached University avenue.

When Mount Pleasant Cemetery was reached, at the conclusion of the short burial service, three volleys were fired in the air, and as the "last post" was sounded by 12 buglers of the regiment the casket was lowered into the grave.

EDWARD P. WESTON! ON HOME STRETCH

Yonkers, N.Y., May 2.—Edward P. Weston completed at 10.53 o'clock Saturday night the last stage but one of his journey afoot from coast to coast. Yesterday he rested here as he has rested every Sunday, within twenty miles of New York City, his objective point, far ahead of his schedule.

He is fourteen days ahead of his schedule and still strong, though he was so tired when he reached here that he had to be partially supported into his hotel. He weighs 135 pounds, twenty pounds less than when he left the Pacific coast on Feb. 1. On March 15 he celebrated his seventy-second birthday, while en route. Frequent accidents beset him, but did not discourage him.

WOODSTOCK MUZZLES DOG

Woodstock, May 2.—A proclamation was posted by the civic authorities on Saturday, requiring every dog owner to keep his animal muzzled and under lock and key, on the premises until further notice.

This action followed the visit of two provincial inspectors who investigated the escape from Woodstock of a rabies-infected dog, which bit several animals in Woodstock and county. Several of these have already been traced up and shot. A dog catcher has also been appointed, and he will be paid a salary as well as a bonus for every conviction.

A Valuable Cargo.

St. John, N.B., May 2.—C.P.R. steamship Mount Temple, now on her way to London from this port, took away in her cargo eight packages of Hudson Bay sealskins valued at $120,000. The Temple's cargo is worth nearly half a million dollars.

Alberta's University.

Calgary, Alta., May 2.—It has been decided to submit a bylaw for $100,000 to be used in the building of Calgary University. The university will start with endowments of over a million.

Drowned In Humber.

Lambton, May 2.—Arthur Shore, the little six-year-old son of Mrs. Birkett, was drowned in the dam near the Interurban Electric Light Co.'s plant here on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The alarm was instantly raised and the body was found in about an hour by the use of grappling irons. The distracted mother wailed into the water at her own imminent peril in the hope of saving her child. The father of the little lad lost his life some years ago while working on the railway.

A FAMOUS PREACHER

Rev. Dr. Milligan, of St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, Resigns.

Toronto, May 2.—"I shall never get well until I am freed of the great responsibility of the active work of the church, and in justice to the congregation I must press my request to be relieved of that responsibility."

In these words, Rev. Dr. G. M. Milligan, for 34 years pastor of old St. Andrew's Church, Jarvis street, indicated that he is fixed in the resolve, intimated to the board of managers several days ago, to give up his charge.

The pastor's request will come before a congregational meeting a week from to-night, and, as his decision is a final one, reached, as he says, after very serious deliberation during his recent five weeks' stay at Atlantic City, there is no choice other than to accept it.

Dr. Milligan has expressed a desire to become pastor emeritus.

Some of the members have suggested that he be allowed a year's leave of absence, in the hope that he might recuperate sufficiently to resume the burdens, but Dr. Milligan is quite assured in his own mind that the time has come when he must finally relinquish the heavier responsibilities.

He will leave for the Orkney Islands early in June, and will not return before October, with the possibility that it may be next spring before he returns, as he may later spend some months at Bournemouth or Torquay, England. His physician, Dr. H. B. Anderson, who is an elder of the church, will support Dr. Milligan's position.

INVESTIGATE ELEVATORS

Ottawa, May 2.—Steps will be taken immediately by the proper authorities to ascertain whether or not elevator companies operating in the Dominion under the provisions of the Grain Act, have been making an habitual practice of violating the terms of the act, whereby farmers, shippers and dealers have been suffering. With this end in view, it is likely that the annual weigh up, which is usually held in August every year, will take place much earlier this season, in fact, at the earliest possible moment that the stocks in the terminal elevators will permit.

This is the information given out by the Department of Trade and Commerce here.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW.

SIR RICHARD WON'T RESIGN

Ottawa, May 2.—Sir Richard Cartwright has flatly refused to resign the leadership of the Government party in the Senate, and Hon. Sydney Fisher, who was destined to be his successor, has put up another proposition to Sir Wilfrid Laurier regarding himself. It is learned that he has asked the Premier to name him as successor to Lord Strathcona, Canadian Commissioner in London. It is not thought, however, that his request will be granted.

Was No Trouble.

Paris, May 2.—May Day in Paris passed off quietly. The Government had taken the strongest precautions and troops patrolled the Bois de Boulogne and boulevards, but their services were not required.

The general federation of labor, in the face of Premier Briand's energetic attitude, did not attempt to carry out its threatened demonstration. Throughout the provinces also quiet prevailed.

Had Struck Telegraph Pole.

Perth, May 2.—An old resident of Bathurst Township by the name of William Kirkham was killed Friday night while driving home from Perth with his two sons. The horses became unmanageable and Mr. Kirkham was thrown out of his wagon, his head striking a telegraph pole.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Only 200 appeared at the Socialists' parade in Montreal.

No serious labor riots took place in Europe on May 1.

Mrs. J. A. Phillips of Montreal died of apoplexy on board ship from Mexico.

An Indianapolis woman hanged herself because she had made a mistake in census returns.

The total collections in the Toronto Y.M.C.A. building campaign at noon on Saturday were $361,955.

Henry Stewart, Toronto, fell in front of a dray Saturday, and had his arm and shoulder badly injured.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson estimates that the number of dope fiends in the United States is between 1,000,000 and 4,000,000.

Miss Pauline Chase, the actress, will visit New York for one day only, in order to auction a collection of autographed photographs.

Rellan Carmichael, Collingwood, a deckhand on the steamer Westmount, had his leg torn off at the knee by being caught in a cable on deck while docking at Port Arthur elevator.

CHINESE POLL TAX

Ottawa, May 2.—The revenue from Chinese immigration during the last fiscal year was $843,003, an increase of $99,873 over the last previous year, and the largest in the history of Canada. Some $807,000 was collected from 1,614 Chinese immigrants, who paid the tax of $500, and the balance was made up principally from Chinese registering on leaving Canada for one year, as permitted under the act.

Fifty per cent. of the capitation tax is payable to the province wherein it is collected. Checks therefore to the following amounts have been sent as follows: British Columbia, $356,000; Quebec, $22,500; Ontario, $1,500; Nova Scotia, $250; New Brunswick, $1,750; Alberta, $250.

The total Chinese immigration last year was 2,302, an increase over the previous year of 296.

THE LATEST DEVELOPMENTS

In Connection With Dog By-law Deputation Will Wait on Council

A large number of dog owners are up in arms over Ald. Turner's dog by-law. A deputation will wait on the City Council to-night, when the by-law will be considered, and will endeavor to have it rescinded.

RETURNS SHOW AN INCREASE

The Customs returns for April are $27,693.17, as against $23,838.18, for the same month last year.

ALBERTA'S SCANDAL

Winnipeg, May 2.—A new turn came over the completion of the Alberta and Great Waterways' enquiry Saturday, due to the announcement that several more important witnesses are to be heard, which makes it unlikely that the commission will leave for Toronto before Thursday next.

The commission has secured some star witnesses, notably W. A. Faulkner, who will go on the stand to-day. A. E. Kemp, general manager of the Alberta and Great Waterways Railways; H. P. McMahon, manager of Trader's Bank; Norman Leslie, manager of the Imperial Bank, and J. D. McArthur, the contractor, will also be examined here.

Overstrain Kills Him.

Ottawa, May 2.—Through an overstrain in preparing for an examination, Thomas A. Pirrie, a postoffice clerk here, is dead. Last Wednesday, when at the postoffice here writing on a quarterly examination, he collapsed, falling unconscious in his seat. He never regained consciousness. He was 56, and leaves a widow.

Suicide of Farmer.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 2.—George Kerr, a farmer living a few miles out of Pickford, on the American side, blew his head off with a rifle which was loaded with buckshot.

CRUEL MOTHER BITES CHILD

New York, May 2.—Rosa Petito, eight years old, appeared in a Brooklyn court Saturday with her arms and cheeks covered with the prints of human teeth and her right ear almost torn off. She said her mother, Mrs. Carrie Petito, had kept her locked in the cellar for two days, and had made the bites.

When the child was confronted by the mother she screamed and fled to the arms of a court attendant. The mother shrieked and became so violent that she had to be held before she could be searched.

Rosa's arms were so badly swollen that it is feared blood-poisoning may set in.

PLACES THAT ARE DRY NOW

On Monday the villages of Bobcaygeon and Haliburton go into the "dry" column or in other words become local option centres.

It will be remembered that in January last these municipalities voted on a local option by-law, and the measure was carried in both places by substantial majorities.

No intoxicating liquors can be sold in these places after to-day and the bars in the three hotels effected will therefore dispense soft drinks.

There is only one hotel in Haliburton, and it is understood the present occupant will continue in the business.

Bobcaygeon has two hotels, the Thompson house and Hunter house, and the proprietors of both hostelries are making preparations to meet the new conditions, and expect to have a very busy season catering to the commercial and tourist trade.—Lindsay Post.

DON'T EARN SALARIES

Constantinople, May 2.—Opposition developed Saturday in the Chamber of Deputies to the annual grant of £2,160 (Turkish) to the husbands of the imperial princesses, on the ground that these were sinecures. As a consequence, D. Javid Bey, Minister of Finance, presented his resignation, and it is likely that Talaat Bey, Minister of the Interior, as well as other Ministers, will also resign.

Italian Laborer Stabbed.

Toronto, May 2.—With five knife wounds in his back and chest, Gan Petrio is lying in a dangerous condition at C.N.R. Construction Camp, No. 3, about seven miles from Scarboro Junction.

His assailant, Joseph Dolzine, is in jail awaiting the result of Petrio's injuries. The men had been drinking and a quarrel ensued.

Killed a Constable.

Bluefield, W.Va., May 2.—Ames Hatfield, a member of the noted Hatfield family of the Hatfield-McCoy feud fame, Saturday shot and killed Constable Doc Mounts at Lindsay, W.Va. It is said the men met at the home of a woman and quarrelled. They met on the outside later in the afternoon and Hatfield fired two shots into Mounts' body.

EXAMPLE FOR THE WEALTHY ONES

So many Liberal politicians have grown rich since June, 1896, when the party came into power, that it is not at all surprising that Mr. Fielding thought he should get something more than his salary of $7,000 per year, as Minister and his Parliamentary indemnity of $2,500 per year. (When he remembered how Clifford Sifton entered the Cabinet a poor man and went out a millionaire, $9,500 per annum seemed a mere pittance to him and he felt that he was sacrificing himself for his country's good. So when prosperous political friends took up a subscription and offered him a gift of $120,000 he took it with thanks and asked no questions as to where the money came from.

Cabinet Ministers and ex-Cabinet Ministers who have grown rich while in office under Sir Wilfrid Laurier set the pace for those who have nothing but their salaries. These wealthy men can afford to spend lavishly the money they have quickly and easily acquired, and these members of the Cabinet who have only $9,500 per year are tempted to imitate the lavish expenditure of their colleagues and ex-colleagues. Nor are the Cabinet Ministers the only ones who try to keep pace with the millionaire politicians. Ordinary members and their families are naturally ambitious to go in the same society as the leaders, and thus extravagant living becomes the fashion at Ottawa. So while the Parliamentary indemnity of ordinary members has been increased from $1,500 to $2,500 per year many of the Liberal members find it inadequate to meet the cost of living in Ottawa. The temptation to accept bribes for their votes and influence in Parliament becomes great.

Mr. Fielding having now entered the circle of the wealthy ones the temptations for those who have not yet got in will be greater than ever.

A NEWSPAPER MAN'S SALARY

In working for Canada Mr. Fielding has had to neglect his own private interests. Most men who take service with the state find it losing employment. This is particularly the case with the working journalist. Mr. Fielding's friends saw him arrive at a time of life when provision for the future should be made, and it says great things for them that they took the task in hand and carried it to such a munificent conclusion. — Toronto Globe.

This implies that when Mr. Fielding gave up his salary as a working journalist on the Halifax Chronicle to take the salary of a Cabinet Minister, he made a financial sacrifice. The editor of the Globe knows that it is not true that most of the journalists who take Cabinet positions suffer financial loss by the change. As Minister of Finance Mr. Fielding draws a salary of seven thousand dollars a year besides his Parliamentary indemnity of two thousand five hundred dollars, a total income of nine thousand five hundred dollars per year. Is there any working journalist in Canada who receives a salary of $9,500 per year? Certainly no newspaper published in a city the size of Halifax can afford to pay its editor such a salary. No newspaper editor in the great city of Montreal receives so large a salary, and if the Rev. J. A. Macdonald, as editor of the Toronto Globe, gets that much for his services he is the most fortunate working journalist in Canada. The Globe often makes misstatements of facts through ignorance, but the editor of the Globe cannot be ignorant of the fact that no working journalist in Canada would be making a financial sacrifice in exchanging his editorial position for a seat in the Dominion Cabinet, if he could retain the Cabinet position for as many years as Mr. Fielding has been in office. How much reliance can be placed upon any statement of a newspaper which so misrepresents facts of which the editor must have knowledge?

CHARACTER, NOT AREA

Earl Grey when in Peterborough especially admonished the people to keep their national and municipal affairs free from graft and corruption. Referring to Canada's immense area he said that it was character and not area that built up a world. These are words that should long be remembered in Peterborough city and county. Peterborough has its part to play in making the character of Canada. Each constituency of the Dominion has a duty to perform in selecting a good representative for Ottawa. The character of each member of Parliament counts for something in making the national conscience. In each constituency the candidates chosen by both political parties should be men of irreproachable character, so that no matter which party wins at the polls pure, honest and honorable men will represent the people at Ottawa.

THE SALARY OF A CABINET MINISTER

The salary of a Cabinet minister

Is the salary of a Cabinet Minister so small that he is obliged to accept alms? Including his Parliamentary indemnity and his salary the Cabinet Minister at Ottawa gets $9,500 per annum. He has passes on all the railways of Canada good at all times to go anywhere. If he goes anywhere outside of Ottawa on public business all expenses are paid.

A farm that will sell for $9,500 is a pretty good one. Of course there are many farms in Canada worth more than $9,500, but the average farm is not worth that much. It will therefore be within the mark to say that a Cabinet Minister gets the value of a good farm every year.

No member of the Government should be permitted to accept gifts. If $9,500 per year is not enough for a Cabinet Minister and his family to live on and save something, the salary should be increased. It would be better for the country to pay a little larger salaries than to allow members of the Government to receive gifts from contractors and others who profit by their favors.

DANGEROUS DANDRUFF

Will Make Canada a Bald Headed Nation if Not Checked

M. Pasteur, the great French Physician of Paris, once said; "I believe we shall one day rid the world of all diseases caused by germs."

Dandruff is caused by germs, a fact accepted by all physicians.

Dandruff is the root of all hair evils. If it were not for the little destructive germs working with a persistency worthy of a better cause, there would be no baldness.

Parisian Sage will kill the dandruff germs and remove dandruff in two weeks or money back.

Wm. Madill guarantees it. It will stop itching scalp, falling hair and make the hair grow thick and abundant.

It puts life and lustre into the hair and prevents it from turning gray.

It is the hair dressing par excellence, daintily perfumed and free from grease stickiness. It is the favorite with women of taste and culture who know the social value of fascinating hair.

A large bottle costs only 50 cents at leading druggists everywhere, and in Peterborough by Wm. Madill. The girl with the auburn hair is on every package.

WHEN PLANNING SUMMER ONTINGS

AN EXCELLENT HERD OF CATTLE

Three Yearling Steers at House of Refuge Farm Averaged 815 Pounds

Superintendent Beavis has a fine lot of shorthorn Durhams under his supervision at the County House of Refuge. The stock is sired by Mr. H. C. Garbutt's thoroughbred Durham bull, "Hero," and there are some really splendid specimens in the herd, which numbers about twenty-five head.

Recently Mr. Beavis refused an offer of 5 3-4 cents live weight for three remarkably fine one-year-old steers, which, when weighed the other day, before being sent to pasture, showed the excellent average of 815 pounds each.

RUNAWAY ON THE SMITH ROAD

Lakefield News:—On Thursday afternoon Messrs. Thomas Brown and W. Cruikshanks, of Peterborough, met with quite an accident driving up the Smith road. When about two miles from Lakefield the horse became frightened at a board lying on the road, and swerved to one side upsetting the buggy and running away. Mr. Cruikshanks was very badly bruised and shaken up and Mr. Brown escaped with a slight shaking up. The top of the buggy was torn completely off. The horse was stopped in Lakefield none the worse for its quick run.

COVERING DIRT WITH WHITEWASH

The Climax of the Farcical Investigation of the Lumsden Charges of Over Classification on the G.T.P.R.

Ottawa, April 29.—The climax came to the lively farce which has been played for the last six weeks by four Liberal members who have been engaged in a so-called investigation of the charges of Mr. Lumsden, when a report was solemnly presented to the House whitewashing the Transcontinental Commission, and declaring that the allegations made by the former chief engineer were not proven. Nothing more partisan has ever been witnessed than the proceedings of this committee. From the first the cards were stacked against Mr. Lumsden, and the sole object of the four government supporters, Messrs. Geoffrion, E. M. Macdonald, A. H. Clarke and C. A. Wilson was to prove that Mr. Lumsden was all wrong and everything was right with the subordinate engineers in whom Mr. Lumsden declared he had lost confidence to such an extent that he resigned a lucrative position of $7,000 a year. This spectacle of trial of government by four men whose Parliamentary endeavors have been devoted to blind defence of crimes against the people done in the name of Laurierism would be pitiable were it thought that any public confidence attached to any such travesty of justice. The fact is the people of Canada when it was seen from the outset that a mock trial of the charges against the government was in progress, dismissed the whitewashing tribunal from its mind, and never in the history of this Government has such an open and frank attempt to sit on the lid and prevent the truth from emerging been carried out. The Government has reached that stage of decay where it is necessary by humbug and subterfuge to throttle every effort to gleam up the litter in the Liberal stables.

The Government called upon its followers to vote down the resolution moved by Mr. Haughton Lennox, of South Simcoe, calling for a Royal Commission to thoroughly enquire into all the facts concerning the National Transcontinental. Two excuses preferred for keeping the door closed were that in the first place there was nothing to investigate and that a Board of Arbitration already constituted some time ago with the proper authority. But as Mr. Borden points out, this board has no power to deal with the question of the cost of the road, but merely interprets matters of classification. What the country wants is a full and impartial enquiry into the whole facts surrounding the building of this line, which it estimated will now cost $218,000,000. When Mr. Fielding from his seat in the House assured the people of Canada that the road would only cost $51,000,000, he was either deliberately deceiving the House and country or he was utterly incompetent to give them an estimate based, as he said, on the authority of Mr. Collingwood Schreiber. Tens of millions are being poured into this road, and the people want to know what value they are getting for it. The attitude of the Government is that the people are not interested in what the road costs so long as we get it. That is the policy of administration drunk with power and with so little regard for the public weal that it calmly saddles the country with a colossal burden of debt which would make any more wealthy or thickly populated land stagger beneath the load. The whole building of this monument to Laurier reeks with graft and scandal, but the lid is still clamped down tight.

The Government with that desire which has always actuated it to sacrifice Canadian interests, refused to insert in the contract with the Grand Trunk Company a binding clause that home ports should be protected. When this road, which has cost already a colossal fortune, is finished, there is absolutely nothing in the contract which will prevent traffic originating over the Transcontinental finding the sea by way of Portland. The Grand Trunk can haul grain to Portland at a much lower rate than it can to St. John or Halifax, for the distance is shorter. All the interests of the Grand Trunk, therefore, lie in developing their own ports on the United States sea-board. The financial aid contributed by the Maritime provinces to the construction of the National Transcontinental will not fall short of $35,000,000 or $40,000,000, and if the ports of Halifax and St. John are to have no safeguard whatever that the enormous grain trade of the west will in the winter time go via them, then this contract rushed into by Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the ground that "time cannot wait" cannot be regarded as fair or in the best interests of the Maritime Provinces. As Mr. Borden put it very tersely in his speech on this subject: "If the Government are in a position to deal with the question they should take the matter into immediate consideration and act at once in a manner to conserve the interests of the Maritime ports of Canada. If they are not in that position, if they are absolutely incapable of conserving these interests, then I say that, in all fairness and in all honor they ought to give up the seals of office, resign their seats, and give place to men who are actuated by a more patriotic regard for the true interests of this country."

The Piano That Improves With Age

COMPLETE satisfaction in a Piano is only attained when it fulfils the most exacting requirements in regard to touch, tone and quality of endurance.

For nearly three score years

The Haines Bros Piano

has been growing better. The fixed determination of the original makers to constantly live up to the highest artistic ideals in piano construction has been intensified and ripened by nearly sixty years of piano making.

A close and continuous allegiance to the highest musical standards during that time has produced the rarity, richness and permanency of tone that make the Haines Bros. the most satisfying piano of to-day.

ESTABLISHED 1851.

Points for Mothers

Mothers, don't neglect your health and personal appearance if you want to keep your husbands' admiration and the pride and devotion of your children, even though your daily routine must be broken into occasionally, and surely these things are more essential to your happiness than the knowledge that the parlor has been carefully dusted each day or that every cloth and towel has been as smoothly ironed as your best shirt waist.

For the Baby.

A little empire frock for the baby is one of the season's new wrinkles. It has the tiniest, shortest yoke, cut square and outlined with a band of binding run with blue ribbon.

The full little skirt is gathered to the yoke and finished with a deep hem, featherstitched. Above the hem is a band of valenciennes insertion with three tiny tucks above and below.

The sleeves are merely little puffs gathered into beading run with ribbon tied in a rakish bow and finished with a lace frill. Tiny pearl buttons fasten the frock at the back.

Another equally attractive little frock is cut with a front and back panel and sleeves in one piece. The panels run from the neck to the hem of the frock and are outlined with fine featherstitching and have scattered tiny blossoms and French knots worked in white mercerized embroidery thread over the entire surface.

The neck and sleeves are finished with lace insertion and frills of edging, and the skirt is gathered at the sides.

Teach Little Folks to Love Nature.

A child's interest should be awakened in love for nature, for animals and birds. If he is taught that the humblest living creature should have his protection and affection he will never be thoughtless or cruel in his treatment of them.

A child may be told of God's love in the wonderful gifts of the things of the earth, the flowers and fruits for beauty and use.

Wonder may be awakened in his mind in the immensity of the universe, the glory of the sun, the beauty and mystery of the stars, the expanse of sky and sea.

The religious spirit should be fostered in childhood. Unless this is done it will not have strong growth.

The personality of the mother has much to do in originating in the child the earliest ideas of God and immortality. The sincerity of her faith, her reverence for all sacred and holy things—these are almost unconsciously observed by a child and form an impression never to be forgotten.

A Comfort Loving Mother.

The mother who desires comfort does not spend her time telling her children what not to do. She provides them with things they will want to do.

She frowns on candies, sodas and ice creams between meals, except as a special treat.

She does not believe in fine feathers making fine birdlings. She knows that the primped out child, being thoroughly uncomfortable, soon has its mother in like state.

Nor does she think it conducive to her own or her child's comfort to keep it up to all hours. The early to bed rule is worked for the peace of the household.

She is not inordinately ambitious. Prodigies are flattering to maternal vanity, but the unpushed boy or girl is more comfortable to live with.

She does not think indulgence makes for content. The mother who is most thoroughly uncomfortable in her children is the one who has never trained them to obey.

Cleaning Shoes.

Mothers often hesitate to put their small children into dainty white and light colored shoes because of the problem of keeping these shoes clean.

Soft white shoes, if not too badly soiled, may be cleaned nicely with almost any white powder.

If they are very dirty they may be cleaned with gasoline.

The regular white shoe polish is made with whiting and powder, mixed medium thick and applied with a cloth.

This may be used on white canvas and white and colored buckskin shoes.

Rub the shoes free from dry powder after they have dried.

"Bootlee" made of chamois may be washed in ammonia water.

Wash them in a suds with ammonia in it, rinse in more ammonia and wipe them dry with a towel or cloth. Do not dry near artificial heat.

Suffrage For Infants.

The suffragettes have evidently made up their minds that if they can't vote during this generation their daughters shall during the next.

Each of the 2,000 dolls given by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont to poor children of New York on Christmas wore a yellow "votes for women" sash. There seems to be some hope for the cause if the coming generation is to be brought up with suffrage thrust at it from infancy.

CRUDE ASTRONOMY.

Russian Peasants Have Queer Ideas of Sun, Moon and Stars.

We have it on no less authority than that of Caesar that the Druids taught their disciples many things about the form and dimensions of the earth and the heavens and a body of doctrines on the motions of the stars. Even death itself was to them an astronomical fact. They held that from this life we pass to take up our abode in one of the heavenly bodies. That they firmly held to this belief is manifest from the fact that they had no objection to lending money to be repaid in the other world. They looked upon the passage of life in much the same way as we regard a journey across the Atlantic.

There is no doubt that even now in various parts of Europe the views of the peasantry as to the heavenly bodies and celestial phenomena have changed but little from those of their predecessors of a thousand years ago. A Russian contributed to the bulletin of the Astronomical Society of France has given the results of his observations on this point extending over ten years. The astronomical lore of the Russian peasantry of the north, center and south is limited to a knowledge of the existence of the sun and moon, of three constellations, of the Milky way, of one planet, of comets, shooting stars and meteors. The sun is to all a mysterious and beneficent being.

The moon covered with ice and snow is ever in flight from its brother, the sun. Upon its disk may be seen unmistakably portrayed the murder of Abel by Cain, the latter being done to death by a pitchfork. Chill are the lunar rays, and woe betide the child of man who shall sleep unprotected therefrom! From the horns of the crescent much useful information as to the forthcoming weather may be derived by the learned in such things.

The stars are lamps or candles which are lit and extinguished daily by the Eternal. A shooting star is the soul of one who has just passed away. Comets are heralds of war and famine. No Russian ever forgets that the Napoleonic war followed the great comet of 1811.—Westminster Gazette.

MALIBRAN'S CAPTIVITY.

A Romantic Incident in the Career of the Great Singer.

The following incident is told of Mme. Malibran, whose voice once upon a time excited the most uxoromantic to folly.

She was resting in her dressing room at the theater after singing in the part of Desdemona, her passionate soul still quivering with the emotion of the part and the tears and applause of her listeners. A person entered and begged her to go to her mother, who had been taken ill. A carriage, not her own, was at the door. She was whirled through the streets and led, much to her surprise and fear, into a strange house and to an excellent boudoir, hung and carpeted with rose colored silk.

Here the beautiful songstress was left alone after being assured by her attendants that her mother was well, that the message was a subterfuge and that her captivity would last until she sang something.

On a low seat sat a lyre such as that which thrilled in Malibran's fingers as she sang Desdemona's touching song.

At first she determined to resist, but after a short time her mind reverted to the evening, and almost unconsciously she took up the instrument and sang the "Romance de Saule." As she concluded sounds of enthusiastic applause and trembling accents of delight came to her through the silk hangings, and she was then conducted by liveried servants to her carriage and to her home.

The next morning she found on her table a casket containing a magnificent pair of earrings, and inside the cover, written in diamonds, was the word "Merci." But the event remained a mystery to her forever.

Retort Filial.

In a warm argument one of the contestants had a poor case, but he defended his position vigorously.

"Oh, yes," the other one chuckled, "you have your defense, but you're lost. Losers always have their defense. Lincoln used to illustrate that with a story about his boy Tad.

"Lincoln and Tad were lunching one day in the White House.

"'Don't eat your fish with your knife, boy,' said Lincoln sternly. 'It's not polite.'

"'But, father,' said Tad, 'is it polite to stare at folks when they're eating?'"

Very True.

A grandmother was reproving her little grandchildren for making so much noise. "Dear me, children, you are so noisy today! Can't you be a little more quiet?"

"Now, grandma, you mustn't scold us. You see, if it wasn't for us you wouldn't be a grandma at all."—Harper's Weekly.

Why Lulu Was Happy.

Lulu was but two and a half years old when the first huckleberries she had ever seen were placed upon the table in a covered dish. When the cover was taken off she clapped her hands, exclaiming delightedly, "Oh, look at all the shoe buttons!"—Delineator.

HUMOR OF SIGNS.

It Is Far More Funny Because It Is Unconscious.

Like the best humor of other kinds, the humor of the sign is of the unconscious variety. Those who create it are not aware of the fact that they are adding to the gaiety of nations by their productions, or it may be that their own sense of humor is too blunted for them to know it when they are amusing. The man who put out the following sign was surely versatile, and yet a sense of humor was not among his gifts or he must have seen its absurdity.

"High Class Music furnished here for Concerts, Receptions, Bawls, and Partys. Also Chairs Caned."

Equally wide was the range of accomplishments of the woman who set in one of her front windows a card bearing this information:

"Music Lessons, also High Class Washing done Here. Doughnuts for Sale Wensday and Satterdays."

Though not strictly an advertisement, the following may not be out of place here as its purpose is to give information in regard to a saleable article. A writer in The Strand Magazine says he found it on a bottle of tomato sauce:

"Tomato Sauce. The sauce are pur. The flavor are terrific. Hope not to think imitation as good as us sauce. We haven't put nothing but nice tomatoe in sauce which give us such terrific flavor. One taste will have more. Januwala and Co Main Road Taiping Straits Settlements."

The summer visitors in a New England rural district got no little fun out of a sign in a berry pasture near the public highway:

"Berry picking on these premis forbid. Trespassing persecuted. Berrys for sail at house above. Keep out. Eggs and chickens also for sail. Washing and fine ironing."

In one of the suburbs of Boston there was in a small store a window full of the most surprising landscapes, painted china, wash basins, rolling pins, flower pieces, and mirrors. A card had on it these words:

"Miss Blank, Artist. She done those. Lessons inside, 50 cents. Lessons outside, 75 cents. All kinds of painting did to order. Also Are Millinery. Come in."

One will often find some hilarious signs in the new mining camps of the West. The humor of these is none the less amusing because it is intentional. Visitors to one of the camps a few years ago were delighted to find the following before the door of a log cabin about ten by fourteen feet in size:

"Delmonico's Hotel and Rest-your-aunt. Rooms with or without Rawth. No objection to poodle dogs or infants in arms if accompanied by their parents. Elevator not running. Barber shop and mannyeure rooms closed for repairs. Turkish bawths a la washtub."

Nailed to another cabin was a pine board on which one read:

"Bored and Lodging. Day Bored. Call In."

One of the leading dance and concert halls in the early days of Leadville displayed every Sunday this sign:

"Grand Sacred Concert and Free Dance Here To-night."

A woman of versatility in a Western town put in one of her windows a card on which she made the following interesting announcement:

"Art Painting Taut Here. Also Fansy Dancing and Fansy Embroidery. Millinary. Masag. Corns Cut. Fansy Hare Dressing. Table Boarders. Vokel Singing. Cooking Lessons and General Art Work."

A man who had gone into the chicken business on an extensive scale put up a large sign by the road side, on which he made the following announcement to the general public:

"Powltry for Sale. Setting Eggs. Broylers. Giany Hens. Fancy Fouls. Eggs and powltry supplied To Private families. Satisfaction Guaranteed."

The Compass In China.

It is generally admitted that the Chinese used the compass at a very early period to guide them in their journeys across the vast plains of Tartary. They made little images, the arms of which, moved by a freely suspended magnet, pointed continually toward the north. An apparatus of this kind was presented to ambassadors from Cochin China to guide them on their homeward journey some 1,100 years before the Christian era. The knowledge thus possessed seems gradually to have traveled westward by means of the Arabs, though it was over 2,000 years afterward before it was generally applied among the peoples of western Europe.

Absentminded.

A Canadian farmer noted for his absentmindedness went to town one day and transacted his business with the utmost precision. He started on his way home, however, with the firm conviction that he had forgotten something, but what it was he could not recall. As he neared home the conviction increased, and three times he stopped his horse and went carefully through his pocketbook in a vain endeavor to discover what he had forgotten. In due course he reached home and was met by his daughter, who looked at him in surprise and exclaimed, "Why, father, where have you left mother?"

Refined Politeness.

In an outward bound Boston car the other evening there was not a seat left. A lady entered, and not a man noticed her standing, apparently. Finally one man rose from his seat and offered it to the lady. She thanked him, adding, "You are the only gentleman in the car."

She was startled by the answer, "Yer betcher life I am, kiddo."

A New Version.

A schoolboy was asked to write "in his own words" the story of the prodigal son. He wrote:

"He wasted his substance in righteous living, and when he came back his father killed for him the fat headed calf."—London Fun.

To Clean Plaster.

When plaster casts become soiled with either rust or finger marks make a creamy solution of dry starch and cold water and apply it with a soft brush, carefully wetting all crevices and depressions. Set the cast aside to dry, then remove the starch with a stiff brush, and it will look as if fresh from the studio.—Harper's Bazar.

Doctors Condemn, Oily Liniments

The Public are Warned to Be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white, ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

THE TRUE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE WORD CONVERSION

A Splendid Sermon Last Evening at St. Paul's by Rev. Dr. Johnston of Montreal — The 75th Anniversary of the Church Fittingly Observed at Both Services.

Rev. Robert Johnston, D.D., pastor of the American Presbyterian church at Montreal, preached eloquent and convincing sermons at both morning and evening services yesterday, on the occasion of the celebration of the 75th anniversary of the inception of St. Paul's. Very large congregations attended both services, which were most interesting and impressive. At the morning service Dr. Johnston gave a powerful sermon, taking as his theme the Christ transfigured and transformed. In his address the reverend speaker told in graphic terms how Christ descending from the mountain saw and sympathized with struggling humanity. At the Sunday school in the afternoon he delivered a very eloquent and lucid address to the boys and girls on "How Christ makes life splendid."

Last night Rev. Dr. Johnston gave a masterly discourse on the significance and indications of conversion to the service of Christ, and one of the largest crowds in the history of the church was present at the service.

The text was taken from Acts 26, 19: "Whereupon O King Agrippa I was disobedient to the heavenly vision;

But showed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coasts of Judea and then to the Gentiles that they should repent and turn to God and do works meet for repentance."

The speaker explained that the word conversion was a much misunderstood one. It had been greatly misinterpreted and did not mean that accompanying the conversion of one to the Lord there should be any special kind of manifestation or expression of the change. Its meaning had become wrongly understood and clouded just as the frescos in famous cathedrals had been covered over by works of amateurs who didn't appreciate the significance of the masterpieces they sacrificed for their own rude art. The wrong conception of the meaning of conversion appeared in example of the deterioration of words.

The words had become associated with certain extravagances and manifestations, but in its true meaning could not be limited to one type of religious life. Conversion was expressed in religious life as a great religious change.

The conversion of St. Paul was of outstanding religious significance as it was the conversion of a persecutor who gave himself to the Kingdom of Him whose followers he had persecuted to death. The preacher drew a vivid word picture of Saul's sudden conversion when he encountered Christ on the road to Damascus, God had His own purposes in converting some of His saints in such a striking manner as the one that marked St Paul's conversion, and that of Martin Luther came as by the shock of an earthquake. His was another conversion which challenged the attention of the world.

Many others had been converted without attendant experiences of such a character. Richard Baxter, the famous preacher of the Puritan age, was an example of this, and remarked that he could recall no special experience in his life that marked his conversion, and many others had come unto God's enlightening grace in this way.

The one supreme and important thing was: Had we turned toward Christ and given up our lives of selfishness and indifference? That was the vital point—it mattered not how the conversion was accomplished.

THE KING COMMENDS ONTARIO SCHOOL READERS

The Prince of Wales Joins in Praising Them—Message Received by the Governor-General From Earl Crewe

The following despatch from Lord Crewe, the Colonial Secretary, relative to the new Ontario Public school readers, has been forwarded to the Ontario Provincial Government in due course. It speaks for itself.

From Lord Crewe, Colonial Secretary to Earl Grey.

Downing street,
22nd January, 1910.

My Lord,—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of Your Excellency's despatch, No. 571, of the 24th December, forwarding copies of the school books supplied by the Education Department of Ontario to the schools of the Province.

1. I have had pleasure in submitting to His Majesty the King, and His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the sets specially bound for their use, and I have it in command from His Majesty to express his thanks and his approval of the motto printed on the front page of each book as tending to remind the children of the Province of the fundamental principles of Empire.

2. His Royal Highness asks me to say in thanking you for the gifts that he has been interested to see how much practical knowledge has been condensed into these volumes and that he fully recognizes the additional value attached to them as a means of education in the happy choice of the Union Jack with the accompanying patriotic motto as a frontispiece.

I have, etc.,
(Signed) CREWES,
Governor-General,
His Excellency,
The Right Honorable,
EARL GREY, G.C.M.G., C.V.C.

THE HISTORY OF ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The history of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, centrally located in the city of Peterborough, and overlooking her most beautiful park, is closely connected with the birth and rapid development of the busy centre. Among the hardy pioneers who first took up land in the township of Smith after voyaging from Rice Lake, and landing where the River Otonabee is now spanned by the C.P.R. bridge, was Wm. Dixon whose descendants are still connected with this church. Others followed in the persons of William Tully, John Walton, John Harvey, Alex. Morrison, John Yeats, and the Bells, Jacksons, McKibbons, Pearsons and others. These early settlers had hard work, but were sturdy men who succeeded in overcoming the primeval forest and in growing wheat and other grains that had to be taken to Cobourg to grind.

Up to the year 1825 no attempt had been made to supply the spiritual wants of the local Presbyterians, but in that year Rev. John Morrice Roger, a minister of the Church of Scotland, from Aberdeen, came to Peterborough, and gathered together a small congregation on the boundary line of Cavan, near Springville. A small building was erected on the north part of lot 5, north of King street, for use of Peterborough communicants of his church. This building was only recently torn down. Next year, Rev. Mr. Roger, acting under direction of the Presbytery of Kingston, called on the heads of Presbyterian families to select from themselves those considered fit to fill the office of elders. Messrs. Andrew Tully, John Hutchinson, M. D., John Edmison and David Hamilton were selected from Peterborough, and William Robson and Robert Thompson from Cavan. On January 22nd, 1826, these appointments were sanctioned by the Presbytery and the Kirk Session of Peterborough was authorized to conduct all competent business in the congregation. In February, 1825, the session was constituted and arrangements made for enrollment of church members and observance of the communion. On May 30th of the same year a grant was made to the church of the lot on which St. Andrew's church now stands, and next year the congregation erected a substantial stone church. This first church was built for use rather than appearance. In front of the pulpit stood the precentor's desk, from which Sandy Stewart led the service, aided by a tuning fork. The pews were old-fashioned, straight backed structures with latched doors. Many members of the congregation came long distances to attend the services. Among these was the late Mr. Thomas Gasement, of Lakefield. The Sabbath school was begun in 1828, under superintendence of Mr. James Hall, an elder. Nearly all the first teachers were men.

In 1843 occurred the disruption of the Church in Scotland, when the Presbyterian Church of Canada arose. Among those who concurred in this movement was Mr. Roger, representative elder for Peterborough. The session unanimously agreed with the action of their minister. Next August the local congregation, by standing vote, also concurred. The congregation worshipped in the old stone building until 1857, when the Synod of the Church of Scotland formally demanded the church property.

Next Sabbath Mr. Roger announced the decision of the Session to leave the church. The whole congregation almost unanimously stood up in concurrence, and the agent of the Church of Scotland, took possession of the building. Two years later the congregation met either in the town hall or Methodist church Sunday school. In 1859 a suitable church was erected on the present site, at a cost of $20,000. In 1875 Mr. Roger resigned on account of ill-health after 43 years' faithful service. He accepted the title of Pastor Emeritus, and passed away in 1878. Mr. Roger, in addition to his arduous labors in Peterborough, ministered to Springville and North Smith.

On May 8th, 1876, Rev. E. F. Torrance, of Montreal, received a call signed by 244 members and 59 adherents, which he accepted. Mr. Torrance was duly inducted on the 28th of June to take charge of St. Pauls church, and was introduced to the congregation the next Sabbath. Mr. Torrance, then only 25 years of age, faithfully performed the duties of his sacred calling for 31 years.

During this time the membership increased from 369 in 1876 to 780 and the contributions from $2,618 to $5,680. In 1849 the title of D.D. was conferred on Mr. Torrance by Knox College.

In 1883 attendance at the church had increased so greatly that both church and Sunday school were enlarged and remodelled at a cost of $30,000. The Ladies Aid Society was organized in 1884 with Mrs. Alex. Smith as president. This splendid organization was enabled within a year to present the congregation with a $3,000 paid for organ. The pew rents were abolished in 1885 and in 1894 the envelope system of missionary work was established. In 1901, owing partly to the mission work in the South Ward, Rev. Geo. Yule was engaged as assistant to Rev. Mr. Torrance. He was succeeded by Rev. A. J. Wilson, who in turn was followed in their respective turns by Rev. B. Ketchen, W. M. McKay and A. Bright. In 1907 Knox church was made a separate charge, St. Pauls contributing the lot and building.

In 1907 Rev. Mr. Torrance resigned the pastorate and Rev. Robert Pogue, of Philadelphia, received a call, he being inducted in 1907. This eloquent and sincere pastor has won a high place in the hearts of his congregation, and the church under his ministry has a bright future.

During the past 75 years no less than 70 elders were ordained. The first appointed was Dr. Hutchinson, a man of high personal attainments and character.

NEW COMPANY A GOING CONCERN.

Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, is a new Company which has taken over the whole undertaking as a going concern of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company Limited, including therein that of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company Limited. The company has mills at Kenora, Thorold, St. Catharines, Welland, and Port Colborne (the last named in course of construction) in the Province of Ontario and at Brandon in the Province of Manitoba. When the construction at present under way at Port Colborne is completed the company will have a total milling capacity of 13,500 barrels per day. The company has at present thirty-five elevators situated throughout the Western Wheat Belt, and fifteen additional ones are being added at the present time. A million bushel elevator is being constructed next to the new mill at Port Colborne. The company has also warehouses and offices at Toronto, Winnipeg, Kingston, Ottawa, and Montreal.

MARKET FOR OUTPUT.

The rapid growth of the business of the two companies taken over has long made apparent the necessity of additional milling capacity. Further, the tremendous increase in the total output from the Western Wheat Belt makes it absolutely necessary to have more mills in Canada to handle it. Last year this output amounted to about 125,000,000 bushels, and experienced men estimate that by the end of the year 1920 Canada will be producing fully 500,000,000 bushels annually. A great proportion of this will of necessity find its way into Canadian mills. Larger demands are bound to come as the population of the country increases, and the enquiry for the Canadian product, both from Great Britain and from the foreign markets of the world, will increase. The chain of mills now controlled by the new company will enable it to secure its full share of the trade of every section of Canada, as well as of Great Britain and foreign countries.

SECURITY AND EARNING POWER: The assets of the old Companies taken over as above stand in excess of all liabilities and without any allowance for good-will, trade marks, etc., at $3,770,824.11, this amount being ascertained on the basis of an appraisal by the Canadian-American Appraisal Company, Limited, as of March 17th, 1910, of the capital assets taken over, and the certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, as of February 28th, 1910, as to current assets and current liabilities, with a liberal allowance for all contingencies. There has also been placed in the Treasury $1,000,000 of additional cash, which, besides permitting of the completion of a 6,000 barrel mill and a million bushel elevator and storage warehouse at Port Colborne, and of fifteen additional elevators in the West, will provide the new Company with further working capital. As per certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, of London, quoted below, the earnings of the old Company on the present plant amounted from September 25th, 1908, to August 25th, 1909, to $218,642.28
being for the latter period at a rate equal to over 13 per cent. on the preferred stock of the Company.

LOCATION OF MILLS AND MANAGEMENT.

Mr. Hedley Shaw and Mr. D. C. Cameron, under whose direction the properties of the old companies have been developed, will retain large interests in and be actively identified with the new Company, Mr. Hedley Shaw as Managing Director.

The location of the new 6,000 barrel mill at Port Colborne is without exception the best in Canada.

A complete report on the advantages of the Port Colborne site, prepared by Mr. Hedley Shaw, will be found in the prospectus.

Good Work

To the Editor of the Review:

Sir,—There are many good works done in these days, and not the least amongst the well-doers is Mr. E. R. Wood, Toronto, son of Mr. John Wood of Homewood avenue, Peterborough. He has just given $5,000 to the Y.M.C.A. If men like him would go into politics (he is a Liberal) it would not take long to make Canada great, for, as Earl Grey pointedly said at St. Johns, wealth is nothing, character is everything. Mr. Wood is one of the grandest men in Canada. He is, above all his great wealth, a man of "character," and that is what we must have. Could he be induced to come out in the Liberal interests for Peterborough? Let the party ask him. There is missionary work to be done here as well as in China.

The five youths arrested Saturday charged with the theft of chickens, were arraigned before Magistrate Dumble in an afternoon session of the court and each pleaded guilty.

MOST SUCCESSFUL OPTICAL SALE

The Large Number of Consulations Have Made an Extension of the Sale Imperative

The great optical sale at McDermid and Jury's drug store, now being conducted by the directors of the International College of Opthalmology, has been a remarkable success. So many have come that all could not be properly fitted in the time, and the sale has been extended for three days, ending Wednesday, May 4th. Those intending to have their eyes attended to should make appointments early.

About 500 people have been fitted and supplied with glasses during the sale—a most satisfactory tribute to the skill of the examiners. These will be taken care of by those in charge as the visit will be repeated every two months. On the next visit any who find their glasses in any way unsuitable will have the privilege of re-examination.

HAD THE DISTINCTION OF SEEING HALLEY'S COMET

Mr. H. B. Collier Caught Sight the Widely Talked of Star This Morning — Valuable Information for Comet Watchers — Is Easily Distinguished From the Stars.

Mr. H. B. Collier, president of the local centre of the Royal Astronomical Society, is probably the first member of the society to accurately locate the much-talked-of Halley's comet. While many citizens have been watching for it, it would seem that they are unaware of its exact location, and the following minute instructions furnished by Mr. Collier, will enable any one to discover it.

The comet appears to be a pale, yellow hue with nebulous matter or glowing cloudy matter, with a slight tail, and stretching away from the sun.

The large square of "Pegasus," composed of four fairly large bright stars, will be readily found in the east. The lower star of this square is known as "Theta Pegasus." One a line half way between this and the brilliant planet Venus, the comet will be found, just alongside the star Omega Pisces.

Mr. Collier saw the comet this morning about 4 o'clock and caught it first with opera glasses. Having observed it through the glasses he then saw it with the naked eye, and could make it quite distinctly.

The comet, Mr. Collier stated, is quite distinguishable from the surrounding stars on account of its being of a yellow hue, while the stars are bright.

In order to see the comet it is necessary to arise at about 3.30, as it becomes visible at about 3.45 or 4 o'clock.

LOCAL BALL PLAYERS NOT IN ANY HURRY TO SIGN

The fine weather of Saturday afternoon was taken advantage of by the local baseball clubs and a good hard practice was pulled off. Over at Riverside Park, the West Ends, T. A. S. and Strathconas indulged and benefited by the large turnouts. The West Ends and T.A.S. had the diamond for the afternoon and the work of the players found no little amount of favor at the hands of a number of interested railbirds. Some new faces were seen in action, but just with which club they will register for the season is not at present known. The majority of last season's players are not in any particular hurry to sign and the respective managers are beginning to worry. One thing is sure and that is, it will not be no headpipe cinch for the club that wins the championship this time.

The T. A. S. team, it is understood, present practically the same lineup, but the other three clubs will be 75 per cent. stronger and that means a much better class of ball for the City League patrons.

Watch this P. A. C. aggregation, the dope is to the effect that a pitcher with some medals attached, will keep the south end mine strictly in the running all the time. When the team lines up against the Strathconas in the second game of the opening doubleheader, on May 24th, this dark horse will be opposed by Dusty, who has signed a Strathcona certificate. There will be some dust flying.

The West Ends and T.A.S. will furnish the excitement for the opener and these two clubs will no doubt dish up an article of ball that will greatly please the Lane.

BELLAND DOESN'T WANT TO BOX

"Pacer" Wallace, on reading the item on the sporting page of the Review on Saturday to the effect that Dave Belland would like to meet him in a glove bout, expressed his willingness to take on Belland. In a letter to the Review to-day, however, Mr. Belland stated he didn't want the bout arranged, and said he had given up boxing, and denied having issued the challenge. The challenge was not received from Mr. Belland directly, but from one of his friends who stated the former local boxer was willing to meet Wallace.

SPLENDID CROP FOR FARMERS OF ONTARIO

Mr. J. Lockie Wilson Describes the Cultivation and Uses of Alfalfa

Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, writes to the Review as follows:—

For the past three years directors of agricultural societies which have taken part in the standing field crop competition, conducted by this branch of the Department of Agriculture, have confined their efforts chiefly to oats, wheat and barley. To those agricultural societies that have not yet selected their crop for this year's competition I would strongly recommend that, where alfalfa has, even in a small way, been grown, it be the crop selected in view of the magnificent returns obtained from it wherever given a fair trial. The farmers of Kansas have taken the advice of their Department of Agriculture and increased the acreage of alfalfa from 38,000 to 1,000,000 in a few years. Instead of impoverishing the land it enriches it, its roots going down from five to twenty feet, drawing moisture from beneath the subsoil and supplying nitrogen and mineral plant food to the surface. From two to four crops can be cut in a season, and the plant attains a height of from ten to twenty inches.

I would ask your co-operation in encouraging the farmers to grow alfalfa which will prove a veritable gold mine to all concerned. In order to encourage societies to enter this crop liberal arrangements have been made by the Department of Agriculture, full particulars of which will be furnished on applicat on to me.

Ontario farmers who have gone into alfalfa experimentally have proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that this is the best paying fodder crop that an agriculturalist can grow.

Alfalfa has been known since 490, B.C., and was successfully grown in Greece and Rome nearly 2,500 years ago. In the State of Kansas there were, in 1891, 30,000 acres grown, while last year nearly a million acres of alfalfa were under crop, resulting in untold financial benefit to the farmers of this State.

There are five different varieties, viz, American, Turkestan, Arabian, Peruvian and German, but for Ontario the American variety is best suited.

It has been grown continuously on a farm in one of the counties of the province for nearly thirty years, and still produces good crops. It can be grown successfully on sandy, heavy clay loam, or on nearly any variety of soil properly drained. Practical experiments with it have been conducted on a limited scale with success in nearly every part of Ontario, both with and without a nursing crop. Spring sowing has given best results. If sown with a nursing crop barley at the rate of one bushel per acre is an excellent one for this purpose. Eighteen or twenty pounds per acre of alfalfa is the proper quantity of seed.

When about one-third of the crop is in bloom is an excellent time to start cutting, as it then possesses its greatest food value. The cutting should be done in the forenoon when the dew is off the grass and the fodder should follow immediately and be kept at work until late in the afternoon, and the crop left in windrows. This process should be repeated the following day and the hay put in coils and left for several days. It should not be cut too close to the ground as the plant may be injured thereby.

The yield per acre of green crop is about 20 tons, and of dry hay five. It should not be allowed to remain too long in the hot sun as the leaves are liable to become dry and break off, and they contain most valuable nutrients. Seed is produced best from either first or second cuttings and averages five bushels per acre, although it sometimes runs as high as ten.

Alfalfa hay contains about 50 per cent. more digestible protein than hay made from red clover. It makes a splendid pasture for horses or hogs, but care is required when sheep or cattle are turned in, as there is a tendency to bloat if allowed to eat too much, especially when the grass is wet.

An application of about twelve loads of barn yard manure per acre every four years has proved very satisfactory. Fertilizers containing phosphate have given the best results. When a field of alfalfa is ploughed down the surface soil is completely filled with roots rich in fertile elements.

It is to be hoped that every farmer in Ontario, who has suitable, well drained soil, will put in a field of this most desirable crop.

AN ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORT

Point Au Baril Affords Exceptional Advantages

The C.P.R. has just published an attractive little folder that will be the means of drawing the attention of many summer resorters and campers to an ideal spot, at which to spend their summer vacation. Just nine hours' ride north from Toronto, on the Sudbury branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway is located Point-au-Baril Station, a veritable pleasure-seeker and sport-man's paradise.

Point-au-Baril is 638 feet above the sea level, the air is cool, dry, invigorating and healthful, and the view of the islands of Georgian Bay, dotted with green verdure and foliage, is particularly entrancing to the eye. Three splendid hotels, the Belleview, Ojibway and the Skerryvore, are beautifully located, and afford splendid accommodation. There are also seventy-five summer cottages, simple, yet artistic and comfortable.

As regards fishing, Point-au-Baril is the angler's delight, black bass, pickerel, pike and maskinonge abound and competent guides are always available, who also do the cooking for parties. During the hunting season this district offers unequalled inducements to the hunter, and deer, bear, duck and partridge are found in abundance.

During the summer months the waters are warm and pleasant for bathing, and many of the islands are surrounded by sandy beaches, particularly suitable for it.

The motor boat and sailing craft enthusiast will find exceptional opportunities for following his favorite sport here apart from the numerous canoeing trips that are afforded in these waters.

Taken as a whole, Point-au-Baril cannot be excelled as a summer resort.

Further information concerning Point-au-Baril may be obtained from Mr. W. Mellroy at the C.P.R. ticket office.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

In the Amazon region "ant gardens" abound on a large number of woody plants. They are generally spherical in form and about the size of a walnut. They are formed by several species of ant, which appear to collect the seeds of many different plants and to sow them in these nests, covering up the seedlings with humus when they begin to germinate. In the structure of these "ant epiphytes" the foliage and the roots display characters which especially adapt them for the situation in which they grow and promote also the protection of the ants themselves in their nest. Quite a number of the epiphytes were found as denizens of the ant gardens and nowhere else.

If She Had Her Choice.

A gentleman who finds great amusement in telling his wife which lady of their acquaintance he will select as her successor when she dies and who one day had been teasing her with numberless mock serious allusions to the subject suddenly called their little daughter to him and asked her, shaking with laughter at his own wit:

Madeline, how would you like to have a stepmother?"

The child considered for a moment and then, with earnestness, replied:

"I think I'd much rather have a stepfather."

A Friendly Criticism.

On the occasion of an exhibition given at the Corcoran Art Gallery, in Washington, by the Art Students' league one youthful painter was endeavoring to impress upon a friend the merits of a work of his own.

"You would be amazed," announced the artist, "if you knew the amount of time expended on my 'Two Sisters.'"

"Oh, I don't know that I would," airily responded the friend, "inasmuch as I hear that people stand in front of it for hours trying to make out what it is."

THE SPRING FASHIONS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

A PAGE for MISSES

VOILE, foulard, pongee, rajah and tussore—these in their many different grades and varieties make up the list from which are to be selected the materials for a young girl's afternoon frocks.

In the different qualities of voile and of pongee the less costly plain colored grounds are about as smart as the newer, and hence more expensive, check and figured patterns. In foulard the least conspicuous dotted patterns are the most youthful.

Fashions for young people are naturally built upon the prevailing modes for grown-ups, and the same general lines are always carried out in school girl frocks as govern the models of older people, only when a certain style of skirt which demands a long train to be graceful or a shoulder line which tends to narrow the breadth across the chest is in favor decided modification must be practised. Often the ingenuity of the designer is taxed to the utmost to keep a young girl's frock strictly within the limits of the newest there is in the world of fashion and yet have it becoming to her ultra-slender youthful lines. When the skirt is quite short, for example, any drapery must be rather suggested than actually carried out, and for the drooping shoulder line, caused by sleeve and bodice being both cut from the same piece of material, it is well to build up that same shoulder piece by placing a small silk or chiffon ruffle in the lining at the top of the sleeve.

The two waisted skirt, as the new model of skirt tied in closely about the knees with a ribbon sash has been dubbed by some would-be clever man, is extremely pretty with a long train evening gown, but for a young girl's frock the material must be scarcely held in at all by this band about the knees. In one gown of softest pastel blue chiffon, however, this skirt model was suggested by an overskirt effect in the chiffon, the hem of which was just caught by a loose band of softest shell pink satin ribbon, below which fell a second skirt or flounce of the chiffon. A little to one side of the centre in front the ribbon was looped in a soft rosette, the ends falling not quite to the edge of the dress.

ALL textures employed this spring are of the softest and most pliable, and because of the quality of all the silks and silk fabrics it is found possible to give an effect of real gathers and shirrings without adding perceptibly to the most exaggerated slimness. The first secret of this is the absolutely perfect fit of the underdress or lining, with which part of the gown it has been found essential to take the utmost care, and perhaps especially on a young girl's frock whose stays are not fitted to order. Since the outer texture is so very soft and often of transparent weave it is the lines of the underslip, therefore, which show the real lines of the dress.

In chiffon, voile, all the gauzes and in the sheer wash fabrics it is possible by this means to carry out a style of dress that has been anthought of for quite some seasons past—that is the high girdle bodice with skirt shirred or gathered over the hips. For the "two waisted skirt" it is necessary to have this soft gathered effect at the waist line.

The newest girdle shows at last a pretty round waist line, placed just in its natural position, not exaggeratedly long nor so near the arms as to change all natural proportions. The waist with the new belt line shows a quite wide drapes girdle, anything from three to six or more inches being fashionable, and for a school girl no other style of waist is so becoming. Below this belt the material of the dress is gathered in enough fulness not to be unbecoming.

MANY of the newest gowns are now made with waist and skirt separate, but, generally speaking, it is best to attach the two parts together, whether or not the effect of a one piece dress is shown in the model. In the so-called "wash fabrics" and in many of the thin silk textures red princess gowns with long panels front and back are still worn. No matter what the models considerably more material must be provided for the dress of to-day than that in vogue a year ago, and in the skirts the exaggerated straight up and down effect has quite disappeared. Underpettieoats, too, must once more be taken into consideration.

Sleeves are in a distinctly interesting stage at present. So varied in size and design are the sleeves of the moment that for almost the first time on record the date of the making of a gown cannot now possibly be determined from the sleeves. The newest sleeves are perhaps the buffoon model, but how long these are to remain the smartest, it is difficult to say. This double puff above a cuff, varying in length according to preference, is not always becoming by any means. Then there is the sleeve with a cap of silk five to six inches in length, below which is a full soft sleeve of chiffon, caught in again at the wrist with a tight lace band. It can only positively be stated that the long absolutely plain tight sleeve is not to be worn this spring, but just what degree of fulness and just what model length Dame Fashion will finally decide upon cannot now be foretold.

FOR a smart gown for afternoons the voiles are exceptionally attractive in coloring this year and the texture is especially good for the season's models. A two toned shepherd's plaid made up on a foundation of some contrasting color is most attractive, and indeed this season the voiles depend largely upon their linings for effect. Color combinations are much in evidence just now, and when not carried out in the trimming of the dress another color is almost invariably to be noticed in the lining. The fine voiles of plain color made up over changeable silk or a bright plaid having among its different tones one that is the same as the dress itself are exceedingly pretty.

Then, again, the gowns made up in a combination of different materials are very smart. Voile and foulard silk are an unusual union, yet the frocks fashioned in this way are delightfully new and different from the regular run of timeworn foulards or voile models. When different textures are used together in this way the one color is generally kept to the dot, stripe or figure in the foulard, making sufficient contrast with the solid ground of the voile. A dark blue voile laid over a foundation of dotted foulard of the same shade and trimmed with a deep band of the silk about the lower part of the skirt, the foulard also forming part of the waist and sleeves, with a draped girdle also of the silk, make an exceedingly smart and also extremely useful little dress. The same idea carried out in a plain colored Liberty silk or a plaid silk, combined with the voile in any shade whatever, is extremely smart.

WHEN strict economy must be considered the objection of a silk lining of course comes up in contemplating a voile gown, for any texture so transparent necessitates a foundation of silk. Neither pongee, rajah, tussor or foulard calls for costly linings, many of these materials being made up unlined and unlined. There are many striped and figured pongees and tussors that are extremely pretty and make most useful spring and early summer gowns. Natural color pongee with a stripe of bright blue, green or pink is seen again among the smartest of this material.

But for a young girl more depends upon the color of the dress than even upon the texture or the model itself. It is a pity, too, not to keep to the bright springlike colorings in a schoolgirl's outfit—there will be so many years later on when she will have to always wear the sombre, practical shades, if only because the vivid pinks and blues will be no longer becoming. The color of the moment is, of course, the superb chantecler red, and for all young people this shade is intensely becoming, for it brings out to best advantage every possible good point in beauty of coloring and feature. Pink is unquestionably the hue most in vogue this season, and fascinating indeed are all its new soft and brilliant tones. Indeed, about the only shade of pink that is not especially fashionable is the ordinary shade with which all are familiar. Pale greens are always charming at this season, and the soft tans are also popular. Dark blue will be worn a great deal for practical use, but for afternoon and evening pink and red, so long as their tone is not of the ordinary sort, firmly hold the reins of popularity.

New Scarfs for Evening Wear.

EVENING scarfs were never so charming of texture and design, never so varied in pattern as in the case at the present moment. The wearing of décolleté gowns by the grown-ups so much more generally than of yore and the collarless evening frocks for young girls has made it obligatory for every party gown to have its scarf to correspond, nor will any simple length of hemstitched silk or crêpe do for this scarf. It must, on the contrary, either correspond to the trimming on the gown itself or, at any rate, show by its color that it is designed as a complement to the costume.

The scarfs of the moment are trimmed with every kind of ornament, from bands of gold or silver to borders of tiny ostrich tips. In size they range from narrow shoulder scarfs to immense widths of material, which, made of satin, are large enough to serve the purpose of an evening wrap in midsummer. But for young girls the most attractive scarfs of all are those made of plain or flowered chiffon bordered with marabou feathers or swandown.

Fortunately there is nothing quite so easy to make as a pretty evening scarf, while the straight length of material affords every opportunity for display of fine handiwork and ingenuity of design. From a discarded coque or marabou boa and two yards of chiffon a most fascinating scarf can be evolved. The coque or marabou boa is usually formed of from three to five strips of the feathers, which can easily be separated and placed in single line as a border about the strip of chiffon or soft silk, as the case may be. If there is sufficient of the feather piece a pretty effect is obtained by gathering in the material slightly through the centre and laying the furry piece over the shirring. Even the brown feather boas can be steamed out and made to look exceedingly well on a scarf of delicate yellow, blue or pink chiffon.

Swandown by the yard is far less expensive than a feather border and will give much the same effect if there is no old boa that can be utilized for the purpose. Two or three rows of plaited lace edging or of a pretty Dresden ribbon also are effective to border a thin scarf. Silver and gold lace can also be used as a border, and either is singularly pretty.

The two toned scarfs are also to be seen among the most attractive of the new designs. Pink chiffon over a foundation of thinnest mauve liberty satin is exquisitely pretty, while any harmonious color combination carried out in two textures or all in chiffon is sure to be charming. A pretty flowered chiffon over a foundation of cream colored chiffon or net makes a most serviceable scarf that can be worn with almost any shade of gown. This season all the sheer flowered materials are exceptionally pretty.

For a gown trimmed with gold or silver embroidery there are many most effective gilt and silver net insertions which, lined with gray or yellow silk net or chiffon and trimmed with gold or silver lace edging, make excellent scarfs.

For a really simple evening scarf a two yard length of net about a yard wide or half the natural width of the net or illusion which is used, bordered all round with a ruching either of lace or of the net itself, is exceedingly pretty and decidedly easy to make up. This scarf is lined by simply doubling over the material itself.

The gilt and silver thread nets are of course inappropriate for a young girl to wear herself, but they are easy to make up, and as presents for the older members of her family nothing could be more acceptable.

The College Brother's Pillows.

A PRACTICAL pillow cover for the college brother's den may be made of dull hued felt, appliqued or embroidered with insignia in the chosen colors of the alma mater. Khaki colored linen pillow covers, painted to represent Indians passing the pipe of peace or a solitary bachelor smoking the pipe of contentment, are bound with leather or finished all around with hand knotted linen fringe.

Crosstitch work is extensively used on pillow tops of cross barrel white canvas, marked with red or blue lines into big squares or diamonds or with a conventional pattern. Buff canvas tops are worked in a design which includes goldenrod and wild carrot done in their naturally vivid tones, and most artistic covers of gray blue canvas are embroidered in shades of dull green, old blue, French rose and taupe, outlined with black.

The college brother will appreciate one of the novel pillows covered with cretonne showing a design in red wall flowers and bright green and yellow parrots, of cross stitched canvas done in Gobelin work, of red Morocco with thong laced ends, of alternating moire and satin ribbon stripes, joined with a narrow band of Persian warp print; of black velvet appliqued with tapestry and finished with gold galloon cord and fringe, of fine white linen, hand embroidered and garnished with point de Venise medallions, and of plain, dark satin, monogram embroidered with gold thread.

Simple Jewelry for Young Girls

BRAID pins for turban style of hairdressing are developed in a variety of attractive designs, notably of square and circular top shape, in amber or shell, plain, carved or studded with rhinestones. Others are of real or imitation horn, scroll sawn and set with brilliants, of gun metal inlaid with gold or studded with paste diamonds, of gilt set with a single amethyst or topaz, of platinum and gold, of old Dutch silver in lace effect, produced by stamping and enamelling, and of pierced rose gold.

One novel braid pin of Egyptian design is of angular shape, in antique gold, set with moonstones; a second is in iridescent colors and cloisonné effect; a third of florally painted metal, coated with glass, and a fourth of rhinestones set in platinum, but most of all unique are the hairpin tops of cloisonné in Japanese and Russian designs.

Pin holders having a jointed attachment, which can be adjusted to clasp over the central knot of any style of neckwear, are made up in all the precious and semi-precious metals and in a variety of curious combinations, especially those of Oriental design, in dull finished copper with a matrix of feldspar, surrounded with amethyst, pearls or topazes.

Convenient sets for dressing, which include from three to six pins of various sizes, are of bar shape in platinum, gold or gun metal, set with rhinestones or garnets; of swallow form in green, blue or red hard enamel; of dull oxidized sterling silver set with amethysts; of old Dutch-finished metal in scroll and leaf pattern, inlaid with "jewels," or in lace effect, holding white stones, and in Renaissance, braid style, embedded with amethysts of irregular shape and size.

Fable pin sets, which in many instances are accompanied by cuff links, consist of small squares of mother-of-pearl overlaid with tiny gold or silver figures representing some familiar fable. The same quaint idea is carried out in some of the belt buckles of pearl or ivory, which are in the shape of mated squares, diamonds, ovals and disks. The same moulds are used for the buckles of Empire green, drake blue or ruby in plain enamel, while the latest fad in fancy belt clamps consists of an oblong of metal, enamelled in imitation of crochet, with a rim composed of chain links.

Fortunately, very long hat pins have gone out of fashion and no longer do their points protrude several inches beyond the hat crown. Their heads, of moderate size, are of various shapes, including the umbrella, which is delicious when done in silver of lace design, set with rhinestones or English paste; the circular of pearls on white medal; the crescent of shell set with brilliants; the sword hilt of enamel and gold and the rosea having white composition petals and "jewel" stamens.

Oblong, round and oval coin holders, with compartments for quarters, nickels and dimes, are of sterling silver, green gold or gun metal, finished in hammered, polished, ribbed or plain effects, lined with velvet, satin or kid and suspended by metal chains from the belt buckle.

Fan Bags of Satin and Silk.

FAN bags are useful and very attractive gifts from a girl to her friends, and there are some charming designs for these bags among the recent French importations. They are long and narrow in shape, and of course if they are meant to be used for one of the huge feather fans now in fashion they must be very large indeed. The ordinary sized fan, however, does not require a large bag, and as this slim fan is always more or less in fashion it is for it that the bag is usually made.

Silk, satin and brocade are the favorite materials for the fan bag. Some of the new ones are made of pale colored satins with linings of deeper colors and trimmings of ribbon, flowers and fringe. A faint blue satin fan bag was lined with rose satin and trimmed with tiny satin flowers in pale blue, rose and pink. Around the edge of the bag there was a twist of satin and this was edged with a tiny gold fringe. The top of the bag was drawn up with a gold cord and finished with gold fringe and a little pouch of the satin flowers. A flowered silk bag was covered with gold gauze, a network of ribbon flowers being used over these. This bag had fringe of the several colors of which the design of the material was composed.

For young girls a charming design for a fan bag is of soft satin finished silk trimmed with ruches of narrow Valenciennes lace and drawn up with a gold cord. The lining may be of white silk or of a color contrasting with the outer covering of the bag.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY THE GRANDMOTHER

"A NICE looking neck is quite as truly an evidence of refinement as are well kept hands," remarked the April Grandmother during the intermission period at a fashionable morning concert. From her parterre box she could politely observe at close range a row of assorted necks, some decked with Dutch collars and others trimmed to the ear lobes with tight stocks.

"Because the average young girl is exceedingly slender she resigns herself to the possession of a dark, gaunt neck, complacently expecting that it will acquire beauty with her additional years and flesh. She might meanwhile have a charming neck, but to possess it she must help nature to a certain extent.

"In the first place comparatively few necks are properly cleansed—yes, I know yours is washed at least three times daily," interpolated the April Grandmother in response to an indignant expression in the eyes of her débutante granddaughter, "but a neck, especially if it belongs to a growing girl, should be positively scrubbed, not only to remove the grime deposited by boas and non-launderable collars, but for the purpose of exercising the muscles.

"With a coarse flesh brush scrub the neck until a deep red glow proves that circulation has been thoroughly aroused. Then sponge it with hot soapy water and with the finger tips gently rub into the cuticle a little cold cream. After ten minutes you will be surprised (perhaps dismayed) to see how much grime will come off, with the cold cream, from an apparently clean neck.

"The cold water liberally dashed upon the flesh after the removal of the cream will help to harden the muscles as well as to whiten the cuticle and close up its pores. Hot water is best for cleansing purposes, but unless followed with a cold douche its effect is yellowing to the skin.

"But other evils in addition to invisible grime are disfiguring to feminine necks. Satisfied that the cuticle is clean, many girls fail to notice that the back of the neck still retains the tan of the summer's sun or has been roughened by the winter's wind. Yet to remove the ugly brown tinge it is only necessary, after thoroughly scrubbing the cuticle, to rub in almond oil and let it remain on all night.

"If the discoloration is very stubborn the oil should be discarded in favor of lemon juice, which is the only bleaching acid not liable to attack the hair roots. A rough neck should be rubbed with witch hazel, sweet oil or white corn meal, all of which are soothing and healing, then made smooth with a rose water and glycerine mixture, if it agrees with the texture of the skin, and finally fed liberally with cold cream.

"The girl who attempts to plump her neck by self-administered massage makes a serious mistake," warned the April Grandmother. "Such treatment should be entrusted only to a person who is thoroughly familiar with the location of each muscle and vein. The amateur may, however, replace the angles of her neck with curves by stretching the chin outward and upward, turning the head rapidly from side to side and energetically throwing it backward and forward. She will know when to terminate the exercise by the condition of the throat muscles, which will feel sore and tired from unwonted exertion.

"That a woman's neck invariably betrays her age is a fallacy," coincided the April Grandmother, just as the orchestra resumed its position. "In this concert room at least a dozen thin, yellow and furrowed columns support the heads of as many young girls, while to a score of silver haired matrons belong plump, smooth, white necks which proclaim the value of exercising intelligent and unceasing care."

FINES AMOUNTING TO $35 IMPOSED IN LIQUOR CASE

After pleading guilty to the charge preferred, that of having been found under the influence of liquor on Saturday, Hester Baker, whose name appears on the prohibited list, was fined $10 at the police court this morning. Baker was given ten days to pay the amount.

Peter McCrae pleaded guilty to having supplied Baker with the liquor and a fine of $25 was imposed, the alternative being thirty days in jail. Accompanied by an officer, he went to the Bank of Montreal and drew the amount of his fine and paid it.

McCrae offered an explanation, but was asked to either plead guilty or not guilty.

The two men were arrested Saturday night. Baker had been blacklisted on May 3rd of last year, and his name would have been struck off the list to-morrow.

In the absence of His Worship Magistrate Bamble, City Clerk S. R. Armstrong and ex-Mayor Rush presided.

PRIZE WINNERS IN THE STALLION AND BULL SHOW

The second annual stallion and bull show, under the auspices of the West Peterborough Fair Association, at the Driving Park, Saturday, eclipsed the initial show in the number and quality of the exhibits, and a greater interest was shown in the proceedings.

Dr. Manhard, of Smith's Falls, the well known authority on horses, who acted as judge for the stallion show, informed the Review that the showing of stallions was a most creditable one, and that some splendid animals competed in this division. Mr. C. C. Nixon, of Farm and Dairy, was judge of the bulls, and commented favorably on the quality of the entries.

In the first prize for Canadian-bred stallions, Mr. J. F. Staples was awarded the red rosette, but a protest has been entered on account of the exhibitor not having produced a pedigree for his exhibit. A decision will likely be given to-morrow. RAILWAY MAN PASSES AWAY

Special to the Review.

Montreal, Que., May 2.—George Bell Reeve, former general manager and vice-president of the Grand Trunk Railway system, died yesterday at his ranch at La Mirada, Calif. where he went to spend his remaining days upon retirement from active duty about ten years ago. Mr. Reeve was in the service of the Grand Trunk for forty years, having started as a freight clerk. He rose to be general traffic manager, and when Mr. Hays went to the Southern Pacific, for a brief time, Mr. Reeve, who had retired to his California ranch, consented to return and take the position of general manager and vice-president, which he relinquished when Mr. Hays returned to the Grand Trunk.

TROPHIES ARE ON EXHIBITION

Valuable Prizes Won by Competitors in Special Farm Competition

The trophies offered by Farm and Dairy, for the Special Farm Competition, are attracting a great deal of attention in R. Neil's shoe store window, where they are on exhibition. The prize winners in the competition in order of merit are;

G. A. Brethken, Norwood, 779 points.
J. K. Moore, Peterborough, 743 points.
J. H. Garbutt, Peterborough, 713 points.
T. Birdsall, Birdsall, 699 points.
Jas. B. Moore, Hastings, 679 points.

The competition was divided into six branches, and the total number of points secured for each division were totalled. The points were given as follows:—

House, 15.
Out buildings, 150.
Live stock, 200.
Crops, 200.
Farm management, 150.
Machinery, 75.
Total—1,000.

12,800 BARRELS OF FLOUR A DAY

When the new 6,000 barrels Flour Mill which the Maple Leaf Milling Company Limited, is building at Port Colborne, Ont., is completed, the daily capacity of the Company's mills will equal the huge total given above. Already they have mills in operation at Brandon, Kenora, Thorold, St. Catharines and Welland, but the Port Colborne mill will be the largest of them all, with a daily capacity of 6,000 barrels of flour.

In its thoroughly modern equipment, too, as well as in its capacity, the new mill will compare favorably with any in the world.

Its location is without exception the best in Canada. In the first place there will be an unlimited market for its bye-products among the stock-raising Ontario farmers, who grow but little wheat. In the second place on account of its unique position on the great water and rail transport systems, the Maple Leaf Milling Company will be able to lay down flour at any of the Atlantic seaports or in the markets of the Old World at a lower price than can any other Canadian Milling Company.

With its geographical advantages, its splendid equipment, its experienced management, and plenty of capital, the Maple Leaf Milling Company can confidently look forward to a prosperous future, and its Preferred Stock, now being offered for public subscription, should prove an excellent investment.

A TERRIBLE ARRAY.

On Wednesday evening the Trent Waterway fleet steamed into harbor with all the pomp and circumstance of industrial activity. There was the Bessie Butler with a consort of supplies, the Bob Hall, the Emmerson Dreadnought Dredge, with consorts, and the Torpedo Destroyer Drill with consorts. Talk about a Canadian navy, why if that German bosey could be got into Pigeon Lake the Trent fleet, under Capt. Jimmie Johnston, would everlastingly knock the tar out of it. One only has to see the Trent fleet to see the utter poppy-cock rot of thinking of any other Canadian fleet.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

AT HIS BEST AS A CHRISTIAN

Rev. J. R. Webb's High Tribute to the Late Chief Roszel

In concluding a strong and appealing sermon to a large congregation at Murray St. Baptist church last evening, the pastor, Rev. J. R. Webb, paid a high tribute to the memory of the late Chief Roszel.

Rev. Mr. Webb referred to the deceased as one whom he had held as a near and very dear friend. He was kind and generous, and in his relations with him he had found him always ready and willing to answer to cases of need. As an officer of the city there could not be even a suggestion of wavering in the discharge of his duty, even when he had in some cases stood alone. "But it was as a Christian that Chief Roszel was seen at his best," said Rev. Mr. Webb.

Several incidents in connection with the deceased's daily life which had come to his notice were told to the congregation, and these were only such as could be connected with the name of a good man, and one whose life had been such as could be set up as an example for others to profit by.

FALLING INTO LINE WITH HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION PLAN

Chairman Beck is Highly Pleased—New Lines May be Built to Windsor and Goderich—Cities Are Taking Larger Blocks of Power.

Toronto, May 3.—A demand for power from the smaller municipalities is being made now that the main arteries of the hydro-electric transmission line are nearing completion.

This was the substance of a statement made by Hon. Adam Beck at the offices of the hydro-electric power commission yesterday.

"This is gratifying to the commission," remarked Mr. Beck, "for it was the primary object of the power scheme to deliver cheap electricity to every district in the province."

That object is made all the more possible by the large blocks of power that are being taken by the cities. Such smaller places as Ingersoll, Beachville, Waterdown, Milton, Brampton, Acton, Weston, Port Credit, will be able to buy power at the same proportional rate as the larger places. A new line will be built in a northwesterly direction from Stratford towards Goderich. Seaforth and Mitchell will secure power from this line.

A deputation from Windsor was in the city yesterday securing information with regard to the extension of the transmission line from St. Thomas to Windsor. This Chatham and Comber will come within the range of the commission.

"The entrance of the smaller municipalities marks the second stage of the power scheme," said Hon. Mr. Beck, "and removes from it the one-time charge that it was sectional."

PRINCE CHRISTIAN OF DENMARK

Who, in the absence of King Frederick will receive former President Roosevelt on his arrival in Copenhagen.

HE TURNED THEM DOWN

Sir James Whitney Refused Aid to Dundas Scheme.

Toronto, May 3.—Sir James Whitney had the pleasure yesterday of welcoming a deputation from his own county, seeking provincial aid to compete a drainage scheme in the Townships of Winchester and Mountain, which was projected under an estimated cost of $80,000. The whole scheme, however, will run up to $150,000. The province is already pledged to bear 10 per cent. of the original cost, and the deputation asked the Premier to raise this to 20 per cent.

Sir James was reminiscent. He could remember a time when he drove forty miles through South Mountain and one of the horses fell into a well. It was a safe bet, he thought, that there never was a drainage system projected in the province which was completed within the original estimate.

"I suspect that there is no county in the province that has received as much Government aid as has Dundas," declared the Premier. "While the people of my own county perhaps think I might do something for them and won't, I want to state that what I do, I do because I think it is right."

If they made reasonable grants to all the deserving schemes there would be a rebellion of the people.

The Premier, in conclusion, promised to approach the subject continuously from time to time with his colleagues to see if there was any chance of assisting.

DEFECTS IN KING'S LABOR BILL WHICH WAS UP BEFORE SENATE

Opposition Points Out That if Literally Applied it Would Affect Simple Market Transactions and Would Overlook Monopolies.

Ottawa, May 3.—The Senate spent most of the day considering Hon. Mr. King's combines bill.

In committee Sir Mackenzie Bowell stated that every day in the markets the farmers opened the business of the day by arguing on the price they would charge for butter, eggs, and other produce. Would this bill enable their operations being looked into by a commission?

Sir Richard Cartwright said that there might be combinations, but he doubted if the six persons would be found to complain to a judge, or that a judge would be found who would order an investigation into such a combination.

Senator Lougheed said that as the bill was directed at the individual rather than at the offence, it would be possible to avoid it by shifting the personnel of the combination.

Speaker Kerr thought that the bill was securely drawn to cover the point.

Senator Lougheed doubted if the bill would reach a single concern which might have a monopoly. Sir Richard Cartwright said that the bill would reach such a concern.

Senator Watson wanted to know if the bill would extend the case of banks agreeing upon the rate of interest. Sir Richard thought this matter would continue to be regulated by the law of supply and demand. Sir Mackenzie Bowell thought one of the effects of the bill would be to defer the entrance of capital into Canada.

Senator Forget noted that the bill provided against limiting production. He said there were industries which on occasion could produce more than the country would be able to absorb. He wanted to know if they could be compelled to run at full time and glut the market.

Senator Dandurand pointed out that the condition of supply and demand would be taken into consideration by a judge before ordering an investigation and by any board which made such investigation.

Senator Choquette moved his amendment that the bill would not apply to farmers, and Senator Dandurand said he did not think the bill would ever be applied in the case of petty peanut transactions.

Senator Wilson said that he did not think this was a proper way to refer to the operations of farmers in a contemptuous fashion. Senator Dandurand replied that he had not intended to do so. He objected to the amendment. The farmers needed to be protected from the operations of combines as much as did any other class of consumers. He did not think that the bill would be applied in the way that was feared, but would more likely to be applied against people combining and fixing the price at which they would buy from farmers.

Senator Edwards thought this bill one of great importance and the time before prorogation too short to deal with it. He believed in freedom and did not believe in putting statutory trammels on trade and then providing other statutory remedies.

He called attention to the fact that similar legislation in the United States had precipitated the greatest commercial crisis in that country. It would discourage the enlargement of industries and would make a man or firm hesitate before enlarging his business by buying out a similar industry.

Senator Lougheed thought the bill should be brought into harmony with the criminal law and not combines. He stated that a firm might be found guilty and fined $1,000 a day for the days it continued offending, and after that time another action might be taken under the criminal code and be punished by a fine of $4,000 or two years in penitentiary.

The bill was reported from committee without amendment, with the understanding that the Minister of Justice shall be consulted as to whether there is sufficient jurisdiction for awards, as Senator Lougheed pointed out that while a case to be investigated may extend throughout Canada, the jurisdiction of the judge presiding would be confined to the province in which he was appointed.

One of the sensations of the Parliamentary session occurred yesterday.

The St. Lawrence Power Transmission Co. Bill, over which there has been such bitter warfare, involving one all-night sitting, is practically dead. When the bill came up in the House of Commons, with the Senate amendment striking out the clause declaring it to be a work for the general advantage of Canada, Dr. Sproule, pointed out that under the rules it would have to be sent back to the private bills committee for consideration.

Hon. George P. Graham remarked that the amendment was of no importance, but Speaker Marcil ruled that he had no option in the matter and the bill would have to go before the private bills committee again. It is almost impossible now to get the bill reported to the Commons before prorogation.

Hon. George E. Foster was in the House yesterday for the first time since his illness and took his usual seat beside Mr. Borden. When he arose to speak for some Government returns he was enthusiastically applauded by the members of the Opposition.

Trying to Liberate "Ice King."

Washington, May 3.—Another fight for the freedom of Charles W. Morse, the New York "Ice King," who is serving a 15-year sentence in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., was begun yesterday in the Supreme Court of the United States, when Martin W. Littleton asked leave to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

WALKED TO VICTORY

Edward P. Weston Finishes His Tremendous Tramp.

New York, May 3.—Cutting his way through a living mass of 20,000 cheering people, his white locks bared to the breeze, and his shuffling feet keeping time to the strains of the "Star Spangled Banner," Edward Payson Weston yesterday brought to a triumphal end his ocean to ocean walk. He ascended the steps of the City Hall at 3.10 p.m., completing the transcontinental journey of 3,483 miles in 77 walking days, a feat without parallel in the annals of pedestrianism.

The grizzled athlete was welcomed to his home city by Mayor Gaynor, who presented him with a purse of $400, hurriedly raised by a handful of his admirers in the last hours of his spectacular walk. This and the admiration and applause of the thousands who have followed his tramp since the day of its inception at Los Angeles, on Feb. 1 last, is all the reward that comes to the intrepid septuagenarian after his three months of trudging through heat and cold across the continent.

In the last stages of his walk into New York he was the object of an ovation such as rarely been accorded to any individual short of a victorious admiral or a colonel of a rough rider regiment. From 72nd street down Broadway, from curb to curb, was black with moving thousands, intent upon keeping sight of the white-haired little man ambling along in his peculiar jerky gait.

As he finally turned into City Hall Park, black with thousands, Weston was visibly moved and it was with difficulty that he found voice to thank the mayor for his words of greeting.

"I wanted to show to the youngsters what an old athlete of 72 years could do," he said. Then, from the steps of the City Hall, he thanked the crowd, which surged at his feet, for their welcome, and expressed himself well repaid by their cheers for all his exertions. Later, in the mayor's private office, he was presented with a gold championship belt by President P. T. Powers of the Eastern Baseball League. It is the famous six-day go-as-you-please championship belt won by Dineen and Cavanaugh in 1902 and 1903 respectively.

TRIED TO BURN HUSBAND ALIVE

Berlin, May 3.—An act of incredible brutality is reported from the village of Neuhausel, in the Westerwald district of Hessen. The wretched man's despairing screams fortunately brought rescuers to his help before the woman could complete her infamous scheme.

RAILWAY OWNS THE MONEY

Says Solicitor Minty Before the Alberta Royal Commission.

Winnipeg, May 3.—The mysterious disappearance of W. R. Clarke, president of the Great Waterways Railway from a train near Swift Current, was the subject of much discussion before the royal commission of Alberta yesterday during the investigation.

That money procured by the sale of the bonds is not the property of the Province of Alberta, but belongs to the railway company, was the contention advanced by G. D. Minty during his evidence before the Railway Commission. This money, $7,400,000, is now in the hands of the Provincial Treasurer as trustee, and its exact legal status is matter of considerable importance.

Mr. Minty was examined as to his last trip to Edmonton just before the commission sat. Clarke was on the train with him. About Swift Current he disappeared.

Mr. Minty did not think it was necessary to tell the conductor his disappearance. He presumed he had changed his mind, and, under the circumstances, Mr. Minty thought he was right.

Mr. Bennett then led up to Mr. Minty's leaving Edmonton the night before the session opened.

"You decided to disappear also?" asked Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Minty hotly resented this question. "I didn't decide to disappear." Emphatically he explained that as his client was gone, there was no good to be done by his remaining.

After three days' gruelling Minty's evidence concluded.

TEN BODIES HAVE BEEN RECOVERED

Cornwall, May 3.—Up to a late hour last evening portions of the remains of ten bodies have been recovered from the ruins of the Rossmore Hotel fire. What is believed to be the bones of C. C. The remains of Mrs. Archibald will be taken to the cemetery at Woodlands Tuesday forenoon for interment, after services in Trinity Anglican Church.

Six victims were members of Trinity Church, viz., Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gray and their two children, Mrs. Archibald and Mr. Fielding, the latter a member of the choir.

A WELL-KNOWN FARMER KILLED

By Lightning Bolt Near Chatham—His Daughter Was Stunned.

Chatham, May 3. John Steen, a prominent farmer of Chatham Township, was struck by lightning and instantly killed yesterday afternoon. About three o'clock Chatham and vicinity was visited by the most dangerous electrical storm in years. The lightning and the loud claps of thunder which followed in rapid succession struck terror into the hearts of the nervous ones, and the rain came down in torrents.

Mr. Steen and his young daughter saw the storm coming and went out into the barnyard to gather in a flock of goslings. They were in a field back of the barn when the storm broke upon them, one flash of lightning struck Mr. Steen. His daughter, who was some distance away, felt the force of the shock and was stunned for an instant. She turned towards her father, only to see him totter and fall. When she reached his side he was quite dead.

Kent County has now had a week of rain, and unless the sun shines soon the effect will be felt by the farmers, who are kept off their land at a time when they should be busy.

HORSE THIEF DEFIED POSSE

Man Near Windsor Gave the Police a Chase.

Windsor, May 3.—After leading an excited posse of farmers a three-mile chase, standing them off for almost an hour with a jack-knife, and finally making a desperate attempt to kill himself, Joseph Gallagher, 29 years of age, was arrested by Patrolman Giles, Sunday night.

Gallagher is alleged to have made an attempt to steal two horses from Arthur Dumouchelle, beyond the city limits. Dumouchelle and his family were away at the time, but Gallagher was seen by a servant girl, who called William Trent, a hired man, who gave chase. Gallagher jumped on one horse and Trent on the other. Trent secured the assistance of three farmers, and the four followed Gallagher, who turned and started back to Dumouchelle's farm, where he was cornered. He drew a pocket-knife.

Meantime the Windsor police had been telephoned for. When Officer Giles arrived and started to arrest Gallagher, the latter stabbed himself twice, the second time just about his heart. He fell into Giles' arms. He was removed to headquarters here and attended to. It is believed he will recover. Gallagher gives his home address as Syracuse, N.Y.

A $75,000 BLAZE AT PORT HOPE

Broke Out at Two O'clock This Morning and Completely Destroyed Deyel Block—One Man Has Close Call For Life—A Ravishing Conflagration.

Special to the Review.

Port Hope, May 3.—Fire broke out about two o'clock this morning in the Deyell block, and before the flames could be subdued practically destroyed the entire block, nothing being left but the four walls. The loss is estimated at $75,000. Among the chief losers are J. P. McKenny, grocer; N. L. Hamlyn, stationary and fancy goods; Col. H. A. Ward's law office; the Canadian Northern Railway offices, the local Masonic lodge rooms, and the Hope township offices. A. J. Vickery, surveyor for the Canadian Northern, who slept in the rear of the Canadian Northern office, barely escaped with his life. All the Canadian Northern field notes on the survey in this vicinity were destroyed. The losses are pretty well covered by insurance.

OPINIONS CONCERNING THE ISOLATION HOSPITAL

At last night's council meeting Ald. Duncan submitted the following report and recommendation:

1. That the plans for a building for an isolation hospital prepared by W. Blackwell be approved, and that this committee be authorized to advertise for tenders and let the contract.

2. That the chairman and Ald. Graham be instructed to have the King Edward Park ploughed, levelled and seeded and trees set in it.

3 That the chairman interview the Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., with a view to having the old drill shed in the east ward removed and the site converted into a park.

Ald. Duffus objected to the clause re isolation hospital. He said scarlet fever and diphtheria patients should not be treated in the same building, as there is no recovery for one catching both diseases at the same time.

Ald. Duncan replied that the two classes of patients would be separated by a solid brick wall.

Ald. Buller contended that the proposed building at a cost of $10,000 or $12,000, with equipment, would be too big an undertaking. A cheaper structure would answer all purposes.

Ald. Hicks said that the city should go to smaller expense for a building that could be closed up at times. He suggested that a couple of modest $2,000 buildings would meet all requirements.

Ald. Duffus agreed with Ald. Hicks and added that the more expensive the building the more would be the cost of its maintenance.

Ald. Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Buller,—That clause one be referred back to the Property Committee to report.

Ald. Duncan took exception to this as also did Ald. Bradburn. The matter had been in the committee's hand a year now. Let the council now take definite action, he said. The vote on the report resulted in a tie, and his Worship cast his vote in favor of the report's adoption as read. Consequently tenders will be asked for building the hospital.

AGAINST ELECTIONS THIS YEAR

The Winnipeg Free Press is opposed to the idea of elections being brought on next autumn. It points out that 1911 is the census year and that the great increase of population in the west will entitle Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia to extra representation after the census. The Free Press thinks that the election should be postponed until 1912, and that a Redistribution bill should be passed in the meantime. It is announced that Sir Wilfrid Laurier is to make a trip through the west this summer. No doubt he will postpone his decision until after this western tour. Whether the quarrels that have arisen within the party will cause the Premier to hasten the elections or to delay them it is difficult for an outsider to predict.

MERCURY FOUND IN CANADA

Almost every day some new mineral discovery is made in Canada. Some of the rarest metals in the world are found in abundance in this country, and our Dominion is so vast and so little of it has been explored that wonderful discoveries may yet be made. It is now reported that native mercury has been accidentally located at Field, B.C. According to a Victoria dispatch Mr. G. S. Flindt, a hotel keeper at Field, noticed something blocking the kitchen sink and causing a gurgling sound in the waste pipes, and on investigation found quantities of native mercury. He then went to the source of the water supply at the base of the mountain behind the rocks and found mercury in the rocks.

NOVA SCOTIA'S SHIPBUILDING

A. J. Campbell, writing in the Montreal Star, says:—"Confederation that splendid achievement in the making of Canada's destiny, wrought havoc with the Nova Scotian shipping trade by strangling the arteries of traffic with iron tariff bonds. The shipbuilding industry in Nova Scotia fed largely on foreign trade, and the sudden check placed on that trade killed the principal industry by slow starvation."

Confederation had nothing to do with the decline of shipbuilding in Nova Scotia. It is perfectly true that Nova Scotia was the greatest shipbuilding country in the world in proportion to population, prior to confederation. But that was in the days of wooden sailing vessels. Sailing vessels were displaced by steel steamships, and the building of wooden vessels ceased all over the world. The change happened to come about the time that Nova Scotia entered the Confederation, and Nova Scotians naturally attributed the decline in shipbuilding to Confederation. Liberal politicians who knew better, or ought to have known better, encouraged this notion, and did all in their power to create a feeling of hostility to the Canadian Confederation, and a desire for secession.

Now Nova Scotia is developing large iron and steel industries, and the building of steel ships may be soon undertaken there. We hope that this seaside province of Canada will ultimately be as famous for its steel steamships as it formerly was for its wooden sailing vessels.

DOES HE EXPECT DEFEAT?

Does Mr. Fielding's acceptance of a gift of $120,000 indicate that he is looking forward to the early defeat of the Liberal party and his consequent loss of office? Invested in such a way as to pay six per cent interest, this gift would yield him $7,200 per year for life, and his heirs would have the $120,000 after him, undiminished. His salary at present is $7,000, and his parliamentary indemnity of $2,500 brings his income up to $9,500. If he continues in office he might thus expend $16,700 annually without diminishing the $120,000 or drawing upon any other capital which he may have laid by for a rainy day.

In accepting this gift Mr. Fielding may simply be preparing to leave a sinking ship. He knows that there are bitter quarrels within the party; he knows that there are many Government transactions that will not bear the light of day, and that in spite of attempts at concealment enough has come out to discredit the Government in the eyes of the people. It is quite probable that he expects a smashing defeat of the Government in the next general elections, and is preparing a soft place for himself to fall upon when the smashup comes.

POISONOUS BOOKS

Hon. A. B. Aylesworth in defending himself against the Toronto Globe's attack on him for recommending the pardon of the two criminals, King and Skill, who were in jail for circulating indecent literature drags the Governor-General into the quarrel. He announces that Earl Grey approved his recommendation and intimates that he would rather have his backing than that of the Toronto Globe. This is very unfair. The Governor-General simply acted on the recommendation of the Minister of Justice. Without studying the literature that Mr. Aylesworth had endorsed, he assumed that the Minister was doing his duty and followed his advice. Considering the fact that under our system the Governor-General cannot defend himself against attack it is a mighty mean thing for Mr. Aylesworth to use him as a shield against the shots of the Toronto Globe. The Globe returning to the attack on Saturday said:

"The men who have examined the books and whose judgment carries the weight of professional knowledge are strongest in support of the Globe's position. Dr. George H. Locke, Chief Librarian of the Public Library, Toronto, not only excludes these very books, but returned unopened every circular and catalogue from King and Skill as a protest against their dealing in this immoral literature. He would rather allow a leper the freedom of the reading room than circulate these books from the library shelves. The Chief Librarian of the Public Library, Chicago, not only concurred in Dr. Locke's view, but declared yesterday that not a public library in America contains one of these books. He repudiated the idea that any interest of culture or of literary study required the circulation of these translations of French works of the sixteenth century unexpurgated, obscenely illustrated, and abounding in stories that in the English language and to the Anglo-Saxon eye are grossly indecent.

"And as for the modern works among these books that deal with problems of sex, they are not only indecent, but filthy and polluting to an indescribable degree. These are translations from unknown writers, and describe in most revolting detail every imaginable form of unnatural and perverted vicious indulgence. The 'smutty' French story leaves a stain, but the reading of this foul science of sex perversion means pollution that can never be cleansed away. Only two classes can read these books without moral hurt, those who are not only as innocent as Parsifal, but as impervious to moral stain as sinless angels, and those who are already sunken into the lees of sensuality and are citizens of the moral Sodom.

"The Globe still refuses to believe that Mr. Aylesworth or any other man of intelligence and responsible judgment would describe these books as other than immoral and their pictures as other than obscene. If the seventh commandment is obligatory, these books are forbidden. If marriage is an ordinance of God and a sacred institution of the State, these books are poisonous. If there is any sanctity in the marriage vow, if modern society needs loyalty to the marriage obligation, if personal purity and the clean life are of any value in Canadian citizenship, then the circulation of these books is a crime against national character for which the prison cell should be the only punishment."

The Review must commend the Globe for the stand it is taking against a member of the Laurier Government in the interests of decency. If it would show the same vigor in denouncing the graft of which other members of the Laurier Ministry are guilty it might do a great service to Canada.

At this season, scores of people, girls and women especially, find their faces marked with pimples, dark spots, eruptions, etc. The skin needs attention, needs renovating after the trying winter season. Just think what it has had to go through!

You have been out in rain and sleet and snow. You have been perspiring from skating, or some other exertion. Then you have stood to "cool off." You have spent hours of the day indoors at a temperature equal to summer heat. Then you have covered up your skin, except your face, and gone out into a temperature away below zero! No wonder that the skin of the face and neck shows signs of needing attention.

Zam-Buk is a skin food. Smear it lightly over the spots, the eruptions, the sallow patches, at night, and notice how quickly your appearance improves. As the rich, refined, herbal essences sink deep into the tissue, the hard scurvy-like patches are removed. The cuticle is softened. The cells beneath are stimulated to healthy operation. The pores resume their work properly. Better color results. The cells of the skin being purified by Zam-Buk's stimulating balm, become transparent; the blood beneath is able to impart its proper coloring to the tissue, and the delicate bloom of health replaces the sallowness and pallor of disease.

A few days of Zam-Buk treatment will transform a "muddy," speckled, spotty complexion into one of attractiveness and prettiness.

Use Zam-Buk for more serious skin troubles, such as eczema, pustules, boils, ulcers, festering sores, ringworm, scalp sores, sores on the body due to blood poisoning, etc. Mothers will find Zam-Buk unequalled for baby! 50c box all stores.

CARAVANNING BY CAR.

The Latest Motor Fad Comes From England.

The motor caravan seen in the illustration shows a novel English method of carrying one's house about the country when on a motor tour. Many motorists must have felt the heavy drain on the pocket when touring, the supper, bed and breakfast bills of the country hotel more especially making a very serious item in the expenditure. This way of combining the car with a light caravan outfit not only does away with many hotel bills, but adds greatly to the enjoyment of the trip. Many beautiful spots can be thus visited for a shorter or longer period and the tour extended indefinitely at only the running cost of the car and food, the latter being quite a small item if a stove is carried and meals taken picnic fashion. The car illustrated is a two seater with a box behind, into which all the caravan part stows. The top of the box forms a platform for one's personal belongings, so if the weather is bad one can retire to a bed if desired and the bags be lifted off the car without disturbing any of the caravan outfit. When erected (an operation which can be performed in about twenty minutes) the car has quite a formidable appearance, the width across being over seven feet, with five feet six inches headroom. However, it is lightly constructed and packs into quite a small space. The two bunks, one on each side, are made of canvas and extremely comfortable to sleep on, an air cushion being used as a pillow and eiderdown quilts taken for warmth, besides a blanket apiece. With such an outfit one can combine the simplicity with a most enjoyable motor trip at a moderate expense.

"TOO ILL TO WORK"

In Deepest Despair—All Run Down—Health Was Restored.

When you are sick and undecided as to the best remedy to use, there is nothing so convincing as the personal experience of some one who has suffered like yourself.

From St. Francis, Maine, comes the following statement from Mrs. Ovila Daigle: "I want to write you a few lines in order to tell you how much better my health is since taking Ferrozone.

"For two years I was weak.
"Couldn't do any housework.
"Was tired, worn out, depressed.
"Thought I wouldn't recover.
"Since using Ferrozone I have grown strong enough to attend myself to the family washing. I have seven children and a husband, and am doing all the housework myself. I still use Ferrozone, and seem to gain better health all the time."

(Signed) OVILA DAIGLE.

FERROZONE Brings Health

Every person in low health—all who suffer as did Mrs. Daigle are sure to be invigorated and restored by Ferrozone; it's the most nourishing of all tonics—try one or two tablets at meals and watch the gain; 50c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, May 2.—(Special.)—At the Montreal stock yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending April 30 were 2350 cattle, 225 sheep and lambs, 1975 hogs and 2750 calves. The supply on the market this morning for sale consisted of 975 cattle, 75 sheep and lambs, 1400 hogs and 300 calves.

A weaker feeling has developed in the market for cattle since this day week and prices have declined 25c to 50c per cwt., due to more liberal supplies coming forward, and decreased consumption on account of the high prices. Cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday were strong and noted a further advance in prices on account of the limited supply. Sales of Canadians were made at 15½c to 16c, and fed ranchers, at 14½c to 15½c per lb. These are the highest prices realized for years.

The trade here this morning was rather slow, owing to the unfavorable weather and the fact buyers in some cases were under the impression that they would be able to buy still cheaper later in the week. Some of the cattle on the market cost $7.40 per cwt., and the holders of such lost money. A few extra heavy choice steers suitable for the export trade brought as high as 7¾c, but the top figure paid for choice butchers' stock, was 7½c, while good sold at 7c to 7¼c, fairly good at 6½c to 6¾c; fair, at 6c to 6¼c, and common at 5c to 5¾c per lb.

The weak feeling which developed in the market for hogs a week ago still continues to be the main feature of the situation and prices have scored a further decrease of 1c to 25c per cwt. Supplies were larger, for which the demand was only fair and trade was rather slow with sales of selected lots at $9.75 to $9.50 per cwt., weighed off the cars. Cable advices on Saturday on Canadian bacon were stronger and noted an advance in prices of 1s to 2s per cwt., but this fact had no influence on the local hog situation.

TWO CLASSES OF HUMANITY.

Givers and Takers Are the Two Great Divisions of Mankind.

The world of humanity is divided into two classes—those who give and those who receive. The perfect woman is she who understands how to receive as well as how to give, who is as graceful in acceptance as she is in bestowal.

"I am sorry for that girl," said a friend of mine, with whom I had been discussing people in general, and a very charming young girl in particular, at whose coming out celebration we had both been present the afternoon before.

"Why do you say such a thing?" I asked in some surprise. "To me she has always seemed to belong to the highly-favored class of mortals that the gods have exempted from the ordinary cares of humanity."

"It is not a question of environment,' was the answer, "but of temperament. She will always give more than she receives. Emotional, sensitive and impulsive, the very qualities that render her so attractive, are those that must bring her sorrow. A girl of her type must eternally be at a disadvantage with the world around her, on whom she squanders her sympathy and tenderness in vain."

"But," said I hesitatingly, "such a nature as you describe finds compensation in the mere joy of giving. If the sensitive and emotional suffer keenly, they also enjoy keenly. It is natural for such a type to express itself lavishly without a thought of recompense deserved, or looked forward to. Like the sunshine and sweet air and the perfume of flowers, the temperamental giving out is impartial and the act blesses the giver."

"Then you are making literal application of the wisdom that 'it is more blessed to give than to receive.' Is that what you are trying to bring home to me?" inquired my friend.

"Not altogether," I said, "for people differ widely, and it seems to me that the blessing is broad enough to benefit both classes. Isn't it right for the flowers to open their petals to the kiss of the sun? Isn't it equally so for the two classes—those who give and those who receive. The perfect woman is she who understands how to receive as well as how to give, who is as graceful in acceptance as she is in bestowal.

"If she understands and appreciates aright, the joy of giving for herself should she, through herself, be unwilling to deny that joy to others? From the smiles which come naturally to her lips, even to the bestowal of her own dear self, a woman thrills to the joy of giving. It makes as much or more the happiness of her life as her joy in receiving."—Mary St. Ives.

A Rejected Novel.

Before he had achieved fame the French novelist Xavier de Montepin, on concluding a long and elaborate tale of adventure, took it, full of hope, to a publisher, who promptly declined it on even the most advantageous terms, to the writer's poignant mortification. Twenty years afterward this identical publisher besought at his hands a sensational story, one of those serials which were the delight of grisettes, offering any price within reason. "Well," said De Montepin, "I will oblige you, but my terms must be very heavy. I want 20,000 francs." After many protests it was paid. In telling the story De Montepin used to add, "The best of the business was that it was the very same story which he had previously rejected and which I had in various directions endeavored in vain to dispose of."

Church Encouragement of Sport.

Ecclesiastic recognition has been given the sport of skeeing in Norway in the special short, early services held in all the churches during the season for the convenience of skeers. These services are called skeeing prayers, and a stranger coming into the sacred edifices on such an occasion might think he had blundered into the barracks of a skee corps. However, the services are much liked and very well attended, and there is no difference of opinion about the wisdom of the church authorities in thus encouraging a sport making so strongly for healthy bodies and therefore going a long way toward making healthy souls.—Outing.

Force of Habit.

"I understand that all star cast was rather languid."

"Yes; they played poorly for stars. Even the life they put into the mob scene was accidental and came about merely through each of them trying to grab the center of the stage."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Trouble Makers.

"What men think," remarked the knowing woman, "causes fully one-third of all the trouble in the world."

"Yes," rejoined the mere man, "and what women say causes the other two-thirds."—Chicago News.

Poor Consolation.

Mrs. Benham—You have torn my train! Benham—That's all right. Your train is long enough to be in two sections.—Judge.

"Salted" by Mr. Salting.

Here is a story of the late Mr. Salting, the great collector, who was very "near," to put it mildly, in all matters of ordinary life. He bought at an auction a case of old vintage champagne. One of his friends, who heard of this, so worried Mr. Salting concerning the matter that at last he asked eight men to dine with him and to drink the wine, giving them a long invitation. All eight accepted, but before the date of the feast each received a letter saying that Mr. Salting had received a very favorable offer to sell the wine, that he had accepted the bid and that the dinner, therefore, would not take place.—London Tit-Bits.

Died by Order.

After the battle of Custozza a soldier supposed to have been killed was entered on the books of his company: "Died on the 24th of June, 1866," etc.

A few days afterward it turned out that he was still alive, and the honest sergeant made the following entry:

"Died by mistake."

At length there came a letter from the Ministry of War announcing the death of the man at the hospital, when our sergeant recorded the fact as follows:

"Re-died by order of the Ministry."

A Tongue Twister.

Do you read by sight or sound? Do you skim the sense or pronounce the words as you go—inaudibly, but consciously? There are many readers who read by the ear, and when this writer had written the sentence about Wick (there was an election there), "Wick is rich in Pictish relics," he leaned back and tried to whisper it, thinking of the next. "Wick is rich in Pictish relics." Say it three times quickly.—London Chronicle.

What Would Happen If We Were Entirely Inclosed by Clouds.

If astronomers are right in ascribing the wonderful brightness of Venus to the existence of an atmosphere continually filled with clouds, then she must be a world without time—at least there can be no measurement of time there such as we have here.

It is because we can see the sun and the stars that we are able to traverse the oceans and run railroad trains across the continents.

Surround our earth with an unbroken shell of clouds and what would become of all our clocks and chronometers? Not a ship could safely cross the seas; not a railroad would be able to run its trains without a series of frightful wrecks. In a few weeks every clock and watch would be hopelessly wrong and all exact timekeeping would cease.

Probably there are few who stop to think of the way in which our every day life depends upon astronomical observations. Our great primary timekeeper is the earth rotating on its axis. If we could not see the sun and stars because of clouds we should not know that the earth rotates and there would be no standard to which we could refer our timepieces and by which we could correct them. In fact, we should probably have no timepieces.

There could be no hours and minutes, for they are exact divisions of an ideal day based upon celestial observations which would be impossible to us.

They could not be based upon clocks or other mechanical devices, because the most exquisite chronometer that can be constructed will not keep time indefinitely and must be continually corrected by means of observations of the stars made in the observatories.

There could be no accurate maps of countries or charts of the seas, for such maps and charts can be made only by the aid of astronomical observations.

There could be no parallels of latitude or meridians of longitude, for they, too, are based on celestial observations which would be impossible to us.

We should not know with any certainty where we were upon the earth. We could not measure the distance from New York to London nor from New York to San Francisco.

Poetical minds, moved by the spectacle of Venus in her glory, have drawn brilliant pictures of the delights of life in that radiant world, but there is another side to the question of which we may well think as we gaze admiringly upon her electric splendor.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York American.

The "Arabian Nights."

The collection of tales called the "Thousand and One Nights," or the "Arabian Nights," is of unknown date and authorship. It was first made known in Europe about the end of the seventeenth century by Antoine Galland, who was employed by Colbert to collect manuscripts in the east. The copy of the Arabic manuscript brought by Galland from Syria contained a marginal note dated 1584, and from internal evidence the middle of the fifteenth century has been fixed upon as the probable period of the composition of the work. Some of the tales were evidently borrowed by the writer from other authors, and Von Hammer identifies at least the plot and some of the stories of the "Arabian Nights" with an earlier collection in Persian called the "Thousand and Fanciful Stories."

April Fooling.

The origin of the custom of April fooling cannot be traced with any degree of certainty. In the literature of the last century there are found many references to it, and yet beyond that it is scarcely possible to go. One suggestion is that the custom of playing tricks on the first day of April was derived from some ancient pagan custom, such as the Hull festival among the Hindoos or the Roman feast of the fools. One fact, however, we do know, and that is that the practice prevails in many countries under various names which would seem to indicate that it dates away back to the early history of the race.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Four Extremes.

The coldest place on earth inhabited by man is Verkhoyansk, above the arctic circle, in northeastern Siberia. The thermometer there drops to 90 degrees below zero in January, but sometimes rises to 98 degrees above zero in the shade in July, dropping, however, to the freezing point on the warmest summer nights. The hottest place in the world is the interior of the great Sahara desert. In Africa, where the thermometer rises to 122 degrees. The wettest place is Greytown, Nicaragua, where the mean annual rainfall is 240 inches. The place of least rain is Port Nolloth, in South Africa, where less than an inch sometimes falls in a year.

All For Love.

"Did you ever know a girl to die for love?"

"Yes."

"Did she just fade away and die because some man deserted her?"

"No; she just took in washing and worked herself to death because the man she loved married her."—Houston Post.

A Cruel Hint.

AN EFFECTIVE FETICH.

The Surprise Stanley Prepared for an African Chief.

Ngalyema was an African and an enterprising trader in ivory and slaves, holding the position of chief of the Stanley Pool districts. He had demanded, wrote Sir Henry M. Stanley in his "Autobiography," and also received a goodly sum for granting Stanley the privilege of establishing a station where up river navigation begins. Time passed, and Ngalyema chose to forget this transaction and made an impudent demand for more money. Duly warned, however, Stanley had prepared a surprise for him.

I had hung a great Chinese gong conspicuously near the principal tent. All my men were hidden, some in the steamboat on top of the wagon, and in its shadow was a cool place, where the warriors would gladly rest after a ten mile march. Other of my men lay still as death under tarpaulins, under bundles of grass and in the bush round the camp. By the time the drum taps and horns announced Ngalyema's arrival the camp seemed practically abandoned.

Ngalyema was intensely cold at my hearty greeting and said: "Has not my brother forgotten his road? What does he mean by coming to this country?"

"Nay, it is Ngalyema who has forgotten the blood bond that exists between us. It is Ngalyema who has forgotten the mountains of goods which I paid him. What words are these of my brother?"

Speech and counterspeech followed. Ngalyema had exhausted his arguments, but it was not easy to break faith and be uncivil without plausible excuse. His eyes were reaching round to discover an excuse to fight when they rested on the round burnished face of the Chinese gong.

"What is that?" he said.

"Ah, that—that is a fetich."

"A fetich! A fetich for what?"

"It is a war fetich, Ngalyema. The slightest sound of that would fill this empty camp with hundreds of angry warriors. They would drop from above, they would spring up from the ground, from the forest about, from everywhere."

"Sho! Tell that story to the old women and not to a chief like Ngalyema. My boy tells me it is a kind of bell. Strike it and let me hear it."

"O Ngalyema, my brother, the consequences would be too dreadful! Do not think of such a thing."

"Strike it, I say."

I struck it hard and fast, and the clangorous roll rang out like thunder in the stillness.

Only for a few seconds, however, for a tempest of human voices was heard bursting into frightful discords, and from above, right upon the heads of the astonished warriors, leaped yelling men, and from tents, the huts, the forest roundabout, they came hatless, dozens and scores, yelling like madmen and seemingly animated with uncontrollable rage.

The painted warriors became panic stricken. They forgot their chief and all thoughts of loyalty and fled on the instant, fear lifting their heels high in the air.

But Ngalyema and his son did not fly. They caught the tails of my coat, and we began to dance from side to side, a loving triplet, myself being foremost to ward off the blows savagely aimed at my "brothers" and cheerfully crying out:

"Hold fast to me, my brothers! I will defend you to the last drop of my blood! Come one, come all!"

Presently the order was given, "Fall in!" and quickly the men stood in two long lines in beautiful order. Ngalyema relaxed his hold of my coat-tails and crept from behind, breathing more freely.

"Eh, mamma!" he exclaimed. "Where did all these people come from?"

"Ah, Ngalyema," I said, "did I not tell you it was a powerful fetich? Let me strike it again and show you what else it can do."

"No, no!" he shrieked. "I have seen enough."

The Flower of the Navy.

Known among his intimates as "Tug" Wilson, Admiral Sir A. K. Wilson, G.C.B., G.C.V.O., K.C.B., V.C., who has succeeded Admiral Fisher (Lord Fisher of Kelverstone) as First Sea Lord, has been very aptly described as "our greatest naval strategist."

Entering the navy at thirteen years of age as a cadet, he was awarded the V.C. for conspicuous bravery at the battle of El Teb, in the Soudanese war of 1884. Five or six of the enemy rushed forward. Captain Wilson advanced to meet them alone, and, breaking his sword in his effort to cut one of them down, would not retire a step, but held his ground, knocking them down with his fists.

The new First Sea Lord is the inventor of the double-barrelled torpedo-tube, perhaps the most reticent admiral in the fleet, and a man of unpretentious appearance and iron will.

Yet he has one weakness—a passionate love of flowers. Wherever he goes, his steward decorates his room every day with beautiful blooms.

Horsepower.

Old James Watt established the term "horsepower" in order that he might have some basis of comparison of the power developed by his engines. He measured the work done by a heavy London draft horse of the Clydesdale or similar variety during short intervals by observing the weight it could lift against gravity, the horse walking on the ground and pulling horizontally on a rope led through pulleys, so that the weight rose vertically. The unit horsepower, so established, was 550 foot pounds of work per second, or 33,000 foot pounds a minute—that is, 33,000 pounds raised one foot in a minute; 330 pounds raised 100 feet or a pound raised 33,000 feet a minute. But whereas few horses could do that amount of work for more than a few seconds together, a one horsepower engine will go on producing that amount of work indefinitely so long as it is supplied with steam.

FRIENDLY ADVICE.

Josh Billings' Parting Shot to a Cheeky Drummer.

About Christmas time once the sometime famous Josh Billings, humorist, was on his way to his old home at Lanesboro, Mass. On the train were three traveling men who wanted a game of whist. One of them pointed to unpretentious and unprepossessing Josh and said:

"Let's ask Rube into the game and comb some of the hayseed out of his hair."

"My venerable friend," he said as he laid his hand on the shoulder of the old man, "will you join us in a game of whist?"

"Ya-as; we will get there in about three hours," replied Josh, putting his hand to his ear.

"You don't seem to understand," said the young fellow in a louder tone. "We want you to take a hand"—

"Ya-as; the stand o' corn has been unusual good this year."

"My friend," the young fellow then yelled, "will you take a hand in a game?"

"Ya-as; I was tellin' Mandy this mornin' how plenty an' how fat the game is this year."

"Oh, you go to the devil!" shouted the young fellow as he took his seat, while the other drummers unmercifully pestered him.

When Lanesboro was reached the old fellow got up, handed one of his Josh Billings cards to each one of the trio and then said to his interlocutor:

"Young man, while you are traveling on your cheek don't get any hayseed on your clothes or the other drummers will take you for a flute and get you into some game and skin you."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Easy Puzzles.

Take a certain word of four letters, multiply its fourth component by 2, and it will give the first letter; divide the first by 20 and it will give the third; divide the third by 50, it will give the second, and, lastly, multiply the third by 10 and it will give the fourth letter. The answer is, like teacher's temper, mild.

If from six you take nine and from nine you take ten,
Ye wits, now the puzzle explain.
And if fifty from forty be taken there then
Will just half a dozen remain.

Answer:

From SIX take IX and 8
From IX take X and I
From XL take L and X
} will remain.

The Girl From Rector's

After the most successful engagement of any theatrical attraction in New York the past season, "The Girl From Rector's" has taken to the road and will be seen at the "Grand" opera house for an engagement of two performances, matinee and night, Saturday, March 7th. The work is that of Paul M. Botter, the famous playwright. This newest work of the gifted writer is distinctively of new York flavor. The story, in the main, is woven about a young society woman of Battle Creek, Michigan, who spends a great deal of her time in the metropolis in the quest of pleasure and recreation. When she is at her home her spare moments are taken up in charitable work, and as the scene shifts from west to the east, so do the young woman's ideas. She finally earns the sobriquet of "The Girl from Rector's," and the audience is kept in a continual uproar while the entanglements follow. In its seven months at Weber's Music Hall every previous record was broken there.

DEPUTATION OF DOG OWNERS ENTERED STRONG PROTEST

Against the Leash Clause of the Dog By-law—Ald. Turner Was of the Opinion That the Dog Nuisance Called for Stringent Legislation—By-law Referred Back to Committee.

One of the most interesting features of the council meeting last night was the discussion of Ald. Turner's dog by-law. Early in the evening Dr. King, who headed a deputation of considerable size, entered an objection on behalf of the dog men against the leash clause in the by-law. He argued to the effect that this didn't give the owners of dogs a fair deal, and stated that if the dogs had to be tied up and not allowed their liberty, the city would be full of cases of mangy canines. Dr. King's presentation of the dog owner's phase of the matter was received, but other business was proceeded with, until Ald. Duffus presented the report of the Legal Committee. One clause read, "We recommend that applicants be asked for the position of dog catcher and for a dog pound."

A discussion ensued, in which the opinion was expressed that the by-law should be referred back to the Legal Committee in order that the leash clause might be revoked. Contrary opinions were expressed in opposition to this and the discussion was lively. All round the board nearly all the aldermen had something to say on the topic of the moment. Ald. Graham and Phelan made a motion that the by-law be referred back to the committee.

Ald. Turner didn't approve of this. He thought the by-law should be accepted as it stood and enforced with all its provisions. He knew that people had dogs that weren't a nuisance ,but still there were others who had dogs that were a scourge to the community and active agents in the destruction of flower beds ,etc., and committers of numerous other depredations. He thought that all the citizens should be unanimous in seeing to it that the provisions of the by-law were respected. While he felt sorry, he said, for the dog owners whose dogs were not a nuisance, at the same time the by-law would of course have to be a general one, and he stated that it was in the best interests of the city that it should be enacted.

In speaking of the deputation present with the view of having the council amend the by-law, Ald. Turner said that the communications of citizens which he had before him in which strong approval of the by-law, was expressed, constituted a much larger deputation than the one that was in attendance to oppose the by-law. Seven hundred and fifty people in Peterborough owned the nine hundred and fifty dogs of the city. Was it fair that these seven hundred and fifty should interfere with the rights of all the rest of the citizens of Peterborough's seventeen thousand population? Peterborough in enforcing the by-law ,he stated, would only be following the example of other towns and cities ,some of whom had even adopted more stringent measures to protect their ratepayers against dogs than the one under consideration was.

Ald. Morgan championed the stand of the dog owners, who received his remarks favorable to their views with frequent bursts of applause. He believed the dogs should be allowed some liberty and not kept tied up. From his remarks he didn't think that the majority of citizens were in favor of having the liberty of the dogs restrained. And, furthermore, he didn't think that the dogs were a nuisance.

Ald. Turner, in reply, cited numerous offences of the dogs and told Ald. Morgan that he should be among the first to do all in his power to suppress such a nuisance.

Ald. Duffus recognized that the dogs were a nuisance, and was of the firm conviction that it was up to the council to keep down that nuisance. Personally he didn't unqualifiedly approve of the leash section, but wouldn't favor the reconsideration of the by-law by the Legal Committee unless some effective clause could be substituted for it. Other opinions were expressed, and when the pleasure of the council was given by vote it was carried that the by-law be referred to the committee. More applause and expressions of satisfaction on the part of the deputation greeted this stage in the proceedings, and they left the council chamber while the aldermen proceeded with the transaction of other business of the evening's budget.

COMMUNICATIONS DEALT WITH BY THE CITY COUNCIL

Several communications were dealt with at the meeting of the City Council last night, nearly all of them being referred to the different committees.

From the Otonabee Power Company, asking permission to place poles on Aylmer, Ware and King streets.—Referred to Fire, Water and Light Committee.

The following letter to the mayor was read:—

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in advising you that the committee appointed by the Board of Trade have succeeded in obtaining subscriptions to the industrial commissioner fund above the amount required by the City Council as a condition to their grant of $2,000. The amount subscribed by the citizens is considerably above $2,000, and as there are some further subscriptions promised, we expect the amount subscribed will be between $2,500 and $3,000. This committee met with a hearty response from the citizens generally, and received every encouragement in this work undertaken by them.

The treasurer of the board has now called in the subscriptions and it is the intention to have the committee appointed either during the ensuing week or not later than the week commencing May 9th. We are therefore taking the liberty of asking the council to let Mr. Peter Campbell, the treasurer of the Board of Trade, have a cheque for the amount of your subscription, viz., $2,000, so that the board may be in a position to conclude the contract.

(Signed) D. O'CONNELL,
W. H. DENHAM.

From City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall, enclosing a letter to the secretary of the Board of Railway Commissioners in reference to the Aylmer street crossing of the C.P.R. The letter asks that the city inform the board as to whether or not the council thinks a night watchman is needed here, and to supply data as to the traffic.—Referred to Board of Works.

DISCUSSION CONCERNING DAY LABOR AND CONTRACT

In the Construction of Sewers Held at City Council Meeting—Petitioned for Scptic Tank — The Control of Central Park

The city fathers met in regular monthly session last night. There were present: His Worship Mayor Morrow, Aldermen Hicks, Duffus, Duncan, Morgan, Buller, Bradburn, Gillespie, Metheral, Graham, Batten, Turner, Phelan.

CARE OF CENTRAL PARK.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams addressed the council with a view to getting the city to agree to a joint management of the Central Park on the part of the three bodies concerned—the city, the 57th Regiment and the School Board.

He asked that the City Council appoint three members to meet with three members of the Board of Education and the regiment, and discuss some plan of unity in beautifying the park.

Ald. Gillespie moved, seconded by Ald. Phelan, that this matter be referred to the Board of Works to appoint a sub-committee.—Carried.

OPEN AIR MEETINGS.

Mr. Mullington, of the Gospel Hall, asked that this organization be granted permission to hold open air meetings in the Central Park after church Sunday evenings. This request was granted.

SCEPTIC TANK WANTED.

Mr. J. C. Shook asked that in the by-law for sewers an appropriation be made for a sceptic tank to take care of the sewerage from Waterford and Harvey streets, south of Dublin street. It is estimated that this work would cost $1,200.

Ald. Graham moved, seconded by Ald. Metheral, that this matter be referred to the Board of Works.—Carried.

In this connection Ald. Hicks submitted that the sceptic tank asked for, would have to receive the approval of the provincial and local Boards of Health.

RAILWAY CROSSINGS.

Mr. Denham, superintendent of the Quaker Oats Company, addressed the council and said that the C.P.R. people asked for a resolution of council granting permission to lay their tracks across the government reservation for a roadway along the river front, from Hunter to Simcoe street, which is now city property. This request is in furtherance of the Quaker Oats extension of railway sidings to facilitate the proposed expansion of their already big business.—Referred to the Board of Works with power to act.

DAY LABOR VS. CONTRACT.

The recommendation of the Board of Works, that tenders be asked for sewer construction, met with opposition.

Ald. Phelan could see no reason why the city should change the system of building sewers from day labor to contract labor. He had never heard one complaint during the last three years of sewers built by day labor. He thought that before making the board's suggested change, the question should be thoroughly looked into. Besides, considerable saving had been effected by day labor.

Ald. Graham—"The only sewer that is not satisfactory—that on Romaine street—was done by day labor."

Ald. Hicks had no fault to find with day labor. As to cheapness, it must be borne in mind that during the last few years sewer pipe had been phenomenally cheap. But comparing day labor with contract labor the latter had been found to be more satisfactory on the whole. Then in asking for tenders the engineer also figures in the work, thus giving a basis on which to consider tenders. And, Ald. Hicks argued, it is worth something to know before hand what the work is going to cost the property benefitted.

Ald. Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that clause three be amended to read that sewer work be done by day labor, as during the last few years.

Ald. Metheral—"We have good contractors here, let them figure on the work."

Ald. Phelan here contended that the roads are left in better condition when sewer work is done by day labor.

Ald. Phelan's motion was here put to vote and lost. The report was accordingly adopted as read, and tenders will be asked for sewer construction.

EXTENSION REFUSED

A petition in favor of giving the seven hotel keepers whose licenses were cut off an extension of time to sell out was dealt with at last night's council meeting. Ald. Buller moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that two months be allowed the hotelmen, although the seconder of the motion said he feared that it would be impossible to get the license commissioners to grant an extension of time, as the by-law called for the licenses to be reduced by May 1st.

On the vote being taken the division was even, and Mayor Morrow cast the ruling vote in favor of allowing the matter to stand as it is.

JUVENILES HAVE SPLENDID BAND

A new feature of the Peterborough Salvation Army is the organization of a Young's People's band. The band is in connection with the Sunday school, and consists of eighteen players, whose ages do not exceed twelve or fourteen. They had their first street turnout last Sunday and those who heard the quality of music played by them predicted a successful future for the young people as musicians.

THE MAPLE LEAF MILLING COMPANY

Up to the present Montreal has regarded herself as being the headquarters of the milling industry in Canada. In financial and commercial circles there is a good deal of comment being heard regarding the incorporation of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, with head offices in Toronto, and flour mills scattered throughout Ontario and Manitoba. Even the most ardent admirers of the Lake of the Woods and Ogilvie Milling companies acknowledge that the Maple Leaf Milling Company will prove a competitor from the very outset, owing to the location of their mills, and their ability to lay down flour in European ports cheaper than any other company can do. The future developments of the company will be watched with keen interest.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE DOG BY-LAW?

A Newspaper Vote To Get Expressions of Opinion for and Against the Measure—A Means of Finding Out How the Pubiic Looks Upon the By-law

Probably no municipal measure of the season has caused more discussion than Ald. Turner's dog by-law and the promoter of the by-law thinks that a general expression of opinion on the measure would be the best means of deciding whether the citizens are opposed to it or in favor of it and the idea seems an excellent one.

Ald. Turner has written the following letter to the Review:

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It seems that there is some doubt in the minds of the council whether the dog by-law, as passed by the council, meets the views of the citizens in general. I personally have no desire to suggest legislation which will not meet with the approval of the citizens by a substantial majority. In order, therefore, to get a definite voice from the people, I suggest that everyone take an interest in the matter and vote either for or against the by-law by sending a card, letter or telephoning to the different city papers, who will publish a list of voters for and against the by-law so that the council may have an intelligent opinion of the citizens generally. If this appeals to you as being a means to assist the council, I would suggest that the voting be left open for one week.

Yours sincerely,
J. J. TURNER, JR.

A short time ago a paragraph appeared in the Review suggesting that those who were either for or against the by-law communicate with Ald. Turner and as a result the following opinions were given by letter or verbally.

Those who are in favor of the by-law and its enforcement and against dogs running at large and approve of them being held by a cord, rope or chain, are:

R. E. Wood, J. T. Craig, A. J. Johnston, Wm. Shannon, Wm. Taylor, R. F. McWilliams, F. Brownscombe, Dr. Boucher, David Moore, F. H. D. Hall, Mr. VanKevery, John Butcher, Ashburnham; S. A. Oke, Dr. Grey, Henry Greene, R. M. Roy, F. Raddon, W. Hartley, T. A. S. Hay, John Williams, W. G. Morrow, 302 Water St.; H. Regan, F. E. Kerr, M. W. Christie, Chas. Mitter, J. H. Callander, R. C. Braund, A. Talbot, H. A. Yenney, R. B. Pearson, J. Edgar, W. D. Morrow, F. W. Dean, F. Haldeny, W. S. Robinson, J. E. Emmerson, J. W. Porter, J. M. Greene, Mrs. G. W. Hall, Chas. B. Banks, W. A. Edwards, J. J. Turner, Jr.; J. J. Turner, Sr.; R. H. Turner, A. W. Turner, W. F. Turner, J. Duffus.

Those who are against the by-law and oppose the idea of the dog's liberty being curtailed by a cord, rope or chain are:—

G. C. Leach, M.D.; W. A. Bailey, Chas. Dobson, J. W. Carey.

As a general expression of opinion is highly desirable, all citizens of Peterborough, either for or against the by-law, are requested to send in their names to the Review for publication from day to day as the names are forwarded. In this way it will be possible to find out definitely if the majority of citizens are favorable or antagonistic to the measure.

FAN ADVOCATES SCORE BOARD FOR RIVERSIDE PARK

The sporting editor of the Review has received the following letter from one of last season's patrons of the City Baseball eLague and his suggestion is one that is worthy of consideration:

Peterborough, May 2nd, 1910.

Sporting Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I have read with interest in the evening papers of the progress made by the City Baseball League this year, and I feel sure that many others besides myself appreciate the efforts of the new president of the league and the other officers in an endeavor to place the league on such a footing that will mean greater success this season. I would suggest, however, that either the league or ground company erect a score board at a convenient point at Riverside Park, and appoint a competent scorer.

While I pride myself on being able to follow a ball game, there are others who cannot, and I make the suggestion, feeling that if it is acted upon and a score board is installed it will be a new feature, that will meet with the hearty approval of the supporters of the City Baseball League.

Thanking you in anticipation.

JOHNSON DENIES DISSAPITION

San Francisco, April 28.—Jack Johnson, who arrived here last night said he would not commence training before the middle of next week for his fight with Jeffries and intimated further that he would take matters leisurely until the middle of May.

"Why are people so much concerned about the time I am going to commence training?" he said. "I have more to lose than the people watching me, and I will begin training when I get ready, and that will be the middle of next week.

"Now, about those stories from Salt Lake City that I am out of condition," he continued. "They are a pack of lies. I never started to train for a fight in better shape in my life. People are saying I have dissipated, and the like. Well, tell them go bet on Jeffries in this fight and they will discover a few things."

GENE HURTUBISE WILL GO WEST

Prominent Peterboro Athlete Has Accepted a Position in Glenbow Alta

Mr. Gene Hurtubise, the well known local wrestler, and proprietor of the Auditorium Roller Rink, and who has been employed in the blacksmith department of the C. G. E., leaves on Thursday for Glenbow, Alberta. Mr. Hurtubise has accepted a remunerative position as manager of a quarry there, for a large firm with headquarters in Montreal. Gene has always been a prominent figure in Peterborough athletics, especially in wrestling and football. His numerous friends in this city will wish him success in the west.

The Auditorium Roller Rink, of which Mr. Hurtubise was manager, will continue to be open for roller skating, under the direction of Mr. Lee Dineen, the popular floor manager, and the patrons of this rink are assured that they will be given the same attention that they received under Mr. Hurtubise's management.

THE WEASEL.

A Formidable Foe to Animals a Hundred Times Its Size.

The weasel is about six inches in length from tip to tip, which seems very great compared with the height of the animal, which is not above an inch and a half. The wolf is not above one and a half times as long as he is high, while the weasel is nearly five times as long, an amazing disproportion. The tail also, which is bushy, is generally two inches long and add to the apparent length of the body.

The color of the weasel is a light brown on the back and sides, but white under the throat and belly. The eyes are little and black. The ears are short, broad and roundish and have a fold at the lower part, which makes them look as if they were double. Beneath the corners of the mouth on each jaw is a spot of brown.

This animal, though diminutive in appearance, is nevertheless a very formidable enemy to quadrupeds a hundred times its own size. When kept in a cage it will not touch its food while anybody looks on. It keeps in a continual agitation and seems frightened so much at the sight of mankind that it will die if not permitted to hide itself.

For this purpose, says Fur News, it must be provided in its cage with a sufficient quantity of wool or hay in which it may conceal itself and where it may carry whatever it has to eat. In this state it is seen to pass three parts of the day in sleeping and reserves the night for its exercise and eating.

In its wild state the night is likewise the time during which it may be said to live. At the approach of evening it is seen stealing from its hole and creeping about the farmer's yard for its prey. If it enters the place where the poultry is kept it never attacks the cocks or the old hens, but immediately goes after the young ones. Generally it merely sucks the blood of the victim.

It is remarkably active, and in a confined place scarce any animal can escape it. It will run up the sides of the walls with such facility that no place is secure from it. Its body is so small that there is scarce any hole but that it can wind through. During the summer its excursions are extensive, but in the winter it chiefly confines itself to barns and farmyards, where it remains till spring and where it brings forth its young.

All this season it makes war upon rats and mice with still greater success than the cat, for being more active and slender it pursues them into their holes and after a short resistance destroys them. It creeps also into pigeon holes, destroys the young, catches sparrows and all kinds of young birds, and if it has brought forth its young hunts with still greater boldness and avidity. In summer it ventures farther from the house and particularly goes into those places where the rat, its chief prey, goes before it.

The female takes every precaution to make an easy bed for her little ones and lines the bottom of her hole with grass, hay, leaves and moss and generally brings forth three to five to a litter. The weasel, like others of its kind, does not run on equably, but moves by bounding, and when it climbs a tree by a single spring it gets a good way from the ground. It jumps in the same manner upon its prey and, having an extremely limber body, evades the attempts of much stronger animals to seize it.

Slavery.

A certain man, fettered by his instincts, married with a certain woman, whose instincts likewise left her no alternative.

But after awhile they discovered what the amount of it was and grew restive.

"I am your slave!" protested the woman. "I do nothing but cook for you and mend your clothes."

"No; I'm your slave," retorted the man, "for when I have earned so much as will buy you hats and dresses I've no time left for anything else."

Just here, however, a baby came along. "Hush! You're both of you my slaves!" quoth he.

And in that view the man and the woman forgot their bickering and lived happily ever after.

Sucking Poisonous Wounds.

Among all people the sucking of the wound has ever been considered the most effective remedy of immediate application for snake bites. In Africa a cupping instrument is employed in emergencies of the kind to draw out the poisoned blood. The ancient followed the same methods, and when Cato made his famous expedition through the serpent infested African deserts he employed many savage snake charmers, called "psylli," to follow the army. Theey performed many mysterious rites over men who were bitten, but the efficacy of their treatment appears to have consisted in sucking the wounds.

Explained.

The self-made man, after the manner of his kind, was explaining at great length, but with a careful avoidance of details, how he had done it. A shabby, genteel man, with a sneer on his face, was among the listeners.

"I landed in this country without a cent in my pockets," exclaimed the self-made man proudly.

"Yes, but there were other pockets," suggested the shabby genteel man.

The inquendo passed unnoticed, however, as just then the self-made man was busily engaged in counting his small change.

Lords.

Not being in sympathy with certain actions of the hereditary branch of the British Parliament, The London Chronicle has been speculating on the possible future of the word "lord". "So far it has resisted the democratization that has befallen 'lady.' No one talks of 'chorus lords' or begins a speech with 'ladies and lords.' In modern Greek, however, 'lordos' means simply 'Mr.,' and it would be rash to predict that our descendants will not all be 'lords' in the twenty-first century."

A Discovery of Vast Importance

It Is Now Admitted That Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Coughs, and Colds Can Only Be Quickly Cured By Mixing a New Medicine With the Air You Breathe.

Scientists acknowledge that medicated air treatment is the only treatment that will cure these diseases, and that stomach medicines are worse than useless.

Catarrhozone air treatment has been found to be the most effective way to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. Its action is so prompt that in less than an hour an ordinary cold is cured, and after a more thorough use of Catarrhozone, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the throat and lungs are completely cured.

Catarrhozone is a very simple and powerful method of treatment. You simply breathe it through the inhaler and it immediately passes over every air cell of the throat, lungs, and bronchial tubes, curing and healing as it goes.

Catarrhozone treatment affords little drops of healing for sore places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

Remains of a Famous Ship.

In scientific annals the Beagle, in which Darwin made his first exploring expedition, is almost as sacredly remembered as "Old Ironsides" in American history. This ship has long been lost from sight, and nobody knew exactly what had become of it. Toyoni Noda now writes to Nature that the Beagle was broken up in Japan, where it was used as a training ship until 1889, and that a part of its ribs has recently been found in use as a stand for stones piled up near the temple of Suitengu, near the Oaki shipbuilding yard.

Machine Guns.

France is now in the midst of a controversy as to the identity of the man who invented machine guns. The invention has always been attributed to Gatling and Nordenfelt, but it was recently asserted on some authority that the real inventor was a Japanese in 1704, who was promptly killed for being too clever. It has now been put forward and hotly argued that what may be called French patents existed as far back as the fifteenth century, and some pieces in the artillery museum are cited as evidence.

Old Spy Oak.

What is known as the "old spy oak" stands close to the intersection of Westchester, Hobart and Morris Park avenues, in the Bronx. It is a tree of fine appearance, having a diameter of five feet at a distance of five feet above the ground. There is no definite history of the old monarch, but tradition has it that it was the tree from which spies were hanged during the Revolutionary war. Efforts are being made to preserve it.—New York Press.

INTERESTING ARTICLES BY PROMINENT WRITERS

Wanted: A Practical Man; He Wins All the Prizes.

By Dr. Madison C. Peters.

THE world is full of theorists who imagine that if their plans and schemes were put into operation the millennium would dawn before its time. Earth would be transformed into a bowery of happiness and delight where care and worry would be unknown. Men and women would bask in an eternal sunshine with never a cloud to overcast the brightness of their bliss. But the trouble is that the beautiful designs of these visionaries and dreamers never can assume real forms. They are impracticable, impossible.

We do not want men to tell us how to do things, but we want them to do the things themselves and thus show us how to do them. A man may describe a beautiful way for getting to the planet Mars, but as long as he never has tried that way himself and so demonstrated its practicability we have little or no faith in his plans.

Availability Wins the Prize.

A man's success depends largely upon his practical capabilities. Not ability, but availability, wins the prize. Availability is the capacity to use to advantage all of one's powers. A college diploma does not secure success. An educated pig remains a pig, an educated foel remains himself.

Education must be sown on good soil to produce a good crop; if the ground is shallow and devoid of the right constituents there will be but a poor return. A silk purse never can be made from a pig's ear, so a gentleman never can be made from a cad, a wise man from a fool, nor a practical man from an Mealist.

Men who can accomplish, who can bring about results, are needed in every condition of life today. Of such open there is a dearth everywhere and the consequence is that owing to the limited competition between them they are able to command large salaries and occupy influential positions among their fellows.

Make the Wheels Revolve.

These are the men who make the wheels of the world revolve, who are the guiding hands at the levers of commerce, business, and trade, who speed the train and steer the ship to the destinations of progress and prosperity. Without them the world would degenerate, go back to the primitive, and the greatest institutions of man would crumble and decay. Such men teach us the true education, the education of both head and hand, the hand to do what the head directs. They need no college diploma to recommend them, their certificate of merit is the actions they perform.

Book education without the ability to turn it to practical account is a drug on the market. Gold is of little service to a man starving in a desert for want of bread and water. Book knowledge may be a hindrance to a man, inasmuch as he may by it become too refined for any practical purpose.

Many men are so polished and refined by higher education that they become like a finely tempered steel instrument ground down to the sharpest point, and which flies to pieces the moment it strikes the hard surface of the world. The heavy, blunt instrument, by the power of its own force, is able to bore its way through.

Head Trained Too Much.

Many of our young men are so exquisitely cultivated as to be good for nothing but to be kept in a showcase as specimens of what the most approved systems of education can do. They emerge annually from our colleges utterly unfit to take even the most obscure place, totally unequipped for the battle of life into which they must enter, and this simply because all their time has been given to the dry "isms," "ologies," and "osophies" of the schools—the head altogether trained at the expense of the hand.

However, a change is coming. Hard headed, practical men have begun to see the folly of sending their sons to colleges merely to learn the wisdom of the dead past. The past is gone and what suited it will not do for the present.

What was new twenty years ago is antiquated today. There are no better scholars than formerly, but systems are different and the necessities of the times have changed.

Know One Thing and Do It.

What the times now demand is a sound, practical education along definite lines. The encyclopedic man of the past, who knew a thousand subjects in a general way, but had not knowledge to put one of them into practical use, is obsolete. We want the man who knows one thing and can do it, and do it well. This is the man of the hour, this is the man who is in demand, this is the man who gets to the front when the man whose head is almost bursting with all kinds of book knowledge is left far behind in the race.

The man who knows how to drive a steam engine has the advantage of the man who can teach Greek and Latin; of course if the engineer knows Greek and Latin, all the better, they will not mar his skill in driving the engine, but if he does not know them he will be just as useful a man in the business in which he is engaged.

The man who to book knowledge adds practical ability has the right kind of an education. He who can mend a holein a pot when the pot is required to cook a dinner for a hungry traveler is of more benefit to that traveler than the most learned savant on earth who could not mend the pot.

Trade Schools Are Increasing.

That the trend of the times is towards practicability in education is evidenced by the number of trade schools and industrial institutions which are springing up all over the country. Yearly they are turning out well equipped men with a sound practical knowledge of the mechanical callings and credit upon which rests to a great extent our prestige as a nation.

It is the workmen, the artizans, mechanics, and tradesmen who are at the base of our national welfare; they are the props on which rests the structure of our power. Take them away and it will totter and fall.

Burke wisely said: "There is no force in more intellectual ability standing in all the nakedness and solitude of metaphysical abstraction." What we need is a curriculum dealing with the practical affairs of life. Schiller designated the final education of the human race to consist in action which fits man for the proper performance of the duties of life.

We Live in a Fast Age.

We are living in a fast age; we have no time to do anything properly. Where is that American youth who would spend twelve years with Angelo studying anatomy to be perfect in his work as a sculptor? In one-tenth of that time the young American would undertake to chisel an Apollo Belvedere.

We do everything in a hurry. We rush through school, jump into business, do feverish work, break down in middle life, and die when we should only be beginning in reality to live.

We take short cuts and have abridged methods; the work is all done to please the eye, and as a consequence soundness and solidity have been neglected. But we are now trying to remedy this, and in the future this country promises to be without a rival in every field of human endeavor, for she is making it imperative for her institutions to educate in the right direction and so turn out such practical men and women as will build the ramparts of strength around her and make her impregnable to the rest of the world.

Married Men Best Workers; Often Get the Best Jobs.

By Ben Burbanks.

THE rule announced by a Chicago bank a few years ago that marriage would mean discharge for clerks and messengers getting less than $1,000 a year, caused a good deal of criticism for the bank and some sympathy for the employes. Many people jumped to the conclusion that big business houses gave single men the preference when it came to giving out jobs.

An investigation shows that the shoe really pinches the other foot. In a majority of cases where any discrimination is made, the married man gets the better of his bachelor brother.

"I wouldn't go to such an extreme as discharging a man because he is single," said the manager of a good sized Chicago wholesale house, "but when I put on a new man I must confess I give the preference to one that has a wife. For any position above that of office boy or cub clerk, if two applicants are otherwise equal, the bachelor gets turned down. It isn't altogether that the married man needs the money worst, though perhaps that has a little to do with it, but my experience shows that the Benedicts are a shade steadier and more reliable than the bachelors. They hang on to their jobs more religiously and they have fewer distracting outside interests."

Thief Usually Single Man.

"I figure that nine-tenths of the small peculations and embezzlements that come under my notice during the year, are the work of single men," copied a business detective connected with one of the bonding companies. "I'm not saying that the man with a wife is any more honest than the man without, but he certainly is less exposed to that form of temptation that makes an employe short in his accounts. Now and then some fellow will steal for his wife's sake, but he's ten times more likely to do it for some woman not his wife. The wife knows her husband's circumstances, and notwithstanding occasional stories of feminine extravagance, you can mark it down for a fact that a married woman isn't going to ruin her husband's career and her own happiness by encouraging expenditures that the income won't stand.

"It isn't the married man, as a rule, who lead the gay life," continued the detective. "Sometimes, no doubt, Smith feels a little bit interested at seeing what an awful lot of fun Jones has, but Smith, who is married, really hasn't any reason to be sorry for himself. It's a good thing for him that he is obliged to give Mrs. Smith a share of the good times of Jones. I'm married myself and I know."

Bachelors First to Go.

When business gets slack and pays are cut, still, there are few firms who do not give the cash to the bachelors. An inquiry among the Chicago firms who reduced their forces this winter revealed that almost without exception the men with homes and families were retained. There is, that much sentiment in business, at least. Several of the superintendents and managers confessed that they laid off the best men and kept the poorest in a number of instances.

"A man who has only himself to look out for can make some sort of a shift for a living," explained one manager, "but a sudden layoff is a mighty serious thing for a man with a family. I didn't have the heart to let any of my married men go. In a few instances I gave the firm the worst of it by this determination, but I guess the stockholders are not going to kick. If they do I can't help it."

There may be a little truth in the view that one bachelor takes of the question, though it is not quite complimentary to some of the employers.

"Married men will stand for more than single ones," he says. "That's one reason why some of the employers like them. A married man is a better, tamer, all round sort of a creature. He's got his nook in the palm and the boss knows it. He does not ask for a raise, for he can't afford to quit in case it is refused.

Benedict Can't Look Around.

"If he belongs to the low salaried class of workers the chances are that he hangs a week or two behind his pay envelope, and he is afraid to take his nose off the grindstone long enough to look for a better job. If the boss can make him work overtime without extra money, or he can make him work short time and dock him for the hours he lost, whatever the needs of business may demand. The single man can quit, but the married man is tied hands and heels."

There is one firm in Chicago employing an average of ten men where no single man is eligible to a place on the pay roll. The applicant for a job who confesses that he's a bachelor is turned down at once, though, of course, the real reason for his refusal is not explained to him. The curious thing about this business house is that the managing owner is a confirmed old bachelor and never speaks two words to a woman if he can help it. What sort of a dream of "what might have been" stirs his heart nobody knows, but it is certain that he won't give a job to the man that is not married.

It is said that one of the employes of this bachelor lost his wife a few years ago, and he knew the rule so well that he was afraid to confess his widowerhood to his boss. He hid his bereavement as best he could and there were only three men in the office who knew that his companion had died, and they were pledged to secrecy. Whether the boss would have fired him for his misfortune if he had found it out nobody knows.

How Plugging Parker Rose; A Story of Going & Co.

By Allan Wilson.

MARKHAM and Parker came into the big office at the same time, and everybody who troubled to take them up agreed that they had a great future before them.

If, they had known it, they had little past than was to be gained from a more or less observation of their employers. Both were certain that never were two more unsuitably fitted to fight for a position of importance and good salary in the service of Going & Co. than were these two. Indeed they were accounted as being on a par when they entered the office was precisely up to this time both had practically in the same measure by the advantages that their youth had put forth for them.

As similar as such things may well be were the advantages possessed by Markham and Parker in the days which are devoted to the training of the man. Parker came from the family that owned the big house on the northeast corner of the two principal residence streets in the small town where he was born; Markham came from the family that owned and lived in the house on the northwest corner. Markham was born on the seventh of July; Parker was born on the following on the tenth. At school they began in the same term, graduated on the same day; Parker delivered the class poem, Markham was responsible for the class prophecy.

Then, with their high school days over, they were ready to face the world together, for they both possessed the great advantage of owning parents who were comparatively poor, and Markham got $5 a week to begin with as bookkeeper in the sawmill office, while Parker, set to be useless, was granted the same remuneration for attending to such clerical work as was needed in the establishment of the one grain buyer of the town.

Started on Road to Fame.

So they were off on an even contest on what high school had taught them to call the practical sense of business life, and their parents patted themselves on the back and thought of the noble positions achieved by their sons at the outset of their careers, and knew that nothing remained but a few years till the time when their names should be seen to confront with awful note window of the bank.

But the same thought although the parents, as soon have a way of doing, had the title of pessimists, although in their old home town opposite to Pumpkin Hill. They were, born to a success, as these their parents and their grandparents before and reached success, away. So far every did they reach, that they made their way even into a big city, and little by little they increased in wealth, until one before they pushed the two boys on their course in the office here, and put them squarely on their own, bound for the city and their brilliant destiny.

It was hard work, for them, to tear themselves loose from their parents, pitiful enough in the city their guidance, their respective employers opened the gates of their hearts and offered to take their departure if a week. But even this opinion temptation would not stay the ambitious ones. To the city, read their vocations, and to the office of Going & Co. did they go, as well matched and strong a pair as ever appeared on to the platform of their respective corporations.

Old Man Notices Pair.

Being greatly inexperienced they were put to work in the invoice department, where the raw material is taken in and tested to see if it is worth working into something of importance, and their salaries were $10 a week.

As far as the outward signs go, there can be no doubt that Markham and Parker started in to climb the ladder of preference in the big office on an even basis. If theories of fate had been to put them to a test in the matter, had sought to put two men on the first rung of the ladder, neither having any advantage over the other, it could not have done better than to have picked up their pair just as circumstances had made them. Old Going, who saw all things and noticed a few, noticed the combination.

"Most of boys an eye on these new men in the invoice," he said to his private information man. "I want reports on their progress every week or month."

Thus they had attracted the same sort of attention at the beginning, they persisted in keeping them even at the start.

Parker Gets a Little Ahead.

And now witness the beginning of the change, for at the end of the first four months of their employment in the office the private information man came to old Going and said:

"About the two new men in the invoice department Parker has done so well that he has been given $3 raise, while Markham is holding his job and no more."

"Good," said Going. "They're going to make an interesting pair. Keep watching them."

They no longer were experiments but accepted and regular clerks. No longer were the errors which they perpetrated or the work which they failed to do excused upon the grounds of lack of experience. They now were judged as experienced men; the standard which they must measure up to was raised proportionately; and the result was that the difference between Parker and Markham became more and more pronounced.

Parker, it was easy to see now, was the man who would make his mark. He was the pleasant, [illegible] pair, the [illegible] individual, who would let no obstacle stop him, [illegible] permit no delinquency in his own [illegible] in achieving the purpose to which he had set his mind. Doggedly and persistingly he was improving in his work, steadily and systematically he was learning the routine business of that department in which he had been placed.

He was no common clerk; he wanted not only to wear the seat of his trousers out on a stool without getting more to show for it than $15 a week; he would gather experience and business knowledge and in the end he would profit by it. All this was to be seen in the set, nervous expression of Parker and in the clerish manner in which he applied himself to his work.

Markham Talks, Parker Works.

And now it was to be seen that Markham was the dreamer. He was the impractical, unfitted, irresponsible member of the combination. While Parker in a leisure moment was delving into the mysteries of investment, Markham was wandering about the office, [illegible] talking with whomsoever happened to be at leisure and willing to talk to him, or standing around watching the people in other departments at their appointed tasks.

It was plainly apparent that he wasn't the kind of a man who can concentrate his mind upon his work and apply his energy to the one thing which brings success. For he was would he not become [illegible] in the invoice department? Would he not spend his spare time, as Parker did, in learning all about the merchandise he had charge of?

Of course, [illegible] Parker, notwithstanding his disposition to [illegible] and [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

GREETINGS EXTENDED TO THE ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

On the Occasion of the 75th Anniversary—The Zeal of the Pioneers of the Church Commented on by the Speakers of the Evening.

It was not a large attendance that was present at St. Paul's church last evening, but it may be presumed that those who braved the inclement weather are imbued with some of the same spirit that has in the life of the church, played such a prominent part and done so much to make St. Paul's such a great power for good. It was an evening of reminiscences and incidentally the speakers offered their congratulations for the good work accomplished in the past, coupled with the sincere wishes for greater success for the future.

Sheriff Hall acted as chairman and with him on the platform were;—His Honor Judge Huycke, Mr. R. R. Hall, Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. E. A. Pearson, Rev. J. H. Potter, Rev. J. R. Webb, Rev. Mr. Thomson, of Hastings, and Mr. J. F. Morrison and Rev. R. Pogue.

During the evening Miss Pringle, Miss Davies and Messrs. John Crane and R. Woodhouse contributed vocal numbers which were highly appreciated.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, after which Rev. Mr. Pogue lead in prayer. Then followed a hearty welcome to the speakers of the evening, by the pastor, on behalf of St. Paul's church.

JUDGE HUYCKE.

The chairman in calling upon His Honor Judge Huycke, did not allude to him as a stranger and His Honor on arising said that he had felt relieved that it had not been necessary for him to be introduced. With Mr. Hall and himself it was a case of feeling like fishes out of water. There was a sacred solemnity attached to the church that they were not accustomed to and it made one feel out of place. It afforded him a great deal of pleasure to be present to congratulate St. Paul's church for its splendid history during the past seventy-five years and to wish for a greater history during the next seventy-five years. "Although not a Presbyterian, you have my sympathy," said the speaker. He believed there was good in every church and if all got together and broke down the barriers it would be for the betterment of mankind and christianity. His Honor referred in an eloquent manner to the early conditions of what is now the city of Peterborough and then to the great change that has taken place. But with all these things, it would not be so much if Peterborough had not the character that has been taught and cultivated by the churches of the city.

"The future of St. Paul's church depends on you," said the speaker. "You have to lay the foundation for future greatness. Do not relax your efforts nor be discouraged. Take up the burdens as they have been left to you as they have been left to your pastor by his predecessors and by each one of us doing our work then will come the greater success and glory." Judge Huycke extended his hearty best wishes for the future prosperity of St. Paul's church.

MR. R. R. HALL.

Mr. Hall said it was a pleasure for him to be present to join in congratulating St. Paul's church on its 75th anniversary. He had been identified with it when a boy and his associations had always been cordial. He had seen the church grow and prosper and the success attained had eventually resulted in the new Knox church. As an ex-politician Mr. Hall spoke for some time from the view-point of a politician and referred to the part a politician takes in regard to the betterment of the community by making the laws by which people were curbed from committing crimes. He said, sin, vice and crime were the respective objects of religion, ethics and jurisprudence. There were the sins that violated the principles of true religion and came within the church. There were vices that came under the moralist. The politician instituted laws in Parliament to deal with crimes that violate man's property, such as the one who steals. A policeman could be sent to bring a man to jail for theft, but a policeman could not force a man to go to church. In the latter instance an appeal was made to man's higher nature.

The speaker referred to the great religious reformations that had been brought about by such men as Luther, John Calvin, John Whitfield and the Wesley's, whose great work was only accomplished by reason of their great faith. In conclusion, whilst congratulating them on past achivements, he wished them a still more glorious future.

REV. CANON DAVIDSON.

Rev. Canon Davidson said it was a great pleasure for him to be present to convey greetings of the congregation of St. John's church. He felt perfectly at home. The occasion was one in which all could rejoice, for after all, there was the one common Saviour, whom all were trying to serve.

The pioneers of the city were held by him in high admiration, especially for their part in spiritual affairs.

When one looked into the face of the late Rev. Mr Roger, the first minister of St. Paul's, admiration and fellowship were felt for him. Following him was the Rev. Dr. Torrance, a man who he felt sure would be in the hearts of St. Paul's congregation on this occasion. Then came the present pastor, Rev. R. Pogue, whose work would be for the betterment of the community as well as St. Paul's church.

As for the future, it was for us to do whatever lies before us, towards the making of Canadian citizens. Other churches were doing their work. And the Presbyterians must do their part. Make the most of your splendid features. Bring out all the best that is in the Presbyterian religion, not in a selfish way. Keep up the fence around God's holy day.

Go forward with broad ideas and for the purpose of building up the great church of Christ.

REV. J. R. WEBB.

"It gives me great pleasure to take even a small part in the evening's programme," said Rev. Mr. Webb. "The programme," said Rev. Mr. Webb, "It was a splendid idea to make such arrangements for the occasion.

Rev. Mr. Webb believed that all the work accomplished during the seventy-five years of history of St. Paul's church had been done with the proper spirit. The church was to be congratulated not only on its present history, but also that it was to live seventy-five years more with an evangelistical ministry, and in the work that was before it the church would have the sympathy of Murray street Baptist church and the prayers of its pastor.

Rev. Mr. Pearson said he was pleased to bring the greetings of the Methodists of Peterborough, but more particularly the greetings of George street church. The Methodist church congratulated St. Paul's church on the prosperity of the past and wished more prosperity in the days to come. He felt sure that there were many of the Methodist denomination who would like to see the fences that had been put up in the early days torn down and put away altogether. He had found in looking over the published record of George street church it went back to 1835, the same year as the Presbyterian church. From that time St. Paul's church had had but three ministers, while George street had had forty. Rev. Mr. Pearson commented on the extreme denominational loyalty of the Presbyterian church. Presbyterianism everywhere has a strong attachment of their ministers and church, and he lieved in denominational loyalty.

It was not for St. Paul's church to be satisfied with the achievements made in the past, but to look forward to greater things, and he believed that under the leadership of the present pastor greater success would be attained in the future.

MR. J. F. MORRISON.

The chairman expressed regret at the absence of Rev. Mr. Keith, of Knox church, and called upon Mr. J. F. Morrison as a representative from that church to speak. Mr. Morrison extended congratulations on behalf of Knox church, and expressed a hope that the good work carried on in the past would continue in the future. He believed the establishment of the mission in the south end of the city was the greatest work accomplished by St. Paul's. The relationship between Knox church and St. Paul's church was like that of a child to the mother, and they felt very much indebted to the mother church. Knox church has been given a great responsibility, but he hoped that the church would be equal to it.

REV. MR. POTTER.

The pastor of St. Andrew's said that he esteemed it a great pleasure to be present to represent a sister church and to extend greetings to St. Paul's. In looking back it was with a great deal of thanksgiving for the ministry of (Mr. Roger and the work of the pioneers with him, and we should seek to emulate the spirit of those who have predeceased us. Rev. Mr. Potter referred to the good work done by Rev. Dr. Torrance, and Rev. Mr. Pogue, and of the associations in Christian work which he had had with Sheriff Hall during the past fourteen years.

REV. MR. THOMPSON.

Rev. Mr. Thompson extended the greetings of the Presbytery. He reviewed the history of the church from the time of its being taken into the Presbytery, which was in 1835, known as the Kingston Presbytery, up to the year of 1875, when the Peterborough Presbytery was formed. Whatever prosperity had been met with in all these years should be credited to God.

Rev. Mr. Thompson was the last speaker, and at the conclusion of his remarks the doxology was sung and the meeting was brought to a close by the pronouncing of the benediction by him.

ONE BAD MISTAKE

Is Frequently Made by the Wisest of Peterborough People

It's a serious mistake to neglect backache. Backache is the first symptom of kidney ills. Fatal complications may follow. Booth's Kidney Pills act quickly to overcome kidney ills, do not delay until too late, it may mean Diabetes, Brights Disease. Read what a Peterborough resident says:—

Mrs. R. Duncan, of 115 McDonnel street, Peterborough, Ont., says:—"Some thireten years ago I suffered with a severe attack of La Grippe that had until this spring left me in weakened and miserable condition. The kidneys had been disordered through this and became so inactive that doctors had pronounced Bright's Disease and termed my case incurable. My back was very weak and the pains across the kidneys were most excruciating. The urine was highly colored and contained a quantity of whitish sediment. I had become so discouraged through my years of suffering that I had no care for anything. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at Madill's Drug Store and I tried them. The first box convinced me of their merits. I used five boxes of the remedy and I have been entirely cured. I am like a new person, well and strong and can sleep through the night and awake refreshed and ready for the day." Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T. The Force Quit

A number of the employees of the box department at the Quaker Oats Co's mill quit work this morning over a demand for a shorter work day, with no reduction of wage from that paid for a ten-hour day. So far no attempt has been made for settlement, and arrangements are being made to go on with the work with a new staff.

Marriage Annulled

Toronto Mail and Empire

The marriage of a Quebec man in Ontario has been annulled in a Quebec court, on the ground that the conditions of the marriage were not such as are required in Quebec. This is a strange legal situation. While the decision of the court may be justified by law, it must be said that the law which permits such action is unique. If a Quebec man who has been married in Ontario can be said not to be married at all, because he has not complied with some regulation of his own province, an Ontario man married in Quebec might claim liberty from the marriage tie on the same ground. Similarly a Canadian married in the United States might rid himself of his marriage obligations by representing that he had not observed the law of Canada in some particular. The legislation which enables a marriage to be annulled for technical reasons is not applauded. A couple married according to the law of any province ought to be regarded as legally and fatally married in all the provinces.

PUBLIC LOVE LETTERS.

Curious Appeals Appear in Newspapers of Southern Italy.

The printed love letters in the advertising columns of papers in southern Italy fill the tourist with wonder, mingled with deep respect for the sentiment which will pay for their insertion. The following letter, taken from the Palermo Ora, contained 174 words, which at the advertised rate of a cent a word would cost $1.74. If the Italian saying, "A lira is a dollar," is true, this would equal a bill of $8.70, which would require a pretty devoted American lover to pay:

"Dearest Little One—What have I done to thee? Why this silence after thy promise? I experience from it a grief so violent that it renders me helpless.

"Thou art good, my Santuzza, as good as dear; thou knowest how this makes me suffer. Why dost thou do it? Thou knowest how I love thee, that thou art my religion. Have I offended thee?

"I seek intense occupation to keep me calm, but a thousand thoughts gnaw my soul. Perhaps while you amuse yourself you do not know how your silence agitates me. Oh, dear Madonna mine, darling, darling, my blessed joy, do not forget me; thou art my life, all there is for me, my good Santuzza.

"I could not longer live without thee. Forgive me if I have offended thee in any way, blessed little bird. Here all is as if thou wert to arrive at any moment. I seek to create for myself this most beautiful allusion, ever speaking to thee, vainly expecting news from thee with every post, with a violently beating heart.

"Do not believe me bad; I love thee so much; I kiss thy dear lips, thy most entrancing little countenance, all infinite passion and tenderness. I am insane to hear once more thy dear, enchanting voice."

There were eleven letters of this kind in the same issue of the Ora, about an average number for a Palermo paper. Such letters are found in all Italian papers, but they grow shorter and shorter as one travels north until in Milan one line in the "agony column" suffices to express the lover's anguish.

A style which seems theatrical to an American seems perfectly natural to an Italian. He will write exactly this sort of love letter in private. Some of the published letters of Napoleon to Josephine in their early married life are in the same strain.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

OTTAWA PARLIAMENT PROROGUES TO-DAY

Work of the Sessions Completed and Members Will go Home—The Gift to Mr. Fielding—Hudson Bay Railway Construction.

Ottawa, May 4.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attitude when leader of the Opposition towards gifts to public men was related in the House yesterday afternoon, when the testimonial to Hon. W. S. Fielding was under discussion.

The question was introduced by A. C. Boyce of West Algoma, who said that Sir Wilfrid, when leader of the Opposition, had struggled for certain high principles to which he had pledged himself. He had made a vehement complaint against a gift made to Sir Hector Langevin in 1891, and while supporting a resolution introduced by Sir Richard Cartwright in the House in that year, had declared against the danger of Ministers, Government officials, or people doing business with the Government.

Mr. Boyce asserted that because Mr. Fielding had accepted a gift of $120,000 while occupying office, it became a matter for consideration of the House. The presentation had been made in the presence of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and Liberal organs stated that the Premier had expressed "unbounded delight."

Sir Wilfrid said it was perfectly true that in 1891 Sir Richard had introduced the resolution quoted. It was a matter of notoriety that public men who had served Canada were not always blessed with wealth. A testimonial had been given to Sir John A. Macdonald, just the same as to Mr. Fielding, but he was not aware that any fault had been found in that particular case. There were other testimonials, however, and the resolution of 1891 was introduced because of a testimonial given to Sir Hector Langevin.

The Premier said he would have preferred not to have to speak of these facts, but the resolution was introduced because it was charged in Conservative newspapers that contractors had contributed to that fund. This he said was untrue.

In the list of subscribers to the Fielding fund is said to include Sir Edward Clouston $5,000; D. D. Mann $5,000, Senator Jaffray $5,000, Lloyd Harris $5,000, Wm. Mackenzie $5,000, Senator Cox $2,500.

The St. Lawrence Power Transmission Co. bill, which went back to the private bills committee Monday night, was taken up and reported by that committee yesterday morning and restored to the order paper.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier moved an address to Earl Grey, whose term of office as Governor-General expires this year.

Sir Wilfrid spoke of Lord Grey as a distinguished statesman, who, from the moment he landed on our shores, gave his whole-hearted soul and life to Canada.

The Premier mentioned especially the establishment of the Quebec Battlefields' Commission. The work of Countess Grey and her daughters would be "green in the memory of the poor and lowly."

R. L. Borden seconded the address. "The work of His Excellency," said Mr. Borden, "has been characterized by a broad and generous sympathy, which has won the affection and esteem of the people of Canada, and he will leave behind him an affection and esteem in the hearts of the people that will be a monument to his memory."

In the Commons yesterday afternoon Major Currie asked the Government if the idea of state-owned cables had been departed from.

Hon. R. Lemieux replied that it was a magnificent theory, but that they had not yet been able to put it into practice.

W. F. Maclean remarked that the sooner the Government built a cable from Canada to Great Britain the better it would be for the country. They would never be able to get reasonable rates until then, and the people of Canada would support the proposal.

When Mr. Fielding's bill regarding bounties on wire rods was under consideration, James Conmee said it was time the Government was turning its attention to producing iron and steel from Canadian ore, instead of from foreign ore. Such action would give a great impetus to the mining industry in this country.

In connection with the bill to increase the grant to the City of Ottawa, Mr. Fielding explained that besides the additional $40,000 to be given the improvement commission annually, there was $15,000 to be paid direct to the city for fire protection.

W. F. Maclean asked if it had ever occurred to the Minister that because the Ottawa improvement commission was not purchasing land now it would cost more when they found it necessary to purchase and was really boosting real estate in the city.

Mr. Fielding replied that, generally speaking, the policy of this and the previous Governments was to purchase lands when it was required at the prevailing market price.

Dr. Sproule said that with the grant towards the new hotel and other contributions, Ottawa in ten years would get well on to two million dollars. He was afraid that as a result of this generosity something additional would be asked for every year.

Major Currie suggested that the $80,000 which the Government had made by the speculation on the barracks property in Toronto should be turned over to Toronto as conscience money.

Hon. George P. Graham: "Who would take charge of the conscience money in Toronto?" (Laughter.)

Major Currie drew Mr. Graham's attention to the uniform code of rules for employees of Canadian railways, which had been approved by the Railway Board. These rules order that an employe shall undertake certain risks.

Mr. Graham replied that the courts had held that an employe could not contract himself out of the conditions imposed by the Railway Act, but he would draw the attention of the Railway Board to the matter.

Prorogation will take place to-day. The Commons yesterday practically concluded their business, and only some formal work remains to be done.

Several items of interest came up during the discussion of the estimates. W. G. Fisher, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Glasgow, has been transferred to Germany, with temporary headquarters at Berlin. He is the first Canadian trade commissioner to Germany.

Construction on the Hudson Bay Railway will start at once, and tenders will be called for a bridge at Pas Mission immediately. There is still some doubt as to the terminals, but for 160 miles from the Pas the route is identical.

The contract for the Quebec bridge substructure has been let to M. P. and T. Davis. A board of engineers is making tests of the superstructure simultaneously in Canada, United States and Europe. It is impossible to estimate the cost," said Mr. Graham.

Anti-Combines Bill Passed.

Ottawa, May 4.—The anti-combines bill passed the Senate yesterday morning with two slight amendments.

ALBERT W WOLTER ON THE WITNESS STAND.

If ever there was a defendant in a murder case who did not look the part it was Wolter during the first day of his trial. This boy, who passed his eighteenth birthday a prisoner in the Tombs, consulted with his lawyers, Mr. Scott and L. H. Sayer, in a manner that would convey the impression that he was in court as the defendant in a civil suit rather than one accused of murder in the first degree.

HANGING IN HIS CELL

Prisoner at St. Catharines Tries to Kill Himself, But is Saved by the Chief of Police.

St. Catharines, May 4.—Miss Boucock left home in Thorold Monday afternoon to go on a short visit out of town. While waiting for the Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto Railway trolley at Thorold Station her suit-case was stolen. The matter was reported to the police and the stolen suit-case was recovered at Mike McGuire's second-hand store here. Part of the goods which had been in the case had been sold for $2.75. From information supplied by McGuire, the police arrested an Italian named Canico Jackimo, and the balance of Miss Boucock's apparel was found with him. Jackimo was placed in a cell in the police headquarters for a short while. Soon after placing him in the cell Chief Green returned and found the man with his shirt off, having torn it into strips, one of which he had tied around his neck, and the other end had been fastened to the bars of the cell, and he was slowly choking to death. The chief pulled out his knife and hurriedly cut the strip from the man's neck and a closer watch was kept on him until his removal to Thorold. Shortly before appearing before Police Magistrate Munro at Thorold, he made a second unsuccessful attempt. No time was lost in convicting him of the offence and he was sentenced to three years in Kingston Penitentiary. Chief Darby hurried the man to Welland jail, where he is now being closely guarded, and he will be passed on to Kingston as quickly as possible.

RUMORS REGARDING HEALTH OF J. PIERPONT MORGAN

Great New York Financier Said to be in Precarious Health as Result of an Operation Undergone a Few Months Ago.

New York, May 4.—In inner financial circles it has been learned that J. Pierpont Morgan, who is now on a recuperative tour in Europe, has suffered a severe relapse, and information which has come out is to the effect that the premier American financier is in a dangerous physical condition at the present time.

This news has been carefully kept because of the effect that it would have upon the stock market, and the facts of the case, it may be stated, are known exclusively only to the very closest friends of Mr. Morgan.

The recent break in the New York stock market is attributed partly to a leaking out of this knowledge, and especially the heavy liquidation which has occurred in United States Steel stocks.

Mr. Morgan is perhaps the biggest financial figure that New York has known, and the stock market, therefore, places more interest in him than it has hitherto done in any one individual.

J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

The late Mr. Harriman, while a big factor in the stock market, was small as compared to the relationship which Mr. Morgan holds in financial circles, and in it can be seen the keen interest which is taken in connection with anything pertaining to Mr. Morgan's illness.

During Mr. Morgan's visit to Italy a few months ago, it was given out that he had passed through an operation, but the information was that this was of a merely minor nature.

Senator Choquette's Terms.

Ottawa, May 4.—Senator Choquette, in the Senate yesterday morning, stated the terms upon which he would resign his seat and contest a Quebec constituency on the naval question:

First, that he should get a fair constituency.

Second, that he should return to the Senate if defeated, and

Third, that the Government should withdraw its naval bill next session if he were successful.

Bakers' Strike In New York.

New York, May 4.—Not only the poor, but even the very rich, at least those members of the wealthy classes who live in high class hotels or dine in expensive restaurants, are suffering from the bread strike, which has spread to all parts of the city and become both acute and even more threatening. The Fleischman Co., who ordinarily produce 40,000 loaves daily, are down to 2,000.

$13,750 For a Leg.

New York, May 4.—Thirteen thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars for the loss of a leg was awarded to Harold Shafler, the 15-year-old son of a policeman, by the appellate division of the Supreme Court yesterday, affirming the decision of the lower court. It is the largest verdict ever upheld here for such injury.

Will Take Proceedings.

Montreal, May 4.—L. J. Ethier vouches for the truth of the rumor that he is to take proceedings against those mentioned in Judge Cannon's report as guilty of malversation.

The idea in this is merely to recover the expenses of the enquiry, which have been apportioned among the different men.

C.N.R. Enters Port Hope.

Port Hope, May 4.—At a public meeting Monday night an offer of the C.N.R. to come into town was accepted. No bonus will be paid and the coming of the road will not cost the town a cent. The station will be situated on Ontario street.

SANK LONG YEARS AGO

Four Hundred Passengers Went Down at Sable Island, Wreck is Now Being Raised.

Halifax, May 4.—The bones of the Canadian liner Hungarian, which ran ashore on Cape Sable on Feb. 20, 1860, are being brought into Halifax. The Hungarian was on a voyage from Liverpool to Portland, and went down with 400 passengers on board.

The wreck was recently sold to the Provincial Wrecking Co., and the ship, which has lain under water for half a century, is being blown up with dynamite. She was broken into two years ago and her cargo has long since been taken out of her. Now the ship is being brought to Dartmouth to be remelted at the Dartmouth Rolling Mills for commercial use.

No traces of the 400 bodies which went down with the steamer have been found by the divers. There have come up, however, different articles which have been eagerly seized upon by souvenir hunters. An American silver coin and an English penny were raised.

SIR CHRISTOPHER FURNESS UNSEATED

London, May 4.—Sir Christopher Furness, the ship-owner, who, as a Liberal, has represented the constituency of Hartlepool in Parliament since 1900, was yesterday unseated by the court on the ground that he had illegally employed demonstrators and made improper payments through his agents. The court emphasized its conclusion that Sir Christopher was not personally guilty of any corrupt or illegal practice, but added that he must suffer for the acts of his agents.

Danish Professor Coming.

New York, May 4.—On the steamer United States, which arrived yesterday from Copenhagen, was Prof. Bernhard Boeggild, the Danish milk expert, who will lecture in the agricultural school at Cornell and other universities, and visit Danish-American settlements in the west and northwest. He will also be the guest of the Canadian Department of Agriculture during a visit to the Dominion.

KENORA'S DAM CAUSED NO FLOODS

Settlers in the United States Threaten to Destroy It.

Dam Did Not Cause Floods.

Kenora, May 4.—Reports that settlers at Warrows and Spooner, Minn., are greatly exercised because of the floods and that they threaten to dynamite the dam here, are discounted here. The dam is several feet lower than the Lake of the Woods, and with stop logs out, as at present, has greater water capacity than the gorge above. It, therefore, could not be responsible for floods on the lower Rainy River.

THE FOREIGN MILLIONAIRE

Special to the Review.

London, May 3.—Mr. Frettyman, an ex-minister, protests against Joseph Fels subsidising the agitation against the British land system. He says Fels' proposed tax of 2 1-2 per cent far exceeds the average net rent from agricultural land. The union comprising 1,100 prospective sufferers from taxation, due to Fels' money and Liberal members spending it, welcomes the issue, whether the British land owners, great and small, will be taxed out of existance at the foreign millionaire's bidding. The Times says: "Fels provided £5,000 and offers more for the propigation of George's land doctrine. The important fact is that the foreigner refusing naturalization interferes in purely British questions. What would Fels' countrymen say if Englishmen similarly moodled in burning American political questions? What would Fels' gound to our taxation being regulated by foreign money? The precedent is alarming. If American millionaires are to subsidize one movement, why not others? Where is the line to be drawn?"

Canadian General Electric Co.

The Toronto Globe says:—The decision of the directors of the Canadian General Electric Company to issue new stock will be announced on Saturday in the market and in London. The new capital is required for the company's extensions rendered necessary by the expanding business. Of the ten thousand common shares at present in the treasury 8,400 will be issued to shareholders at par in the proportion of one in five. Payments are to be made in ten equal instalments between May 21 and February 20, 1911. The company's paid up capital will then be brought up to $8,000,000. The directors say, "In view of the very great expansion of trade in the Dominion our manufacturing facilities will not permit us to take advantage of a considerable proportion of business that is offering, and additions to our manufacturing plant and equipment are necessary and advisable." General Electric has been dull lately, with the stock offered at 113.

PECULIAR FREAK OF LIGHTNING

Chatham, May 4.—A peculiar freak of lightning occurred during Monday's storm, which passed over this city. One flash of lightning struck the residence of James Richards of the Elms, Chatham West. The lightning entered the house through the bathroom window. It ripped the flooring, tore the casement and flung it across the room. It then passed into an adjoining bedroom, where Mrs. Richards was sitting with her little baby.

A red ball of fire circled around the room, passing within a few feet of Mrs. Richards, and then passed back into the bathroom and out through the window again. The ball of fire then went in the direction of the barn, knocked a hole in the side of the building three inches in diameter and passing through a buggy, splintered the wood at the back of the vehicle. Mrs. Richards and her child escaped without injury.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 4, 1910.

WHAT IS SOLID ROCK?

If the Transcontinental Railway Commission wish to know the real meaning of the term "solid rock" in a railway sense they have only to ask the Canadian Pacific and Canadian Northern Railway Companies. These railways, in their contracts, define 'solid rock" as follows:—

"All stones or boulders found in excavation, measuring more than twenty-seven cubic feet, and all solid quarry or ledge stone requiring blasting in order to remove it, shall be termed solid rock."

If this meaning had been given to the term "solid rock" by the commission in charge of the government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, many millions of dollars would have been saved to the Canadian people.

Instead of this it was decided that hard clay or gravel that could be blasted was to be called "solid rock" and paid for accordingly. If the ordinary earth happened to be frozen hard it was called rock. Whether this over-classification was due to guilty intention on the part of the Laurier Government, or merely to unbusinesslike methods, the Government should be turned out of office. The people cannot afford to have their business looked after in this way.

CANADA'S FOREIGN TRADE

Canada's total foreign trade for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1910, was $677,142,189, and it is predicted that it will amount to eight hundred million dollars for the current fiscal year. This is a much larger foreign trade in proportion to the population of the Dominion than the United States ever had at any period in the history of that country. Is it something for Canadians to congratulate themselves upon? We do not think it is. The total imports for the year were $375,783,000, while the exports of Canadian and foreign products amounted to only $302,358,529, so that the trade balance was very much against Canada. Many millions of dollars of goods were imported which could have been made just as well in Canada. The foreign trade figures would have been very greatly reduced if half the things we imported had been made in Canada, but Canada would have really been more prosperous. Canadian trade has been kept going with borrowed money instead of being established on a sound basis. The borrowed money must be paid back some day, and with the balance of trade against Canada year after year to the extent of many millions of dollars, how are we going to pay back the money borrowed abroad?

CHINESE IMMIGRATION

When a tax of five hundred dollars per head was imposed upon Chinamen coming into Canada it was generally supposed that it was so high that it would completely shut out the Celestials, but during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1910, over sixteen hundred Chinamen came into Canada, paying the poll tax. How many white immigrants would come into Canada if we taxed each one of them five hundred dollars before allowing entrance into the Dominion? No doubt the lure of cheap land would induce a considerable number of well-to-do American farmers to pay the tax, but there is no doubt the immigration from the United States would be greatly reduced and the immigration from overseas would almost completely cease.

The fact that so many Chinese pay this heavy poll tax in order to get into Canada indicates that if there were no tax at all the country would soon be flooded with Chinese. As a rule the tax is paid by companies who collect it in instalments out of the wages of the Chinamen after they have secured employment in this country. It is desirable that Canada should be preserved as a white man's country, and if, in order to do this, it is necessary to increase the poll tax on Chinese immigrants the Government should not hesitate to do so. The workingmen of Canada must be protected against cheap yellow labor.

HOW THE MONEY GOES

Including the main estimates and the supplementary estimates the Laurier Government proposes to spend one hundred and thirty-three million dollars during the current fiscal year.

Anyone who wonders why the expenditure has been so enormously increased since the Liberals came into power has only to study the methods of doing business. There is lavishness, waste and graft in almost every Department of the Government service. Take for example the case of buildings rented from the Imperial Realty Company in Ottawa for the Public Works Department. These buildings are valued at $300,000 and the Government pays a rental of $73,614 for them. Then the same company receives $9,465 per year from the Government for lighting the buildings, and pays the Electric Light Company only $3,000, thus getting a profit of $6,465 per annum. The cost of electric light in Ottawa is well-known, and it was so evident that the Government was paying an exorbitant price that even the Liberal members of the Public Accounts Committee were obliged to admit it, and a resolution was finally passed by the committee, calling upon the Minister of Public Works to cancel the contract.

This is only one of many cases in which the money of the people is wasted by paying unnecessarily high prices. Who the stockholders of the Imperial Realty Company are the Conservatives at Ottawa have been unable to ascertain. This is one of the things that the Government wishes to keep in the dark.

It would be just as honest for members of the Government to steal money directly from the Treasury and invite their friends to come and help themselves, as to hand out the public money in this way.

LARGE ASSETS BEHIND STOCK

Enquiry made to-day at Toronto elicits the information that the offering of the $2,000,000 of Preferred Stock of Maple Leaf Milling Company being made by Cawthra Mulock & Co., is being very well received throughout the country. Brokers, who have been identified with previous flotations during the past year have even gone so far as to state that there has never been a public issue made from Toronto that has been so spontaneously received by the public throughout the Province, as has the offering of the Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited.

One of the principal reasons for the cordial reception accorded the offering may be found in the large amount of assets that has been behind the preferred stock that is being offered. From the appraisals made by the Canadian-American Appraisal Company, these assets are equivalent to in the neighborhood of $197.00 for every hundred dollars of preferred stock that has been issued, and in addition the Company has no Bonds, either issued or authorized.

Unlike other flotations that have occurred, the Preferred Stock of Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, is rendered, perhaps, specially attractive from the investor's standpoint inasmuch as the 7 per cent. interest on it accrues even for some weeks previous to the time on which he turns in his subscription, the acquiring date being from April 5th, 1910. This will mean that the subscriber to the stock receives a dividend on the stock he received on allotment, from that date.

Applications for small amounts have been especially large, and though it is certain that the entire amount of $2,000,000 will be over-subscribed, it is understood that every endeavor will be made, by the interests who have offered the issue to the public, to allot all these small applications in full, making reductions only on the larger applications that may be made.

STEEL SHINGLES AND SIDING

A New Department Taken Over by Drummond and Duffus—Public Invited to Call

Probably no business has increased to such an extent of late as the steel shingle and siding business. This has been satisfactorily demonstrated recently by the fact of Drummond and Duffus, who are retailers of these popular goods for this district, having delivered to customers in and around Peterborough a full carload, and being the first car load shipped to enter Peterborough, still have many orders not yet filled, which will be shipped at some future date.

Builders are fast realising the superiority of steel over the old wood shingles as a roof of much longer duration, of much better appearance and also a great protector against lightning and fire during threshing operations, and even sparks from chimney tops. Another good feature is that should a man have the misfortune of a fire the large sheet of steel acts as a preventitive to the spreading of the fire to the other buildings.

This is a new addition to the already large stock which the firm of Drummond and Duffus carry, and no doubt with the popularity of this well-established firm and their aggressive business methods, it will develop into an extensive business.

The public are invited to call at 135 and 137 Simcoe street, where they can see these goods and have an opportunity of having their advantages explained, and needless to say, will get the best of treatment at the hands of the Pedlar People, Oshawa, and Drummond and Duffus, who are here to look after their interests. 1dlw

INSURANCE AGAINST LOSS OF PROFITS

Caused by Fire or Other Disasters—A System That is Making Headway in Britain

London, April 30.—American insurance men may be surprised to learn that while they are so busy invading Europe with American insurance propositions, there is in all likelihood the possibility of Canada and the United States being invaded with an English insurance idea. This idea is known as "profit insurance."

Profit insurance is a comparatively new thing in England. It has only existed for three or four years, and in that time has become extraordinarily successful. As the name indicates, it covers the loss of profits after a business has been stopped by fire or some kind of disaster. It is operated in this manner. Some authority, like a chartered accountant goes over the books of the firm wishing to take out profit insurance, and finds what their average profit has been for the two preceding years. The firm is then allowed to take out an insurance based on this average profit for three months, six months or a year. If a fire, an earthquake, a tornado or any catastrophe destroys their business, the insurance company pays them for the time they have been insured the profits agreed upon.

In case a man's store is burned down absolutely and his business is at a standstill until he can rebuild and start trade again, he is, if he is insured in a profit insurance company, paid the profits when he would ordinarily have acquired. Of course, a man might be paying this profit insurance through his whole business career and never receive any benefit from his premiums; then again he might be burned out and be very thankful that he is insured.

Oldest Leaf Ever Found.

Thirty feet beneath the surface of a newly built railroad in Spokane, Wash., a ginkgo leaf was found last spring, its age being estimated at 100,000 years. "It bears a message of more certainty than those carved in tablets of stone," writes Fred Niederhauser in Harper's Weekly. "This discovery tends to substitute the theory that the coast section has been formed by successive upheavals of the great sea dike which has now developed into the system of the Rocky mountains. So violent were the upthrusts that in the process the beds of the inland lakes or arms of the sea were turned into rock. The clay was changed to slate, the sandstone to quartzite, the limestone to marble."

Trinidad's Lake of Asphalt.

Notwithstanding the enormous quantity of liquid asphaltum, or bitumen, removed every year from the great lake of that substance in the island of Trinidad the supply is undiminished. The lake covers about a hundred acres and is higher in the middle than at the edges. Near the center the black pitch is semi-liquid, but toward the sides a crust, intersected with fissures, covers the surface, and on this crust a man can walk, although when he stands for a time the crust gradually sinks about him, forming a kind of basin some yards across. Between 80,000 and 90,000 tons of asphaltum are removed from the lake annually.—Harper's Weekly.

The Piano That Improves With Age

COMPLETE satisfaction in a Piano is only attained when it fulfils the most exacting requirements in regard to touch, tone and quality of endurance.

For nearly three score years

The Haines Bros Piano

has been growing better. The fixed determination of the original makers to constantly live up to the highest artistic ideals in piano construction has been intensified and ripened by nearly sixty years of piano making.

A close and continuous allegiance to the highest musical standards during that time has produced the rarity, richness and permanency of tone that make the Haines Bros. the most satisfying piano of to-day.

LUXURY IN PRISON.

Convicts in Switzerland Seem to Enjoy the Life.

Prison life in Switzerland is a luxury instead of a punishment. The comic opera jail at Thornburg, where the inmates did as they pleased, has only recently been suppressed by the Berne authorities, yet details are published today of a similar institution at Sarnen, in the canton of Oswald.

Sarnen is apparently an ideal penal resort, for the happy criminals who are sentenced to terms of "detention" in that institution have a far better time than hundreds of "free" Swiss citizens who are forced to earn their bread.

A correspondent of a Lausanne paper states that he was passing through Sarnen when he saw a number of men, dressed in dark blue clothes with white stripes, walking about the village smoking and joking.

Others were seated in a cafe, and some were working in a leisurely manner, carrying bricks for the construction of a new building. To his astonishment the correspondent found that the men were convicts from the cantonal prison close by.

These convicts are permitted to leave the prison early in the morning and find work around Sarnen or walk about the country until nightfall, when they return of their own accord to the prison.

They are unaccompanied by warders, and there is nothing to prevent their escaping, but they are far too comfortable to think of relinquishing their quarters, for they have as much liberty as other men and are, moreover, fed and lodged for nothing.

The money earned by those convicts who choose to work can be spent as they like. One convict, who is employed as a gardener by a local magistrate, sends his monthly salary to his wife and children.

Two or three convicts "escaped" some weeks ago, but they eventually returned to the prison in a half famished condition, and after being severely reprimanded they were allowed to return to their apartments.

One convict was discharged recently after the completion of his sentence, and he remained in Sarnen for the purpose of continuing to earn money as a bricklayer, but his "colleagues" in prison uniform made things so unpleasant for him that he begged the governor of the prisoner to allow him to resume his "uniform" and status as a convict. —London Express.

Petroleum Butter.

Petroleum has been introduced into medicine with beneficial results, and if a Paris contemporary be not misinformed the properties of petrol are limitless. It is claimed, says the London Globe, that from the residuals of crude petrol a chemist has succeeded in extracting butter. It is said that butter can be made from a base of nitrogen and carbon, but that the residuals of petroleum produce these elements in greater proportions even than milk. It is further claimed that this artificial butter is better than the natural. The color is said to be a little darker than that of dairy butter.

The Palace of Choragan.

The palace of Choragan, in Constantinople, recently destroyed by fire, was built by Sultan Abdul-Axis and was the finest of the palaces on the Bosporus. It was constructed of marble, and the interior was remarkable for the beauty of the sculptured ornaments in marble and wood. For many years it was the home of the deposed sultan, Murad V., and was inaccessible to visitors. It was occupied by the Turkish parliament when that body was formed a little more than a year ago.

THE EPISODE IN ROOM 222.

A Theory the Hotel Manager Refused to Discuss.

By ARNOLD BENNETT.

The date was the 5th of November. It was a Friday, and yet there are people who affect to believe that Friday is not a day singled out from its six companions for mystery, strangeness and disaster. The number of the room was 222. The hotel I shall call by the name of the Grand Junction Terminus hotel.

The Grand Junction is full every night in the week except Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Every commercial traveler knows that, except on these nights, if he wishes to secure a room he must write or telegraph for it in advance. And there are 400 bedrooms.

It was somewhat late in the evening when I arrived in L. On the spur of the moment I decided to stay at the Grand Junction if there was space for me. It is thus that fate works.

I walked into the hall, followed by a platform porter with my bag. The place seemed just as usual, the perfection of the commonplace, the businesslike and the unspiritual.

"Have you a room?" I asked the young lady in black whose yellow hair shone gayly at the office window under the electric light.

She glanced at the ledgers in the impassive and detached manner which hotel young ladies with yellow hair invariably affect and ejaculated:

"No. 221."

"Pity you couldn't make it all twos," I ventured, with timid jocularity. How could I guess the import of what I was saying?

She smiled very slightly with a distant condescension. "Name?" she demanded.

"Edge."

In another moment I was in the elevator.

No. 221 was the last door but one at the end of the eastern corridor of the fourth floor. It proved to be a double bedded room, large, exquisitely ugly, but perfectly appointed in all matters of comfort. In short, it was characteristic of the hotel. I knew that every bedroom in that corridor presented exactly the same aspect. One instinctively felt the impossibility of anything weird, anything bizarre, anything terrible, entering the precincts of an abode so solid, cheerful, orderly and middle class.

It will be well for me to relate all that I did that evening. I went down to the billiard room and played a hundred up with the marker. To show that my nerves were at least as steady as usual that night I may mention that, although the marker gave me fifty and beat me, I made a break of twenty odd which won his generous approval. The game concluded, I went into the hall and asked the porter if there were any telegrams for me. There were not. I noticed that the porter—it was the night porter, and he had just come on duty—seemed to have a peculiarly honest and attractive face. Wishing him good night, I retired to bed.

At 3 o'clock I awoke, not with a start, but rather gradually. I know it was exactly 3 o'clock because the striking of a notoriously noisy church clock in the neighborhood was the first thing I heard. But the clock had not awakened me. I felt sure that something else, something far more sinister than a church clock, had been the origin of disturbance.

I listened. Then I heard it again. It was the sound of a groan in the next room.

"Some one indisposed either in body or mind," I thought lightly, and I tried to go to sleep again. But I could not sleep. The groans continued and grew more poignant, more fearsome. At last I jumped out of bed and turned on the light.

"That man, whoever he is, is dying." The idea, as it were, sprang at my throat. "Only a man who saw Death by his side and trembled before the apparition could groan like that."

I put on some clothes and went into the corridor. It seemed to stretch away into illimitable distance, and far off a solitary electric light glimmered. My end was a haunt of gloomy shadows, except where the open door allowed the light from my bedroom to illuminate the long, monotonous pattern of the carpet.

I proceeded to the door next my own—the door of No. 222—and put my ear against the panel. The sound of groans was now much more distinct and more terrifying. I called. No answer. "What's the matter?" I inquired. No answer. Then I tried to open the door, but it was fast.

"Yes," I said to myself, "either he's dying or he's committed a murder and is feeling sorry for it. I must fetch the night porter."

I was compelled to find my way along endless corridors and down flights of stairs apparently innumerable. Here and there an electric light sought with its yellow eye to pierce the gloom. At length I reached the hall.

"There's a man either dying or very ill in No. 222," I said to the night porter.

"Is that so, sir?" he replied.

"Yes," I insisted. "I think he's dying. Hadn't you better do something?"

"If you think he's dying, sir, I'll call up the manager, Mr. Thom."

"Do," I said.

The manager slept on the first floor, and he soon appeared, a youngish man in a terra cotta dressing gown, his eyes full of sleep, yet alert and anxious to do his duty. We all three continued our progress to the fourth floor. Arrived in front of No. 222, we listened intently, but we could only hear a faint occasional groan.

"He's nearly dead," I said. The manager called aloud, but there was no answer. Then he vainly tried to open the door. The night porter departed and returned with a stout pair of steel tongs. With these and the natural ingenuity peculiar to hotel porters he forced open the door, and we entered No. 222.

A stout, middle aged man lay on the bed fully dressed in black. On the floor near the bed was a silk hat. As we approached the great body seemed to flutter, and then it lay profoundly and terribly still. The manager put his hand on the man's head and held the glass of his watch to the man's parted lips.

"He is dead," said the manager.

"H'm!" I said.

"I'm sorry you've been put to any inconvenience," said the manager, "and I'm much obliged to you."

The cold but polite tone was a request to me to re-enter my own chamber and leave the corpse to the manager and the night porter. I obeyed.

* * * * * * *

"What about that man?" I asked the hall porter early the next, or, rather, the same, morning. I had not slept a wink since 3 o'clock, nor had I heard a sound in the corridor.

"What man, sir?" the porter said.

"You know," I returned rather angrily—"the man who died in the night—No. 222."

"I assure you, sir," he said, "I haven't the least notion what you mean."

Yet his face seemed as honest and open as ever.

I inquired at the office for the manager and after some difficulty saw him in his private office.

"I thought I'd just see about that man," I began.

"What man?" the manager asked exactly as the porter had asked.

"Look here," I said, as I was now really annoyed, "it's all very well giving instructions to the hall porter, and I can quite understand you want the thing kept as quiet as possible, but I saw the corpse and was of some assistance to you"—

"Excuse me," said the manager. "Either you or I must be completely mad."

"Do you mean to say," I remarked, with frosty sarcasm, "that you didn't enter room 222 with me this morning at 3 and find a dead man there?"

"I mean to say just that," he answered.

"Well"— I got no further. I paid my bill and left, but before leaving I went and carefully examined the door of No. 222. The door plainly showed marks of some iron instrument.

"Here," I said to the porter as I departed. "Accept this half crown from me. I admire you."

* * * * * * *

In the course of my subsequent travels I once more found myself late one night at the Grand Junction Terminus hotel.

"Mr. Edge," said the night porter, "I've been looking out for you for weeks and weeks. The manager's compliments, and he would like to see you in his room."

Again I saw the youngish, alert manager.

"Mr. Edge," he began at once, "it is probable that I owe you an apology. At any rate, I think it right to inform you that on the night of the 5th of November, the year before last, exactly twelve months before your last visit here, a stout man died in room No. 222 at 3 a. m. I forgot the circumstance when you last came to see me in this room."

"It seems queer," I said coldly, "that you should have forgotten such a circumstance."

"The fact is," he replied, "I was not the manager at that time. My predecessor died two days after the discovery of the corpse in room 222."

"And the night porter—is he, too, a new man?"

"Yes," said the manager. "The porter who, with the late manager, found the corpse in room 222 is now in the Hanwell Lunatic asylum."

"Then you think," I said, "that I was the victim of a hallucination on my previous visit here?"

"On these matters," said the manager, "I prefer to think nothing."

Marvelous Cycling.

Once again the conversation had veered round to thrilling adventures.

"That reminds me of an experience I had some time ago," remarked a member. "I was riding a brakeless bicycle down a steep hill when all of a sudden the chain snapped and I careened down the rest of the hill quicker than greased lightning.

"The road down the hill took a turn at direct right angles, and in the corner of the angle stood a cottage. I was wondering what the verdict would be at the inquest when I saw a man rest a plank of wood against the eaves of the cottage.

"I went straight for the plank, over the roof and down the other side. Luckily the cottager's wife and daughters were shaking carpets, and, alighting on an outstretched carpet, I was gently lowered to the ground."

A dead, dull silence descended on the company, which was broken by the hissing of a soda siphon.—London Tit-Bits.

Her Rapid Rise.

"She began as a chorus girl."

"Well?"

"But recently she has outstripped some of the leading prima donnas."

"Are you referring to her progress or her costumes?"—Kansas City Journal.

London Shop Windows.

American show window lighting is being introduced in London. It is customary in the English capital for shopkeepers to barricade every window with heavy iron shutters just as soon as the day's business is over. This is a relic of those ancient days when it was not safe to leave the shop unprotected, but the American plan of window displays and well lighted storefronts is being successfully introduced.

HIGH-O-ME

Thats the Way to Pronounce Hyomei, the Money-Back Catarrh Cure

As doubt exists in the minds of many readers of the Review, let us say that the above is the proper pronunciation of America's most wonderful catarrh cure. Wm. Madill is the agent for Hyomei in Peterborough and he will sell you an inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei, and full instructions for use, for only $1.00.

And if it fails to cure acute or chronic catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, croup, hay fever or coughs and colds, he will give you your money back. The person who suffers with catarrh after such an offer as that, must like to snuffle, spit and wheeze, and be generally disgusting.

Read what Mr. Higginbotham, a respected citizen of Guelph, Ont., says of Hyomei.

"I have the best kind of reasons for giving Booth's Hyomei my hearty endorsement. I had suffered with an itching sensation in my throat, swelling of the nasal glands and glands leading to my eyes, in fact a genuine catarrh for several months. I used several remedies but received no relief until I used Booth's Hyomei. I am glad there is on sale a remedy that relieves like this one and also glad to endorse the pee and speak a good word for Booth's Hyomei."—N. Higginbotham, '63 Queen street, Guelph, Ont.

THE REVIEW'S SERIAL STORY

"His Courtship," by Helen R. Martin, Starts To-morrow

In the main this story is a record of the adventures of a young Doctor of Philosophy, who conspires to play the humble role of hired hand at Mr. Morningstar's farm boarding house, that he may have opportunity for serious and scholarly meditations, and avoid the blandishments of fascinating young lady boarders. The resulting complications make a story as rich in humor, as provocative of laughter, as any that has been written in recent years. The characters are as interesting as one's intimate friends. In fact, they shall become the reader's good friends to be carried afterward in pleasant memory. There is a lovely and stately young woman who would return to nature and incidentally uplift mankind in the returning, and there is a vivacious beauty who aspires to follow this lofty example, but who fails for reasons which will interest and delight the reader. And there is another girl—Lord love her!—who shall give example of the heroism of humble life and prove anew the old truth that blood will tell. As for our hero, we shall love him in spite of his awkwardness, bashfulness and learning. There shall enter also, late in the history, a woman of the great world, who shall pay with no hesitation the debt that is due to honor and a good old name. A charming story, which shall exact the tribute of tears, as well as laughter, and teach many a good moral and leave the reader in a mood at the end to invoke a blessing upon the good and bright woman who wrote it.

AN ATTRACTIVE ARRAY OF FLOWERS AND PLANTS

Although the weather has been reminiscent of autumn, rather than of summer, there is a true suggestion of spring in the wealth of beautiful flowers of almost every variety that delights the eye at Jordan Bros.' greenhouse, Argyle street.

As one steps inside the greenhouse he first sees a bed of between five and six thousand pansies in full bloom. A little farther on three thousand white-edged geraniums appear in immaculate array. Next one sees one long house containing about eight thousand plants which embrace red and white geraniums which give forth a peculiar smell. Another house is filled with every variety of foliages and ferns. Then come brilliant chrysanthemums, carnations, connas and other handsome blooms.

In the division of plants and vegetables for table consumption are fifteen thousand celery plants, three thousand tomatoes and over one thousand cabbages and cauliflowers.

The excellent results obtained by Jordan Bros. are due to their long and thorough experience and the employment of a practical system of heating, which keeps the temperature of the greenhouses at exactly the required degree.

NEW BRANCH OF POST OFFICE

Has Been Opened at the Corner of Lock and Lansdowne Streets for Convenience of Citizens in South End

It was announced some time ago that a post office would be opened in the south end of the city in the vicinity of the exhibition grounds. The formal opening took place yesterday and the office will be known as the "Claraday" post office. It is situated at the corner of Lock and Lansdowne streets, in the grocery store owned by Mr. W. Grady.

Many people were under the impression that this office was being opened exclusively for the Brinton Carpet Co. employees, but the rumor to this effect was without foundation. The office is for the general public of the south end. All those desiring their mail through this office should have the mail addressed "Claraday" post office.

PARK STREET ANNIVERSARY ON SUNDAY

On Monday evening there will be a grand programme and shredded wheat banquet. Miss Robinson, soloist of Knox Presbyterian church, will assist, and addresses will be given by visiting ministers.

A Notable Church

A friend who is interested in church work tells the Review that while making some references to the amounts raised for purposes by many of the Presbyterian churches in the province, he found that Springville Presbyterian church stands among the very highest, considering the number of attendants, and the amount raised, which averages $81.25 per family and $10.25 per individual attendant. This is only exceeded by two or three churches in the province, and speaks well for the liberality and faithfulness of the people of this church.

A smallpox case is reported from Elk Lake.

PETITION FROM W.C.T.U. TO THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Was Referred to Committee on Appointment—Grant of $50.00 Made to P.C.I.A.A.—Reports and Other Business Transacted at Regular Meeting

It looked like an adjournment for the Board of Education last night and in fact there was a temporary one, but the necessary number of members at last put in an appearance and the business before the meeting was proceeded with. The chairman, Mr. L. M. Hayes, K.C., and Messrs. Robt. Fair, W. H. Hill, T. H. Adams, and Col. Miller were on hand at the time regularly called for the meeting, but after a wait of fifteen minutes an adjournment to next Tuesday was decided on. However, on one of the members reaching the street, Dr. Morrison was discovered conversing with a citizen presumably on the dog by-law and all returned. The meeting had been open but a few minutes when Mr. D. W. Dumble walked in followed closely by Dr. Burnham.

The board decided to refer the communication from the Peterborough branch of the W.C.T.U. to the Committee on Appointments. It was regarded as an important matter and one that should receive a thorough discussion.

Two applications for positions on the teaching staff and one resignation were dealt with, but no action was taken in regard to the request of the lady teachers of the Public schools.

A grant of $50 was made to the P.C.I. Athletic Association. This amount will be used by the association to procure Riverside Park for the purpose of holding the sports of the Collegiate Institute. The Board also was favorable to having some photographs of the Collegiate Institute taken and one will be sent to the editor of Construction for reproduction in that magazine. Several other small items of business were transacted and the communications received and dealt with follow:

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Peterborough branch of the W.C.T.U. asking the board to appoint a special instructor to lecture on Anatomy, Hygiene and Morality to all girls over thirteen in the Public schools and Collegiate Institute. Referred to Committee on Appointments.

From Miss Laura Mills, Kingston, Ont., applying for a position of either directress or assistant of the kindergarten department.—Committee on Appointments.

From Miss Margaret Thomson, Owen Sound, applying for position of kindergarten directress.—Committee on Appointments.

From Miss E. M. Denne, asking to be relieved from her position on the teaching staff.—Carried.

From Mr. H. H. H. Kenner, stating that Mr. Arnott Patterson had reported for duty as junior science master.—Received.

From Peterborough Light and Power Co., enclosing statement showing a balance due the company of $43.54.—Finance Committee.

From the lady teachers of the Public school staff requesting that the present salary schedule be changed so that the lady teachers receive an annual increase of $50 until a maximum salary is reached.—Received and no action taken.

From George E. Minoyhe, secretary-treasurer of P.C.I.A.A., asking that a grant of $50 be made to the association for the purpose of procuring Riverside Park for sports.—Granted.

From Mr. H. H. H. Kenner stating in accordance with a resolution of the Board of Education some time ago, it is Mr. R. N. Merritt's turn to be appointed on the entrance board of examiners.—Committee on Appointments.

From J. S. Macdonald, editor of Construction, asking for an exterior photograph of the school for reproduction in an early issue.—Referred to the Supervision Committee with power to act.

NEW COMPANY A GOING CONCERN.

Maple Leaf Milling Company, Limited, is a new company which has taken over the whole undertaking as a going concern of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company Limited, including therein that of the Hedley Shaw Milling Company Limited. The company has mills at Kenora, Thorold, St. Catharines, Welland, and Port Colborne (the last named in course of construction) in the Province of Ontario and at Brandon in the Province of Manitoba. When the construction at present under way at Port Colborne is completed the company will have a total milling capacity of 12,800 barrels per day. The company has at present thirty-five elevators situated throughout the Western Wheat Belt, and fifteen additional ones are being added at the present time. A million bushel elevator is being constructed next to the new mill at Port Colborne. The company has also warehouses and offices at Toronto, Winnipeg, Kingston, Ottawa, and Montreal.

MARKET FOR OUTPUT.

The rapid growth of the business of the two companies taken over has long made apparent the necessity of additional milling capacity. Further, the tremendous increase in the total output from the Western wheat belt makes it absolutely necessary to have more mills in Canada to handle it. Last year the output of the Western wheat belt amounted to about 125,000,000 bushels, and when who have made a close study of the development that the Western country is likely to see, estimate that by the end of the year 1920 Canada will be producing at the rate of fully 500,000,000 bushels annually. As in the past, a great proportion of this large production will of necessity find its way into Canadian mills. Larger demands are bound to come as the population of the country increases, and the enquiry for the Canadian product, both from Great Britain and from the foreign markets of the world, will increase. The chain of mills that is now controlled by the new company will enable it to go ahead and secure its full share of the trade of every section of Canada, as well as to obtain even a very much larger proportion of the export business to Great Britain and to foreign markets than it has up to the present time.

SECURITY AND EARNING POWER: The assets of the old Companies taken over as above stand in excess of all liabilities and without any allowance for good-will, trade marks, etc., at $3,770,524.11, this amount being ascertained on the basis of an appraisal by the Canadian-American Appraisal Company, Limited, as of March 17th, 1910, of the capital assets taken over, and the certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, as of February 28th, 1910, as to current assets and current liabilities, with a liberal allowance for all contingencies. There has also been placed in the Treasury $1,000,000 of additional cash, which, besides permitting of the completion of a 9,000 barrel mill and a million bushel elevator and storage warehouse at Port Colborne, and of fifteen additional elevators in the West, will provide the new Company with further working capital.

As per certificate of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Company, of London, quoted below, the earnings of the old Company on the present plant amounted from September 25th, 1909, to August 20th, 1909, to $218,943.39
And from August 21st, 1909, to February 28th, 1910, to $166,793.29
being for the latter period at a rate equal to over 13 per cent. on the prefered stock of the Company.

The following is the certificate of Price, Waterhouse & Company:—

"Commercial Union Building,
"Montreal, April 4, 1910.
"Messrs. Cawthra Mulock & Company, Toronto,
"Gentlemen:—
"We have examined the books of the Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, which include the transactions carried on under the name of The Hedley Shaw Milling Company, Limited, at Toronto and Branches, from September 25th, 1909 (prior to which date the Company's principal mills were not completed nor in operation) to February 28th, 1910, and we certify that the profits for the period, after making provision for depreciation, but before charging interest on loans, were as follows:—
From September 25th, 1909, to August 20th, 1909 ..... $218,943.39
From August 21st, 1909, to February 28th, 1910 ..... $166,793.29
"Yours very truly,
"PRICE, WATERHOUSE & CO."

MANAGEMENT.

The properties of the old companies have been constructed and developed under the direction of Mr. Hedley Shaw, late General Manager of The Hedley Shaw Milling Company, Limited, and of The Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited, and Mr. D. C. Cameron, late President of The Maple Leaf Flour Mills Company, Limited. Both these gentlemen will retain large interests in the new Company, besides being actively identified with it. Mr. Hedley Shaw will occupy the position of Managing Director of the new Company, thus giving to it the full benefit of his long practical experience.

FAVORABLE LOCATION OF NEW LARGE MILLS.

The location of the new large mill at Port Colborne is without exception the best there is in Canada. This mill when completed, in addition to having the large capacity mentioned, will have one of the most modern equipments in the world. The Company at all times will be able to keep it well supplied with wheat. In addition to its own 1,000,000 bushel elevator, which will be situated just alongside of the mill, the Company will be able to make arrangements to have the last steamers, coming down from the West at the end of the season of navigation, tie up for the winter months at the elevator and in this way afford additional storage capacity without any necessity of any capital outlay for it. Should at any time the Company find it advisable to do so, it will also be able to draw from the Government elevator, which will be situated on the same pier as its Port Colborne mill.

The location of the Company's mills is such as to provide a ready market for the bye-products of each. The greater part of the milling capacity will be in Ontario, where, as Government statistics show, a smaller amount of wheat is being grown each year as the farmers go in more and more for stock-raising. This means a brisk demand for the bye-products of the mills for feed.

A complete report on the advantages of the Port Colborne site, prepared by Mr. Hedley Shaw, will be found in the prospectus.

THE COST OF THE CHIMES

A full meeting of the chimes committee was held last night at the Bank of Ottawa, when careful attention was given to all the details of the important work in hand.

The cost of a chime of large bells like that supplied and much larger and richer in tone than the one in Cobourg, would be $4,000, which, with incidentals would probably bring the amount up to $5,000.

A fuller account of the meeting will appear in to-morrow's Review.

Mr. John McNeil, of Cavan, brother of ex-Warden Charles McNeil, had the misfortune to have his collar bone broken, having been kicked by a horse. He is making a speedy recovery.

CAVAN NEWS

Mr. Norman McGill, of Cavanville, was successful in carrying off third prize at the Lindsay horse show with his new horse the 'Pride of Balmoer," It was very good, considering he was the only colt in the class, the rest being aged horses. Mr. Joe Staples won first.

Seeding is pretty well under way in this part of the country, a great many of the farmers being through. There has been very little done on the land this last two weeks, owing to the frequent rains, which have fallen, rendering the land unfit to work.

EPIGRAMS OF THE SHOP.

Weekly Bulletin Issued by a Cynical Manager Who Thinks He's Funny.

The office manager of a wholesale house, who has something like 200 men under his supervision, each week issues a set of business epigrams to his assistants and department heads. This is what he said last week:

"In hiring a man ask him if he ever worked for any of our competitors. If he has take him on. You can get out of him in a week all he knows about the other fellow and fire him in two weeks if he isn't any good.

"Don't let past performances weigh too heavy in judging an applicant. Look at his eyes and chin. There's more to be learned in two minutes in a man's face than in ten years of his past record.

"If you think that one of your men has outlived his usefulness with us ask him if he can get another job. If he says 'Sure' and means it keep him with you. His slackness probably is your fault, not his. Stir him up.

"Don't for a minute let your men see that you know there is anything more important in the world than getting out the day's work. I knew a man once who disorganized a whole department by talking ancient history during lunchtime.

"Don't overlook your office boys. The man who owns this business was once one himself.

"Remember, the growth of this firm and the increase of competition demand that this week's work be just a little better than last.

"Think it over now!"—Chicago Tribune.

GLASS HOUSES.

The Many Advantages That Are Claimed For Them.

"Within ten years people in this country will be building houses of glass which will excel in sanitary appointments, beauty and durability and also low cost of maintenance any type of structure of the present time. In other words, the American people within ten years will be living in glass houses. They will thenceforth be unable to throw stones."

This was the interesting declaration made recently by Roger S. Pease, one of the oldest glassmakers in the United States, a man who has taken an active part in all the improvements that have set the glass world face to face with new conditions and placed it in line for the greatest development in its long history. By glass houses Mr. Pease said he meant just what he said—foundations of concrete, which are now recognized as standard; the walls of wired glass, the ceilings and roofs of wired glass and the floors of tile, covered with a light sheeting of wood. Such a building will prove practically indestructible, can be made of any set of colors desired and requires no painting, no papering inside, will be sound proof, moisture proof and fireproof.

Mr. Pease has planned a house that will be composed of glass and is going to have it finished in some color that will make it attractive, and such colors will be permanent.

The moment this idea is started, Mr. Pease declared, the public will be quick to see the value of the material. Its cheapness and reliability are understood. Glass, he said, is the most honest and most easily understood material in the world. It is not mysterious, and people will not have to employ experts to see that the quality is right. The glass for the walls of houses need not be transparent, but dense, like slate or stone. It will, however, be hard and durable. The roofs can be of the same character of glass. It withstands heat and cold alike, and whatever patents may interfere with the cheapness of the material now are so nearly expired that it will be but a short time before these will be eliminated as a cost factor.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

The Malay Shark.

The Malay shark, called the "ikan yu," is the one most dreaded by the natives. During the terrible disaster of the French steamer La Seyne from its collision with the British ship Onda in the strait of Rhio last November, many of the ninety passengers lost were, as soon as they reached the waters of the strait, seized by the sharks and dragged beneath the surface to be devoured by these fierce Malayan fish, which are especially feared by the native fishers and pearl divers. Seventeen species inhabit the far eastern seas, some of them attaining a length of twenty-five feet. It is reported that a black fin shark was captured some time ago whose liver weighed 250 pounds. The largest is the basking shark, which ranges from the Cape of Good Hope to Ceylon and often exceeds fifty feet in length.

A Cabinet Record.

Almost 300 men have served in presidential cabinets since the formation of the government, and of the whole number the record for long service is now held by James Wilson, secretary of agriculture. He achieved this distinction recently, when he passed the mark set by Albert Gallatin, who was secretary of the treasury from May 14, 1801, to Feb. 9, 1814, or twelve years, eight months and twenty-six days. The third in length of service is William Wirt, who was attorney general from 1817 to 1829, almost equaling Gallatin's record. Very few cabinet officers have served over eight years. Secretary Wilson was appointed by President McKinley March 4, 1897, and so at the beginning of 1910 he had been in the office twelve years, nine months and twenty-seven days.—Youth's Companion.

Armour in War.

Waterloo was the last great battle in which bodily armor was used. Napoleon's cavalry using it, and up to that time with some success, but in the charges there made his iron sheathed cuirassiers went down like rows of pins before the quick-moving English horse dashing in upon them with only naked swords and naked arms. Pavia (1525) was the first fight in which troops in large numbers were armed with the more efficient musket, while artillery had already been employed at Crecy (1346), and it was only a matter of time for the new agent, gunpowder, to knock out the man at arms. The "mailed barons" had no show before the new and terrible invention of firearms.

AN IMPECUNIOUS SHOPPER.

I am a woman, so of course I love a bargain well.
I joy to read the daily ads. of what there is to sell.
And if I had the money I should haste to buy a lot
Of stuff I didn't need—oh, yes, I should, as like as not!

I'd buy silk stockings No. 8, a dozen in a box,
And hats with plumes a-waving off and foolish, frilly frocks;
Some pairs of dainty boots, size 3, "Marked down from six to four,"
And gloves and gloves and gloves and gloves—kid, silk and suede galore!

But, oh, I cannot spare the cash, because we have to eat,
And I cannot find a market that has bargain sales of meat:
"A' ten-der sirloin, part price off," "Veal cutlets, strictly calf,"
"Roasts warranted at cost" and "Hams marked smartly down to half."

"Bargains in meat!" Oh, much I'd like to see a truthful ad.

DURING Lent there is usually more time than at any other season to accomplish a large amount of needlework, and this year a great many young girls are seizing upon this opportunity to provide themselves with fresh, springlike fittings for their own rooms or to make similar attractive furnishings for gifts to their girl friends. Working on fine linen or batiste seems somehow particularly appropriate for a Lenten occupation, and as every one likes to have a quantity of these delicate linen furnishings for bedroom and dressing room, the result of these labors is always most useful.

Although there has recently appeared so much rather elaborate French trimming in gold, &c., on the fittings of the dressing table, the small pillows which are used for couches and many of the other furnishings of the boudoir, there seems to be nothing in quite such good taste for the room of a young girl as the fittings of fine white materials, embroidered in white. Especially is this true of the furnishings of a room which is to be used in the summer, when the impression of exquisite freshness, so clearly conveyed by these dainty, all white fittings, is, of all effects, the most pleasing. Now is the time to make ready the furnishings which are to be used in the country or suburban house during the summer, and so this sort of sewing is just now particularly popular.

The principal points of excellence which are now considered in this sort of work are the fineness of the materials and the perfection of the workmanship. Simple and delicate designs are greatly preferred to heavy or elaborate ones. The smallest bit of embroidery very well done is greatly preferred to a large quantity on which less care has been expended. Many girls who wish to provide themselves with entirely new furnishings and feel that the time to make them is all too short omit the embroidery altogether and content themselves with hemstitching and fine rutfling. If a girl has made herself an expert in the use of a sewing machine, and this is an extremely useful attainment which many young women who belong to wealthy families take pains to acquire, she may do some of the sewing on her room furnishings on the machine, but this is only in putting together the larger pieces, for the cause for handwork of all sorts has not in the least subsided, and it is a great part of the value of these furnishings that they are made by hand.

ONE of the most ambitious tasks which a young needlewoman can set herself is the embroidering of a pair of thin white curtains. The material selected may be batiste, very fine linen or diaphanous muslin. The sheerness and fine quality of the material has so much to do with the beauty of the completed product that it is hardly worth while to undertake so considerable a piece of work unless the materials are fine and sheer and, at the same time, possessed of good wearing qualities. Many materials, while appearing to be delicate and fine enough for the purpose, will, after washing, grow much thicker, so that the embroidered design will not stand out so well. The advice of some one who is an expert judge of this sort of material should, therefore, be taken when making the selection and economy must not figure too prominently in the purchase if the best results are to be obtained.

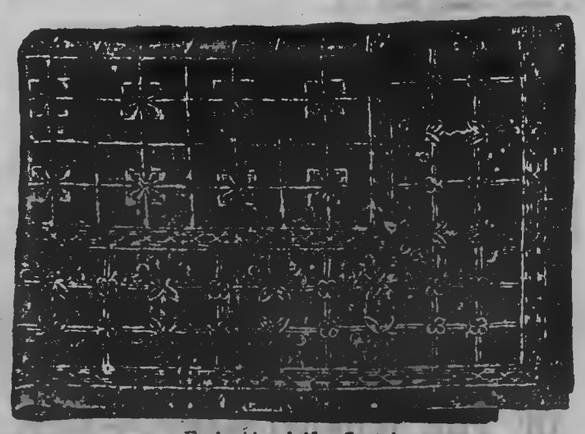
These curtains are made both with and without ruffles, but the ruffled ones seem most attractive for the rooms of young girls. The embroidery is what is known as solid embroidery, which does not mean that it is heavy; it usually consists of a slender vine border, which is set a little back from the edge of the curtain. Here and there are scattered flowers, daisies and wild roses being favorites, or the vine itself may be one which bears flowers. Many girls have a favorite flower or some particular motif, which is used otherwise in their rooms, and when this is so they prefer to have their own peculiar design worked out rather than to have one of the more conventional patterns.

Embroidering a set of curtains in this manner is not the affair of a moment, but when it is completed the possession is one of real beauty and value and one which with proper care in the laundering will last sufficiently long to repay the trouble of making.

To match the embroidered curtains there is the bedspread made of the same delicate material and finished with a border of vines and flowers, all in white. Of course, there must be a number of bedspreads provided, and it is sometimes preferred to have them all entirely white and decorated as described. Most girls, however, content themselves with one white spread to match the curtains and vary this with white spreads of a different order or with those on which there is an appliqué in colored flowers or figures. These bits of color are selected to match some of the furnishings of the room, and so the bedspread is always in harmony with the rest of the room while it is not always on the same style.

If a room is furnished in chints, for instance, with embroidered muslin curtains, there may be one bedspread to match the chints and another to match the curtains and still others which are all white and decorated in various styles.

Bedspreads for young girls' rooms are also made of linen and embroidered in the centre around the monogram. The spread is sometimes edged with scallops finished in embroidery, or the edge is straight and finished with a border of lace. The monogram must always be a part of the decoration of the bedspread, and sometimes it is the principal decoration of the centre, the only other decoration being a hemstitched edge or one of drawn work. When the spread is trimmed with lace the monogram is framed in lace and this is supplemented with embroidery.



Embroidered Net Curtain.
From La Mode Illustrée.

ANOTHER sort of bedspread, which many girls find attractive, is made in heavier linen, and is embroidered in cross stitch to match the colors of the room. This style of cover is particularly attractive in blue and white. Cross stitch does not take anything like as long to accomplish as other sorts of stitching, and so many girls enjoy the work, in which they can make such good progress. These covers launder very well, and they are most useful for rooms with which they harmonize. They are not so daintily attractive as the thin muslin spreads, which are all in white, but where they happen to fit in particularly well they are very satisfactory.

Bedspreads trimmed with narrow lace insertions and edgings are also considered in good taste for the rooms of young girls. These are made of batiste or linen of various weights. Guipure and Irish crochet lace is used for the heavier materials as well as for the light weight ones. On some of the daintiest of these spreads narrow Valenciennes is used.

White crocheted bedspreads are very attractive and are very popular just now. They are not so fine nor so expensive as those of linen, and they take a long time to do, but they wear very well and launder beautifully.

The bedspreads of fine white materials trimmed with white soutache are also most attractive. They have the advantage of not taking so long to do as the embroidered ones, while they do not lose their effectiveness in the laundering. This white curtains are made and trimmed in the same fashion. As in the embroidered spreads and curtains, there may be or may not be ruffles in addition to the trimming of soutache. Even more than in the embroidered decorations it is necessary with those of soutache to avoid all suggestion of heaviness or elaboration.

For the dressing table there are endless fittings of fine white materials trimmed with lace and embroidery. The cover itself matches the bedspread and curtains and is made of this white material of the finest quality, preferably linen, batiste or muslin, although net is also used. Pale shades of color are sometimes used underneath, especially when the outer cover is of net. The thin white covers are embroidered or trimmed with soutache or with narrow insertions of lace, and the net covers are sometimes trimmed with a dainty application of ribbon.

Cases, boxes and cushions which occupy the top of the dressing table are all made of white materials, embroidered in white or trimmed with fine narrow lace. Even baskets are now made of rather heavy linen, decorated with hand work and shaped so that they will stand up. When the linen and the work on it are both very heavy this is possible without the use of any sort of support for the sides of the basket or tray, but the more usual plan is to use pieces of cardboard between the outer and inner covering of the basket. Veil cases, glove boxes, handkerchief cases, pincushions, hairpin holders and the numerous other trifles which are necessities of well equipped dressing tables or their drawers, are all made of these thin white materials, with trimmings of guipure, Cluny or embroidery. Heavy linen, while much employed for these purposes and trimmed with most elaborate handwork, is not so suitable for the school girl's boudoir as for that of her older sister.

EMBROIDERING towels for their rooms is another fashion of the hour especially popular with young girls. While it hasn't supplanted the cause for embroidering lingerie pillows, it may at least be said to rival that industry in their affections. Sometimes a design is embroidered on the towels, but usually the design is confined to a monogram of an elaborate order or otherwise. When a flower is used it is usually when a girl has selected some flower for her particular emblem, in which case she will sometimes use it on her possessions, instead of a monogram, as one might a coat of arms.

White is used altogether for embroidering towels. If a girl wishes to make an Easter gift which will prove highly acceptable to almost any woman there are few things which she may select with more confidence of giving pleasure than hand embroidered towels. The towels are also trimmed with narrow bands of crocheted lace.

A set of laundry bags in white linen is another most attractive and useful piece of work upon which to employ one's self during the spring. These are most appropriately trimmed with white soutache or with another white braid which is flat and wider than the soutache. Two bags are necessary, and it is wise to have three if one has time to make them. The heavy linen clothes may be kept in one, the more fragile garments in another and in a smaller one the collars and jabots. It is frequently necessary to make such a division when sending one's clothes to the laundry; as some of the things may be done in the house while others need to be sent to a cleaner's, therefore it is easier to have the different bags.

The bags are trimmed with braid along the edge and across the top and embroidered or rather braided with the monogram. They are drawn up with cords formed of the braid twisted. Sometimes instead of being braided the bags are embroidered with heavy linen thread in a large open design, which does not take long to do. Laundry bags of white linen are also embroidered in cross stitch.

For some time there has been a continued effort to revive old styles of embroidery or stitchery, as it is perhaps more accurately termed. Cross stitch and tapestry stitch are among the many styles of handwork which have been thus revived and have proved most popular. The old tambour work is also to be noticed among the fashionable embroideries, and also there is a tendency to revive the old fashioned scalloped edges, with which all embroidered pieces were once bordered. With this revival of old stitches comes a revival of old patterns as well, and among the newest designs for handwork of all sorts are many which were popular a long time ago.

Up to Date Note Paper.

ABOVE all things a girl should have good note paper. She should take as great pride in each letter which she sends to the post as she does in her own personal appearance, for is not a neatly or suitably addressed envelope every bit as characteristic of personality as suitableness in any detail of the dress? Not every one can boast a well formed, attractive handwriting, but every girl can, with care, make her penmanship even and legible, and the note paper she uses can always be good of its kind, even if she cannot afford costly monograms and every latest fad in shape and color of the paper.

The note paper used just now is all exceptionally pretty, while there is an infinite variety of styles from which to select. Very thin paper, white or palest gray or cream color, the envelope lined with a pretty, delicate shade of blue, pink, green or yellow, is the fashionable writing paper of the moment. It is the fad nowadays for every one to adopt a definite color and to keep to the shade in practically every line, even going so far as to dress entirely in two or three tones. The bedroom and boudoir, of course, carry out this color scheme, which is, after all, but the favorite color of the owner, and when all the appurtenances of the room show a certain color the writing paper must be no exception. The lined papers are particularly good, therefore, to help complete the color scheme, as the lining shows through the outer paper just enough to be discernible and not give the idea of a regularly colored note paper, which is at present out of vogue. The marking on the latter sheet corresponds in color to the shade used in the lining of the envelope.

All letter paper should have the stamped address, it being the fashion nowadays to place this address at the upper left hand corner of the page, while the monogram, when used, is placed opposite on the right hand side. A crest is used rightly used by a married woman.

Correspondence cards marked in the same way as the note paper are correct for both writing and answering all invitations, formal or otherwise. These cards and envelopes may be square or oblong as preferred, and are used in white cream, gray pale blue, but no other color.

Bordered papers, white, showing a narrow edge of a favorite shade, are also extremely pretty, while for general correspondence the [illegible] pads stitch, folded, up and glued at all sides, form the envelope as well, are much used.

For the girl whose handwriting is none too good and whose greatest difficulty is in keeping the lines even there are many thin lined papers, showing a plaid or regular stripe in the finish, which can be used as a mask to keep each word straight and where it should be. A rough finished paper should never be bought, no matter how good the quality, for it is practically impossible to write well on anything but a smooth surface.

The French and Italian thin tissued lined note papers are the smartest for general use at present. The favorite shades of marking are silver, pale gray and dark blue, according to the color on which the stamp is placed. As in the handwriting, the note paper should show no exaggeration. It should be inconspicuous in its good taste and show nothing strikingly out of the ordinary, either in color, shape, size or scent.

HATPIN CASE.

THERE is, perhaps, nothing so difficult to pack as a hatpin, and especially the hatpins of present dimensions, with their large ornament heads and long, murderous prongs. Many of the more costly hatpin heads can be unscrewed from the prong, which, of course, simplifies the matter in packing, but it is always wise after fastening the top on again to further secure it with some sealing wax or glue, as it will be likely otherwise to become loosened and fall off.

Among the novelties of the moment are to be seen hatpin cases of leather, designed especially for the traveller, with little racks to keep each pin in place and from rubbing against the others. With a comparatively small cardboard soap box or a box the size always used in delivering hatpins from the shops can be made an extremely useful case almost, if not quite, as good as the more costly articles in pigskin or morocco. The box is simply covered with cretonne or silk, or even a pretty wall paper, while inside are placed at each end a cardboard rack cut in suitable size and shape to just fit between the sides of the box and hold firmly as many pins as the width of the box and the size of the tops of the pins themselves will permit. These racks are, of course, covered like the outside of the box or finished as the inside with chamois.

If a wooden box of right dimensions can be procured this is even better than the cardboard, for it can be stuffed into any odd corner without danger of being crushed.

SOCIAL AMENITIES FOR THE SCHOOL GIRL

IT is of course a great deal easier to go to a party than to give one—to be entertained than to entertain, but the girl who for some reason cannot invite her friends frequently to her own home loses a great deal. In the first place practice is an important factor in the making of a perfect hostess, for where the head of the house displays the slightest nervousness her guests, too, are inevitably ill at ease. The courtesy of an invitation also should be returned if possible.

Among the young people of the present generation, however, there is a very false idea of hospitality, unless they can pay back in just the same manner in which they happen to have been entertained there is a feeling that it is better not to attempt to return the kindness of an invitation at all. This attitude is sadly wrong, of course, but it seems hard for many to realize that to-day, when all entertaining, even that indulged by school children, is on a more or less elaborate basis, the informal party will be all the more enjoyed by very contrast. There is practically no entertainment so formal that it cannot be returned by an invitation to a simple luncheon or dinner party or dance such as a girl could give in her own home.

The first duty of a hostess is, of course, to see to it that in so far as she has the power her guests shall enjoy themselves to the utmost. It may not be the fashion nowadays to introduce each guest, but certainly the theory that all who meet at the house of a mutual friend must necessarily be in the same set and know each other well cannot be offered for young people who have not yet been about long enough to have a very wide list of acquaintances. A girl should naturally see to it, therefore, that her guests shall know each other before they sit down to the luncheon or dinner table.

The success of a luncheon or dinner, or, in fact, of any entertainment, large or small, depends three-quarters upon the faculty of the hostess. She must never, for example, allow herself an intimate conversation with her left hand neighbor if in so doing the guest sitting at her right hand is not also engaged in conversation. She can seldom talk with both neighbors, since in so doing it will leave one girl without a partner. Especially when there are both girls and boys present the hostess must glance continually about the table and see to it that every couple is getting on happily.

Should by any chance three persons be talking together, thus leaving one alone, the hostess can generally right this by turning to the companion on her other side and thus shifting partners around the entire board. The hostess, too, should change her partner once or twice during the meal so that all may have an opportunity during the evening to converse with their neighbor at each side.

Should by any chance a girl not be introduced to her neighbor at a dinner she is at liberty to talk to him then, but not afterward until he is formally presented to her.

A hostess should never be so ill at ease in her own house as to make excuses for the many trifling mistakes on the part of servants that are bound to occur in the best regulated households. The excuse only draws attention to an occurrence that would otherwise not be noticed save by the overobservant eyes of the hostess and lays stress on what is so unimportant as to be otherwise immediately forgotten.

The perfect hostess is, and to relate, a rare being, for she contains in one personality enough different characteristics to make up in any one line a genius. She possesses infinite charm, infinite tact, quick understanding of human nature and sufficient cleverness to be able to draw out each guest to appear to best advantage. She must know a little of every subject, so that she can talk interestingly with all, yet she must never allow herself to dilate upon her own special interest to the exclusion of the hobbies of those about her. She must understand her guests so intimately as to always place together those who have a common interest. Above all, she must be the epitome of unselfishness, for she can never allow herself to be engrossed in her own enjoyment to the forgetfulness of all her guests. These qualities alone are necessary in the girl who can make every party a success by making even the most solemn develop a sense of fun and humor. Needless to state, self-consciousness is practically unknown to her, for only by getting outside one's self is it possible to look out for others.

Perhaps no girl can possess all of these qualities, certainly they cannot be acquired in a day, but they are every one of them possible of attainment if diligently striven for. And the fun and popularity that will ensue make the ideal one worth while.

VETERANS' TRIBUTE TO LEE.

Most Impressive Scene of the Civil War Was That After Surrender of Appomattox.

Men who saw the defeated general when he came forth from the chamber where he had signed the articles of capitulation say that he paused a moment as his eyes rested once more on the Virginia hills; smote his hands together as though in some excess of inward agony, then mounted his gray horse, Traveler, and rode calmly away.

If that was the very Gethsemane of his trials, yet he must have had then one moment of supreme, if chastened, joy. As he rode quietly down the lane leading from the scene of capitulation, he passed into view of his men—of such as remained of them. The news of the surrender had got abroad and they were waiting, grief-stricken and dejected, upon the hillsides, when they caught sight of their commander on the gray horse. Then ensued one of the most notable scenes of the history of the war. In an instant they were about him, bareheaded, with tear-wet eyes; thronging him, kissing his hand his boots, his saddle; weeping; cheering him amid their tears; shouting his name to the very skies. He said: "Men, we have fought through the war together; I have done my best for you; my heart is too full to say more."—From "Robert E. Lee, the Southerner," by Thomas Nelson Page, published by Scribner's.

WANTED HIS FAVORITE ALIVE.

Peculiar Order Placed by Small Devotee of Popular "Alice in Wonderland."

The son and heir is seven years old—old enough to spell out, with help over the hard words, "Alice in Wonderland," and to enjoy it hugely, especially the memorable duet between the Mock Turtle and Griffin. Recently, as a great treat, he was permitted to accompany his pretty young aunt to luncheon at one of New York's famous restaurants, and, as a crowning joy, invited to select his own delicacies. Long and earnestly he pondered over the bill of fare; then his eyes grew big and his face illumined as he laboriously read the list of soups.

"Yes, thank you, I've precided what I want," he said with nervous gulpy; then with an impressive knitting of his brows he addressed the attentive waiter: "I'll have one very, very small mock turtle, but don't make it into soup—just bring it along alive and kicking."—Lilian Dynevor Rice in Woman's Home Companion.

Literature and Dreams.

Robert Louis Stevenson owed much of his inspiration to dreams. In one passage he attributed some of his finest work to the "brownies" who tenanted his brain during moments of unconsciousness. "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" owes its origin to a dream. "I had long been trying to write a story on this subject," writes Stevenson, "to find a body, a vehicle, for that strong sense of man's double being which must at times come in upon and overwhelm the mind of every thinking creature . . . For two days I went about racking my brains for a plot of any sort; and on the second night I dreamed the scene at the window, and a scene afterward split in two, in which Hyde, pursued for some crime, took the powder and underwent the change in the presence of his pursuers. All the rest was made awake and consciously, although I think I can trace in much of it the manner of my brownies."

Great Things in Little.

The Italians are wonderfully clever in working with the most minute things. A skillful Italian has made a beautiful little boat out of a pearl. The sail is of beaten gold studded with diamonds. A tiny ruby serves as a headlight. The rudder is an emerald, and its stand is a little slab of ivory. The boat weighs less than half an ounce, and is valued at $5,000.

Not to be outdone by a man, an ambitious Italian woman has painted on a canvas, so small that half a grain of corn hides it from view, a windmill with the miller, and a horse and cart with people in the cart.

Some of the Italian mosaic workers in Florence will take bits of stone and glass no larger than grains of mustard seed and fashion them into the most graceful flowers and other designs on shirt studs.—The Sunday Magazine.

When the Deaf Heard.

"I'm stone deaf, your honor," declared a prisoner in the dock at the police court. "I didn't hear a word the officer said about me, and I can't hear what you are saying."

Although the judge raised his voice there was nothing doing from the prisoner. He only shook his head wearily. At last the judge turned to the officer and said, almost in a whisper: "He was drunk when arrested, wasn't he?"

"I only had one glass of beer," said the prisoner, quickly, in an injured tone; and every one laughed.

Reciprocity.

There is a little shop in Park place before the door of which is a small box. The top is fastened by a padlock. The key is kept in a hiding place known only to the man who keeps the shop, and to the postman. When the postman has a letter for that number he unlocks the little box, drops in the mail, finds a cigar, locks the box and proceeds on his way. This has been going on a long time. The man who keeps the shop lives over on Long Island. He has no clerk and comes to business whenever the spirit moves him.—New York Times.

SUCCESSFUL RECITAL BY MISS GUMPHRICHT'S PUPILS

It was a large and highly pleased audience that attended the recital given by the pupils of Miss Wilhelmina Gumpricht, A.T.C.M., and A.O.C.M., at the Murray street Baptist church last evening. The recital was a distinct success for those taking part and it added to the already well-merited honors of their teacher. The pupils displayed a proficiency that was highly commented on by the audience and each number was heartily applauded. Encores were requested and Miss Dorothy Hill gracefully presented several beautiful bouquets.

Miss Gumpricht is the only associate in piano in this city and the success which attended the recital speaks for itself.

The pupils were assisted by Miss Geraldine King, soprano; Mr. Herbert Rush, tenor, and Miss E. Irwin, violinste, and their numbers were given in their usual capable and pleasing manner.

Miss Gumpricht wishes to thank Mr. J. P. Cunningham, who kindly loaned a Bell piano and the board of the Murray street Baptist church for the use of the Sunday school room.

FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 6th

PLAN NOW OPEN.

THE MAJORITY OF FIRST DAYS VOTERS FAVOR ENFORCEMENT OF ALD. TURNER'S BY-LAW

A Large Number of Pro. Dog and Anti Dog Opinions Are Expressed—Some Unqualifiedly in Favor of Measure, Others Just as Strongly Opposed to it—The Vote for To-day.

It is doubtless somewhat early to make predictions, but the list of voters given below, will quite plainly show that the majority of those who have communicated with the Review are in favor of the enforcement of Ald. Turner's dog by-law. This morning various opinions relating to the by-law were given in conjunction with the votes. But these opinions, while many of them would make interesting reading and afford good arguments for both sides of the cause, cannot be given in detail as space would not permit of their publication.

Some of the voters are moderate in their views, whotle others are very pronounced as to their convictions of pleasure hitpms to sway them. On one hand it is "down with the dogs; rid the city of them altogether," and on the other hand "the provisions of the by-law are cruel and unreasonable, and the carrying of the measure would be unfair to the dog owners and inhuman to the dogs." These are the strongest opinions expressed, and qualified ones are also given bearing on both points of view. Quite a few of those who voted for the by-law are opposed to the leash clause, while one man expressed the opinion that, while he didn't mind the toy terriers and pet dogs running around, he said he would like to see the big and destructive dogs confined to rural sections where they were of practical use. Another voter who marked his ballot against the dogs, ventured the remark that he was actually afraid of them.

A pro-dog voter said that there was no reason why a man should pay a tax for his dog and then not be allowed t otake him out with chim as companion on a walk, adding provided the dog, of course, was well trained and not destructive.

The vote will be open all this week and so far is as follows:—

TOWN OF OWEN SOUND HAS STRINGENT DOG BY-LAW

Owen Sound, May 3.—Owen Sound council has just passed what is believed to be the most stringent by-law in the province. Dr. Murray, medical health officer, has received a report from the Provincial Health Department, to whom was sent the head of a mad dog shot on Second avenue recently. The Department's analyst, Dr. Amyot, reports that he found all the characteristic marks of rabies, and that the dog was undoubtedly suffering from that disease. As a result of the report, action was taken last night by the council and the Board of Health to guard against the possibility of the disease spreading. The town by-law was amended so as to compel all dogs to be shut in, and to give the police power to destroy them if found at large. Dogs cannot be at large even if chained and muzzled. They must be under lock and key, and even if found on private property will be shot by the police. The by-law will be rigidly enforced.

JUDGMENT GIVEN IN FAVOR OF THE WIDOW

To-day's Toronto World gives the judgment of Mr. Justice Riddell in a case of local interest. The judgment is in favor of the widow of the late John Knox and she will receive the share of the estate of a daughter, now deceased, and who died before reaching her 25th year. The fact of the daughter dying before she had reached twenty-five years of age brought about a motion of the part of the executors, for an order construing the will of the late John Knox. Mr. E. L. Goodwill represented the widow, and Mr. D. W. Dumble acted for the executors.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Dog Catcher's Religion

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The vast majority of ratepayers are exceedingly anxious to have the dog by-law properly enforced, and I trust the city fathers will give the matter their serious consideration and appoint the most efficient applicant, regardless of his religious belief.

I have been informed that our two representatives in Parliament, the mayor, police magistrate, city clerk, and all members of the Methodist church, and I am sure no reasonable person would object if a member from that church was appointed official dog-catcher. Then all would work in harmony for the enforcement of the by-law.

APPROVE OF THE BY-LAW

The editor has received three letters to-day relating to the dog by-law. The communications are as follows:

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Please allow me space to say as a citizen, I heartily approve of the course taken in the dog by-law by Alderman Turner.

CITIZEN.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I wish to say that Alderman Morgan does not voice the sentiment of the merchants regarding dogs running loose on the streets. I know many merchants detest dogs coming into their stores and destroying property, besides I know and have seen merchants open the door and order the dogs out when their master or mistress was with them.

Thanking you for space.

OBSERVER.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I wish to say that we have a daisy of a lot of city fathers, who haven't nerve enough to enforce a by-law after passing one. They are like a lot of boys learning their A.B.C. Put the dogs out.

Yours,
WEST ENDER.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I'm watching our city fathers handling the dog by-law. I have made up my mind to vote only for those who support Alderman Turner's by-law and I will try to influence everyone I can.

Mr. Henry Carveth, 320 Stewart street, informed the Review to-day that he obtained an excellent view of Halley's comet at three o'clock this morning. He viewed the comet in the eastern sky, through an instrument and also watched it for some time, without its use.

Local Observations

Dr. Marsh, of Springville, tells the Review that this morning he had a fine view of the comet, verifying the observation made a day or two ago by Mr. Collier. He has received a telegram from Harvard College Observatory, saying that Prof. Campbell, director of the Lick Observatory, Cal., states that the bright sodium "D" line has been photographed in the spectrum of Halley's comet, by Mr. Wright, one of the staff. This is a very recent development.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late Herbert McMillan took place from his residence, 321 Rogers street, Ashburnham, yesterday afternoon, and the many friends and acquaintances who followed the remains to the last resting place bore testimony of the regard and esteem in which the young man was held in this city. Service was held at the house at 2.30 o'clock, and another at St. Luke's church, where the deceased formerly attended. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt was in charge of the service assisted by Rev. Mr. Coon, and at the church spoke eloquently and earnestly on the splendid and blameless life that the deceased had lived, and impressed upon all present that they live up to the same high standard of spiritual and moral life that had always been the young man's aim. The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

As the cortege left the church for the Little Lake cemetery, those present sang the "Nunc Dimittis." Miss English, the organist, presided at the organ and played Chopin's funeral march. The pall-bearers were all former fellow-workmen of Mr. McMillan, namely, Messrs. William Higgins, Malcolm McIntyre, Alex. Irwin, J. Gray, T. Thornton and Roy Kingsbury.

His wife, child and a brother, Albert, of this city, and one brother, Frederick, of Boston, Mass., are left to mourn his loss, and to all will be be extended the deepest sympathy of the whole community.

Drainage Demonstration

The Ontario Agricultural College is emphasizing the value of drainage again this summer, for which purpose drainage demonstrations are being held in many parts of the province. On Wednesday, May 11, at the hour of 2 o'clock, one of those demonstrations will be held on the farm of Mr. George Berry, concession 3, lot 20, Cavan township. This meeting should be of special interest, as some difficult places to drain are involved. Besides the discussion of the particular problems of Mr. Berry's farm, there will be a demonstration of methods of finding the fall over a ditch, determining the grade, digging true to grade etc. Those of our readers interested in drainage should not miss this meeting.

Anyone wishing information about the drainage work should write Prof. W. H. Day, O.A.C., Guelph.

MILLBROOK

Millbrook, May 3.—Mr. Bob Edmunds, of Millbrook, has been doing a rushing business with his vacuum cleaner in and around the vicinity of Millbrook.

Friends and acquaintances of Mrs. Samuel Aikens will be pleased to learn that she has recovered from the effects of the operation which she recently underwent in Peterborough hospital.

Mrs. Isaac Needham is on the sick list with an attack of lumbago. We all wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. Rolands, formerly of Millbrook, who recently moved, with his family, to the west, has arrived safely. His blacksmith business was purchased by Mr. Robt. Brown, formerly of Cavan.

THE HIRED MAN IS DEAD AND HIS EMPLOYER DYING

Mysterious Poisoning Tragedy Near Niagara Falls, Ont.—Carbolic Acid and Paris Green Caused the Trouble—Poison in Cider.

Niagara Falls, Ont., May 5.—Mystery deep and perplexing surrounds the death of John Baldwin and poisoning of Benjamin Thompson. The body of Baldwin was found in Thompson's cow shed yesterday. Suicide is believed to be the cause of death, traces of carbolic acid being found in the dead man's mouth. Thompson is seriously ill at his home as a result of Paris green taken in a glass of cider Saturday night.

It is believed that Baldwin, who was a farm laborer, employed by Thompson, a wealthy Stamford Township farmer, attempted to murder his employer by secreting poison in the cider. It is Thompson habit to drink a glass of cider each night before retiring. The cider for each night's use is drawn off and left in a pitcher in the cellar. Saturday night, after drinking the cider, Thompson was taken violently ill. When Dr. Tremble of Queenston arrived he declare the man had been poisoned.

Because Thompson's family was opposed to the matter becoming public, nothing was said of the occurrence. The farmer has been near death's door ever since the poisoning, but the family looked upon it as a case of accident.

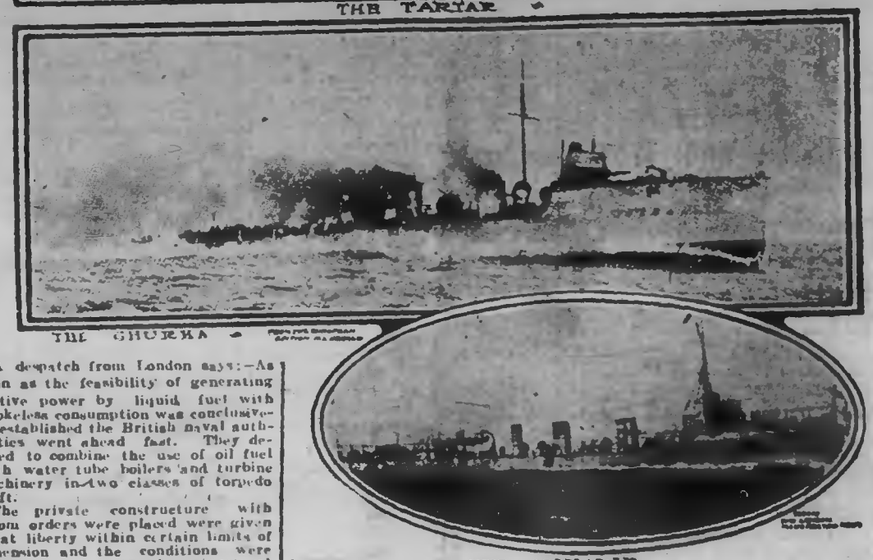
Yesterday Baldwin said he was going to the barn to milk cows. When he did not return within two hours, Mr. Thompson, becoming alarmed, went to learn the cause. On the floor of the cow shed Baldwin's body lay. Inspector Mains of the provincial police and Coroner McGarry were notified.

Detectives Kelly and McNamara and the coroner found traces of carbolic acid in the mouth of the dead man. The lips were badly burned by the acid. A search for the bottle which contained the poison revealed a small vial in a pile of straw a few feet from the body. It smelled strongly of its former contents, and the mode of the death of Baldwin became self-evident.

Further investigations on the part of the officers revealed the startling information that Thompson had been poisoned Saturday. Belief is expressed last night that Baldwin attempted to murder Thompson and committed suicide to prevent his apprehension and arrest. The police say the two men have quarreled recently several times. Another theory is that Thompson's life was attempted by an outsider and Baldwin was murdered by the same hand. This theory, however, is not generally accepted.

BRITISH FIGHTING CRAFT WHICH ARE NOW USING OIL AS FUEL

THE TARTAR



THE GHURKA

THE MOHAWK.

A despatch from London says:—As soon as the feasibility of generating motive power by liquid fuel with smokeless consumption was conclusively established the British naval authorities went ahead fast. They decided to combine the use of oil fuel with water tube boilers and turbine machinery in two classes of torpedo craft.

The private constructure with whom orders were placed were given great liberty within certain limits of dimension and the conditions were stringent as regard structural strength, habitability and range of action. Of the two classes, one was to be a big and swift vessel with seagoing qualities which warranted the appellation "ocean going," and the other a smaller, cheaper vessel for coastwise use.

Twelve vessels of the first named class are now in active service and thirty-six of the latter.

The ocean going vessels known as the tribal class, because they were called the Ghurka, the Cossack, the Mohawk, &c., cost a little more than $700,000 each. On the average displacement of a little less than 900 tons they are fitted to carry about ninety tons of fuel oil and were designed for a speed of thirty-three knots. The fuel consumption was not to exceed one pound per square foot of heating surface, and the conditions of trial were most stringent.

All the boats of this class passed these contract requirements, and the Tartar, built by Messrs. Thornycroft & Co., during a six hours' trial made 34 1-4 knots on the average. At one time she exceeded 37 knots. On these figures the vessel has a radius of action at full power of more than 400 nautical miles, and at the economical speed of 14 knots could steam considerably more than a thousand geographical miles. They are inexpensive vessels, but high speed is always costly.

THE OTTAWA POLITICIANS WILL NOW TAKE A REST

Prorogation Proceedings at Ottawa—Establishment of Canadian Navy Referred to in Speech From the Throne—The Tariff.

Ottawa, May 5.—Parliament was prorogued at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. The ceremony, which was one of unusual impressiveness, took place in the Senate Chamber.

The Speaker of the Senate, Hon. J. K. Kerr, took his position on the right of the throne, and the Speaker of the Commons, Hon. Charles Marcil, took his on the left. The former read the address in English and the latter read it in French. His Excellency then made a formal reply to the official farewell. There was a full attendance of the Cabinet Ministers in their uniforms of state.

The speech from the throne said in part:

"The measure for the establishment of a naval service, which has become of pressing necessity in view of the extraordinary advance within recent years of Canada as a nation within the British Empire, is the crowning development of a policy which was anticipated from the earliest days of Confederation.

"The act to amend the law respecting the aid to dry docks will, it is believed, lead to an early construction of docks capable of receiving the largest warships, and thus assist the movement for naval defence.

"The arrangement lately made between the United States and Canada, averting a threatened tariff conflict, and opening the way for negotiations which give promise of further improvement in the commercial relations of the two countries, has, I am glad to know, given much satisfaction to the people on both sides of the boundary line."

In the Senate yesterday, on motion by Senator Power to discharge Senator Davis' bill for the incorporation of railway companies by the Secretary of State after investigation by the Railway Commission, instead of the present system of incorporation by Parliament, Senator Cagrain said he had previously brought in a bill to the same effect, believing that chartermongers should be done away with.

Senator Watson said that, owing to the policy of Parliament adopting the plan of granting practically every application for a railway charter, these charters had lost any official value and the chartermonger had disappeared.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell declared that the present plan involved useless waste of time, because practically no roads were built by these small promoters. They either disposed of their rights to big companies, or, having made some progress, the enterprises were taken over by the big companies.

Senator Beique said that this was a new country which needed railroads, and there were many in existence today which never would have been built if it had not been for so-called chartermongers. The St. Maurice Valley Road was one of these. The motion to drop the bill was adopted.

ELOPED WITH CHAUFFEUR

Sarnia, May 5.—Word has reached here of an elopement at Tulsa, Okla., in which one of the principals was a former Sarnia girl, Jennie Crosbie. Several years ago a man named J. E. Crosbie went to South America, leaving his family at home and investing in oil property. He soon became a millionaire.

They all settled in Tulsa. With the swell home came the automobile, and with the automobile a chauffeur, who promptly fell in love with the banker's pretty 18-year-old daughter.

When the young man, Perry Hayworth, approached the girl's father, he laughed at the idea of his daughter Jennie marrying the chauffeur, so they eloped in the car and were married.

WILL FLY DOWN GORGE

Niagara Falls, May 5.—"Niagara's International Carnival" is the name selected for the proposed celebration to be given by the twin cities at the great cataract.

Various additional committees were named Tuesday night, and it was decided to have the children assemble in Victoria Park for their celebration. The committee has the assurance of having an airship on the day in the festival, and the aeronaut will fly over the falls and down the gorge. It is also probable that an aerial marriage will be another feature, but just who the lucky couple will be the committee refuses to announce.

FELL FIFTY FEET AND WAS KILLED

St. Thomas, May 5.—Harry Buckworth, aged 40, was killed by a fall of fifty feet from the Pere Marquette bridge, his body being found yesterday afternoon by Clarence Laidlaw, a Queen's student. He had been dead about six hours.

Deceased had been drinking of late, and had been discharged from the Pere Marquette roundhouse. He leaves a wife, who had not been living with him, and a brother.

Will Strike Back.

London, May 5.—A Milan despatch with reference to the Italian-Canadian negotiations says the Italian silk, skin and glove trade is suffering in consequence of the Franco-Canadian treaty. It was announced in the Chamber of Deputies that England's intercession in the crisis had been invoked, but without success. Unless Canada quickly comes to terms Italy is resolved to strike a crushing blow at Canadian-smoked fish.

FISH PIRATES IN COURT

Parry Sound, May 5.—A severe blow has been struck at the fish pirates and illegal fishermen of Georgian Bay by the fining of about twenty of them in the Police Court here yesterday. Other cases are pending, and it is the intention of the officers to put a stop to the wholesale illegal catching of fish. Provincial Constable Connor and County Constable Madigan worked up the cases.

Charge Is Misappropriation.

St. John, N.B., May 5.—The latest development in the Disraeli Asbestos Co.'s affairs, was the arrest yesterday of H. L. Coombs, of this city, who had been assistant managing director and refused to resign. He is charged along with R. D. Isaacs, who is no longer in the city, with misappropriation of $5,700 of the company's funds.

SEATS WERE PURCHASED

Chicago, May 5.—"I believe that 50 per cent. of the seats in the United States Senate can be said to have been practically purchased."

This statement was made here yesterday by former U. S. Senator W. E. Mason, in the course of an interview in which he urged the election of U. S. Senators by direct vote of the people.

A morning paper quotes Senator Mason as saying that he had heard at Springfield, before the election of Mr. Lorimer, that the honor was for sale, and that the Senatorial toga would go to the highest bidder. Mr. Mason, however, denied that he had made such an allegation.

Mr. Mason was a candidate for the Senatorship, but withdrew his name before the last vote, when Mr. Lorimer was chosen.

LIQUOR IN DRUG STORES

Richmond, Va., May 5.—The most drastic and important action taken by the American Pharmaceutical Association since that body convened here Tuesday morning, occurred yesterday when the convention, as a whole, placed itself on record as advocating the abolition of alcohol as a commodity of sale in all American drug stores, and earnestly urged the elimination of all traffic in what it terms "habit forming drugs," as harmful to public morals and detrimental to the best interests of the American people.

NEW C. N. R. EXTENSION

Port Arthur, May 5.—The new route laid out for the extension of the Canada Northern Railway, east of Port Arthur to Sudbury, on which engineers have been at work for several months, is proving to be much more favorable to railroad work than was hoped for. The divide between Port Arthur and Nepigon is crossed at an elevation of 220 feet lower than where it is crossed by the Canadian Pacific Railway. This insures a fourtenths grade, which practically means that double the load can be moved with the same motive power. The line will probably skirt the shore for some distance along Thunder Bay.

RECENT RIOT CAREFULLY PLANNED

Changsha, China, May 5.—The recent rioting in this province has placed the Chinese Government in an embarrassing position regarding the proposed Hankow-Canton Railway loan. Evidence accumulates that the disturbance was deliberately planned by influential personages as a warning to the central authorities not to meddle in the affairs of Hunan Province, and to make plain the determined opposition of the Hunanites to foreign participation in the railway construction.

Outwardly the situation in Changsha and the adjacent country appears to be improving.

Called to Camlachie.

London, May 5.—At the meeting of the London Presbytery, a unanimous call from Camlachie (in the Presbytery of Sarnia) to Rev. T. R. Shearer, B.A., was sustained. Mr. Shearer has decided to accept the call.

Australia Has Deficit.

Melbourne, May 5.—Premier Fisher anticipates a deficit for the financial year ending June 30, of £800,000.

GOOD-BYE TO EARL GREY WHO DEPARTS FROM CANADA

He Says That if Canadians Are Not Afraid They May Control the Destiny of the British Empire—Says He Will Carry Message of Loyalty.

Ottawa, May 5.—The Parliament of Canada yesterday afternoon assembled in the Senate Chamber and bade a formal farewell to Earl Grey as Governor-General. However, it is not likely that His Excellency will return to England before next October, as he contemplates visiting the west during the coming summer.

The floor of the Senate was well filled with Senators, members of the House of Commons, their wives and lady friends, while the galleries were also crowded.

Earl Grey was evidently moved when he responded to the address from the members of Parliament, which was read in English by Senator Kerr of the Senate and in French by Speaker Marcil of the Commons. He thanked Sir Wilfrid Laurier, R. L. Borden, Sir Richard Cartwright and Senator Lougheed for the kind sentiments expressed towards himself and his family in their speeches in Parliament yesterday.

The Parliamentary address read, in part, as follows:

"We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal Parliament assembled, beg leave to convey to Your Excellency an expression of the general feeling of regret with which all classes in this country have learned that your official connection with Canada is soon to cease.

EARL GREY.

"It must be a source of gratification to Your Excellency on your retirement from the high office of Governor-General to realize that the period of your administration has been characterized by general and increased prosperity in every portion of the Dominion.

"The special interest which Your Excellency has taken in everything calculated to foster a high sense of public duty and responsibility, to stimulate intellectual development, and to advance science and art, will long be gratefully remembered, while the success of your endeavors in cultivating the growth of a Canadian spirit has strengthened us in the belief that the full development of our national life is compatible with the closest and most loyal connection with the Empire. The national park established at Quebec on the Plains of Abraham will remain as an enduring monument to Your Excellency's wise and enlightened efforts to this end.

"We beg that Your Excelency will express to the King our loyal attachment to His Majesty's throne and person, and our united resolve to accomplish our part in the maintenance and uplifting of His Majesty's Empire.

"In conclusion, we beg to assure Your Excellency that you will always have our warmest wishes for the future happiness of yourself and family."

Among other things, Earl Grey said in reply:

"It is with feelings of no ordinary emotion that I acknowledge the great honor conferred upon me to-day by the Parliament of the Dominion.

"That address, the kind and friendly speeches of its movers and seconders, its hearty and unanimous acceptance by the members of the Senate and of the House of Commons, have caused me to realize afresh how great has been the interest and enjoyment of our life in Canada, and how sincere and heartfelt is the regret with which I and all the members of my family view the approaching termination of my term.

"It shall be my happy privilege on my return to England to submit to the King an expression of your devotion to his throne and person, also to impress upon His Majesty and on the people of the British Isles that you, the people of Canada, are united in your high resolve to accomplish your part in the maintenance and building of the Empire, of which, if you are not afraid of the greatness of your destiny, you will one day become the controlling part.

"Gentlemen, it is not without many twinges of the heart that I realize that this is the last occasion on which I shall have the opportunity of meeting you officially. Although our official connection with you, unfortunately for me, is soon to cease, I can assure you, speaking not only for myself, but for Lady Grey and my daughters, that so long as we live, neither distance nor time will ever efface from our hearts the recollections of the many kindnesses we have received, the pleasures we have enjoyed, our deep affection for our Canadian home, or the interest we shall ever continue to feel in the future and fortune, not only of many personal friends, but of the country and the people whom we have learned to love so well."

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

Oliver Martel was killed in a blast at Cobalt.

Two foreigners were arrested at Brantford for passing bogus silver coins.

The bill prohibiting oral bookmaking passed the New York Senate yesterday.

F. McDougall of Ingersoll was seriously injured in his store by a loaded elevator dropping upon him.

The survey, The Canadian Mute says, runs only about ten rods in rear of the main building of the institution. If the line were built there, the usefulness of the institute as a school for the deaf would be destroyed. A suggestion is made that the line be built further north, about half a mile from the institute.

THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1910.

MOTHER'S DAY

In the year 1908 Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, started what is known as "The Mother's Day Movement," the object of which is to have men, women and children throughout the country set aside the second Sunday of May every year for the special honoring of mothers. It is proposed that special services shall be held in the churches and Sunday schools, that a white flower shall be worn in commemoration of the day, and that every boy and girl, every man and woman who has a mother living shall show appreciation of her in some special way, by giving her flowers, by writing her a letter, or by visiting her on that day. The idea is good and should be adopted by everyone. Don't forget that next Sunday is Mother's Day. If you have a mother do something special to please her.

ONIONS AS A CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

On the 29th of April, 1909, twelve physicians were dining together at a hotel in Pittsburg, Pa., when one of them, Dr. Harry Goehring, stated that a patient afflicted with consumption had apparently been cured by the eating of onions. The twelve doctors decided to experiment for a year, recommending patients having tuberculosis to eat onions or onion soup. On the anniversary of this agreement the twelve doctors met again and each reported that every tuberculosis patient who had followed their advice, had shown signs of improvement with the exception of one man, who was in a very advanced stage of consumption.

This is an experiment that can be tried by doctors everywhere without fear of evil consequences. It is stated that cooked onions and onion soup seem to be as effective as raw onions. Fortunately the cooking process to a great extent destroys the disagreeable odor of onions.

Whether the statement sent out from Pittsburg is reliable or not the alleged remedy is so harmless and so cheap that it will no doubt be generally tried by people afflicted with tuberculosis.

COSTLY GOVERMENT

The Laurier Government estimates call for an expenditure of $132,500,000 for the current year. The population of Canada is estimated at 7,500,000, so that the expenditure represents $17 66 for every man, woman and child in Canada. For a family of five this would mean $88.30. That represents a large percentage of the income of the average family. If the money were all expended by the Government in such a way as to develop the resources of the country and add to the earning capacity of the people this large expenditure might be justifiable, but from time to time examples of the way in which the Government wastes the money of the people have been furnished by the Review.

At the present time the country does not feel the taxation very seriously because temporary prosperity is maintained through the circulation of immense sums of borrowed money. It is estimated that during the past year six hundred million dollars of British capital has been brought into Canada. A portion of this is for investment in land, timber, industrial and mining stocks, and Canadian bank shares, but the greater part of it is for investment in bonds of various kinds. These bonds represent debts that must eventually be paid, and in the meantime the interest must be paid. The circulation of such vast sums of money in Canada booms trade, but a crash will come some day, and then the enormous expenditures of the Government will be a serious burden upon the people.

CONDEMNED BY THE PRESBYTERY

At a meeting of the Presbytery of Toronto the action of the Minister of Justice in recommending the pardon of two criminals convicted of circulating indecent literature was considered. The Presbytery passed the following resolution:

"That this Presbytery does hereby express its deep concern to observe that the sale and distribution in Canada of books which have been denied the use of the mails service of Canada and the United States as tending to corrupt morals have been classified by the Minister of Justice as classics and by comparison with the Bible. This Presbytery is further of opinion that the reasons given by the the Minister of Justice for the release of Skill and King, two prisoners convicted on the plea of guilty entered by their own eminent counsel engaged to defend them, are calculated to seriously impair the efficiency of the laws preventing the publication and circulation of immoral and obscene literature and to discourage the efforts of those charged with the enforcement of such laws. The Presbytery would respectfully urge upon the Prime Minister of Canada the urgency of an immediate and authorative declaration that the rigid enforcement of all laws against the sale of picture postcards and literature tending to corrupt morals will be aided and encouraged by his Government, and that, if necessary, such laws will be amended to facilitate prosecutions in such cases, more especially by making the possession of such picture postcards or literature in quantity, prima facie evidence of intention to sell, distribute and circulate the same."

This is a matter in which all the churches of Canada, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, might well cooperate. The Government should be made to realize that the people of Canada will not tolerate the circulation of indecent literature.

FLAGS ON THE SCHOOLS

H. R. Poussette, Canadian trade commissioner in Durban, South Africa, has suggested that the flag be flown upon all schools in Canada on May 31 in honor of the first anniversary of the union of British South Africa. The Superintendent of Education of Nova Scotia has notified the Department of Trade and Commerce that flags will fly on the schools throughout the province in honor of the occasion. The Protestant schools of Montreal will not only fly flags, but will have addresses on the subject. Ontario should not be backward in this movement. In every school house throughout this great province the British flag should fly and the children should be told the reason for it. It is not necessary to have long addresses on the subject. Each school teacher can in a few words explain that the flags are flying in Canada because it is South Africa's Domin on Day. Reference can be made to the fact that Canadian volunteers shed their blood to keep South Africa within the Empire, and that now the Boers are co-operating with the British settlers in loyalty to the Empire. It may also be noted that Canada set the example to other sections of the Empire in bringing about the Confederation of the Provinces of British North America, except Newfoundland, that the Australian colonies followed Canada's example some years ago, and that on the 31st day of May, 1909, the South African colonies united. It might be well to say also to the children that Canadians should look forward to the day when Newfoundland will come into our Dominion. Perhaps some Canadian school boy of the present day may in the future be a statesman with tact enough to complete the union of British North America.

It has become the custom throughout Canada to devote the 23rd of May to school exercises relating to the Empire, and the twenty-fourth of May commemorating the birthday of the good Queen Victoria is observed as a holiday by all Canadians. It would be a mistake, therefore, to devote too much of the school time a week later to the observance of South Africa's Dominion Day. But the flying of the flag and a few minutes' talk about the reason for it will not interfere with school work.

Dodd's Kidney Pill's Cured Dan McGee's Backache

He used the old Reliable Kidney Remedy and found a speedy and complete cure for his trouble

James River, Antigonish Co., N.S., May 4.—(Special)—It has again been proven in the case of Mr. Dan McGee, a well known farmer living near here, that backache is only a symptom of Kidney trouble, and that Dodd's Kidney Pills cure it quickly and completely.

"I suffered from backache for two months," Mr. McGee states. It started from a strain and grew steadily worse. I also had occasional attacks of Lumbago. I was always tired and at times my eyes were puffed and swollen. In the mornings I had a bitter taste in my mouth.

"Then I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and the result is that to-day I am a well man. I advise all persons suffering from Backache or Lumbago to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Mr. McGee caught his Kidney Disease in its early stages, and Dodd's Kidney Pills cured it almost at once. Neglected Kidney Disease develops into Rheumatism, Dropsy, Bright's Disease or Heart Disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure any and all of these.

Straw braid, yedda straw, hemp weave and lace,
Basket braid, leghorn, outlines of grace!
Hats, hats, nations may rage
O'er tariff and navy and pensions for age,
Senates may pry off the lids of their scandals,
Insurgents may plot for Uncle Joe's sandals,
Physicians may warn of diseases in "rats"—
The mightiest theme in the world now is hats.

Heriot blues, faded rose, dreamy,
Honey gold, cockscomb, feather foam, creamy,

Amethyst, silver sheen, dusk shades subdued,
Colors of poppyland, dream thought imbued.
Hats, hats, the south pole may lure,
Golden foundations may uplift and cure,

The comet may lash its gold tail by the mile,
All fandom may echo with bang of the bats—
The mightiest theme in the world now is hats.

MINISTER WHO TESTED ZAM-BUK

Read His Deliberate Opinion!

Rev. P. F. Laugill, "The Manse," Carp, Ont., writes: "Some considerable time ago began using Zam-Buk with a view to testing it thoroughly. I am troubled with eczema, which is always worse in the early part of winter and seems to leave me about spring. I tried Zam-Buk immediately my hands started to break out, and am pleased to say that it checked the disease, which is more than I can say for anything I have ever before tried. We now have Zam-Buk in the house continuously. The children use it for scratches, cuts, and any skin injury or disease and I carry a small sample box in my pocket. One evening I happened to look in (where an old man had met with an accident a week before, and had lost a finger nail. His wife was dressing the wound. I dressed it with Zam-Buk and left the little sample box with them for the next dressing. I have seen the old gentleman since, and he has now the same high opinion of Zam-Buk as myself and my family have.

"On another occasion a Yarmer called at "The Manse," and I noticed a rag on his finger. Enquiring about the injury, I learned that he had somehow taken a piece of flesh off, and the wound had started to fester. He was afraid it would turn to blood-poisoning. I gave him about a third of a box of Zam-Buk and he applied it. A few days later I saw him, and he said, 'That's great salve of yours; my finger is now doing fine.'"

This is a Scotchman's opinion; it has taken a good while to convince him, but he wanted to make sure of Zam-Buk's merit before endorsing it. "It is well worth recommending."

This is exactly the kind of testimony we most appreciate. Test Zam-Buk! Don't go by hearsay! You will find it gives the best results in all cases of eczema, ringworm, festering sores, piles, cuts, burns, face sores, eruptions and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores, 50c box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, but refuse cheap and harmful substitutes and imitations.

Painless Payments.

Robbie often heard his father complain of customers who were slow pay. "It is just like pulling teeth to get money out of them," the father would say, and Robbie, who had watched the work of the dentist next door, pitied the poor creditors greatly.

One day a miserly customer came in to pay a bill, and the boy gazed sympathetically at the unwilling payer as he slowly and caressingly unfolded each separate banknote and laid it lingeringly on the counter. Suddenly an idea came into Robbie's head, and he turned excitedly to his father.

"Why don't you give him gas, papa?" he cried. "Then it won't hurt him so much."—Success Magazine.

Force of Habit.

"Seeing that you divorced him, would it not be more proper to refer to him as your former husband rather than as your late husband?"

Cool Kitchen—Perfect Cooking

The housewife with years of experience—the woman who knows how to cook—finds, after practical tests and hard trials, the New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is her idea of what a good cook-stove really ought to be.

She finds it requires less attention, costs less to operate, and cooks all food better than any other stove she has ever tried.

She finds the New Perfection oven bakes and roasts perfectly. The

HIS COURTSHIP

By HELEN R. MARTIN,
Author of "Tillie: A Mennonite Maid."

COPYRIGHT, 1907, By McCLURE, PHILLIPS & COMPANY.

CHAPTER I.

D. PETER KINROSS had just been demanding rather irritably of the shaggy little farmer, his host, why a bathroom had not been put into the house when it was renovated for summer boarders, and the farmer, standing over him as he sat at his belated breakfast in the kitchen, was replying with a logic which left his protagonist dumb.

"Firstly, it's contrary to Scripture."

"How the devil do you make that out?" Kinross inquired, unaware of how such epithets startled the unaccustomed ears of the farmer's wife and of the girl, Eunice, who waited on him.

"How I make that out?" Morningstar repeated. "Because the Scriptures is silent on the subject."

Which of course left Kinross with nothing to say. He lifted his glass of skimmed milk and sipped with half closed eyes.

"Another reason," Morningstar laid it off, "there was less sickness among our ancestors of bygone times in the past than there is now when bathrooms is the common lot of all."

Kinross did not contradict it.

"Again, I once heerd of a man being drownded in a bathtub of hot water."

Kinross had no answer for an argument so incontrovertible.

"And yet again, Gawd certainly intended fur the folks to wash in cold water or he'd of made all the water hot."

Kinross' silence apparently accepted this dogmatic statement.

"Kin you deny it?" Morningstar triumphed over him.

"I would not presume to."

"I guess anyhow not. Well, then, you know why I don't have no bathroom. If folks would read more in the Book and hesitate more they'd see how sinful some things is. Folks is just a little ignorant about some things. They're not enough loosed of the world. Pride has come into the church that it's something shameful. There's too much joining church to enjoy ourselves instead of to serve Gawd."

And, swelling with his easy success, old Morningstar shambled out of the room, leaving his defeated boarder to the contemplation of his impossible breakfast.

The kitchen in which he ate was also the family living room, as all Pennsylvania Dutch farmhouse kitchens are. It was a large, bright room, very simply furnished, but spotlessly clean and of a certain homely coziness.

The breakfast consisted of cold corned beef, greasy sausage, several kinds of very pale, lardy looking pies and a plate piled high with iced cake.

"Eunice!" Mrs. Morningstar shrilly called to the young girl, her adopted daughter, who had disappeared into the outer kitchen. "Here's the Doctatin' dry bread and butter yet! Where's the spread?"

The relevancy of this inquiry not being apparent, a "spread" in Dr. Kinross' vocabulary being an outside cover to a bed, he glanced up as Eunice appeared in the doorway to listen to her answer, though, to tell the truth, he was not so curious to learn where the "spread" was as to hear the sound of the girl's voice. In the ten days that he had spent at the farm he had not once heard her utter a word, though he saw her three times a day at the table. This strange silence, with some other inexplicable things about her, had begun to "get on his nerves." He had come out to this farm to be quiet and undisturbed, and here, rather to his chagrin, was a mystery rising on his horizon.

He waited, with his glass halfway to his lips, to hear the girl's reply.

She came across the kitchen carrying a dish of apple jelly in one hand and a saucer of apple butter in the other. There was a grace in the movements of her young, slim figure that was conspicuously lacking in Mrs. Morningstar's own daughter of the same age. Her eyes were, as always, downcast, as though to veil a soul she did not wish to discover to those about her. Kinross had never yet succeeded in discovering the color of her eyes. Somehow the girl always bore about her an air of detachment from her surroundings, almost like one moving in a dream. Just now she scarcely seemed conscious of him at all as she placed the two dishes on the table before him and then turned and walked out of the room.

His piqued curiosity increased his sense of irritation with things in general to positive ill temper. This dainty looking adopted daughter of the household, who, he had at first thought, must be a fair lily among gross weeds, so delicate her features, so graceful her movements and so appealing to his poetic sense her frail beauty (in spite of his professed misogyny)—even she was probably no exception in the generally bucolic atmosphere of the Morningstar farmhouse, for a more cowlike herd of people he had certainly never encountered.

Was she not an exception? Then why this constantly deepening impression on his mind of an indefinable charm, a vague mystery, enveloping the beautiful girl who drudged at her household tasks in apathetic and stupid contentment with apparently not a thought or instinct above her narrow, monotonous round of work; too dull even to share the curiosity and interest of the rest of the family concerning their "gent'man boarder," and too phlegmatic to resent her foster mother's unjust and often tyrannical partiality to her own daughter Ollie?

More than once he had been on the point of asking Mrs. Morningstar to tell him something of Eunice's history. But some subtle instinct which he had never analysed had held him in check. Perhaps it was a chivalrous aversion to prying into what the girl herself so evidently wished to conceal. Perhaps he was not, after all, in a hurry to have the interesting mystery explained away into a mere commonplace circumstance, the usual outcome of interesting mysteries.

"Well," he demanded of Mrs. Morningstar when, after Eunice had disappeared, the landlady stood tackle him and refilled his glass with milk, her stout bulk a grotesque contrast to the insignificant stature of her husband, who had been overpowering him with his logic a few moments before, "where is the spread? She didn't tell you."

"But she brang 'em!" exclaimed the woman in astonishment. "Here!" shoving toward him the jelly and the apple butter.

"The spread?" he repeated blankly.

"Ain't them spreadin's?" she asked, a touch of wounded feeling mingled with her puzzled surprise. "To be sure, some calls 'em the smear. But," she added discriminatingly, "I think that's Dutch!"

To propitiate her he helped himself experimentally to some of the apple butter.

"We're gettin' two new boarders till this dinner a'ready," she remarked, pushing a pie within his reach, though she must know by this time that he never ate her pies, not even at breakfast.

Her statement appeared to be a blow to him. Thrusting the apple butter from him, he stared up at her, chagrin and keen disappointment in his face.

"Mister he goes this dinner to fetch 'em on the buggy out," she informed him. "One of 'em's overstudied the brain goin' to college. Yes," she insisted argumentatively, "there is such a thing as overstudyin' the brain, especially fur a country person where ain't used to it still. To be sure, you bein' a doctor that way, you'd know yourself the brain kin be overstudied."

He did not rouse himself to explain to her that he was not a doctor of drugs, but of philosophy. It would involve so many questions on her part and so much explanation on his—and the day was already hot.

"Do you think you'd better risk taking two more boarders?" he asked her doubtfully with the faint hope of averting the impending calamity. "Won't it give you a lot more to do? And you are busy from morning to night now."

"You think?" she laughed. "Och, no, I ain't overworked. I can stand a good bit yet. Yous tony towners with your such wonderful white hands—even on the men," she added, unable to keep a bit of contempt from her honest voice, while her eyes rested on Dr. Kinross' capable looking but well kept hands as he daintily knocked off the top of an eggshell, "yous don't know what work is. Anyhow, if it does overdo me to take two more boarders it'll be a little on the make, too, you see."

"Ah!" he exclaimed, his gloom lifting a little. "I'll pay you the price of board for three if you'll send them word not to come and let me continue to have the run of the place in peace."

Mrs. Morningstar's fat face grew long in astonishment. Such a reckless and apparently pointless waste of money was a thing incomprehensible to the Pennsylvania Dutch mind.

"Are you some bashful or what?" she curiously inquired.

"I guess I'm what. Come, will you do it?"

"Are you passin' a joke mebbe?" she questioned uncertainly.

"Never was a man more serious. I'm willing to pay for the rare quiet I've enjoyed out here the past ten days. Will you send them word they can't come?" he urged.

"Now, if you'd only spoke sooner!" she said regretfully. "To be sure, it would of paid better to get the price of three fur one. But pop he wrote 'em a postal in, last Saturdays a'ready, tellin' 'em they have the dare to come Wednesday dinner. So this dinner he fetches 'em. There ain't time no more to send 'em word different."

Dr. Kinross.

"He has already gone in to the station for them?" Kinross asked in a tragic voice.

"No, he starts at eleven. It ain't no eleven o'clock yet."

"If you had only told me before! Well," he gave it up, rising from the table, "I'll have to bear up under it—or get out, I guess."

"Any other young feller as good a looker and as tony as what you are yet would be glad fur two young lady boarders comin' once!" she reasoned, following him to the door, her whole person radiating her curious wonder.

Kinross stopped short on the threshold and turned upon her. "What! Two girls!"

The consternation in his face increased her wonder. "Well," she argued, "what's the matter with that? A body can't help fur her sex, can she?"

"I certainly didn't anticipate when I came here that I'd be bothered with two girls on the place! They'll expect me to be sitting around with them!"

"Och, well," she poked him playfully with her elbow, "you might be glad if they do want you to set alongside of 'em. Is it that you ain't much fur sociability that way?" she tried to solve the problem. "You never looked scairt of Ollie or Eunice."

"They have some sense. They don't cackle at me. They let a man alone. The first girls I ever saw who did."

Mrs. Morningstar laughed boisterously. "An' here I was tellin' Ollie every day since you come why didn't she perk up and speak some conwersation to you that way. It ain't that Ollie's ignorant that makes her keep so quiet before you," she came to the defense of her daughter. "But she's some backward, you bein' a towner and her, she was always a country girl still."

"She talks a good deal more than Eunice does, though, doesn't she?" he put out a feeler.

"Och, her," she retorted contemptuously; "she's dumm!" (Stupid.) "But Ollie she's got an elegant education," she affirmed, standing in the kitchen doorway, with her bared arms resting on her ample hips, while Dr. Kinross leaned against a pillar of the porch, his eyes following the young chickens which ran about on the grass. "I left her go to school till she was fifteen a'ready. Eunice she was more fur hooks and studyin' and all like that than what Ollie was, but," she said disparagingly, "she ain't got Ollie's nice education, but her bein' just adopted that way and not my own flesh and blood I took her out of school till she was twelf. She cried wonderful to be left keep on, but I tole her beggars couldn't be choosers and she must earn her livin'. So then she never said nothin' more about it. Ollie she can converse pretty." Mrs. Morningstar suddenly dropped the subject of her foster child and returned to the more congenial theme of her own daughter, as she jealously observed that the mention of Eunice seemed to arrest the wandering attention of her hearer. "And Ollie she knows just the right words to put in—but sometimes she's so stubborn headed fur me she won't converse—like what she's been since you come. But to be sure," she conceded, "if you like 'em better quiet"— She paused uncertainly, but her look and tone implied that that altered the case and involved her forgiveness of Ollie's obstinacy in refusing to display her conversational powers.

"Eunice has had no schooling since she was twelve years old?" Kinross instantly asked when Mrs. Morningstar's pausing to take breath gave him a chance to put in a question.

"No, and she's wonderful dumm toward what Ollie is."

"Humph!" he grunted.

"Yes, and that ungrateful she is fur all we done fur her yet—us leavin' her go to school till she was twelf a'ready and her not our own flesh and blood—and then when she had to come off of school she took on; it was somepin awful!"

"But a twelve-year-old girl is hardly capable of realizing what she is losing in having no schooling?" he said questioningly.

"She was always wonderful fur studyin'—full much so. A body couldn't get the work out of her oncet she got holt of a book—and that's why pop he sayed now she must come off school, he sayed, or she'd soon not be earnin' her feed."

"Umph!" again grunted Kinross, surprised into a pang of pity for the downcast girl who was the household drudge to the farmer's family.

"Say," Mrs. Morningstar abruptly demanded, "do you want fur me to tell them here two young ladies when they come that you ain't much fur sociability and that they're to leave you be and not bother you any, you bein' some queer?"

"Now, Mrs. Morningstar," he smiled, "you are a friend in need. Suppose you do warn them off. Where are they from?"

"From into town. Their names is Georgiana Ellery and Daisy Parks."

Kinross lifted his head and looked at Mrs. Morningstar, surprise, annoyance, consternation, in his face.

"Gods and little fishes!"

He pulled his Panama hat over his eyes, turned abruptly and strode away.

Mrs. Morningstar stood stolidly where he left her, gazing after him as he walked with long steps through the orchard toward the woods where he usually spent most of the day, and finally she shook her head and drew a long breath.

"It beats me what fur a man he is, anyhow!"

CHAPTER II.

A HALF hour later, his tall length stretched under the trees of the wood that skirted the north side of the Morningstar farm, Dr. Kinross gave vent to his vexation.

"Georgiana Ellery and Daisy Parks! The daughter of old Prexy and his niece! Could a man have worse luck? Goodby to my liberty! No more doing as I please and being as uncivilised and bucolic as primitive man! What, in the name of all the gods, possesses two such highly civilized beings to want to spend any time out here? Why, they can't eat the cooking; it's out of the question. I couldn't myself if I didn't voluntarily suspend consciousness while staving off starvation—a small price to pay for such days of freedom as I've had! I'd think these girls were pursuing me if I didn't know they were not. But," he groaned, "they'll think it a jolly lark to find me here! They'll get out of it all there is in it. Damn!" He thumped the ground. "I'll take care that there'll be precious little in it for them. I'm not going to be bullyragged into spoiling my vacation by two clucky girls!"

Such the misanthropic sentiments and such the language with which Peter Kinross faced a situation complicated by the fact that the expected arrivals were the daughter and niece respectively of the president of the college in which he himself was the professor of psychology.

Dr. Kinross, however, had never seen either of these girls, inasmuch as during the past year since he had taken the chair of psychology they had both been away at a woman's college. But he had heard a great deal about Miss Ellery, the president's daughter. And some of Kinross' fellow professors who were apt to badger him on his hardness of heart toward the gentler sex had predicted his speedy surrender to the beauty, culture and wealth of Miss Ellery when she should return to college.

"It will do me good to see her turn you down," the professor of literature had declared with feeling, speaking out of the depth of his own bitter experience at the hands of the fair Georgians.

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak there is no pill like them.

"Speaking of my own experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. The manufacturers are to be congratulated upon possessing so valuable a prescription, and the public should know that so valuable a remedy has been placed at their command."

LIQUOR LICENSE INSPECTOR MUST PAY DAMAGES OF $100

Toronto, May 4.—For placing William Piggott, a grocer, of Wallaceburg, on the Indian list, Mr. Thomas French, license inspector of the county of Kent, will have to pay $100 damages to Piggott, according to the judgment delivered by Chancellor Boyd. His Lordship says: "It is a serious matter to stigmatize a man in business as one addicted to the use of liquor in excess—to put this into writing and to publish it among the houses of entertainment as the deliberate act of a public officer."

The officer placed Piggott on the list on the application of Christopher McKnight, a brother-in-law, and the judge points out that the relationship was not within the degrees provided by statute.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR NOT LESS THAN THREE YEARS

The Sentence Imposed by Magistrate Dumble on Fourteen Year Old Leader of Youthful Bad Gang—Four Others Allowed Off With a Warning.

Willie Sullivan, fifteen years of age, and the leader of a gang of youngsters who have been committing thefts by breaking into stores and henroosts, was this morning sentenced by Magistrate Dumble to St. John's Industrial school, Toronto, for a term of not less than three years.

Along with Willie King, James Jordan, Norman Hurl, Louis Anthony and "Gillie" Kearns, Sullivan was arrested last Saturday and on appearing before His Worship he and his pals pleaded guilty to the various charges preferred. Judgment was reserved till this morning.

Kearns was not present, he having been taken by his father to the Industrial school.

The other four boys were allowed to go with a warning to the effect that if they ever appear again on a similar charge, they would not be leniently dealt with.

King promised to pay for the articles he stole and he was ordered to appear in court in a week's time to report.

According to information secured by the court, Sullivan is in many respects to blame for the conduct of the other boys. He has bullied several of them into committing small crimes and they may in the future, as the Magistrate asked them to, be honest and go to work and behave themselves.

"TIGE" HAS SOME PRONOUNCED VIEWS ON THE DOG BY-LAW

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The request of one of our aldermen in the local papers yesterday, is well worth reading. He suggests that everyone vote either for or against the dog by-law by sending a letter, card or telephone message to the different city papers. Who constituted our aldermen, a Parliament, or why should any sensible ratepayer waste his time over a by-law that not a single lawyer in town thinks is intra vires.

Looking over some of the names of citizens who voted for this by-law, we notice that the Crown Attorney heads the list. Of course the position of Crown Attorney has a tendency to make any man, after many years of performing the duties of Crown Attorney, very much in favor of restrictive legislation.

Another man is A. J. Johnston. If this is ex-Alderman Johnston, whose name was on the ballot paper last winter, all I can say is, that I trust his name will attract more, in support of this by-law than it attracted votes last winter. There are a number of other ratepayers, who are on the list, and some of these are cat fanciers, or gasoline launch sports.

If the paper is correct in the names given, Dr. Gray is in favor of the by-law. Well I believe that Dr. Gray is down on dogs. If I had the same experience I would be down on dogs too.

Some time ago, some of the high-browed moralists of the Council, decided that $200 was a very fair fee for tobacco stores selling cigarettes. After much applauding by themselves, the by-law was duly passed with much ceremony, and as soon as it was passed, a firm of lawyers in Peterborough, put the thing to the bad, by an application to quash it, in the High Court. These lawyers, compelled the city to pay something between $100 and $150 for their costs, and we suppose the city had to pay the city solicitor for his expenses and time.

According to Alderman Turner's idea, the police court will decide whether this by-law is sound or not. Well, such will not be the case, for if the proposed Kennel Club decides to move to quash this by-law; it will be done in the regular way, and if they succeed, the chances are reasonably certain that this city will be required to pay some costs, for some more bum legislation.

As the names appear from time to time in favor of this by-law, I shall take pleasure in writing the papers, explaining why its supporters are in favor of this legislation.

Yours truly,
TIGE.

C. G. E. COMPANY WILL PURCHASE MORE HOUSES

The excavation work in connection with the extensions to be made at the Canadian General Electric Works has started. The work at present being done is for the extension of the machine shop. One of the houses on Albert street, bought by the company has been torn down, and three others have been sold and will be removed.

Mr. F. G. Patterson, the general superintendent of the company, informed the Review to-day that all the houses on the north side of Albert street, from Park to Alfred street, will be purchased by the company.

DID'NT LIKE LIFE IN AN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

To-day's Toronto Globe says:—"Gillie" Kearns, aged eleven, created a sensation in East Toronto last evening when he attempted to "lick" P. C. William Sanderson (224). The boy, who comes from Peterborough, had escaped in the afternoon from St. John's Industrial School, and when the policeman saw him he was engaged in a fight with other boys near the corner of Gerrard and Main streets. The crowd dispersed when the constable appeared, but young Kearns remained and stood up to him. It takes a big man, however, to beat P. C. Sanderson, and after a short but sharp encounter the latter came off victorious. The boy was taken to No. 10 Police Station, and was sent back to the school.

St. Paul's Anniversary Concert

The 75th anniversary concert at St. Paul's last night was given under the most favorable auspices from both the standpoint of those contributing to the programme and the audience in attendance. The audience could not have failed to be a most encouraging one to the singers for the auditorium was practically filled and the unusually excellent programme was followed with the closest attention and great appreciation. Within the sacred precincts of the house of worship the audience did not feel constrained to applaud at first, but as the programme progressed spontaneous and sincere appreciation was shown and one of Mr. Hollingshead's numbers drew forth such persistent handclapping that there was no cessation in the applause until he responded to the encore.

The choir of St. Paul's was probably never heard to such fine advantage as it was last night. The choristers sang with precision and splendid expression and their finished performance of the various numbers won them warm approval. Mr. John Crane, the organist and choirmaster of St. Paul's, is to be sincerely complimented on the excellent results he has obtained in the special instruction of the choir for the concert, their work splendidly testifying to his painstaking and intelligent direction. The choir was augmented by some of the members of other city choirs.

The soloists were Miss Helen Davies, Mr. Percy Hollingshead, tenor, of Toronto, and Mr. A. E. L. Davies, bass, of Toronto. Miss Davies' beautiful soprano voice was used to excellent effect in her solos and she is so well known and such an established favorite in Peterborough that any extended reference to her delightful singing would be unnecessary.

Mr. Hollingshead and Mr. Davies were heard for the first time by a Peterborough audience and made an impression that will long make them remembered in this city. Mr. Davies' has a voice of fine quality and wide range and his numbers were all appreciatively received. Mr. Hollingshead has a peculiarly sweet lyric tenor of remarkably pure quality and immediately established himself in the affections of the audience. His singing of "God's Garden," was particularly artistic and appealing, his rendition of the number being greeted with such insistent and enthusiastic applause that he had to sing again in acknowledgment of the plaudits accorded him.

The programme was as follows:—

"Gallia," the choir and Miss Davies, Gounod.

"O God Have Mercy," aria, "St. Paul," Mendelssohn.

"Ave Maria Stella," sung unaccompanied, the choir, Greig.

"With Verdure Clad," recitative and aria from "Creation," Miss Davies, Haydn.

"By Babylon's Wave," sung unaccompanied, the choir, Greig.

"If With All Your Hearts," recitative and aria from "Elijah," Mr. Hollingshead, Mendelssohn.

"Hear My Prayer, anthem, the choir, Mendelssohn.

"Say, Watchman," duet, Messrs. Davies and Hollingshead, Sargent.

"O Gladsome Light," anthem, sung unaccompanied, the choir, Sullivan.

"My Redeemer and Lord," solo, Mr. Davies, Buck.

"God's Garden," solo, Mr. Hollings-Lambert.

"Hlammatus," from "Stabat Mater" the choir and Miss Davies," Rossini.

Re the Dog By-law

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—I heartily support Ald. Turner's dog by-law and would like my emphatic sentiments on the subject expressed through the columns of your paper. I find dogs a constant nuisance and source of annoyance at my theatorium, and know that other people's objections to them on the grounds that they tear up flower beds, bear sleigh robes, frighten horses and commit numerous other depredations are well founded.

I would like to see the by-law enforced and think the large majority of citizens hold the same view.

Yours truly,
W. A. EDWARDS.

PRESENTED WITH GOLD CUFF LINKS

Mr. G. L. Galley Honored by Directors of Port Hope Y.M.C.A.

Port Hope Guide:—On Saturday evening an unlooked for surprise was in store for Mr. Galley, when he was waited on by two members of the board of directors. Mr. H. Skitch read the following address:—

Mr. G. L. Galley, Port Hope:

Dear Mr. Galley,—On this the eve of your leaving Port Hope, the members of the Y.M.C.A. Board desire to express their appreciation of the services you have rendered the Association while you have been with them in the position of physical director. You have performed your duties in a faithful and courteous manner, and we regret parting with you. You carry with you our best wishes for your success in whatever position you may be placed.

We ask you to accept these cuff links as a slight token of regard.

Signed on behalf of the members of the board,
H. SKITCH,
A. H. C. LONG,
H. HUME.

Port Hope, April 30.

Mr. H. Hume made the presentation of an elegant pair of gold cuff links. In a very fitting manner Mr. Galley replied, thanking the board for their kind remembrance, and wished the Association great prosperity in its future undertakings.

HEARTY PRAISE FOR MR. JOLLIFFE

Referring to Mr. Norman Jolliffe, the Canadian baritone, who will give a recital at the Grand Opera House, Peterborough, on Friday evening, 6th inst., the Mail and Empire, of Toronto, says:—

"The recital of classical and popular songs given by Mr. R. Norman Jolliffe at the Toronto Conservatory of Music on Saturday night was a distinct success. Mr. Jolliffe is among the number of Canadian musicians studying in New York; and by the artistic manner in which he rendered some of the more difficult numbers in Saturday evening's programme, he conclusively proved how successful have been his vocal studies at the heart of the great Empire State. Mr. Jolliffe's baritone selections were interspersed with recitations by Miss Jessie Alexander, and in her case also the audience was not sparing in appreciation. Perhaps it was the varied nature of the programme which won for it such constant enthusiasm. Songs there were to please every ear, songs of war, songs of German minstrelsy, love songs in several languages, even a coon song to round out the whole. In Homer's "Requiem," Mr. Jolliffe's well-modulated voice found scope for all its sympathies. Schubert's "Der Doppelganger" and "Der Wanderer," selections well known in every classical programme, were most favorably received. "Molly's Eyes," by Hamley, and "My Love, She's But a Lassie Yet," because of their familiarity and universality of sentiment, also delighted the audience. The closing number, "Danny Dever," by Damrosch, brought a fine programme to an appropriate end. Miss Jessie Alexander's first number, "The Pied Piper of Hamlin," by Robert Browning, was an old favorite with those present, and accordingly received a double applause. Two readings, "Is Life Worth Living?" by Alfred Austin, and "A Kindergarten Concert", had to be followed by a farcial encore, entitled, "Half a Block on a Street Car." Miss Alexander was at her best and the audience rose to the occasion."

BUDGET OF INTERESTING NEWS FROM HAVELOCK

Special to Review.

Havelock, May 3.—The village council held their regular meeting in the council chamber on Monday night at 8 o'clock, with Reeve Knox and Councillors Philip, Toman, Young and Webb present. The minutes of the preceding meeting were received and the following accounts ordered to be paid: Jas. Cattrack, carting, $1; Jas. Thompson, account, $6.81; R. J. Graham, extra constable, $4.00; electric lights for April, $56.80.

On motion of Toman and Young the town hall was given free for the meeting held by McCombe brothers.

The Court of Revision will be held in the council chamber on May 30th to consider any appeals on assessments.

It was decided to purchase a table and four chairs for the town hall at $4.00.

Dr. Holdcroft addressed the council in reference to installing incandescent lights on Cameron street, in place of arc lights, as a test to determine which gives the best light. If they prove satisfactory there is a possibility of the incandescent lights being adopted for all street lighting.

It was decided to offer Mr. M. Clarke $200 for a fifty-foot strip of land, so as to continue King street farther west from Union street.

HARBINGER OF SPRING

The dark-skinned native of sunny Italy with the grind-organ made his first appearance yesterday, and is drawing the usual curious throng of small boys and girls in his wake. A small white mouse, and a pretty little green cockatoo assist him very materially by their antics in collecting the pennies from interested onlookers.

THEATRICAL

Bennett's production, "The Holy City," which appeared here some time ago, is causing a furore in some sections. In connection with the production of religious plays, the Canadian Courier says:

The production of religious plays has grown apace, with a result not altogether beneficial to the orthodox religion. Lately at St. John, N.B., a play, "The Holy City," caused a furore and an injunction was threatened to stop its performance. In Montreal a few weeks ago one of the picture shows advertised in flaring letters the "Passion of Christ." Playing fast and loose with the religious sentiment of individuals as a gross misuse of the liberty. Certainly nothing offensive or sacrilegious occurred at either performance, but it can hardly appeal to the deep thinker as an entertainment to witness a mummified production of a sacred tragedy. "The Sign of the Cross," "Ben Hur" and "The Sorrows of Satan" are plays sufficiently capable of stirring the souls and inspiring to higher morals, without bringing into the theatrical atmosphere such sacred history.

BIG TIME AT BOBCAYGEON

Bobcaygeon, May 2.—The cup that cheers but never inebriates was emptied at Bobcaygeon and filled up with the real stuff. It was the last of April and the last opportunity for at least three long years of hugging the joy can, and no time was lost. The boys from the neighborhood made it their business to be in town for a time, and a time they had. It surely was a big holiday. Trainers endeavored to put a few of the stalwarts over the course, but many proved somewhat jagged on the homestretch. The holiday ended with the closing of the bar at 7 p.m., and many a son of toil wended his weary way homeward over the terra firma complaining of the many ups and downs to be confronted in a three score and ten.

TOWN CLERK WAS CENSURED

Lindsay, May 3.—The charges made by the Citizens' League Committee against Mr. F. Knowlson, the town clerk, in regard to tampering with the voters' lists, occupied the attention of the town councillors last evening for a short time. Mr. J. D. Flavelle was present and was heard in regard to the matter, and the result was that the clerk was exonerated from the charge of "wilfully" tampering with the lists," but was censured by the mayor and the council for being careless, and he was warned to be very careful that a re-occurrence of like events will not occur again in the future.

BETHANY WILL BE HERE TO MEET LOCALS SATURDAY

When the Bethany team meets the C. G. E. Midland leaguers Saturday afternoon at Brinton's meadows, there should be a great football contest. The Electrics took the measure of Brintons last Saturday by a 6—2 score and are looking for another win, but Bethany have always been found in the past capable of putting up the goods in the way of football and the locals will have to travel at a fast gait to take this honors. Percy Fitzgerald will handle the whistle and call the game sharp at three o'clock.

The line-up of the C.G.E. will be;—Carlton, Evans, Donaldson, Sparrow, Milburn, Pagett, J. Hampton, French, Miller (Capt.), Baird and Williams. Forrett and Fielder, reserves.

Brintons journey to Havelock on the 11.38 C.P.R. to meet the champions of that town.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY WILL TRY TO STOP THE BIG FIGHT

San Francisco, Cal., May 3.—District Attorney Donahue announced at Oakland that it would be the fault of the law, and not him, if the Johnson-Jeffries fight was permitted to go on.

"If the law says that such a contest as it is proposed to hold is illegal, it will never be held," he said.

He explained that the only question confronting the District Attorney's office was that of the law.

"I have gone over the law thoroughly, and there is no doubt about it prohibiting prize fights," he said. "but there is a question as to how a prize fight shall be defined under it. At the time the law was passed, a prize fight consisted of a bare knuckle contest and gloves were used in sparring exhibitions. The law provides that the contestants shall be examined by a physician immediately before the fight to see if they are in condition, and if either is not the sparring exhibition must not be held. Every person interested may be assured that if the law prevents such a contest it will be prevented. I am giving the matter serious consideration, and am not ready just now to give an opinion. I do not know, if there is any way by which we can anticipate the nature of the contest or whether we can get the principals and promoters into court and examine them as to the nature of the proposed contest."

Carlos C. White, the attorney for the Oakland Church Federation, asserted that he was reading up all authorities on the question at issue, and that he was confident that a means of stopping the fight would be found.

Petitions that are being circulated among the townships of Oakland protesting to Governor Gillette, and asking him to stop the battle, are receiving many signatures. A series of mass meetings is being arranged by the Church eFderation. The Pastors' Union of San Jose yesterday adopted resolutions asking the Government to prohibit the Jeffries-Johnson fight.

RUNNING

Halifax, N.S., May 4.—Fred S. Cameron, Maritime champion, and winner of the Boston Marathon, defeated J. J. Corkery, of the Toronto Irish-Canadians, champion ten-mile amateur runner of Canada, and breaking his own record, in a ten-mile indoor race here to-night. There were three entries, Cameron, Corkery and Horsman, of St. John.

Cameron won in 54 minutes and 13 seconds, with Corkery only 10 seconds behind. Both men finished fresh.

BASEBALL

The West Ends will practice at Riverside Park to-morrow evening at 6.30, and on Saturday afternoon at 3.30. All players are asked to be on hand in good time.

The meeting of the City Baseball League will be held to-morrow night and not Monday, as stated in last night's Review.

Toronto took a tumble yesterday and was from the Skeeters 6—3. Rudolph was hit hard but Grimshaw's feat of hitting out a home run with the bases full helped some.

Bobbie's Absence Explained.

Bobbie's Sunday School Teacher—I've called, Mrs. Jector, to learn why little Bobbie doesn't come to his class any more.

Mrs. Jector—I'll tell you why, Miss Leaflette. The knowledge he received there was making Bobbie a wicked boy.

Bobbie's Sunday School Teacher—A wicked boy! Really, Mrs. Jector, I can't imagine what you have reference to.

Mrs. Jector—I'll explain, Miss Leaflette. The last time Bobbie attended Sunday school you taught him that people are made of dust. Well, he came home and nearly frightened me to death by trying to draw his little baby sister into the vacuum cleaner.—Chicago News.

THE COMET ON THE CAR.

Talk About the Halley Blazer From the Back Platform.

The man on the back platform was explaining the prospective behavior of the coming comet.

"As I understand it," he oracularly remarked, "th' old sky geezer will take th' switch just before it blows down for th' crossin', an' as it strikes th' metals th' caboose is more than likely to side swipe this little mud ball of ours."

The short man with the batwing tie looked up inquiringly.

"And what will be the result?" he asked.

The knowing man frowned in a discouraging manner.

"Th' tail of that elastic old skyrocket," he replied, "is loaded down with meteoric brickbats an' cobblestones an' tin cans' an' gases. As th' cracker slews around that load o' junk gets shifted an' scatties through space. It's just like th' bang-bang of forty thousan' battleships all at once! See? An' that shower of stuff mows down everything it touches. If th' angle of incidentals is a little short of th' perihelion it don't cut so close, you know. Mebby it might just clip th' skyscrapers an' th' steeples. If it digs lower it's goin' to flip th' business blocks an' th' 'partment flats an' th' city hall an' th' flagpoles."

The short man with the batwing tie looked up anxiously.

"Say," he interrupted, "do you think it will come as close as five feet from th' ground?"

"No," replied the wise man, "I don't."

"That lets me out," chuckled the short man.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Live Duke Abroad.

The late Washington Duke of Durham, N. C., who manufactured tobacco products so extensively for a quarter of a century, used to tell a quaint little story on himself. "The first time I traveled abroad," he said, "I visited Brussels and went to see all its sights. In one of the public buildings I found an ordinary looking armchair carefully railed off and with a chain across its front. Being tired with a hard morning of tramping, I stepped over the fence, let down the chain and, with a big sigh of relief, dropped into this chair, the only one I had seen in the building. A guard in lace and buttons was on me at once.

"'No sitting in that chair!' he blustered. 'See the card on the back? The Duke of Wellington once occupied that chair.'

"'Well, and what of it?' I returned cool as a cucumber. 'I'm Duke of Durham and alive at that!'

"This settled the matter. Down to the floor went that flunky, brushing the dust from my heavy American shoes with his handkerchief of real European linen. A way up English title catches them every time. I had my rest out in that solid old chair of the Waterloo hero."—Wasp.

More Than She Could Stand.

"Say, ma, I ain't goin' over to Mrs Jimsey's no more."

"Why, Georgie? It's such a nice place to go!"

"She don't want me to come over no more."

"Then you must have been naughty What did you do?"

"I broke a glass dish."

"Dear, dear!"

"Oh, she didn't care 'bout that. I did somethin worser."

"Why, what was it?"

"I sat down on three puffickly good eggs!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer

SCENE I.

Time—1688.

Place—Moscow, Russia; a room in the royal palace.

[Princess Sophia is seen entering; is excited and angry. General Couransky follows her.]

SOPHIA—Did you see how pleased they were, General?

GENERAL—Yes, Princess. They expressed their pleasure openly.

SOPHIA—Oh, if only they had not taken it into their heads to visit Peter's schoolroom!

GENERAL—It is an unfortunate thing for us and our plans, Princess.

SOPHIA—A half hour ago they were praising me. Now 'tis all for Peter!

GENERAL—His memory astonished them. There was no question he could not answer, no problem he could not work, and all so readily I myself confess to astonishment.

SOPHIA—Well, he has won over the Grand Duke and the nobles.

GENERAL—Completely, Princess. In fact, I overheard the Grand Duke say that Peter should be crowned at once.

SOPHIA—You heard that!

GENERAL—Yes, Princess.

SOPHIA—They dare not crown him while my own brother lives! He is the rightful Emperor!

GENERAL—But there is grumbling everywhere because John is allowed to rule. 'Tis well known that he is sick and has no mind.

SOPHIA—'Tis also well known that I am the real ruler of Russia. Do they mean to end my regency? Speak plainly, General. Tell me the reports you have heard.

GENERAL—The nobles chafe against your power, Princess. They say it is against the law for a woman to rule over Russia, even as regent, and even though the Emperor is her own brother.

SOPHIA—True; but against that law I have obtained that power, and I shall not lose what I have won! Nay, I'll have more power and glory! I will have the throne! I will be crowned Empress of all Russia!

GENERAL—In spite of laws and custom?

SOPHIA—In spite of everything! The battle is half won now. You must support me, General. I'll give you power second only to mine when I am Empress.

GENERAL—My support you have and will have, Princess.

SOPHIA—And the nobles I would have, were Peter in disfavor. Oh, that they had never visited that schoolroom! Are they still there, General?

GENERAL (looking off)—They are just leaving now. They are coming here, Your Highness.

[Sophia sits, trying to compose herself. Enter the Grand Duke and Nobles, all greatly pleased.]

GRAND DUKE—Your Highness may well be proud of a brother like Prince Peter there.

SOPHIA—Ah—yes—yes—to be sure.

FIRST NOBLE—What a mind the boy has! 'Tis marvellous!

SECOND NOBLE—His memory is wonderful!

THIRD NOBLE—He will make a great ruler, Your Highness.

SOPHIA—Ah, no doubt, if it should ever come to that. But I have hopes of the Emperor John's recovery.

GRAND DUKE—You deceive yourself in that, Princess. The Emperor cannot live much longer. I would advise the crowning of Prince Peter, gentlemen, as soon as he becomes of age. [Going.] With your permission, Princess.

[All bow and go.]

SOPHIA—It shall never be! As I live, it shall never be! So bid the tutor come.

[The General goes. Sophia walks up and down excitedly. Enter the General with the tutor, Mr. Menesius, and Prince Peter, a boy of seventeen, strong, manly and intelligent.]

PETER—Did I do well, sister? Were you pleased with me?

SOPHIA (coldly)—Your tutor had no doubt told you what to say, and had well rehearsed your answers.

PETER—Not a bit of it! Was it that way, sir?

TUTOR—No, Your Highness. Open the books at any place I will, the Prince will know the lesson.

Enter Prince Peter in Uniform at the Head of a Battalion of Boys

TUTOR—I—I—do not understand, Your Highness.

SOPHIA—It is not my wish that Peter should know much about books.

TUTOR—He loves them, Princess. They are his meat and drink.

SOPHIA—You must persuade him to give them up—to spend his time in hunting.

TUTOR—The Prince hunts often, Your Highness, and every day takes much exercise.

SOPHIA—It is my command that Peter grow up without this learning that you give him. Now, then, do you understand? [Silence—pause.] Well?

TUTOR—I will not do a thing so wicked!

SOPHIA—You will not?

TUTOR—No, I will not!

SOPHIA—To prison with him, General!

TUTOR—Madame, I am a Scotchman. You dare not touch my person.

SOPHIA—Peter, you may go. [Peter bows and goes.] I am most pleased with you, sir.

TUTOR—Your Highness, I have been most conscientious in my duties.

SOPHIA—It is unnecessary to remain so.

SOPHIA—I banish you from Russia! You must leave the palace instantly! Send a guard with him, General. See that he speaks with no one, either in the palace or out of it.

GENERAL—Yes, Your Highness.

SOPHIA (to tutor)—Peter's tutor shall be of my choosing from now on. There shall be no more such displays of knowledge. Go, and stop not for leave takings with your pupil! Go!

[The tutor goes, accompanied by the General.]

SCENE II.

TIME—One year later.

PLACE—A palace near Moscow, Peter's school.

[The courtyard of the palace is seen, with a guard at the gates. Princess Sophia enters. She is accompanied by three court ladies and by General Couransky.]

SOPHIA (to guard)—Have the Grand Duke and nobles arrived?

GUARD—No, Your Highness.

SOPHIA—Go bid the tutors come. [The guard salutes and goes.] Are you sure they mean to come to-day, General?

GENERAL—My informant said to-day and at this time.

SOPHIA—Well, they will not be so well pleased as they were with their last visit to Peter's school.

[Enter four tutors, weak looking creatures.]

TUTORS (bowing humbly)—Your Highness, General.

SOPHIA—Tell me in one word how things are going here.

FIRST TUTOR—Your orders have been obeyed, Your Highness. We call our classes scarce once a month.

SOPHIA—How do you encourage the Prince to spend his time?

SECOND TUTOR—In idleness, Your Highness.

SOPHIA—Do the other boys complain of aught?

THIRD TUTOR—No, Your Highness; they follow the Prince in everything.

SOPHIA—Do you drill them or teach them military science?

ALL TUTORS—Oh, no!

SOPHIA (aside to General)—You see, my plan has worked. The nobles will find Peter but an idler and a blockhead.

[Enter the Grand Duke and Nobles. They bow to the Princess.]

GRAND DUKE—Ah, I did not know Your Highness was here.

SOPHIA—My interest in Prince Peter led me hither.

FIRST NOBLE—This school was planned by Your Majesty, I believe.

PRINCESS—Yes, Count, and the sons of nobles are allowed to come without charge for books or teachers.

SECOND—Your Highness is generous.

THIRD NOBLE—The boys are fortunate to have Prince Peter for a brother pupil. He will spur them on—will be a leader of them all!

NOBLES—Yes, yes!

SOPHIA—He is their leader, Count, but a leader in idleness and neglect of every duty.

GRAND DUKE—What is this?

SOPHIA—The tutors have just reported to me, and it is my duty to tell you all, though 'tis with shame I speak, Prince Peter will not study and allows no one else to do so. He is unruly, defies his tutors and mistreats these noble pupils. He will not drill and forbids it to the others. He has become, in fact, an idler, a bully and a dullard.

GRAND DUKE—Now, I am sorry to hear this. There never was a boy that gave a fairer promise.

FIRST NOBLE—This matter grieves me greatly. I had thought that in Peter we would have a learned and wise Emperor.

SECOND NOBLE—'Twill be a sad disappointment to all Russia.

THIRD NOBLE—There is no one to visit the classes now. I, for one, have heard enough to sadden the heart of any patriot. Shall we return?

GRAND DUKE—One moment, gentlemen. From what we have learned here to-day we should be slow to offer Russia's crown to Prince Peter.

ALL—Aye, aye!

GENERAL—Then I propose to crown the Princess Sophia. Her Highness has been most faithful to Emperor John. Death will soon take that brother from her. Shall we deprive her of the throne she has protected so carefully and with such great wisdom?

GRAND DUKE—The ancient laws of Russia forbid our throne to women, but I am so disappointed in Prince Peter that I for one am willing to consider your suggestion. What say you, gentlemen?

[Sophia leans forward anxiously. Suddenly sharp military commands are heard, with the sound of marching. Enter Prince Peter in uniform and at the head of a battalion of boys in uniform. He does not see the visitors, who go to one side.]

PETER—Battalion, halt! Present arms! Right shoulder arms! Left shoulder arms! Order arms!

[He consults a slip of paper.]

I have made out the classes for to-day as follows:—Company A, you will recite now in mathematics to me. The tutor in mathematics does not know how to work the problems.

[He looks scornfully at the First Tutor, who trembles.]

Stack arms, Company A! Study!

[Each member of Company A takes a book from his knapsack and studies.]

Company B, attention! In one hour from now you will recite history to me. The history tutor, as you know, knows nothing but his A, B, C's.

[He looks scornfully at the Second Tutor, who trembles.]

Stack arms, Company B! Study.

[Each member of Company B takes a book from his knapsack and studies.]

Company C, attention! In two hours from now you will have French with me. The French tutor knows not a word of French and sickens when he hears it.

[He looks scornfully at the Third Tutor, who trembles.]

Stack arms, Company C! Study!

[Each member of Company C takes a book from his knapsack and studies. Pause. Peter consults his paper.]

Attention, all! After lunch, promptly at one, all will come to me for map and fortress drawing. Your tutor in drawing tells me he never drew in all his life.

[He looks at the Fourth Tutor, who trembles.]

From two to three I will lecture on military tactics. You will then prepare for dress parade. At half-past three I will inspect your uniforms and arms. At four I will review you. From five to six you are free to rest. From seven to nine you will prepare in my own rooms your lessons for to-morrow. That is all. Study!

[The boys study furiously.]

Tutors, go play croquet, then dine on dainties like cream puffs. Go! I cannot bear the sight of you!

[The tutors slink away. The nobles rush down upon Peter and embrace him.]

GRAND DUKE—Peter! My prince! My prince!

NOBLES—Prince Peter! Prince Peter!

GRAND DUKE—Those lying tutors deceived you, Princess. Prince Peter an idler! He is the busiest boy in Russia! And I say this is the best school in Russia to-day!

NOBLES—Ay! Ay!

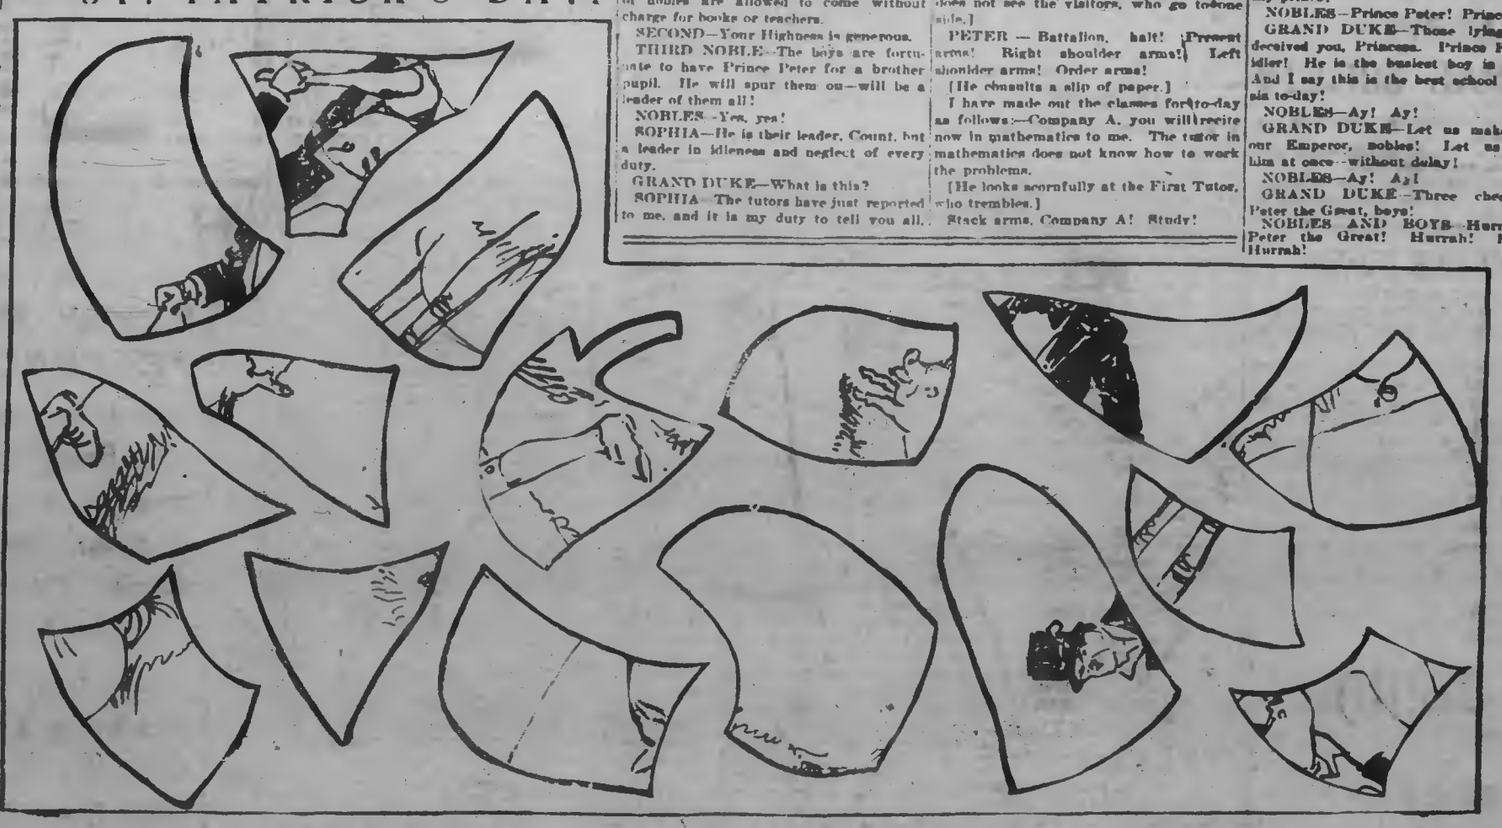
GRAND DUKE—Let us make Peter our Emperor, nobles! Let us crown him at once—without delay!

NOBLES—Ay! Ay!

GRAND DUKE—Three cheers for Peter the Great, boys!

NOBLES AND BOYS—Hurrah for Peter the Great! Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!

A JIG SAW PUZZLE FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY.



Cut out the pieces of the jig-saw puzzle and fit them together. You will be surprised and charmed with the interesting result.

MISS DOLLY'S FASHIONABLE EASTER HAT.

It is now time to be planning Miss Dolly's spring hat, for it would be very sad if Easter were to arrive and find the doll beauties still wearing their old winter headgear. This season it will be, for many of the newest styles are especially suited to dolls.

One [illegible] hats which you can make for your [illegible] is of white lace. The only necessary is a stiff band of paper or buckram, quite narrow and sewed together so as to form a circle. This should fit the doll's head. It should be covered with a white ribbon or muslin, and one on each side. Then sew the lower edge of this crown to the upper edge of the band all. Make the brim of a ruffle of lace. It may be a double ruffle formed by cutting a circular piece of material, and pleating it up to fit the stiff bandeau. Make small pleats or gathers all around, or four box pleats, one back, one front, and one on each side. Then sew the lower edge of this crown to the upper edge of the band all. Make the brim of a ruffle of lace. It may be a double ruffle formed by a broad piece of lace or a single ruffle made by a lace with a fancy edge. Sew this to the lower part of the stiff bandeau. The ruffle should not be so wide that it falls over the doll's eyes.

To trim the hat use a piece of ribbon twisted around the crown and finished with a bow in front and a flower in the bow.

IS PERFECT FENCING MATERIAL.

Species of Cacti Form Hedges Practically Impenetrable.

The hedges which we ordinarily see bordering country estates are planted for their ornamental and beautifying effect, and not as a substitute for fencing material, but in the extreme southwestern part of the United States there are many hedges which serve primarily this latter purpose. Various species of cacti, such as the prickly pear, are used by ranchmen to inclose cattle ranges in these arid regions, and these hedges are practically impenetrable. Wild animals are thus effectually prevented from attacking the herds and flocks, and a supply of fodder may always be obtained by burning off the spines from the tender young shoots of the cactus.

Remains of hedges 15 feet in height are to be seen near the locations of the old missions in southern California, where they once served as fortifications to protect the little settlements. Instead of fences the Mexicans use what is known as the organ cactus. When stakes of this plant are set in the earth they readily take root, and soon present a formidable barrier of thorns.—Harper's Weekly.

INSPIRATION WAS HAPPY ONE.

Good Idea That Rescued Student from a Serious Dilemma.

A student in one of the theological colleges found himself face to face with an examination in Old Testament history—a subject which he had entirely ignored all term. Taking counsel with some friends, he decided that all he really needed to know was the long list of the names of the kings of Israel and their dates. So he crammed them each and all into his bursting head. But, sad to relate, all he was asked to do was to criticise the acts of Moses. Not one act of Moses, good, bad, or indifferent, could the unfortunate youth remember, so, after much thought, he wrote as follows:

"Far be it for one as humble as I am to criticise the acts of the great Moses; but, if you would care to know the names of the kings of Israel and their dates, you will find them written below!"

He was passed.

As to the Lungs.

The lungs are the life. When a man can breathe lustily no ordinary malady can kill him. I know an old chap who was given up three years ago by seven "able" physicians and one "able" surgeon. Their verdict was: "He can't last over three weeks." He is still in the ring, while three of the doctors have cashed in their checks. A man can live 40 days without food, a few days without water, and a few minutes without air. The lungs are the soul. A man can live without stomach, bowels, heart, liver, kidneys, spleen or brains—but he can't live without air! The air cleans the blood. Drink air by the million cubic feet and you will never die. Don't wait for the tank of oxygen to come along. Drink deeply of the common ether. Have it pure and plug yourself full every hour.

Medicine in the Sea.

The sea, according to certain scientists, can furnish not only nourishment, but medicine. A distinguished French practitioner prescribes the drinking of sea water as a cure for diabetes, the water being aerated in order to remove its impurities and, to some extent, its nauseous flavor. It has also been administered with success in cases of bronchitis and pleurisy. Experiments carried out on consumptive patients show that subcutaneous injections of sea water are beneficial, at all events in the early stages of tuberculosis. Bread made with sea water is said by those who have tried it to be most appetising and nourishing.

Find Happiness in Children.

Very domestic is the life of the Belgians, and the children enter into every sort of interest of the parents. They would not think of going to the restaurant or summer garden without the children, and their own pleasures are often but the reflected ones of their boys and girls. The father goes to the circus with his little troupe of young folks about him and enjoys their joys. The happiness of the people is centered in their homes, and anything that will interfere with the good of the child is not tolerated by the self-respecting Belgians.

Indian Baskets Tell Stories.

The making of Indian baskets is the work of the women of the tribe. Unhonored and unsung, unknown even to the daughters of her daughters, the Indian woman basket maker passes to her grave, leaving behind her a chain of woven books, each a volume in itself. The aboriginal basket maker puts into every piece of work she turns out as much of the history of her race as she knows and all of her own life. If she can express it in the set pictures or figures which have been handed down to her since basketry began.—The Bohemian.

Oddity of Dreams.

"Nobody ever feels pain in a dream," said a psychologist. "Rage, terror, joy, grief—these emotions stab us as poignantly in dream as in reality. But physical pain, no. I have interrogated 2,000 persons, and none of them ever suffered dream pains. Yet they have dreamed of dreadful motor accidents, tortures, death. One young girl indeed, dreamed time and again of being eaten alive by cannibals; yet even in that horrible nightmare she felt no pain."

383 GEORGE STREET, PETERBOROUGH

ADVOCATED ORGANIZATION OF A CHORAL SOCIETY

At the conclusion of the concert at St. Paul's last night a most enjoyable time was held in the Sunday school room, when those who took part in the programme were guests at a supper prepared by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church.

An interesting address was given by Mr. A. E. L. Davies, of Toronto, one of the soloists of the evening and a member of the Mendelssohn choir. Mr. Davies spoke very highly of the singing of the choir at the concert and said that the Mendelssohn choir had been organized some time before the degree of excellence shown by St. Paul's choir in their various selections of the evening was attained. He most encouragingly advocated the formation of a permanent choral society in Peterborough with the body of singers who had acquitted themselves so commendably at the concert as the members of the organization.

As the result of Mr. Davies' admonition a committee was formed to take preliminary steps in the matter, with instructions to report in a week's time.

If such a society is organized Mr. Crane will act as director.

The evening broke up with enthusiastic cheers for the conductor of the choir.

MAKES HAIR GROW

Wm. Madill Has an Invigorator That Makes Hair Grow in Abundantly or Money Back

If your hair is thinning out gradually it won't be long before the bald spot appears.

The time to take care of your hair is when you have hair to take care of.

For thin falling hair the best remedy known to mankind is Parisian Sage. It is compounded on scientific principles and furnishes to the hair root a nourishment that acts quickly and promptly and causes the hair to grow.

But remember this:—"It kills the dandruff germ, the pest that appropriates all the natural nourishment that should go to the hair root.

Parisian Sage is sold by Wm. Madill, druggist, under a positive guarantee to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It gives to women's hair a lustre and radiance that is most fascinating and causes it to grow abundantly.

Parisian Sage is now sold in every first-class town in Canada. A large generous bottle costs 50 cents, and the girl with Auburn hair is on every bottle.

Canada's Flagship

The Weekly Sun.

The Niobe, which is to form the first vessel in Canada's war fleet, is 13 years old. Her boilers are reported to be of an obsolete type, as her guns certainly are, and the vessel herself was so near the scrap heap stage that the British Government is selling her for one-third her original cost.

The admiral who is to command the fleet was in charge of a British battleship when she ran on a shoal, and since the enquiry following thereupon he does not appear to have been on active service.

We are creating a force for which we have no need and if need did exist there would be poor promise of efficiency for the purpose to be served.

The Government is doing, to quote Sir Wilfrid's own phase, a "causeless, senseless, useless" thing, and doing it very badly.

THE NI... RAP

This S... Be the S... th.

Every summer there is a wrap for cool evening wear that takes precedence over all other models. This year it's going to be the net shawl, and the illustration shows how graceful this accessory is when worn by a tall, slim girl. The small, plump maiden should beware of this fascinating wrap, for it's not for her. The tall and Juno-like beauty is the person to carry off the wrap to perfection. The idea seems to be to evolve these shawls from bright colored nets—a tone that gives a dash of daring to an otherwise toneless costume—still, in white, with a band of silver galoon, the effect would be charming. A mourning shawl would be chic made of coarse Brussels net bordered with crape. But the variations are endless, and in all guises this shawl will take the place of the scarfs and long cloaks of last summer.

The Halley Comet Hat Is Here.

The forerunner of the famous sky visitor, Halley's comet, which has been traveling through space for, lo, these many centuries, has arrived this spring in the guise of a stunning hat. This comet hat is the chicest turban shape you ever did see, and the illustration gives only a faint idea of its real beauty. The hat is of dark blue straw trimmed with velvet a shade lighter. The comet effect is carried out with the cabuchon of velvet on which is mounted a silver star. A feathered aigret of mingled tones of gray and blue symbolizes the tail of the astronomical phenomenon.

Ideal Kitchen.

An ideal kitchen is one that has two windows at least and three if possible. There is plenty of room to move about and everything is properly stored. It has hardwood floors, which are easy to keep clean, and the walls and ceiling are painted instead of papered. The sink is built quite high, and there is ample room for two tubs, and, lastly, the ideal kitchen is one that hot water would not hurt.

The steamer "Belle of Scotland" left Sydney for Prince Rupert with 6,000 tons of rails.

IN CASE OF INVASION.

What Britain Must Do to Protect Her Shores.

Not long ago, when British naval manoeuvres were in progress, one of our admirals was instructed to consider that he was in command of a squadron which was convoying transports containing 70,000 soldiers. He was also directed to land those troops, if he could, at a certain Scottish port. The admiral's area of operations was the North Sea. Now the North Sea is notorious for bad and uncertain weather, and is particularly susceptible to fogs. It happened that the admiral had fog nearly all the way across that famous stretch of water, and the result was that in theory he managed to reach his port and land his men, that is to say, if he had been in reality an enemy, he could have invaded Scotland.

His performance negatives the assertion which has been so often made that invasion of Great Britain is impossible. Nothing is impossible in war, when the unexpected so often happens, and on several occasions these imaginary descents on our own shores have been carried out with great success.

If in the next naval war the fight for sea supremacy takes place on the North Sea, as most authorities believe it will, no Englishman can escape from the depressing feeling that on any morning he may awake to learn that the country has been raided by a foreign horde, and that his own life and property are in peril, and that his fellow countrymen have been plunged into the worst horrors that humanity can know. During very recent years the possibility of invasion has been recognized, and, as I have already pointed out, the British fleet has been completely reorganized and redistributed with a view to meet such attempts to land on our shores. So heavy will be the strain and responsibility on the heads of our fleets in such times that it is scarcely possible for an ordinary person to realize the immensity of the burden.

When the conflict does come it will be such as the world has never known on the waters, because there have never been such powerful fighting machines afloat.

Let us assume that hostilities suddenly break out between ourselves and a powerful European nation, one possessing a fleet almost equal in strength to our own, or, at least, equal to any fleet that we can put against it without weakening our naval power in other parts of the world. We know that everything depends on our smashing the enemy at sea, and making it impossible to cover a landing force. Once he gets a footing he has achieved his main purpose; for while we are desperately striving to destroy him he will claim our attention elsewhere in the world.

War has been declared, and the Dreadnoughts and super-Dreadnoughts of both powers meet and fight for mastery. The whole forces of both nations it seems, have been assembled for the combat, and when the rival fleets encounter each other there ensues a contest of unparalleled ferocity.

The huge steel monsters fire at each other from almost incredible distances. Here a lucky shot from a 12-inch gun creates such havoc that one of the opposing ships is put out of action and promptly starts away to try and seek salvation in flight. After her, however, goes a powerful modern British cruiser, a ship as formidable almost as the disabled battleship. She pursues her crippled antagonist, hanging on with ease and pounding her with her big guns. There is no help for it—the wounded leviathan must either surrender or be destroyed, and the captain, having done his duty, determined to lose no more lives and so he strikes his flag.—London Scraps.

A Sporting Romance.

Perhaps one of the most remarkable sporting love-stories is that contained in the late Mr. J. M. K. Eliott's sporting reminiscences regarding the Grafton country.

Speaking of harriers, he thus tells the little romance, which has a happy ending all round: In old days there was another pack near Bedford, the owner of which had an only daughter who was passionately fond of going out with the harriers. There was a young magnate in Bedford who also had a great taste for currant jelly, and he found out the meets and attended very regularly. The lady of the house saw what the loadstone was, and, not approving of any encouragement being made in a certain quarter, the squire had no peace until the hounds were sent away.

When the day fixed for the departure of the pack came the poor squire took leave of them, and sent them by road to London to be sold. They had not been long gone before the squire was informed that his daughter had eloped with the young magnate. He at once summoned a messenger and started him to overtake the hounds and bring them back. "They are sure to want them when they come home!" he said. He was a good father.—Gentlewoman.

A Queer Cocoanut.

A showman's clever dodge was discovered recently at a fair held at Birkenhead, Eng., as a result of which he was arrested and heavily fined for obtaining money by false pretences. The story told by the detectives was that they saw a young man pay a penny for a "shy" at a cocoanut temptingly placed on a lodge four yards from where he stood. Although he hit the nut with a sounding force, he failed to dislodge it. The officers then entered the stall with the intention of examining it. One of them went to pick up the nut, and was jostled by the stallkeeper, while his assistant skillfully changed the "nut" for a genuine one. However, the officers obtained the right article, which turned out to be a cannon ball weighing twelve pounds, over which cocoanut fibre had been cleverly glued, giving it the appearance of a genuine cocoanut.

Shaky Foundations.

The ground under the city of San Salvador is full of caverns of unknown depths. A man was once digging a well there. At the last stroke he gave with his pick the bottom fell out, and he and his pick fell through nobody knows where.

CAVAN NEWS

Cavan, May 2.—Mr. P. Ball, of Cavanville gristmill, intends making some big improvements to the mill this summer. The contract for the work being given to Mr. Ross Staples, of Brunswick.

Mr. Norman McGill, of Cavanville, was successful in carrying off third prize at the Lindsay horse show with his new horse the "Pride of Balmeer." It was very good, considering he was the only colt in the class, the rest being aged horses. Mr. Joe Staples won first.

Friends and acquaintances of Mr. Wm. Rutherford, of Cavan, will regret to learn that he has been on the sick list for some time past. We all join in wishing him a speedy recovery.

Seeding is pretty well under way in this part of the country, a great many of the farmers being through. There has been very little done on the land this last two weeks, owing to the frequent rains, which have fallen, rendering the land unfit to work.

MOST ALARMING BULLETINS ABOUT THE KING'S ILLNESS

KING EDWARD'S CONDITION IS NOW VERY SERIOUS

Bulletin Issued by Five Physicians in Attendance Expressed Grave Anxiety—Immense Crowds Are Waiting for News — Stock Market Depressed.

London, May 6.—The kingdom was thrown into consternation last night by the sudden and totally unexpected announcement that King Edward was suffering from bronchitis in a form which caused some anxiety to his physicians, two of whom are sleeping at Buckingham Palace, in order to be on hand in case of need.

The first intimation that anything was amiss was the failure of the King to meet the Queen, who returned from the continent yesterday evening. It has been the King's invariable rule to be present on the Queen's arrival from any out-of-town journey, and his absence yesterday evening was made the subject of general comment immediately it was noted.

The Queen hurried to the palace, and soon afterwards the public learned by an official announcement that the King had been ill for two days. The fact that his illness had been thus concealed from public knowledge increased the alarm.

On Thursday His Majesty had a busy day. On Friday he also gave several audiences, and visited the theatre in the evening.

The King spent the week-end at Sandringham, with the object of combatting the threatened attack, and returned apparently better, but the sudden changes in the weather this week were trying to His Majesty, and finally compelled him to keep in doors.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING.

He still attended to state business, however, and granted audiences. On Wednesday he entertained Grand Duke Michael at luncheon.

In fact, it was only yesterday that his physicians were able to induce King Edward to keep to his bedroom and take a complete rest.

The bulletin issued at 7.30 o'clock yesterday evening showed that the eminent specialist, Sir Richard Douglas Powell, has been called in. He, with the King's physicans, Sir Francis Laking and Sir James Reid, signed the bulletin, which read: "The King is suffering from an attack of bronchitis and has been confined to his rooms for two dayes. His Majesty's condition causes some anxiety."

The King is in good spirits, despite his illness, and in addition to long visits from members of the royal family, he received in audience yesterday morning Lord Islington and other colonial officials. Both Sir Francis Laking and Sir James Reid remained in Buckingham Palace throughout the night. It is stated, however, that this is merely a precautionary measure, as the King's illness is not grave.

A consultation was held late last night, but no bulletin was issued, it being merely reported that the King was resting comfortably.

A court circular, which was sent out about 8 o'clock states that His Majesty was unable to meet the Queen because he was suffering from a severe cold. The Prince of Wales has been in constant attendance for the past two days, and last evening the Duchess of Argyll was summoned to the palace. The Duke and Duchess of Teck also came, but all the visitors left Buckingham before 11 o'clock, and, according to the latest report, the King's condition at midnight was more reassuring. Anxiety will continue, nevertheless, as it is known that His Majesty is subject to serious fainting spells.

Although cable despatches to the New York newspapers have of late been declaring that His Majesty is in a serious state of ill-health, no great attention has been paid to them, as the health of a reigning monarch, at an advanced age, is always a topic to delight the "foreign correspondent." As a matter of fact, however, English newspapers are under a restraint as to publishing any gossip which might be taken to mean that the King or Queen is seriously ill.

Not since 1902, however, has there been such an alarming announcement as that of yesterday. It will be remembered that two days before the date set for the coronation—June 26, 1902—the world was startled to learn that the King was suffering from perityphlites, and that a serious operation was necessary. Public intercession took the place of rejoicing. Happily, the operation was successful, and His Majesty made a rapid recovery, the postponed ceremony taking place Aug 9. His Majesty is now in his 70th year.

THE KING IS WORSE

Special to the Review.

London, May 6.—King Edward is much worse. His condition was so grave that a consultation of five of the most famous physicians was held at Buckingham Palace. The following bulletin was afterwards posted being signed by the five doctors:—

"The King passed a comparatively quiet night, but the symptoms are unimproved. His Majesty's condition gives rise to grave anxiety."

LAKING,
REID,
POWELL,
THOMPSON.

The physicians are exerting their utmost efforts to ward off pneumonia which threatens to develop from the bronchial trouble. A heavy force of police are guarding the palace grounds and the roadways have been covered with peat to insure silence. There is great anxiety in London and huge crowds are watching the bulletins. There has been no such alarming announcement of the King's condition since 1902. The stock market is depressed.

ANOTHER ALARMING BULLETIN

London, May 6.—The following bulletin was issued from the palace at 6.30 to-night, London time: "The King's symptoms became worse during the day and His Majesty's condition is now serious." This was signed by the five physicians.

Premier Asquith has been summoned from Spain.

There is the highest unofficial authority for the statement that the King's illness has developed into double pneumonia. Drs. Laking and Reid have not left the palace since being summoned there.

Church services are already being held and prayers publicly offered for his recovery. The illness dates from last Monday, when he was seized with a chill at Sandringham.

THE KING SINKING RAPIDLY

Special to the Review.

London, May 6.—The Canadian Associated Press learn that one of the King's physicians, in telephoning to his private residence, stated that the King was sinking rapidly.

CORNWALL VICTIMS

Funeral of Those Who Died in the Rossmore Hotel Fire

Cornwall, May 6.—The funeral of the last of the fire victims will be held to-morrow, when the remains of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gray and their two children will be taken to Toronto by the International Limited, for interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The funeral service will be in Trinity Anglican Church at 9 a.m.

William Hulme and Ernest Buller, both of Montreal, waiter and bell boy respectively, in the ill-fated Rossmore, will be interred in Woodlawn Cemetery on Friday morning. Hulme belonged to the Church of England, and Buller was a Roman Catholic. They roomed together, and it was impossible to sort the bones found under their room. It speaks well for the growing width of opinion and general tolerance that Roman and Anglican will be buried together in one grave. Rev. T. J. Stiles, rector of Trinity Church, will officiate. Mr. and Mrs. Buller of Montreal were in town and agreed to the joint burial.

The ruins of the Rossmore are being cleared away, but whether or not Mrs. Ross will rebuild the hotel, it is impossible to state at this time. One thing is certain, that Cornwall needs a hotel to take the place of the Rossmore, and if Mrs. Ross does not undertake to venture, it is not unlikely that a syndicate of local capitalists will build a modern and up-to-date house for the accommodation of the public.

Taft's Motive.

London, May 6.—The Times says that President Taft possibly sees in the movement towards reciprocity with Canada a golden opportunity of reconstructing the Republican fiscal program and of re-establishing the party's prestige in the west.

Ministers' Movements.

Ottawa, May 6.—Mr. Aylesworth and Mr. Fisher have gone abroad. Sir Wilfrid, Mr. Graham and probably Messrs. Fielding and Oliver will go west in July. Mr. Pugsley will go to New Brunswick and Sir Frederick Borden to Nova Scotia.

Eminent Physician Dead.

Watertown, N.Y., May 6.—Dr. J. D. Spencer, aged 60, a leading physician, died yesterday of apoplexy. He was an eminent gynecologist and surgeon and was the first to introduce the use of chloroform in operations in northern New York.

A despatch from San Francisco says—Welcomed and honored by representatives of the nation, state and city, as well as by thousands of his own countrymen, His Imperial Highness, Prince Tsai Tao, chief of staff of the Chinese Army, brother of the Prince Regent and uncle of the Emperor, is now in this city at the head of the Imperial Chinese Military Commission, which is making a tour of the world.

The Prince, who is a young man of pleasing presence, less than thirty years of age, speaks no English and until now has never travelled, either in America or Europe.

"I am glad to have this opportunity to visit America," he said. "The great democracy, of which I have heard so much all my life and which has always been so true a friend of the Chinese Empire. Speaking for myself and also my associates of the Commission we are much pleased with the warmth of our reception here and with the courtesies extended to us by the representatives of your government and your army and navy, as well as by the Chinese residents of San Francisco."

FINTON WAS MURDERED BY PERSON UNKNOWN

Is the Verdict of the Coroner's Jury at Stoney Creek—Mr. Kerr Thinks She Saw Iron Bar in Tom Finton's Rig, But is Not Positive.

Stony Creek, May 6.—Too much mystery surrounds the death of Elijah Finton to convince the jury at the inquest here last night. After deliberating from 10 until 11.45 p.m. they returned an open verdict:

"We find that Elijah Finton came to his death on the morning of April 26, at his farm at Saltfleet, by being struck on the head with some heavy instrument in the hands of some person unknown to the jury."

It is understood that much evidence has been withheld by the crown, the only sensation last night being the evidence of Mrs. Kerr, housekeeper at the Finton house, who said she saw Tom Finton, son of the dead man, put something that looked like an iron bar in his rig before he drove away that morning.

More evidence to the effect that deceased had been greatly annoyed was adduced. Tom had money in his possession when arrested that could not be accounted for by his employer's book. His statement about his father having helped him hitch the wagon was disproved, as well as the evidence of Teresa Dean, who thought she saw Finton at the house after Tom drove away.

Tom seems to be the only one of the family who is not able to explain his movements on the day in question. "His statements seem to be contradictory," said Coroner B. E. Thompson, when addressing the jury.

George Millen, reeve, was again called. He corroborated Harrison's evidence about leaving. When he had looked at the body he followed Tom, who had not approached closely, and suggested that tramps might have done it. He asked Tom if deceased had been in the habit of carrying money, and Tom said he often carried large sums.

Deceased had told him several times about the annoyance the Scott family had caused him. Mrs. Scott, Tom's wife's mother, was the cause of all the trouble. Deceased further said to him that the Scotts were trying to drive him out. He had said that he would dispose of the place and Tom would not get a damn cent.

Mrs. Kerr, housekeeper, was recalled.

"Did you put any blood on this man's overalls?" asked the crown attorney.

"No, I did not," she answered. "I did not see the overalls."

George Finton had told her that her advent had displeased Tom. She asked him and he had told her that she had caused no trouble. George told her that Tom wanted his wife there, but not if she was there. Mrs. Kerr had said that she would be glad if Mrs. Tom came, as she would be company.

On the morning of the murder Tom did not seem to be in a pleasant mood towards his father. Finton had been cheerful. Tom merely answered when questioned by his father.

Deceased had not been in sight when Tom hitched up. He led the horse out and the other trotted after. Elijah had not been in the house after 8.40 a.m., so the cough could not have been his.

She had seen Tom put something on the rig behind the seat, whether it was a stick or a piece of iron she could not say. She thought it was between two and three feet long. It looked dark, and she thought Tom was taking something to the blacksmith shop. She thought it was iron.

While Mrs. Kerr was talking the crowd became hushed and when she finished all moved as though the crisis had been passed. Crown Attorney Washington said he had written to Mr. Lynch-Staunton, counsel for Tom, saying that Tom would be allowed to give evidence, but Mr. Lynch-Staunton did not notify Tom.

Lumbermen for British Columbia.

Nelson, B.C., May 6.—Two thousand men will be brought to the interior of British Columbia by mountain lumbermen from timber districts of Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick. Their families will come later.

It is thought the project will be continued and that within the next few years at least five thousand men will be brought out under lumbermen's auspices.

Fruit Growers Want Protection.

Victoria, B.C., May 6.—A resolution of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association, endorsed by the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, was yesterday forwarded to Finance Minister Fielding, asking that the duty on American fruit seeking a Canadian market, be made at least equal to the duty levied on Canadian fruit entering the United States.

The Hen's Latest Mission.

Norwich, N.Y., May 6.—Frank J. Dedrick of Oxford, has, by supplying his hens with fine coal dust, developed a breed which lay black eggs. The shells have been analyzed and are found to contain particles of coal dust. Experiments are now being made to determine their value as fuel. Dedrick has set several of the hens.

MINERS ENTOMBED

One Hundred and Eighty Caught in Cave-in at Palos, Alabama

Birmingham, Ala., May 6.—Forty-five white and 135 negro miners were entombed last night in No. 5 coal mine at Palos, Ala., 40 miles west of Birmingham, as the result of a terrific explosion yesterday. It is believed that all are dead. The mines are owned by the Palos Coal & Coke Co. of Birmingham. Two bodies were found early last night, but it is thought few can be recovered before to-day.

The flames from the explosion shot 200 feet into the air, and the shock was felt for miles. Timbers were hurled several hundred feet from the mouth of the mine. Rocks from the roof caved in and made access difficult. The fan machinery was damaged, but air is being pumped into the mine in hopes that some of the men are still alive. A special train with physicians, surgeons and undertakers arrived at Palos late yesterday. A hospital relief also was sent from Birmingham.

The first rescuers who went into the mine after the explosion were overcome by firedamp, and had to be carried out.

Miss Elizabeth D. Dean, superintendent of the Francis Willard Hospital of Chicago, died after a short illness, caused, it is believed, by ptomaine poisoning.

Fire at Strathroy.

Strathroy, May 6.—Fire destroyed the Dominion block, a three-storey brick building, situated on East Front street, at an early hour yesterday. T. Statham & Son, machinists, who had an extensive plant in one of the apartments, suffered the heaviest loss, which is pretty well covered by insurance. The building was owned by a loan company in London, and will not likely be rebuilt.

Columbus Strike Ends.

Columbus, O., May 6.—Striking employes of the Columbus Railway & Light Co. early yesterday voted to accept an agreement for peace. Four discharged unionists about whose reinstatement the difficulty centered, are to have the option of returning to the employment of the company at wages equivalent to their former pay, or of accepting employment under the city administration.

Building Boom In Montreal.

Montreal, May 6.—There will be a building boom in Montreal this season, if no labor troubles come to upset present calculations. Reports from the City Hall state that, including the C.P.R. station and St. Lawrence Hall structures, the total value of the new work will be about $12,000,000. There are also 1,000 flats being constructed in the northern part of the city.

Injured Man's Long Drive.

Calgary, Alta., May 6.—After being driven 70 miles in a wagon with both his legs broken, Martin Husaman, a rancher from the Hand Hills country, reached the Holy Cross Hospital here Wednesday night. Physicians there found it necessary to amputate his right leg at the thigh, and think he will recover. Husaman sustained the injury in a runaway accident.

An Critic Dead.

New York, May 6.—Dr. George F. Comfort, well-known as an art critic and educator, died yesterday at Montclair, N.J., after a brief illness. He was 76 years old.

Dr. Comfort was one of the founders of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in this city, and a founder and first dean of the College of Fine Arts in Syracuse University. A widow, three sons and a daughter survive him.

Took Diamonds With Him.

Walkerville, May 6.—Mrs. Charlotte Ehrheardt received word from Lake View, N.J., yesterday that her husband, Fred Ehrheardt, the former Walkerville baker, who disappeared about a week ago, has been seen in Patterson, N.J.

When Ehrheardt disappeared from Walkerville, his wife claims he took with him diamonds belonging to her valued at close to $8,000.

AN EARTHQUAKE SHOCK IN CARTAGE COSTA RICA

Many Buildings Shaken Down and Five Hundred People Killed — Shocks Continue and Neighboring Cities Tremble.

San Juan Del Sur, Nicaragua, May 6.—A large part of Cartago, Costa Rica, was destroyed Wednesday night by a powerful seismic movement. Details are very meagre, as the telegraph wires have been leveled between San Jose and Cartago. The operators at the latter place were killed.

It is known that at least 500 persons are dead and many hundreds injured. Scores of buildings were thrown down, among them the palace of justice, erected by Andrew Carnegie. The wife and child of Dr. Bocanegra, the Guatemalan magistrate to the Central American Arbitration Court, have been killed. Panic reigns, as the earthquakes continue.

San Jose has also been shaken, some of the buildings being damaged, but no deaths are reported in that city. Some were slightly injured.

Earth shocks were felt at several points in Nicaragua, near the Costa Rican frontier. Reports reaching here state that there is much suffering and destitution at Cartago, consequent upon the disaster.

Guilty of Bribery, May Go to Europe.

Pittsburg, May 6.—Stating that he is suffering from congestion of the brain, Emil Winters, president of the Workingmen's Savings & Trust Co., who recently pleaded no defence to a charge of bribery, in giving a former city councilman $20,000 to be used in influencing councilmen in the naming of his bank as a city depository, asked to be permitted to leave the jurisdiction of the court until September and go to Carlsbad, Germany, for treatment.

The court granted the prayer and released the banker under $50,000 bail.

ROOSEVELT TALKS PEACE

Christiania, Norway, May 6.—Theodore Roosevelt delivered his address on "International Peace" before the Nobel Prize Committee yesterday.

The former president of the United States entered upon the most difficult field of European politics, and in the conclusion of a carefully worked out thesis advocated an international agreement that would serve to check the growth of armaments, especially naval armaments; and the formation by those great powers honestly bent on peace of a league of peace, "not only to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent, by force of necessity, its being broken by others."

The address was received cordially and at its conclusion John Lund, vice-president of the Nobel Prize Committee, paid a tribute to the speaker and to the country from which he came.

Wage Dispute Settled.

New York, May 6.—R. E. Clark and P. H. Morrissey, arbitrators in the New York Central wage dispute, yesterday awarded the Baltimore & Ohio rates on the New York Central lines east of Buffalo, including the Boston & Albany, with the exception of the through passenger runs for conductors between New York and Albany.

These will get a lower rate of pay. All other wages and service conditions affecting the conductors and trainmen will be established according to the same rates as were put into effect on the Baltimore & Ohio.

Steamer Rammed.

Sault Ste. Marie, May 6.—While the steamer Schuck was anchored awaiting her turn at the locks last night the wind drove the Tyrone against her bow, driving a hole in the port side of the steamer Tyrone below the water line.

Water was turned into the American locks yesterday afternoon, and as the Wietzel lock is not yet repaired from the damage done to the gates by the steamer Ellwood last fall, the Poe lock will alone be used for a week or so.

THE COUNTESS ABERDEEN.

The Countess of Aberdeen, presiding at the annual meeting of the Irish Women's Health Association, held in Dublin recently, which has as a special object the fight against tuberculosis, said that a consumption dispensary, and also a consumption sanitarium soon will be established at Dublin, due to the generosity of two Americans. The P. F. Collier consumption Dispensary has been endowed with $5,000 a year for five years by Mr. Robert J. Collier, of New York, while the sanitarium will receive a similar annual donation for the same period from Mr. Arthur Ryan, of New York.

Twice a Week Mail Service.

London, May 6.—A Liverpool wire says important developments are in contemplation in connection with the Canadian mail service. The advent on the Atlantic of the C.N.R. is leading the movement for more frequent sailings. The present idea is that sailings should be so arranged that there would be a regular mail oftener, working up to a service of twice a week.

THE NEWS AS TOLD IN DESPATCHES

Robbed Campers.

Wiarton, May 6.—Bert Day, Thompson, Reb. Renshaw and Arthur Hastings were yesterday charged with being connected with the recent robberies of campers at Oliphant, on Lake Huron, eight miles from here. Day was found guilty and sentenced to one year in the Central Prison; Thompson goes to the Central for six months for receiving stolen property, and the two boys, Renshaw and Hastings, were sentenced to the Mimico Industrial School for an indefinite period.

Use for Scrap Tin.

Seattle, Wash., May 6.—The steamer Protesilaus, loading here for Europe, will include in her cargo for Hamburg 120,000 bales of scrap tin from the Puget Sound canneries, to be used in the manufacture of toys, which will be shipped to America again to delight children. Heretofore the waste metal has been thrown away, but now it is pressed into bales like hay, and Germany is eager to buy it.

National W.C.T.U.

Glasgow, May 6.—Mrs. L. M. N. AGRICULTURAL CLASSES

The Whitney Government's experiment of establishing in connection with High schools in various parts of the province, agricultural classes, organized under graduates and experts from the Ontario Agricultural College has proved very satisfactory. Eleven of these classes have already been established and provision was made at the recent session of the Legislature for the establishment of four more. The attendance at the classes established has been larger than was expected and much interest is being taken in the work. It is the intention of the Government to expand the system from time to time to meet the demands.

A scientific training not only enables a farmer to get more profit out of his farm, but it makes farm work, which was formerly monotonous, interesting. Many a boy who would, under the old conditions, desire to escape from the farm to the city, will as a result of the new methods, become really interested in farm work.

THE RUDDER OF THE EMPIRE

"I have had abundant opportunity to make myself closely acquainted with the high hopes and confident beliefs of the Canadian people and to form a more or less adequate estimate of your tremendous potentialities. When I reflect on the vastness of your area, the fertility of your soil, the unlimited wealth of your natural resources, the invigorating nature of your climate, and on the strenuous character of your people, I feel as convinced as I am that to-morrow's sun will rise that nothing can prevent you from becoming, perhaps before the close of the present century, not only the granary, but the heart and soul and rudder of the empire."—Earl Grey.

If Canada is to be the rudder of the Empire it is of the utmost importance that the rudder should be under control of the right man. Is Sir Wilfrid Laurier, with his idea of separation, the man who should be in control of the rudder? He has said that Canada will some day drop out of the Empire like a ripe fruit dropping from the parent stem. When his attention was called to these words in the House of Commons recently he did not say he had been incorrectly reported, nor did he withdraw his words. They still stand. The glorious future Earl Grey prophesies for Canada as the leading country of the British Empire can never be realized if Sir Wilfrid Laurier's views prevail.

DISPUTE OF TWO LIBERAL SENATORS

Two French-Canadian Liberal politicians, Senators Dandurand and Choquette had a tilt the other day over the naval policy, Mr. Dandurand favoring the Government naval policy, while Mr. Choquette opposed any expenditure for naval purposes. Senator Dandurand offers to resign if Senator Choquette will do the same and contest the constituency of Hochelaga, the present member for Hochelaga having accommodatingly offered to resign to give his two Liberal friends an opportunity of settling the question, but Mr. Choquette says: "No." He is willing to discuss the question with Mr. Dandurand on any platform, but not to resign his seat in the Senate! If he were as sure of being reappointed to the Senate as Mr. Dandurand is he would be more ready to make the sacrifice, but Mr. Choquette is not on such good terms with Sir Wilfrid Laurier as Mr. Dandurand is. He had a serious quarrel some years ago with Sir Wilfrid's favorite, Mr. Parant, now chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Committee, and the bitterness of feeling between them still continues.

There are so many quarrels within the Liberal party that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will find difficulty in holding his followers together even for a few years longer.

WORN OUT FARMS

The United States Conservation Commission estimates that there are about ten million acres of abandoned farm land in New England, New York and the south-eastern and middle states of the Union. Most of these farms were worked out by their owners, who, having no knowledge of scientific agriculture, grew the same crops on the soil year after year, without any change and never used any fertilizers. They robbed their farms until there was nothing left, and then went west to repeat the process on new lands. Many of the Americans who are flocking into our Northwest to-day are men who took all the wealth out of the soil of their farms in the United States without making any return. They are experts at the business of getting quick returns from new soil, but they know nothing about the methods by which in England, France, Germany, Belgium, Denmark and other countries of Europe the same land is made to yield good crops for generations.

What is true of the Eastern States is true in a lesser degree of the eastern provinces of Canada. Many good farms have been worked out, and their former owners are now exhausting the soil of new farms in the Northwest. In some of the older sections of Manitoba the soil is already nearly worked out, farms that formerly yielded 40 bushels of wheat to the acre now yielding little more than one-fourth as much. In both Eastern and Western Canada scientific methods of agriculture are gaining ground, largely owing to the teaching of the agricultural colleges and experimental farms, and the literature sent out by them.

Fortunately, it is possible to gradually restore the fertility of worn out farms by scientific methods, and some of the old farms now regarded as worthless will be money-makers in the future.

The Deadly Parallel

Kings ton Standard.

"As a matter of fact the Niobe was thoroughly refitted last year at a large expenditure.—Toronto Globe Editorial.

"It is proposed to spend $50,000 for fittings and repairs on the Niobe."—Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the House.

Now, then, gentlemen, step right up and take your choice! If Sir Wilfrid is right then that Liberal apostle of leading and light, the Toronto Globe, is wrong and may not always be depended upon in its naval promptings. On the other hand if the Globe is right, the Government is merely doing what, we very much fear, it has only too often done in the past—that is, is taking care of the "boys" just for old time's sake.

New General Passenger Agent

J. H. Burgis, City Passenger and Ticket Agent, Grand Trunk Railway system, Chicago, since 1907, has been selected as General Agent Passenger Department in charge of the States of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, effective May 1st. He will represent the Grand Trunk Railway system as well as the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and the new Grand Trunk Pacific steamships. Mr. Burgis entered the Grand Trunk service May 1st, 1882, and his large experience, particularly at Chicago, the recognized railway centre of America, not only well qualifies him for his new post on but is an indication that the Grand Trunk intend to have their interests in the Northwestern United States thoroughly protected and developed. This announcement is important, in view of the early establishment of the Grand Trunk Pacific steamship service, the "Prince Rupert" being now en route from Newcastle, England, to Seattle, which will be Mr. Burgis' headquarters.

STREET NAMES LISTED

A Help to the Postoffice in Delivering Misdirected Letters.

Absentminded persons who write a name and street address on a letter and put it in the mail without hint of the town, city or state to which it is intended to go cost the postoffice department a lot of trouble and money each year. Many of the partially addressed letters reach their destination with little delay, the deficiency being supplied by a mail clerk.

It looks like the cleverest kind of work when an envelope addressed to "Samuel Stratton, 405 Colyton street," goes straight to Mr. Stratton at his home in Los Angeles, but a peek behind the postal scenes shows that it is easy, after all. The department has just issued a 900 page book in which are listed the street names in all of the 1,200 or so cities and towns in which a carrier service is maintained. A glance in this volume shows that the only Colyton street known is in Los Angeles.

Another letter may be addressed to "John Jones, Woodward avenue, between Grand River avenue and State." More than thirty towns or cities have a Woodward avenue, but the only city in which all three of the streets are found is Detroit, Mich. The book shows it, and the letter goes on its way.

In the same way a letter addressed to St. Paul when the writer meant St. Louis eventually finds its way to the right address through the use of the index.

It is not all so easy, however. The book fills out a deficiency only when the name of the street is unusual. A letter to "John Brown, 200 Main street," will end up in the dead letter office because of the 1,200 cities listed about 900 boast of a Main street.

Chestnut street and High street are also common, there being 400 or more of each listed. There are more than 500 Washington streets; Union and High streets occur about 400 times, and Maple and Water are found in about 350 communities. There are 300 Broadways.

Thirty-seven cities have Roosevelt streets, twenty-one bear Bryan's name, and eight Taft streets are found, although there is no proof that they were named after the presidents and the candidate. Names of prominent Americans of former days occur frequently, but those of the present day are less frequent. Carnegie street is found in only three towns, and but two streets bear the name of Rockefeller.—New York Sun.

Ready to Wreck the Tunnel.

Both Italy and Switzerland are fortifying the entrances of the Simplon tunnel, while in the tunnel itself engineers are engaged in constructing mines and strengthening those already in place in order to blow up the tunnel at a moment's notice in the event of war. Near the middle of the tunnel, a few yards from the Swiss frontier, Italian engineers have put in place a double iron door, which can resist the rush of an express train traveling at sixty miles an hour. This iron door is worked by electricity from Iselle, the station at the Italian end of the tunnel, and under ordinary conditions it is hidden in the rocky side of the tunnel. The door is carefully tested once a week. The mines are connected with Briggue and Iselle by electricity also, and by simply pressing a button the Simplon tunnel would be destroyed in a second.

A Will on a Postcard.

The German courts have just had a curious case before them. A trader died at a health resort, and three days before his death he sent a postcard to a lady friend on her birthday deploring that he was ill and so far away from her. He also said, "For a good birthday present I am leaving you my fortune." The lady to whom this postcard was sent claimed that this missive constituted a will in her favor. She claimed the estate, which was valued at about 200,000 marks. In the first court the decision went against her, and on appeal the findings of the court below were upheld. The grounds of the decision were that by German law when a person draws up his own will it is necessary for the document to state where it was written. The trader, although he had duly signed the card, omitted to place his address upon it.

Five Years of Blood in Russia.

The Prawo, a weekly publication devoted to matters of law in Russia, in an article on "The Death Penalty in Russia in Five Years" says that in that period 6,286 death sentences were pronounced by Russian judges and 2,855 of these were carried into execution. "This is an average of 104 death sentences and forty-eight executions for every month. But there were some months in which the number ran up to 220. January, 1908, was the richest in executions, there having been as many as nineteen in one day. The five years in question remind one strongly of the most bloody period of the middle ages, and the history of Russia can show only a few periods in which the judicial killing of human beings was greater."

A Museum of Disgrace.

Chiang Kang Hu, an official in Pekin, has originated the National Disgrace society, which is designed to keep the Chinese people in mind of their national disgrace with a view to awakening and stimulating their desire to reform. It is intended to build a tower in which will be exhibited relics or pictures of events and incidents which have brought China to her present humiliating and critical position.

THE truth has been spoken by us regarding the great pianist, Ferruccio Busoni and the world-famous singer, Dr. Wullner. According to the critics, both stand highest in their class and both rely on the celebrated in the attainment of their highest artistic achievements.

AGAIN the truth is told when we claim that among medium-priced pianos, none equals in sweetness of tone, responsiveness of action, or beauty of design.

HIS COURTSHIP

By HELEN R. MARTIN,

Author of "Tillie: A Mennonite Maid."

COPYRIGHT, 1907, By McCLURE, PHILLIPS & COMPANY.

But these predictions had made so little impression upon Kinross that with the immediate prospect of meeting Miss Ellery the only interest he felt in her was a curiosity to understand the mystery of her having chosen to come to the Morningstar farm to spend her summer vacation—a girl notoriously fastidious in her tastes and so much of a belle among the clever men of the college faculty that her voluntarily coming to bury herself in such an out of the way place as this farm seemed to him a second mystery thrust upon his unwilling contemplation and calculated to supersede that other mystery of the girl Eunice, which in the past fortnight had been constantly arresting his attention.

The truth about Dr. Kinross was that he was afraid of young girls. All the circumstances of his boyhood and youth had tended to pervert a natural supersensitiveness into an awkward and painful self consciousness in the presence of women. His mother having died in his infancy, his acquaintance with the feminine sex in his childhood had been almost entirely confined to the negro servants of his father's household. With his incipient manhood he had developed, through unfamiliarity of intercourse, an awe of girls that had caused him untold sufferings if forced into any conversational responsibilities with them.

The social ease and fluency of his younger brother, Burton, seemed to Peter in those days a height of achievement to which he looked up with envy and admiration. But Burton's view of the variation between them was ruefully expressed one day to Miss Wolcott, their nearest family neighbor.

"Pete plants himself in a corner at a party, Sophie, hasn't a word to say, can't dance and can't play cards. And he'll make an average of six crushes at every party that dad makes him go to. I can dance, play cards, converse and make myself agreeable, and I don't average one crush a month. How would you explain it?"

"Crush?" genteelly inquired Miss Wolcott, a bachelor maiden of thirty-five.

"Beg pardon. I mean none of the girls get stuck on me. But they pursue Pete to his corner, and when he is rude and disagreeable to them they say he is original and 'magnetic.' You wouldn't suppose, would you, they'd take to a stiff like Pete?"

"It would be much more reasonable of them to 'take to' a polished and accomplished gentleman like you, Burton," said Miss Wolcott consolingly. And Burton accepted her sympathetic view with complacency and with a high opinion of Miss Wolcott's judgment.

As Peter grew older he succeeded in conquering after long and extraordinary struggles with himself at least the external signs of his inward perturbation in the society of young ladies. But his mental attitude toward the sex continued to be a mixture of suspicion, contempt, curiosity, mystification and attraction, which so baffled and irritated him that he had come to look upon any contact with girls as an element disturbing to all intellectual labor or anything else in his life that was really worth while.

His social life at Meckville college had been a continual battle in trying (on the whole vainly) to elude the flattering attentions society was determined to heap upon the good looking new young professor who had the very unusual attraction of a comparatively large independent fortune. The fact that he was difficult and elusive only added zest to the quest.

And yet there really lived in the background of his consciousness, hardly recognized by himself, an ideal love, a passionate yearning to be met, to find a perfect comradeship. He did not himself know how deep was the longing and the need in his soul for some relation in life in which his strongly emotional nature could find outlet.

So far was he from conceiving the possibility of discovering in the notably charming and gifted Miss Ellery his soul's inevitable companion that there came to him as he lay on his back gazing up into the trees of the old forest a grotesque plot for eluding the society of the expected damsels and insuring the continuance of his freedom.

"I swear I'll do it!" he exclaimed, and his shout of laughter at the original amusement he foresaw in his scheme echoed through the woods.

"It will give me a chance," he reflected, "to study the psychology of the youthful feminine such as rarely comes to a philosopher! An opportunity to observe it at first hand when it is off its guard and quite unveiled! Here's sport!"

But the young ladies would arrive at noon. There was no time to be lost. He sprang from the ground, gathered up the books that were his daily companions in his rambles and started for the farm.

On his way he speculated as to whether the Morningstars would bear him out in his plot. He foresaw the stupefaction of their unimaginative minds before his behavior. And Eunice—would this galvanize her into some signs of animation? If, before the role he was about to play, that girl could possibly maintain the aloofness, the apparent unconsciousness of what was under her eyes, the blind, deaf and dumb demeanor that she had kept up ever since he had come to this place—if she kept it up now—well, in that case there would be nothing left to do but cast off all reserve and demand that she explain herself.

CHAPTER III.

WHEN he reached the farm, overheated from his rapid walk in the sun, he stopped at the springhouse to get a glass of water before going into the kitchen.

It was with a sudden sharp thrill that as he stepped into the cool, shady stone room he unexpectedly found himself alone with Eunice.

She was seated on the stone steps by the well, bending laboriously over a torn sheet of a newspaper.

As his figure suddenly darkened the doorway she started violently as though discovered in some shameful guilt. He was held for an instant by the picture she made, the grace of her youthful form in its tense attitude of actual fear, the beauty of her wide, frightened eyes, the exquisite delicacy of her face in its sudden whiteness. But his second thought was not so complimentary.

"What a craven little coward!" was his mental comment, with an impulse of contemptuous pity, for he had not lived here ten days without having seen that this foster daughter of the Morningstars was downtrodden as none but a girl of weak or mean spirit would permit herself to be, and he understood that her present sense of guilt was due to the contraband newspaper she was found idly reading when she should have been hard at work. As far as he had observed, the girl was never allowed ten minutes of relaxation from morning to night; also, Mr. Morningstar had strictly forbidden his household to touch the "gent'man boarder's" daily paper, which he pronounced a wily invention of Satan.

So it was only a feeling of fear that could rouse her from her lethargy.

"It's only I," he said apologetically. "May I come in and get a glass of water?"

She did not seem much reassured by the fact that it was only he. She sank back limply against the step as he came forward and helped himself, but her eyes as they followed him did not lose their strained expression nor her face regain its color. He watched her curiously as he slowly drank a glass of water. The newspaper was crumpled into her lap, and her gaze seemed held by his in a sort of fascination.

"Don't be afraid," he smiled upon her. "I won't tell."

She did not answer. She seemed spellbound. He wondered whether he could make her talk. At least he had made her look at him.

"It's one of my newspapers, isn't it?" he asked.

"Yes," she breathed.

"Old Morningstar makes me hand them over to him to be burned every morning. How did you rescue one?"

She swallowed hard as she managed to answer in a voice just above a whisper, "He puts them in the stove to be burned when I light the fire for breakfast. I take them out."

"Eh? And then snatch chances like this for reading them?"

"Yes."

"Um-m!" he commented thoughtfully. "Upon my word!"

They looked at each other for an instant without speaking.

"You had never read a newspaper, I suppose, before I came here?"

"No."

"Do you find them amusing?"

"Amusing?" she repeated, the strained expression in her eyes giving way to a puzzled look.

"Well," he conceded, "perhaps you don't find them that—a daily record of crimes and accidents. Interesting, I should have said. Do you like them?" he added, groping for words intelligible to her simplicity.

"Yes."

"But you can't read with much profit or pleasure when you have to snatch chance moments at them in this way?"

She did not reply.

"And much that you read would be unintelligible to you, I should say, seeing you are not accustomed to reading newspapers. I don't see how you get enough out of it to pay for such a fright as you had just now when you thought you were being caught."

Still she did not answer.

"What a stupid creature!" he thought, marveling that so dull a damsel should have a pair of eyes that shone like stars and a countenance of such extraordinary thoughtfulness.

"Now, if she were an intelligent girl it would be interesting to get her fresh impression of a newspaper."

Suddenly, while he regarded her speculatively, sipping his water with deliberation and she returned his gaze with a sort of fascinated concentration, the doorway was again darkened, and this time it was he who started with apprehension as Mr. Morningstar came into the springhouse. Kinross was instantly aware of the fact that the girl did not start now nor attempt to hide the newspaper. On the contrary, the presence of the scrubby little farmer seemed suddenly to dissipate the spell which he had evidently cast upon her, for she rose quite deliberately and began to gather together her crocks and cans, heaping the newspaper in her hand.

The small eyed farmer cast a quick, suspicious glance from one to another of them.

"Mom wants fur you to hurry on in then," he gruffly ordered the girl. "She conceited that you and Abe was spoonin' together out here. What fur does it take you so wonderful long to fetch in a couple of butter and milk yet? Mom'll jaw you, you'll see once! Here!"

He had caught sight of the newspaper and jerked it from her hand. "What's this to do, heh?"

"It belongs to the gentleman," the girl answered, quite unruffled.

"And you gev it to her?" the farmer asked, looking reproachfully at Kinross.

"I dropped it in here and came back to look for it. Eunice had picked it up and was going to give it to me."

"Och, well!" the farmer nodded, passing it on to him. Kinross as he took it looked hard at Eunice to see how she received his impromptu fiction, but her eyes were veiled and he could not read her face.

Eunice.

"Well," added Morningstar, turning to leave, "you hurry on in, Eunice."

He went away, but Eunice did not so much as glance at Kinross when they were again alone for a moment. She kept right on with her work of loading herself down with her wares and then without a word started for the house. He had been wondering whether it would be misplaced gallantry to offer to help her carry in her crocks and things, and by the time she was ready to go he had decided against it. But just as she reached the springhouse door he bethought him to return the paper to her.

Quickly folding it into the smallest possible compass, he stepped to her side and held it out to her.

"Can't you conceal it about you?"

She turned white again as he spoke to her. "Please hide it behind the churn," she said, not raising her eyes and speaking breathlessly, "and I shall find it this evening."

"Very well."

She was gone, and he turned back to do her bidding and was rising from his stooping position when again a shadow darkened the doorway, and he looked up to see Eunice, with a face white to the lips and still laden with her wares, standing on the threshold.

"Will you please tell me," she began, and he had to take a step nearer to catch her low spoken words, "who is this Andrew Carnegie?"

He stared at her for an instant incomprehendingly. "This Andrew Carnegie?"

"Of whom the newspapers make frequent mention."

"Oh," he said, "you ask who is he?"

"If I knew I could perhaps understand better what I read in your newspapers."

"You never heard of him before I came here with my newspapers?"

"No. Is he perhaps a book agent or is he not a real person at all, but only a hero, like the Count of Monte Cristo?"

For Health And Economy Eat More Bread

TEN cents will feed an ordinary family a day on first class bread. This does not mean ordinary bread. For there is an important difference between ordinary bread and first class bread.

It isn't a difference of looks or methods of making or baking. It is a difference of nutrition, food value, healthfulness. And this food value depends on the flour used. For there is a wide difference between flours.

Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour

If all flour were the best flour, then all bread, properly made, would be good bread. But all flour is not first class because all wheat is not first class. Wheat, you know, varies in quality almost as much as apples or potatoes; there are as many different grades of wheat as there are grades of butter—or wool.

And every difference in grade represents an actual difference in nourishing value, food elements, wholesomeness. Flour made from a low grade of wheat is by no means so healthful as flour made from high grade wheat. Now the wheat that goes into OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR is of the very highest grade. It contains the highest possible percentage of nutritive value. The makers of "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" maintain expensive laboratories and baking departments where skilled men scientifically analyse each day's milling. None but the very-best Red Fyfe wheat—rich in nutrition and healthfulness—can pass.

For this reason bread made from ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR contains the maximum of food value and furnishes the maximum of energy and strength. And for the same reason "ROYAL HOUSEHOLD" makes the finest pies, cakes, biscuits, muffins, rolls, and pastry of all kinds. It is the one flour that a housewife should use in order to have her household baking strictly first class.

OGILVIE'S ROYAL HOUSEHOLD

"Ogilvie's Book for a Cook" with 125 pages of Recipes that have been tried and tested will be sent free to your address if you mention the name of your dealer.

PESSIMISTIC AND OPTIMISTIC

Several Families Moving Out But Fewer Funerals Than Last Year

A couple of little facts that might prove of interest to citizens of Peterborough generally were obtained today by the Review. During the last few months, by actual record, it is known that twenty-four families have packed their belongings and moved from Peterborough to reside in other places. Against this fact it is known that during the same period of time just four families have come to live in Peterborough. There may be more that the informant was unaware of, but the source of information is to be relied on. Another interesting fact obtained from a local undertaking firm which should be taken as a good omen by most people, although not, perhaps, calculated to enlarge the undertaker's bank account, is that they report a big falling off in the number of funerals that they have had, compared to the number which they conducted up to the time last year. The actual decrease was reported to be about twenty.

RECEPTION AT THE Y. M. C. A. LAST EVENING

The Social Committee of the Y.M.C.A. excelled itself last evening when it superintended the work incidental to the reception to the new staff of officers. A splendid programme of music and speeches under the management of the chairman, Mr. P. A. Kerr, occupied the attention of the men during the first hour, and refreshments and social intercourse completed an evening of very special enjoyment for all who were present.

Mr. Dudley sang a solo, "The British Soldier," in a most acceptable manner; Mr. Woodhouse was in good voice in a solo entitled "I Never Was a Sailor," Mr. C. Coleman sang Harry Lauder's famous song, "I Love a Lassie" in his own inimitable style, while Mr. Clark in his banjo solos won the greatest applause.

Addresses of welcome were delivered by Rev. Robt. Pogue, Rev. J. R. Webb and Messrs. J. H. Cannal and E. L. Goodwill. The spirit of optimism characterised these addresses, as each in turn voiced the conviction that the Peterborough association is now on the threshold of better days.

Each of the new officers answered in brief words of gratitude, expressing the pleasure and encouragement brought by such kind and helpful words.

The meeting was closed with prayer, led by Rev. J. G. Potter.

STOLE HER CHICKENS

Miss Susan McPherson's Poultry Found at Home of Man Arrested for Horse Stealing

Norwood, May 5.—A man by the name of Casman, who lives on the Marmora road, east of Havelock, has been arrested for stealing a horse near Trent Bridge and lodged in the Belleville jail. The officer who visited the home to recover the horse also discovered a large box containing fifteen live hens. Enquiries being made, Miss Susan McPherson laid claim to them and identified the same as being her property, which were stolen from her yard last week.

Miss McPherson has been living alone since the murder of her sister by Robert Henderson, and sympathy for her has made people very indignant against the person who robbed her yard.

Returning to the Point

Mr. Spoffard, of Peterborough, passed through town to-day on his way to Muskoka and North Bay. Mr. Spoffard is well known amongst the cottagers of Sturgeon Point, having spent a number of summers there. In a conversation with him he stated that he intended going to the Point this summer if possible. The cottagers of Sturgeon Point will be pleased to welcome him.—Lindsay Warder.

SUGGEST HILLIARD PROPERTY AS SITE FOR HOUSE OF REFUGE

The House of Refuge Committee of the City Council and Mr. J. B. McWilliams of the board of the Protestant Home, met last night. Of the committee there were present, the chairman, Ald. Morgan and Aldermen Buller and Bradburn.

The chairman read a resolution passed by the Protestant Home Board to the effect that in the undertaking to erect a House of Providence the board will give $10,000 providing the city give $10,000 and a site, the house to be furnished by the board, and any expenditure over the $20,000 to be met by that body. The City Council is to levy a separate rate on the Protestant tax payers for the maintenance of the House of Refuge. The city will be represented on the Managing Board.

Ald. Bradburn thought the matter of going before the Government to get the necessary legislation that would enable the city to tax the Protestant tax payers and the Roman Catholic ratepayers separately should be dealt with before taking any further definite steps.

Ald. Buller asked through what body cases for the House of Refuge would be decided. It is to be understood that all cases will go through the Charity Board.

As to a site for the building, the Hilliard property was proposed by Mr. McWilliams and representatives of the Protestant Home Board, and the committee will look over the ground to-day. The council committee wish to look over the ground for the Isolation hospital, and the one may will do for both.

It was moved that the chairman and Ald. Bradburn interview Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., for the purpose of arranging an interview with Premier Whitney, Mr. Hanna, and the secretary of the department, and that Mr. J. B. McWilliams or Dr. Halliday, of the Protestant Home Board, Rev. Father McColl, and the City Council House of Refuge Committee attend the interview.

VETERANS' JEWELS PRESENTED TO THREE ODDFELLOWS

One of the largest attendances in the history of the Peterborough Lodge, No. 141, I.O.O.F., was held last night at the lodge, when about 75 members were present for the confirmation of the initary degree and the presentation of the veterans' jewels to Bros. W. Cowie, George Schneider, sr., and Robert Mulligan. Bros. John Mein was also to have been honored on the occasion, but was unable to be in attendance on account of his ill health.

Bro. T. O. Elliott, past grand master, made the presentations which were acknowledged in appropriate speeches by the recipients.

Addresses commending the past grands for the able manner in which they put on the degrees and in which those who received the jewels were congratulated, were made by Bros. H. C. Coon, David Moore, D. H. Moore and Andrew Macfarlane.

An appetizing supper was served, Bro. T. H. Hooper being the caterer.

HOME OF AN OFT AFFLICTED FAMILY DESTROYED BY FIRE

Mr. John O'Brien and his family, who reside on the Monaghan road, to the south of the Roman Catholic cemetery, were visited by another misfortune yesterday afternoon, shortly after five o'clock, when their home was destroyed by fire. The fire started in the woodshed and was not noticed in sufficient time to permit of its being extinguished. Mrs. O'Brien and several of the children were about the house, and the father was at work in a field nearby. There was a large quantity of wood in the shed and the small blaze, fanned by the wind blowing at the time, soon spread, and became too hot for those who arrived to offer assistance.

A number of household effects and an organ were saved, as was also a sum of money.

Two pigs were burned to death, and a root-house and three waggons were destroyed, and all that now remains of the home are the brick walls. There is a small insurance.

This is the second time the family has been burned out. Recently, it will be remembered, a two-year-old daughter was killed on the Grand Trunk Railway track, making the second death in the family by railway accident.

It is thought that the fire started through the children playing with matches.

THOMAS FENTON ARRESTED FOR MURDER OF HIS FATHER

Hamilton, May 6.—Crown Attorney Washington announced this morning that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Thomas Finton on the charge of murdering his father, Elijah Finton, who was found dead behind his barn near Stoney Creek, over a week ago and the inquest into whose death was closed last evening. It has not been decided when Finton, who has been under arrest for some time as a material witness, shall appear before the police magistrate for his preliminary hearing, but it probably will be to-morrow.

THE ROADWAY NEEDS MENDING

On the Monaghan boundary road, near Hazelwood avenue, there is a deep hole, caused by the recent heavy rains. If the road is not mended there may be a serious accident, as it is a much used thoroughfare.

SPORTING NEWS

GENERAL INFORMATION FOR LAWN TENNIS PLAYERS

The executive of the Lawn Tennis Association met last evening at the Y.M.C.A., there being present the following:—F. D. Kerr, W. H. Clurton, J. W. Wood, H. B. Collier, H. D. Burnett, W. Coleman, W. D. Campbell, F. Dennison, S. Hall.

Seven of the city tennis clubs were represented at the meeting, giving evidence of the lively interest being taken in the Association and the tournaments for the present year.

Enthusiasm marked every stage of the proceedings, showing that tennis for 1910 in Peterborough will certainly be the leading recreation for the great majority of our citizens.

Many important matters were brought before the executive which all prospective players will need to note with care.

Fees. Membership in the City Association will be placed at the very nominal sum of 50 cents for gentlemen and 25 cents for ladies.

Entry. Every person who plays tennis should enter their name in the tournament list, irrespective of their playing ability. These names must be in the hands of the officials by May 15th, so that all may be in readiness for the "drawing," which will take place on May 20th. Therefore, to facilitate this work, which all know is laborious at best, it is expected that every player will at once send their name and the small fee of 50 cents to J. Wallace Wood, the treasurer, or to the representative of the club in which they may happen to be.

There will be some four tournaments carried out this year giving every member of the Association ample opportunity to get plenty of tennis in every part of the city with the greatest possible number of different players. Nothing could be more desirable than this for the proper development of the individual players and the good of the game generally.

In the drawing of the schedule for the singles tournament it was decided that the players would be divided into at least two main classes according to their playing ability. For the first several rounds these groups will be kept separate, thus enabling players to meet men of their own ability and thus producing most pleasant games.

The very poorest players in the city will have at least two matches as from the losers in the first round of the singles tournament a schedule will be formed, constituting a second tournament. The winners of these two tournaments will come together finally for the city championship.

Inter-club matches will be played weekly on Tuesday nights. Four men from each club will play two series of two sets each, home and home matches same as last year.

The manager of the ladies' tournament is Mr. R. J. Devey and to him all entries should be sent at once, together with the fee (of 25 cents (ladies' fee.)

SPORTING COMMENT

Now that the school boys have organized for this season an opportunity presents itself to someone who is in sympathy with the promotion of clean amateur sport. The pupils of the city schools, with the co-operation of their teachers, have organized, and will play the baseball game for the school championship of the city. A trophy put up for competition would greatly please the boys.

The organization part of the season is fast advancing. Baseball, football, lawn bowling and lawn tennis will boom, but so far there has not been any rush for requests for the publishing of baseball dates. There was a time in the history of this fair burg when the baseball stick stood out in a conspicuous place in more than one store about town, but now one could find a dozen Halley comets before getting a glimpse of anything that resembles a stick.

The Board of Education has made a grant of $50 to the sporting element of the Collegiate Institute. This will allow of the boys securing Riverside Park at certain hours for the purpose of indulging in their favorite sports. It is to be hoped that the boys will conduct themselves in a manner that will bring credit to themselves and their school. In the past they have accomplished this and there is no doubt but that they will continue to do so.

There is not much danger of professional sport looming up in this city as far as the youngsters are concerned. In the winter the youthful hockey player buys his stick and suit and pays, with the rest of his team mates, for the privilege of playing in a covered rink. In the summer he buys his mitt, probably another suit, makes a small contribution to his club, and if that club cannot find a vacant lot, he makes a further contribution toward procuring the necessary grounds which will, in a measure, put him in the same standing as the older brother.

BASEBALL

It is altogether likely that a junior baseball league will be organized in the near future in the city. The age limit for the players will be seventeen, and if enough players signify their intention of entering, to enable those in charge to place four teams in the league, there will be no trouble in having the games in full swing before long. The Y.M.C.A. will enter a couple of teams if the league is organized. Players who are willing to join are asked to kindly hand in their names to Mr. Thompson, physical director of the Y.M.C.A.

Toronto is now winning games by a single run, instead of losing them by the same margin. Yesterday Grimshaw was hit home by Fitzpatrick in the eighth with the winning run, after singling to centre field and which gave him three bases.

A practice of the T.A.S. ball team will be held at Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. A full attendance is urgently requested.

The West End A. C. players are reminded of the practice this evening at Riverside and to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

The Strathconas will work out on the south end of Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon, the West Ends and T.A.S. having the diamond.

Buffalo stopped Newark owing to the effective work of Malarkey. The Indians had eleven men left on bases.

Rochester, by way of exchange, took a fall out of Baltimore. The game went ten innings.

Only two players of each team on the Philadelphia-Washington game had assists.

A pinch hit by Schmidt, scored two men and won the game for Detroit against Chicago.

There is only one Eastern league game to-day, Rochester playing in Baltimore.

Toronto has broke even in the win and loss column with two sevens.

SOME NEW RULES IN BASEBALL

There being a good deal of confusion and misunderstanding as to exactly what the proposed changes in the baseball playing rules for 1910 are, they are given briefly below:—

The coacher's box has been altered to prevent the coach from getting nearer than 15 feet of first base. The dead line runs through first and second bases.

The umpire must watch small points which have hitherto been subjects for complaint from captains, such as the discoloring of new balls. Last year in a game with Rochester the Buffalo club used sandpaper.

The captain must notify the umpire of substitutes or changes in the positions of players, and the umpire must announce them to the crowd.

The captains must give the umpire the batting order list at home plate before the game is called, and the players named must take part in the game.

If a player on the defence impedes or stops a batted ball by throwing a glove or mask at it, the runner gets three bases.

The umpire judging balls and strikes is the chief, his collegue guarding first and second bases only.

Every player gets an assist who assists in putting out a runner, even if he makes the putout himself. Thus he may get the credit for an assist and a putout at once.

The umpire may fine bench kickers and eject them for a second offence.

PRESSURE OF LIGHT.

Reason Why the Tail of Comet Points Away From Sun.

Because the tail of a comet increases in splendor as the sun is approached and because it invariably points away from the sun, no matter where the comet may be in its orbit, it follows that some solar force more powerful than gravitation must drive matter from the head to form the tail. It is only recently that a satisfactory explanation has been found for this anomaly. An undreamed of force has been discovered to which we may attribute some of the vagaries of a comet's tail. That force is nothing less than the pressure of light.

It is rather startling to learn at this late day that the sunbeams which play upon green grass and blue water are actually pressing the earth. Yet that pressure has been so accurately measured that we know now that the earth sustains a light load of no less than 150,000 tons. Why is it that we do not see objects pushed into space by the solar effulgence? Simply because light pressure acts not so much on masses as on surfaces. The less the mass and the greater the surface the more pronounced will be the effect of light pressure.

Divide a ball of lead weighing one pound into 1,000 little balls. The total weight remains the same, but the surface has been increased. Divide each little ball again into 1,000 smaller balls. The resulting 1,000,000 balls still weigh one pound, but the surface has been enormously augmented. Carry this subdivision so far that leaden particles are obtained measuring one twenty-thousandth of an inch in diameter. Each one of these particles, if placed into interstellar space, will remain stationary because its weight (gravitation) will exactly counterbalance the light pressure of the sun. If subdivision be carried beyond that critical diameter light pressure will wrench each particle from the grip of solar gravitation and hurl it into space.—Circle Magazine.

The Beet as Food.

The beet beats all. It is one of the most valuable of cultivated plants. The sugar beet is a main source of sugar and alcohol. The large forage beets supply an excellent food for cattle, and the red garden varieties provide savory table vegetables. The usefulness of this valuable food has been increased by the production of an edible flour from sugar beets. The desiccation of sliced sugar beets is practiced in Germany on an extensive scale, but the product is employed exclusively as fodder for cattle. In Belgium a meal is made from dried beets. It is entirely free from the distinctive flavor of the beet and is suitable for cakes, puddings and pastry. As it contains about 65 per cent of sugar, it can often be substituted with advantage for sugar in somewhat larger quantities. The processes of desiccation and grinding not only cost less than the extraction of sugar, but preserve all the sugar of the beet, part of which is rejected in the form of molasses in the process of sugar making.—Chicago Tribune.

French Artisans as Soldiers.

Avoidance of military duty need not necessarily be a symptom of physical cowardice. It is frequently an essential condition of industrial self preservation. William Jones, a member of the Society of Friends, who was in France at the time of the Franco-German war, relates a typical instance. He was accosted by an artilleryman in the Loire district. "Look at my hands, monsieur," exclaimed the man. "Well," remarked Mr. Jones, "they are hard and black enough, if that is what you mean." "Precisely," was his reply. "I am a watchmaker and was a highly paid workman. "But now, after handling those big guns and heavy shells, I have lost my delicacy of touch and can never go back to my proper business. In short, I am a ruined man. There are more than 10,000 men in the army of the west alone," he added, "taken from the light trades of Paris whose case is much the same as mine."—London Chronicle.

Ant Empires.

In a recent book about ants Rev. H. C. McCook gives some surprising facts about the mound making ants of the Alleghenies. He has measured some mounds more than thirty feet in circumference, although rarely more than three feet in height. But around these there are many new mounds in course of construction only a few inches in height. They are found in groups, one of which, near Hollidaysburg, Pa., contains 1,700 mounds within a space of fifty acres. Their total population is enormous, and each group of mounds appears to constitute a community—an insect kingdom or empire. In regard to their numbers Dr. Forel is quoted as saying that these ant kingdoms have in all probability from 200,000,000 to 400,000,000 inhabitants, "all forming a single community and living together in active and friendly intercourse."

Mussels Are Wild Animals.

The county council of Lancashire, England, has found it necessary to appeal to the board of agriculture and fisheries to grant powers to prohibit the taking of mussels for human consumption from beds known to be dangerously contaminated. When the council approached the owners of the foreshore they were met by the objection, which had been upheld, that mussels were wild animals and there was no property in them until they were captured. One hundred million mussels are annually consumed in Lancashire.

He Woke 'Em Up.

A certain Scotch minister, a newcomer in the parish, finding it impossible to arrest the attention of his congregation, became desperate. No sooner did he appear in the pulpit than they promptly composed themselves to sleep.

One evening, after taking up his position, he rapped sharply on the ledge in front of him and addressed his somnolent flock in tones of severe remonstrance.

"Now, brethren," he said, "it's not fair to go to sleep, as ye always ha done, directly I begin my sermon. Ye might wait a wee till I get a-haud, and then if I'm not worth hearin' sleep awa' wi' ye, and I'll no care, but dinna go before I hin' commenced. Gie me 'tis one chance."

Finding they were all fairly awake by that time, he went on:

"I shall take for my text the two words 'Know thyself,' but I will say before I begin the discourse that I would no advise this congregation to make many such profitless acquaintances."

There was not a snore or a nod in the kirk that evening.—Tit-Bits.

THE DOG AND THE MAN

He was a dog;
But he stayed at home
And guarded the family night and day.
He was a dog
That didn't roam.
He stayed on the porch or chased the stray—
The tramps, the burglar, the hen away;
For a dog's true heart for that household beat
At morning and evening in cold and heat.
He was a dog.

He was a man,
And didn't stay
To cherish his wife and children fair.
He was a man;
And every day
His heart grew callous, its love beats rare.
He thought of himself at the close of the day.
And, cigar in his fingers, hurried away
To the club, the lodge, the store, the show.
But he had a right to go, you know—
He was a man.

Drainage Demonstration

The Ontario Agricultural College is emphasizing the value of drainage again this summer, for which purpose drainage demonstrations are being held in many parts of the province. On Wednesday, May 11, at the hour of 2 o'clock, one of these demonstrations will be held on the farm of Mr. George Berry, concession 3, lot 29, Cavan township. This meeting should be of special interest, as some difficult places to drain are involved. Besides the discussion of the particular problems of Mr. Berry's farm, there will be a demonstration of methods of finding the fall over a ditch, determining the grade, digging true to grade etc. Those of our readers interested in drainage should not miss this meeting.

Anyone wishing information about the drainage work should write Prof. W. H. Day, O.A.C., Guelph.

WHAT THE KIDNEYS DO

What Booth's Kidney Pills Are Doing for Peterboro People

All the blood in the body passes through the Kidneys every three minutes.

The Kidneys filter the blood.

They work night and day to daily remove about 500 grains of impure matter. If they fail some part of this impure matter is left in the blood bringing on pain in the back, headache, dizziness, incipient fever, bad dry skin, rheumatism, gravel, dropsy, deposits in the urine. Booth's Kidney Pills make the filtering right and overcome Kidney trouble. Hundreds of Peterborough County residents have found this out.

Mrs. John Wallace, of 323 Water street, Peterborough, says: "I had suffered with many painful and annoying symptoms of Kidney trouble for over two years and could find nothing that would benefit my condition. My back was weak and a dull, heavy pain settled across the small of it, extending into my sides and shoulders. I could not sleep at night as the Kidney secretions were so frequent and irregular that I would have to leave my bed a number of times. I was dizzy and weak and would usually awake with a dull headache. Booth's Kidney Pills procured at Madill's drug store cured me when all else failed. I am stronger and feel better generally. I can conscientiously recommend Booth's Kidney Pills and I would not be without a box in the house."

Woman's World

Mrs. Lionel Marks Victor in Shakespeare Theater Contest.

MRS. MARKS, WINNER OF $1,500 PRIZE.

Josephine Preston Peabody, who is Mrs. Lionel Marks of Cambridge, Mass., is the winner of the prize of $1,500 offered by one of the governors of the Shakespeare Memorial theater at Stratford-on-Avon for the best play submitted for production at the theater.

Six hundred and fifteen plays were sent to the reading committee, which selected two, which were submitted to the Duke of Argyll, whose decision is in favor of Mrs. Marks' play, entitled "The Piper." It deals with the old story of the Pied Piper of Hamelin.

The play is to be produced on May 5, when, according to the conditions of the competition, the prize is to be presented to the successful authoress on the stage of the Memorial theater.

"The Piper" deals mainly with the wanderings of that quaint character and his little charges after the poet Browning had consigned them into the Hollow mountain. The Pied Piper is made a gay, glad stranger, with mountebank companions. He comes to Hamelin and offers to clear that rat infested town for a thousand guilders, employing his musical pipe to do so. The town snaps up his offer. With apparent ease he accomplishes the feat which has baffled the local officials. The contract payment, however, is not forthcoming, and the frugal townspeople offer him instead 25 guilders.

When he protests they threaten to slit his ears and taunt him with an unknown parentage. Maddened, he pipes the kinderspell. The little ones scamper to him right and left, some of them in their "nighties." In the midst of them all the Piper marches out of the town triumphant. The party then goes to a cave. The second act shows the cave. Michael, one of the mountebank's followers, a sword swallower, has fallen desperately in love with Barbara, the burgomaster's daughter, who was not enticed into the Piper's train.

The Piper and his assistants do their utmost to amuse their little followers, and the Pied Piper himself makes Jan, the crippled son of Kurt, a pair of winged shoes, which the little fellow wants the Lonely Man to see. The Lonely Man is a statue of Christ outside the Hamelin church. Michael, the sword swallower, bears his sweetheart, Barbara, is to be consigned to a nunnery by the townspeople at the behest of public opinion. Citizens swear that the burgomaster cannot have his little girl while the rest go childless.

The Piper meets the chanting procession on the way to the nunnery and commences furious playing. The hymn wavers and the marchers commence to dance. They whirl off like leaves in a tempest. Barbara is taken away from them, herself bewitched, and given to Michael, who loves her fondly.

The bewitched Barbara, however, lavishes her affections on the Piper himself, who immediately casts away the spell from her, and she becomes Michael's mate. What all the burghers of Hamelin could not accomplish Veronika, mother of the crippled Jan, does. She alone boards the Piper in his den, and he is touched by her spiritual passion. He fights his battle out before the Lonely Man, is humbled and gives Hamelin back her children and goes his way, a wanderer over the world.

Wedding Invitations.

They need not be answered unless the recipient is an intimate friend.

Then a congratulatory note may be sent.

An announcement demands no reply.

The matter of wedding gifts is, of course, an unsettled question.

There are a number of well bred persons who do not respond to an invitation with a gift, believing that it is poor taste to send gifts to them whom they scarcely know, but to whose wedding they may have been invited for some reason of courtesy.

Of course the fact that one knows the groom rather than the bride makes no difference one way or the other. It is to the bride that the gift is sent.

An "at home" card inclosed in the invitation necessitates a call within the time named or, if one lives in a distant city, a card sent by post.

BUDGET OF INTERESTING NEWS FROM HAVELOCK

Havelock, May 6.—Seeding is pretty well done throughout Belmont and the surrounding townships, but many farmers have some work yet to do on the low land which they have not been able to sow on account of the many recent rains. More farmers throughout Belmont have sown alfalfa this year than ever before on account of the encouraging reports on it. One farmer to the north of Havelock, who has had it for four years is well pleased with it. He sowed about 17 lbs. to the acre and has harvested three crops each season. It makes splendid fodder for cattle and makes a good pasture for horses or hogs. It can be grown on nearly any kind of soil if it is properly drained. The only thing that will kill out alfalfa is water.

There passed away at Trenton on the 22nd ult. an old resident of Belmont, in the person of the late Wm. S. Cornell, at the age of 74 years and 9 months. MIDLAND JR. FOOTBALL SERIES.

The first game in the Midland junior football series took place at Norwood on Wednesday evening, when the High school team of that town met the Havelock juniors in a fast and interesting match, resulting in a draw, neither team being able to score. The game commenced at 7 o'clock with Mr. W. Hutchins, of Havelock, as referee. Play was very evenly divided between the two teams, and both goals were in great danger several times. In the second half a Norwood man secured the ball after it was out of play and made a bid for fame by scoring a no-count goal. Both teams displayed very good combination work at some stages of the game, showing that there will be splendid material for a senior team in both towns in a few years. The line-up was as follows:

Norwood will play at Havelock on Wednesday evening, May 11th.

MANY THEFTS IN WEST END

Poultry and Belgian Hares are Disappearing

Juvnile thieves are busy in the west end of the city. Poultry has been disappearing from several hen-houses and a Weller street man has reported to the police that two Belgian hares were stolen, one Saturday night and one last night.

A week or two ago another Weller street resident lost one.

In all these thefts boys are suspected as the culprits.

MILLING INDUSTRY IS VERY BRIGHT

The Maple Leaf Milling Company, whose advertisement appears elsewhere in this paper, emphasizes two or three salient facts in their prospectus. One of these is that the wheat-growing areas in Canada are increasing by leaps and bounds, and that the future of the milling industry is particularly bright. The second factor is that The Maple Leaf Milling Company is composed of two going concerns, with additional capital added. A third feature is the investment side, the preferred stock paying 7 per cent. dividend and carrying with it a bonus of 25 per cent. of common stock. Altogether this company is offering a very attractive investment to the people of Canada.

This and That

One point of difference between a notion and an idea is that a man who has never been known to have an idea may have a notion that he has one.

$70,000 DOLLARS DAMAGE FROM FIRE IN NORWOOD

Started at Midnight Last Night and Levelled Reynolds' Block---Reynolds' Estate Heaviest Loser, at $13,000---Summary of the Loss---No One Injured.

Special to the Review.

Norwood, Ont., May 6.—The business portion of this village suffered a loss of at least seventy thousand dollars by fire this morning. The fire is said to have started about twelve o'clock, midnight, in the rear of the stores on the west of Colborne street, and spread rapidly down Colborne and Peterborough streets, wiping out the Reynolds block, the King hotel, the Hatton & Wood property, occupied by Mr. J. L. Squire and Mr. Fred Anderson, and the dwelling house of Mrs. S. Elliott. The cause is unknown.

The Pearce, Ackerman, Williams, and Union Bank blocks were saved with the utmost difficulty, as well as the large livery barns adjoining Spring street. All of these caught fire several times.

The Misses H. and E. Farrell, who live in the second storey of the Reynolds block, narrowly escaped death, being carried out of the burning building sometime after the alarm was given.

Both telegraph and telephone offices were wiped out, and all communication was cut off except at the C.P.R. station. Word was sent to Peterborough for the fire brigade and engine to come, but owing to a delay the order was cancelled when it was seen that the other blocks could be saved.

A northwest wind was blowing and some of the sparks were lodged on the Presbyterian church and ignited, but the blaze was noticed and soon extinguished. Nearly all of the plate glass windows on the opposite side of the burning building were broken. The losses and names of the sufferers are as follows:—

Reynolds estate, loss $13,000. Partly covered by insurance.

O. W. Walters, general store, loss $8,000. Insurance, $6,000.

B. W. Leverett, grocer, loss $5,000. Insurance, $3,000.

THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE IS AGAIN ATTACKED

Skill and King Not the Only Men Guilty of Circulating Filthy Literature Whose Pardon He Has Recommended — Mr. Harry Bragg's Letter

Montreal, May 5.—The Canadian Municipal Journal, which originally stirred up the Skill and King case, and whose article last month read in Parliament by A. C. Boyce, was the beginning of the criticism directed against the Minister of Justice, returns to the attack in this month's issue. In an open letter to Mr. Aylesworth, Mr. Harry Bragg, the editor, refutes the Minister's statement in Parliament that the first article was an instance of a "newspaper writer fabricating his own news in his own back office" by quotations from the records of the case. Mr. Bragg continues:

"First, sir, let us ask whether it be true that after the sentence a relative of one prisoner (whose name can be supplied) came from Winnipeg with a letter to Mr. ——, who suggested an interview with a certain medical official in order to secure—by means of a generous fee—a certificate of tuberculosis upon which to secure a release; whether the official refused the fee; acted officially; but did not give the certificate desired?

"Again, sir, when Judge Winchester in delivering sentence refers to evidence prepared by the Crown, showing that at least one lady stenographer left the defendants' service owing to the filthy character of the business, is it fair to say the journalist—who quotes the record—is 'untruthful?' (Page 5 of Official Report of Proceedings at the trial.)

DROVE PROFESSOR AWAY.

Mr. Bragg continues:

"This firm did two kinds of business under three firm names, in two distinct rooms. In one room they sold ordinary books, but drove away at least one customer (and he a College professor and interested in the 'classics') by constantly showing him indecent books with disgusting illustrations.

In an inner room this respectable firm had the books which they were so stupidly and wrongfully condemned—according to 'your humble opinion.'"

Two years ago the defendants had undertaken to stop on representations of the post office; when arrested now they had pleaded guilty. A Post-Office Inspector had testified that on June 1 they had sent out 500 circulars, and, says Mr. Bragg: "When books are discribed in the catalogues issued by Skill and King as 'suppressed by the police at London,' 'containing the obscene and blasphemous passages suppressed in later editions,' 'literally a chamber of horrors,' 'fine engravings (none very free)'; 'glorification of sensuality'; 'fine realistic frontispiece'; 'studies from the nude, etc.'; 'dealing in a masterly manner with some of the worst phases of French life,' etc., the character of the business can hardly be called 'ordinary legitimate bookselling.'"

ONE AGAINST MANY.

After quoting further from the records particularly of Judge Winchester's address to the defendants, Mr Bragg goes on: "The reason which you, sir, give for releasing them is 'because, in my humble judgment, they were not guilty of the offence with which they were charged.'

"Now, sir, arrayed against your humble judgment, is that of the Post Office Departments at Washington, Ottawa and Toronto; the Customs Department; the detective force, the Police Magistrate, and Judge Winchester. Even the prisoners are opposed to you, for they, by the advice of clever lawyers, pleaded 'guilty.'

"Now, sir, it may be well to call your attention to some cases which resemble this of Skill and King.

OTHERS WERE PAROLED.

"Arthur G. Robinson was sentenced by Police Magistrate Denison, on October 23rd, 1908, for sending obscene matter through the mails. He was shown in other ways to be vile. You sir, let him out on parole—a most unusual proceeding.

"George R. Cummings was sent down by Judge Winchester, October 12th, 1907, for sending "indescribably filthy matter" through the mails, the sentence being the maximum: 2 years, less one day. He also was paroled by you, serving until August 4th, 1909.

"Graf was sentenced on March 29th, 1909, by Police Magistrate Denison, to 23 months, and—strange too say—he has not yet been paroled! Is this an oversight, or can it be that his lawyer was not acceptable to such a "political partizan" as you, sir, avow yourself to be?

"In what position does the matter stand at present?

"Your action in liberating men who were pouring filthy and disgusting books broadcast into the United States after the Government had asked to have the business stopped by Canada, is an affront to our neighbor nation; your statement that they "were not guilty" is an insult to bench, bar and police, who arrested and tried them, as well as to the intelligence of the public.

"You have exposed your party to criticism and your revered chief to hostility, because of your deliberate contempt for all right-minded people.

UNMENTIONABLE CRIMES.

"Worse still, through your action, Canada is the one civilized country where the Minister of Justice approves the distribution of books which are not simply indecent, but teach unnatural and unmentionable crimes.

"You, sir, have attained the unenviable position of not only being the first Minister of the Crown who gloried publicly in being a 'political partizan,' but also the first public man in civilized times who officially approved of the general circulation of foul books.

"You, sir, must distinctly understand that this is neither a personal nor a political criticism; it calls in question your extraordinary action as Minister of Justice.

"We disagree emphatically from you, sir, and believe that Canada does not want such a villainous business carried on, whether the books are sold here or in another country.

CANADA DOESN'T WANT HIM.

"Nor do we believe that Canada wants as a Minister of the Crown, one who takes the position you have done. The Liberal party will be much stronger, and the Government more secure when you have left a position for which you have shown yourself so eminently unfit.

"A man whose opinion on books stands pre-eminent, and a deep student of the classics, Professor Goldwin Smith, has made the eminent statement that such books are 'Procurers of Hell, and you, sir, endorse their circulation. I am, sir, your obedient servant.

"HARRY BRAGG."

BURNED OFF THE ROOF

Fire Early this Morning on Chamberlain St.

Fire broke out this morning about 2 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Hartley at the corner of Chamberlain and Park streets. The roof of the house, which is a frame one, was burned and the loss is estimated at between $200 and $300. The brigade worked a couple of hours on the blaze. The family was fast asleep at the time the fire broke out. A C.P.R. freight, with engineer Wanless in charge, was passing at the time and the whistle was blown repeatedly. This not failing to arouse the family, he went over and woke them up.

What might have proved a serious accident occurred to-day about noon, when a buggy, containing a man and woman, was hit by a street car on Charlotte street near Aylmer. Fortunately the car was not running at any great speed and neither were injured and no damage inflicted to the buggy. The names of the occupants are unknown, but the vehicle belonged to Northey's livery, Lakefield.

About seven hundred immigrants passed through the city early this morning. About fifteen stopped off at Peterborough. Mr. G. H.
